Stay of preparation of final decree.—It is generally expedient that proceedings for the preparation of the final decree should not be stayed pending an appeal from the preliminary decree, because the mere passing of the final decree will not in any way affect the rights of the parties to the appeal.—Janki Dass v. Sheo Prasad, 136 I. C. 75 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 238 : 30 A. L. J. 43.

Form of decree in a suit for sale.—In a suit by a mortgagee against the mortgagor and the purchasers of the mortgaged property, held, that the proper decree in the suit should be a money-decree against the mortgagor only, with a declaration that the mortgaged property is liable to be sold free of subsequent incumbrances.—Bhairab Chandra v. Nadyar Chand, 3 B. L. R. 357 : 12 W. R. 291.

In a suit for recovery of mortgage-money by sale where it appeared that the decree was in substance a decree for sale of the mortgaged properties though not in the prescribed form, held, that the decree was to be regarded as a mortgage-decree under the T. P. Act, IV of 1892.—Lal Behary v. Habibur Rahaman, 26 C. 166 (24 C. 473, 25 C. 530 referred to).

A suit on a mortgage was adjusted and a decree made treating a solehnamah filed by the parties as a part of the decree. It was agreed that the amount due should be paid in instalments and that the mortgaged property should be sold in default of payment. Held, that though the form of the decree is not strictly in accordance with the provisions of this section, still the decree is a valid one and the mortgaged property should be sold to satisfy the decretal amount. Whether an order under S. 89 of the T. P. Act, is necessary or not, the Court has general jurisdiction to direct a sale of the property. Section 89 of the T. P. Act contemplates a certain state of things, but where such a state of things does not exist that section does not exclude other ways of enforcing a decree, if such decree is otherwise valid in law.—Abir Paramanik v. Jahar Mahmud, 34 C. 886: 11 C. W. N. 879: 6 C. L. J. 95. A similar view has also been taken in Bechu Singh v. Bicharam, 10 C. L. J. 91, where it has been further held that the provisions of S. 89, T. P. Act, are not applicable to consent decrees.

In a suit by the mortgagee against a Mitakshara father and son to enforce a mortgage-bond executed by the father within six years from the due date fixed by the mortgage, it was not proved that there was any legal necessity for the loan, or that the loan was contracted for illegal or immoral purposes: Held that the mortgagee was entitled to have the security enforced as against the share of the mortgagor and also against the share of the son in the ancestral property.—Kishun Pershad v. Tipan Pershad, 34 C. 735: 11 C. W. N. 613: 5 C. L. J. 569.

A combined decree under Ss. 88 and 90 of the T. P. Act (rr. 4 and 6), is contrary to the procedure prescribed by that Act. Where such a decree is passed and the decree-holder proceeds to execute it for the realization of the balance after the mortgaged property has been sold, the provisions of S. 230, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 48), will apply.—Chandi Charan v. Ambika Charan, 31 C. 792 (25 A. 541 dissented from). See also Damodar v. Vyanku, 31 B. 244: 9 Bom. L. R. 199, and Sadho Singh v. Maharaja of Benares, 29 A. 12, in which it has been held that where a decree in a suit for sale of hypothecated property is both a decree for sale and a personal decree, there is no need for the decree-holder to apply for a separate decree under S. 90 of the T. P. Act (r. 6), and if he does so and his application is rejected, this will not operate as a bar to his executing the decree against the judgment-debtor personally.

In a mortgage-suit a decree may be passed for the sale of the mortgaged property subject to a charge for maintenance in favour of a particular person, the plaintiff in such a suit does not occupy the position of a second mortgagee.—Lalman v. Mohar Singh, 29 A. 205: 3 A. L. J. 848 (13 A. 432 distinguished).

Form of decree discussed, where a person who at a sale in execution of a mortgage-decree has purchased a portion of the mortgaged property, brings a suit for that portion against the assignee in possession as mortgagor.—Bepin Behari v. Brojo Nath, 8 C. 357.

In a suit on a mortgage for an account and sale of the mortgaged property, where a puisne mortgagee, who is made a defendant, appears and proves his mortgage and asks that the decree sought to be obtained by the plaintiff may also provide for an account on the footing of his mortgage, and for payment of the amount found due to him out of the sale-proceeds, the practice of the Court is, where no issue is raised as between the defendants and no question of priority arises, on proof of the subsequent mortgage to make a decree directing an account on the footing of each of the mortgages, and fixing one period of redemption for all the defendants.—Kissory Mohun v. Kally Churn, 22 C. 100 (5 C. 101 referred to). See also Kissory Mohan v. Kali Churn, 24 C. 190. This case has been explained and distinguished in Debendra Nath v. Abdul Samed, 10 C. L. J. 160.

In a suit on a mortgage by a second mortgagee, to which the prior mortgagee was a party, and in which the plaintiff prayed that the amount due to him might be realized by a sale of the mortgaged property, held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for sale of the mortgaged property subject to the lien of the prior incumbrancer.—Kanti Ram v. Kutubuddin, 23 C. 33 (referred to in Beni Madhub v. Sourendra Mohun, 23 C. 795). See also Durga v. Chandra Nath, 4 C. W. N. 541.

XXXIV, r. 5, the stranger auction-purchaser acquires the right of the mortgagee and also of the mortgagor and it cannot be said that the right of redemption remained in the mortgagor after the sale or in any event after the confirmation thereof. Even where the purchaser is not a stranger but a puisne mortgagee himself his purchase is competent and then too the mortgagor's right to redeem the first mortgage is extinguished.—Kalipada v. Basanta, 35 C. W. N. 877.

Decree on first mortgage, a puisne mortgagee not being joined—Purchase of mortgaged property by decree-holder for inadequate price—Right of puisne mortgagee—Form of decree.—Rangayya v. Parthasarathi, 20 M. 120.

A mortgagor stipulated that if the mortgaged properties be sold for arrears of revenue, or for other causes, the money advanced might be recovered by execution against the person or other property of the mortgagor. Held, that no sale having taken place, the mortgagee could only obtain a decree against the mortgaged properties.—Bunseedhur v. Sujaat Ali, 16 C. 540 (10 C. 740 referred to).

Where the suit is based upon a mortgage by the express provisions of which the whole amount is payable in a lump sum, and there is also a surety for the payment of the sum due on the bond, the Court is not justified in fixing instalments; the entire amount must be paid in a lump or a sale is to be ordered.—*Maya Das v. Where a co-mortgagee sues for sale impleading the other co-mortgagee as a party defendant, and the decree specifies their respective dues, there cannot be said to be two separate decrees in one suit, and so in form the decree is not objectionable.—*Upendra v. Construction of mortgage-decree.—Where the plaintiff sued on a mortgage-bond by enforcement of lien on the property hypothecated, and regarded as a simple money-decree, and not for enforcement of any lien.—Thamman Singh v. Ganga Ram, 2 A. 342; Harsukh v. Meghraj, 2 A. 345; Janaki Prasad v. Baldeo, 3 A. 216. A decree on a mortgage-bond ordered that the amount be realized from the mortgaged property without any provision to realize the money from any other property. Held, that the decree-holder's right was limited to the mortgaged property alone.—Solano v. Moran & Co, 4 C. L. R. 11. See also Pran Kuar v. Durga Prasad, 10 A. 127; Budan v. Ram Chandra, 11 B. 537.

In a decree for sale of hypothecated property and against the judgment-debtor personally, the decree-holder is entitled to proceed either against the person or against the mortgaged property, whichever he may think best.—*Joharimal v. But the mortgaged property must be sold first.—Gopal Das v. Ali Muhammad, 10 A. 632.

Where a mortgage is held invalid on the ground that the requirements of S. 59 of the T. P. Act, regarding registration were not complied with, a money-decree can be made upon the covenant in the bond.—Tofaluddi Peada v. Mahar Ali, 26 C. 78. The promise to repay the mortgage-money carries with it a personal obligation. Where there is in the mortgage nothing to the contrary, the remedy of the mortgagee is not restricted to the mortgaged property only; the mortgage merely gives the mortgagee an additional security in the shape of the pledged property.—Bhugwan Das v. Parmeshwari Prasad, 5 C. L. J. 287. See also Parbati Charan v. Gobinda Chandra, 4 C. L. J. 246 (19 W. R. 281, 12 C. 389 referred to; 10 C. 740 (P. C.), 16 C. 540 distinguished); Abbakke Heggadthi v. Kinhiamma, 29 M. 491 (22 A. 453, p. 461, referred to) and Musaheb Zaman Khan v. Inayatullah, 14 A. 513.

On default in payment on a simple mortgage, a Court, instead of passing a decree for sale, passed a decree for possession by the mortgagee after a period of grace. Held, that the decree for possession did not amount to a decree for foreclosure, or preclude redemption.—Papamma Rao v. Vira Pratapa, 19 M. 249 (P. C.); 23 I. A. 32; 6 M. L. J. 53.

Under the terms of a compromise decree in a mortgage-suit the judgment-debtor was directed to pay the debt due to the decree-holder by certain instalments specified therein, and it was also further provided that in default of the judgment-debtor paying the money as therein mentioned, the property mortgaged by him to the decree-holder should be sold. Held, on a construction of the decree, that it was not a preliminary one within the meaning of Or. XXXIV, r. 4, C. P. Code, but a final decree directing the sale of the property of the judgment-debtor on default of payment.—Kora Lal v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 5 L. L. J. 67; 55 I. C. 816; A. I. R. 1921 Lah. 324.

Where a mortgage-decree omits to reserve rights of such persons whose rights are admitted, it ought to be construed with reference to the admission contained in the pleadings or made in the course of the case, and ought not to be so construed as to grant a larger measure of relief than is prayed for so as to negative rights admitted by all parties.—Srinivasa v. Yamunabhai, 29 M. 84.

A decree-holder obtained a decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 6 against the heirs of the mortgagors and sought to recover the same from out of the assets of the deceased in their hands. The decree-holder subsequently inherited her husband's share which was liable for the debts. Held, that the inheritance did not render her liable for the entire decree-debt but that the amount due was proportionately decreased.—Asia Bibi v. Aziz Ahmad, 137 I. C. 50: (1932) A. L. J. 230: A. I. R. 1932 All. 704.

Power to enlarge time.—Whatever might have been the view before the amendment of 1929, it is quite clear now by the amendment now made that the Court which passes a preliminary decree can, on good cause shown, postpone the date fixed by the Court.—Sat Parkash v. Bahal Rai, 53 A. 283 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1931 All. 386: 29 A. L. J. 508.

6. Where the net proceeds of any sale held under the last preceding rule are found insufficient to pay the amount due to the plaintiff, the Court, on application by him may, if the balance is legally recoverable from the defendant otherwise than out of the property sold, pass a decree for such balance.

Recovery of balance due on mortgage in suit for sale

COMMENTARY.

History.—The above rule was substituted for the old r. 6 by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1929 which came into operation on the 1st April 1930. The old rule is reproduced below.

Recovery of
mortgage

6 Where the net proceeds of any such sale are found to be insufficient to pay the amount due to the plaintiff, if the balance is legally recoverable from the defendant otherwise than out of the property sold, the Court may pass decree for such amount. [S. 90]

The old rule corresponded to S. 90 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1892) with some additions and alterations. No material change was made in the meaning as will appear on a comparison of this rule with the old section which ran as follows: "Where the net proceeds of any such sale are insufficient to pay the amount due for the time being on the mortgage, if the balance is legally recoverable from the defendant otherwise than out of the property sold, the Court may pass a decree for such sum."

The words "amount due to the plaintiff" were substituted for the words "due for the time being on the mortgage," which occurred in the old section. The reason for the substitution seems to be, that the costs incurred by the plaintiff in a suit for sale are not properly amounts due upon the mortgage. (See Ram Lal v. Sil Chand, 23 A. 439 and 26 A. 507); and in view of the observations made in the above rulings, the words of the old section were changed. From the above rulings it is also clear that the word "defendant" in this rule, means the mortgagor defendant, and not a puisne mortgagee or any other person who is made a co-defendant in the suit under r. 1.

The personal liability of a mortgagor arises only after exhausting all remedies against the property of the mortgagor but this does not mean that in a case where a portion of a mortgaged property is destroyed there can be no personal liability.—Chand Mall v. Banbehari, 50 C. 718.

Present change.—The words "any sale held under the last preceding rule" make it clear that this rule applies to a rule held in execution of a decree made under r. 5.

Jurisdiction.—In the case of a mortgage the existence of a charge on a property within the jurisdiction of a Court does not give that Court jurisdiction to entertain an application under Or. XXXIV, r. 6 because this rule only applies to a personal covenant under the mortgage.—Bhup Singh v. Fateh Singh, 29 A. L. J. 893; A. I. R. 1931 All. 192.

Right to personal decree.—In India a mortgage does not necessarily import a personal obligation to repay. Prima facie this obligation is present in simple mortgages; and of course, in English mortgages. Prima facie it is not present in mortgages by conditional sale and in usufructuary mortgages. In each case the question is one of construction of the mortgage instrument and the personal liability to repay may become barred before the right of recourse to the mortgaged property is barred. In these circumstances a decree for sale made in a mortgage-suit, unless it contains an express decision as to personal liability, is not in any way an affirmation that such liability exists, or ever has existed. Even where it exists, the mortgagee is not in India allowed in a suit to enforce the security to have recourse to the personal covenant until he has first exhausted the security, and given credit for its proceeds. This is the real meaning of S 90 and of r. 6 of Or. XXXIV, and this is very different from a mere claim to have the decree for sale enforced.—Per Rankin, J. in Pell v. Gregory, 52 C. 528 (F. B.): 89 I. C. 1; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 834.

The liability of a surety being co-extensive with that of the principal debtor, there is nothing to prevent a personal decree being passed against the surety.—Tulshi Prasad v. Dip Prakash, 29 A. L. J. 559; 132 I. C 561: A. I. R. 1931 All. 631.

In all mortgages a personal covenant to repay the mortgage-money must be presumed unless there is something in the nature and the terms of the mortgage-deed to negative it. The nature of the deed may either raise a presumption for or a presumption against an interpretation as to the existence of a personal covenant. A clause in the deed of usufructuary mortgage that "the mortgagees shall be competent to recover the money in any way they liked" enables the mortgagees to apply for a personal decree against the mortgagor.—Pars Ram v. Brij Mohan, 135 I. C. 33: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 164.

Where some of the defendants in a mortgage-suit were made parties in their capacity of puisne incumbrancers and not on the ground of any liability for the mortgage-debt nor on the ground of their being in possession, no personal remedy can be obtained against them.—Fala Kristo v. Jagannath, 36 C. W. N. 709.

A charge-holder is, as much as a mortgagee, entitled to a personal remedy in the event of deficiency of the proceeds of sale.—Fala Kristo v. Jagannath, 36 C. W. N. 709.

A mortgagee who obtains a decree for sale but fails to execute it, is not entitled to apply under Or. XXXIV, r. 6, to obtain a decree over, as that rule contemplates that the property should be put to sale in execution of the decree before an application under its provisions can be made.—Darbari Lal v. Moola Singh, 18 A. L. J. 623: 56 I. C. 139. See also Sham Lal v. Sheobaran Singh, 20 I. C. 320 (29 A. 260 referred to). The holder of a mortgage-decree can proceed against the other property of the mortgagor, only if the mortgaged properties do not belong to the mortgagor. A mortgage-decree directing payment within a fixed date and in default ordering the sale of the hypothecated property is a personal decree and the decree-holder can proceed against the person and other property of the judgment-debtor without obtaining a decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 6.—Periyasami v. Muthia, 38 M. 677: 15 M. L. T. 232.

Where the mortgagor covenants to transfer the hypothecated properties indefeasibly to the mortgagee with the usual clause for redemption and further covenants to pay the mortgage-debt with interest to the mortgagee, his heir and assigns, the latter clause is a personal covenant to pay out of properties other than the hypothecated properties, as the latter clause would be entirely superfluous if the parties had no intention that the mortgagor should be personally liable to pay to the mortgagee the money due to him. Therefore in such cases, the mortgagee is not only entitled to a decree for sale but also to a personal decree against the mortgagor.—Askaran Baid v. Gobordhan, 26 C. W. N. 318.

It is the decree that is passed under this rule that is executable against the mortgagors personally, and in the absence of such a decree, the mortgagee is not entitled to proceed against the property of the mortgagors other than that covered by the mortgage. The preliminary decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 4 is not itself capable of execution and cannot therefore give a personal remedy against the mortgagors.—Bulkee Bee v. Kaka Hajee Muhammad, 50 M. L. J. 39: 93 I. C. 99: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 415

Where a personal remedy was asked for in the plaint but the preliminary and the final decrees were silent about it, held that the absence of any reservation of rights to a decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 4, did not affect the right to a decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 6.—103 I. C. 523: 53 M. L. J. 493 A. I. R.

Where by consent there has been a departure from the strict form of a preliminary decree, such departure would not affect the applicability in principle and substance of the provisions of Or. XXXIV, r. 6 to a personal judgment.—Rai Saheb Sundermull v. J. C. Galstaun, 33 C. W. N. 300: A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 387 (affirmed on appeal by the Privy Council in 36 C. W. N. 109).

In the case of a consent-decree no further decree is necessary if the consent-decree provides for a personal remedy in the event of the sale proceeds proving insufficient.—Aditya v. Hargovind, 3 Luck. 411: 108 I. C. 723: A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 490. See the cases noted under heading "Consent decree" under rr. 2 and 3.

"Are found to be insufficient to pay the amount due."—Where after sale of mortgaged property in execution of mortgage-decree, the sale is set aside and mortgagee is required to refund the proceeds to the purchaser, he can apply under this rule, as the proceeds in such a case are nil and therefore insufficient.—Badal v. Debi Saran, 49 A. 506: 25 A. L. J. 485: 100 I. C. 775: A. I. R. 1927 All. 395 (Pirbhu Narain v. Baldeo, 29 A. 260 not followed; Kedar Nath v. Chandu Mal, 26 A. 25 followed).

Where as a result of proceedings subsequently taken, the sale is set aside and the auction-purchaser gets refund of the purchase-money, the mortgagee may obtain a personal decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 6.—Badal v. Debi Saran, 49 A. 506: 25 A. L. J. 485: 100 I. C. 775: A. I. R. 1927 All. 395.

The sale contemplated by S. 89, T. P. Act, 1882 (r. 5), is the sale of the whole or of a sufficient portion of the mortgaged property. A personal decree under this rule can only be made where the net sale proceeds are insufficient to pay the amount due on the mortgage. A mortgagee may release a portion of the mortgaged property from the debt, but he cannot by so doing impose upon the mortgagor a personal liability to which otherwise he would not be subject. The condition precedent to enable a Court to pass a decree under this rule is the sale of all the mortgaged properties. Where the mortgagee released substantial portions of the mortgaged property and also the purchasers of those portions from the mortgage-debt, there being no consent or acquiescence on the part of the mortgagor and there being nothing to show that the amount which the purchasers paid to the mortgagee was the full and true value of the property, which they purchased; held, that the mortgagor was entitled to claim to have the mortgaged property sold before a decree could be passed against him under S. 90, T. P. Act.—Lal Behary v. Habibur, 26 C. 166; Ram Ranjan v. Indra Narain, 33 C. 890: 10 C. W. N. 862: 3 C. L. J. 83-n; Satish Ranjan Das v. Mercantile Bank of India Ltd., 45 C. 702: 48 I. C. 322; Badri Das v. Inayat Khan, 22 A. 404; Damodar v. Vyanku, 31 B. 244; Aiyasamier v. Venkatachela, 40 M. 989: 37 I. C. 741 (F. B.). But see Sheo Prasad v. Behari Lal, 25 A. 79; Ghafur Hassan v. Muhammad Kifayatulla, 28 A. 19: 2 A. L. J. 413; Shriam Sundar v. Ganesh Prasad, 28 A. 674: 3 A. L. J. 465; Kedar Nath v. Chandu Mal, 26 A. 25; Pirbhu Narain v. Amir Singh, 29 A. 369. In these Allahabad cases it has been held that a mortgagee, is entitled at any stage to abandon his claim against any portion of the mortgaged property and then obtain a decree under this section (rule) for any balance due. It would thus appear that there is difference of opinion on the point. The Allahabad High Court has also held that if before sale a personal decree is passed without contest, the defendant is not entitled to object as it binds him.—Teja v. Tika Ram, 46 A. 32: 77 I. C. 37: A. I. R. 1924 All. 225. See also Rakhal Chandra v. Sidhi Nath, (1919) P. 390: 53 I. C. 923.

The plaintiff as second mortgagee obtained a final decree, but before he could sell the properties a prior mortgagee brought a suit against the mortgagor and the plaintiff on his own mortgage obtained a decree and sold the properties. Held that the plaintiff could ask for a personal decree, and it could not be said that the plaintiff should put the properties to sale before he could apply for a personal decree.—Adhar Chandra v. Sarnwamoyi, 32 C. W. N. 1160: 117 I. C. 530: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 121. See also 32 Bom. L. R. 724, where a part of the mortgaged property was extinguished by fire and another portion was acquired by the Municipality.

Where the remedy by sale is shown to be no remedy at all, e. g., by the discovery that the mortgagor never had any title to the property to be sold, or that the mortgagor has lost his right to the property in some way the reason for suspending the passing of a personal decree for sale is gone and a personal decree may at once be passed.—Sahu Bisheshar v. Chandu Lal, 108 I. C. 459: A. I. R. 1928 All. 71: 25 A. L. J. 1042.

A Full Bench of the Oudh Chief Court has on a review of the cases of all the Courts held that an application for a personal decree under r. 6 cannot be made unless a sale in pursuance of the preceding rule has in fact taken place.—Shyam Behari v. Musst. Mohamadei, 126 I. C. 700 (F. B.): 7 O. W. N. 744: A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 377. (See the cases referred to in this case).

Where a mortgagee decree-holder has, in execution of his decree, sold some of the properties covered by the decree but has not realised sufficient money to pay off the amount due, and is unable to sell the remaining properties by reason of their being situated in a Native State which will not execute the decree of a British Indian Court, the decree-holder is entitled to a personal decree.—Samanta Gagarnath v. Lokenath, 61 I. C. 635. Also where through inadvertence an insignificant portion has been left unsold.—Gopal v. Baikuntha, 42 I. C. 56: 2 P. L. J. 538.

Where a decree for sale becomes inoperative on the mortgagor being declared not to have been the owner of the mortgaged property at the date of the mortgage, Or. XXXIV, r. 6 can have no application. Under that rule the plaintiff cannot obtain a simple money-decree before the sale of the mortgaged property and the sale proceeds proving insufficient to satisfy the mortgage money.—Zia Uddin v. Akbar Ali, 136 I. C. 829: 30 A. L. J. 317: A. I. R. 1932 All. 358; Babu Lal v. Raghunandan, (1932) A. L. J. 311.

Where in a suit for sale by the mortgagee against the mortgagor and his sons, the property hypothecated was sold and the plaintiff applied for a personal decree against the father for the balance due under the mortgage and costs, and against the sons for the amount due for costs, held, that it was open to the plaintiff notwithstanding the amalgamation of the amount due under the mortgage, subsequent interest and costs into one sum to assume that costs were part of the mortgage balance and to ask for a decree for costs as if from the sons.—Rajagopala-swami v. Pala, 1932 Mad. 155. 578: 62 M. L. J. 93: A. I. R.

Where a mortgagor has been adjudged an insolvent with reference to certain debts which were provable in insolvency, the order of adjudication and the order of discharge cannot prejudicially affect the legal rights of the creditor against the debtor in respect of debts which were provable in insolvency. The orders cannot take away the statutory right of the decree holder to apply for a decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 6.—Niaz Ahmed v. Phul Kunwar, 30 A. L. J. 237; A. I. R. 1932 All. 336.

When a mortgagee brings a suit to enforce his mortgage, the Court will not allow him to enforce it by personal judgment against the borrower until he has exhausted his remedies against the security. It is wrong at the time of making a final order for sale to order that if the proceeds are insufficient there will be a personal decree. The usual practice is certainly that the personal decree is not even granted until the sale has been carried out and the deficiency ascertained. It is a form of relief which in the ordinary way will not be given to a mortgagee unless and until this stage has been reached. The power of the Court to give that form of relief does not depend upon r. 6 of Or. XXXIV which is a provision giving direction to the Court as to the time and manner at and in which the relief is to be given. That power is not derived from the inclusion of the clause reserving leave to the plaintiff in the final decree.—Sundermull v. J. C. Galstaun, 36 C. W. N. 109 (P. C.): 54 C. L. J. 400; 62 M. L. J. 170.

A personal decree against the mortgagor can only be passed after it has been ascertained that the proceeds of the sale of the mortgaged properties are insufficient to pay the amount of the decree. But the words of the section are satisfied in cases where the Court passes a decree that on the happening of the event when the nett proceeds of the sale are found to be insufficient the balance should be paid by the mortgagor. So a combined or a composite decree in the first instance is not invalid or incompetent. The question whether a further decree could be had or not would depend on the terms of the decree already had.—Fala Kristo v. Jagannath, 36 C. W. N. 709.

The holder of a mortgage decree, which simply directs the sale of the mortgaged property, and contains no other directions for realization of the balance from the person or other property of the mortgagor, in case the sale-proceeds prove insufficient to satisfy the decree, may on the proceeds proving insufficient, ask for and obtain a decree under this rule for realization of the balance from the other properties of the debtor.—Sonatun Shah v. Ali Newaz, 16 C. 423 (discussed in Musaheb Zaman v. Inayatullah, 14 A. 513). See also Lalla Terhini v. Lalla Hurruk, 21 C. 26.

The decree contemplated by this rule can be made in the suit in which the decree for sale was passed; and it is not necessary to institute a fresh suit to obtain such decree.—Raj Singh v. Parmanand, 11 A. 486. See also Durga Dai v. Bhagwat Prasad, 13 A. 356. Indeed a fresh suit for this purpose would be barred unless in cases in which the mortgagee would be unable to include both claims in one suit by reason of the cause of action not having arisen or the defendant not residing within the territorial jurisdiction of the Court having jurisdiction over the mortgaged property, in which cases he might reserve to himself the right to institute a fresh suit under leave under Or. II, r. 2.—Mallikarjunadu v. Lingamurti, 25 M. 244 (F. B.) at p. 287.

The sale contemplated by this rule must be a sale in execution of the decree of the mortgagee who applies for the personal decree and not some other mortgagee.—Kamta Prasad v. Saiyed Ahmad, 31 A. 373; Muhammad Akbar v. Munshi Ram, (1899) A. W. N. 208; Badri v. Inayat, 22 A. 404; Darbari v. Mula, 42 A. 519.

A decree for sale of the mortgaged property cannot be treated as a money-decree. The mortgagee must first sell the mortgaged property and if the sale-proceeds be insufficient, then the balance may be recovered, and he can then recover the balance from the person or other property of the mortgagor, if it is legally recoverable.—Gopal Das v. Ali Muhammad, 10 A. 632. See also Surja Kumar v. Pramada Sundaree, 17 C. W. N. 1039: 20 I. C. 829; Arunachella v. Venkatarama, 38 M. L. J. 93: 26 M. L. T. 192.

'Amounts due' would include costs even though the same were not ordered specifically to be covered by the mortgage-decree under r. 5.—Magbul v. Lalta Prasad, 20 A. 523 (F. B.). The expression means the amount to recover which the decree for sale has been previously passed.—Chotey Lal v. Laiq Singh, A. I. R. 1929 All. 15.

A mortgagee cannot sell the mortgaged property in execution of an ordinary money-decree in satisfaction of a claim not arising under the mortgage. Section 99 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) limits the right of a decree-holder in such a case, and provides that he shall not bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise than by instituting a suit under S. 67 of the Act.—Jadub Lall v. Madhub Lall, 21 C. 34; Kaveri v. Ananthayya, 10 M. 129; Azimullah v. Najmunnessa, 16 A. 415

Where on a previous occasion a mortgage-decree was executed against the other property of the judgment-debtor without an order under this rule, and the judgment-debtor after service of notice upon him did not raise any objection, held, that the judgment-debtor was estopped from raising the objection in a subsequent application for execution.—Madhu Sudan v. Kailash Chunder, 2 C. W. N. 254.

Where there is nothing to show a contrary intention of the parties, every mortgage carries with it a personal liability to pay the money advanced; but a mortgagee must sue for his remedy against the property first. In so doing it is immaterial whether or not he prays in his plaint for relief against non-hypothecated property. Unless in exceptional cases, he can obtain such relief only under this rule, and if such relief is refused, the refusal will not bar a subsequent application under this rule. Observations on the meaning and application of Ss. 88, 89 and 90 of the T. P. Act (rr. 4, 5 and 6).—Musaheb Zaman v. Inayatullah, 14 A. 513 (16 C. 423 discussed). Every mortgage carries with it a personal liability.—See 5 C. L. J. 237; 4 C. L. J. 246; 29 M. 491, noted under rule 5 and Jangi Singh v. Chandar Mol, 30 A. 389: 5 A. L. J. 670 (11 B. 475 not followed; 21 M. 242 referred to).

If a person promises to pay a certain sum of money with interest and hypothecates property as security without any express covenant that he would be personally liable, or without stating any mode of payment, he is personally liable, and a decree under S. 90, T. P. Act, should be passed against the mortgagor, if the sale-proceeds of the mortgaged property prove to be insufficient and the remedy is not time-barred.—Ram Kishore v. Surajdeo Pershad, 13 C. W. N. 138: 9 C. L. J. 5 (4 C. L. J. 246 approved; 10 C. 740, 16 C. 540 referred to).

The holder of a charge is like a mortgagee suing for sale, entitled to ask for and obtain a decree under S. 90 of the T. P. Act, 1882 (r. 6). An unpaid vendor has not only a charge on the property sold in execution of his decree, but he has also a personal remedy under this rule against the vendees.—Uttam Ishlok v. Phulman Rai, 2 A. L. J. 379: (1905) A. W. N. 144 (21 A. 454, 22 B. 846, 14 A. 513 referred to). See the decision in Letters Patent appeal reported in 28 A. 365: (1906) A. W. N. 44: 3 A. L. J. 171.

Where the decree is in substance a mortgage-decree, though not in the prescribed form, it is not open to the decree-holder to proceed against non-hypothecated property before exhausting the mortgaged property and without obtaining an order under this rule.—Lal Behary v. Habibur Rahman, 26 C. 166: 3 C. W. N. 8 (24 C. 473: 25 C. 580 referred to; 22 C. 813 distinguished). See also Karimulla v. Mirza Muhammad, 3 P. L. J. 649: 48 I. C. 608.

A mortgagee obtained a decree for sale of properties partly in India and partly in England. In pursuance of the decree some of the mortgaged property was sold in India, and at the request of the mortgagor some of it was subsequently sold in England. Held, that the sale which took place in England must be treated as a sale held in connection with the decree passed in this country and that the mortgagee was entitled to a decree under this rule.—Gajadhar v. The Alliance Bank of Simla Ltd, 28 A. 660.

Where a part of the mortgaged property was sold privately by consent of the parties, and consideration went towards payment of the mortgage-decree, and the sale-proceeds of the remaining mortgaged properties were found insufficient to satisfy the decree. Held, that the decree-holder is entitled to a personal decree under this section (rule). The sale of the mortgaged property by public auction is not essential.—Udit Narain v. Baquar Sajjad, 2 A. L. J. 353: (1905) A. W. N. 124.

A puisne mortgagee of property upon which there existed several incumbrances, obtained a decree for sale after redemption of prior incumbrances. The prior incumbrances were redeemed and the mortgaged property was sold, but the sale-proceeds were insufficient even to cover the amounts due upon the prior incumbrances, not to mention the amount due upon his puisne mortgage. Held, that the puisne mortgagee decree-holder is entitled to a decree under this rule in respect of the deficit due upon the prior incumbrances as well as in respect of the deficit upon his own mortgage.—Ali Jan v. Mariam Bibi, 26 A. 93.

Where a plaint contains a prayer for a personal decree and the decree passed under Form No. 4 of the Appendix for sale directs that if the sale-proceeds are insufficient the plaintiff would be at liberty to apply for a personal decree, this amounts to an adjudication that the plaintiff has a right to get a personal decree, and unless it is set aside by appeal, the question cannot be reopened on the application for personal decree subsequently made—Ram Nath v. Nageshur, 7 O. W. N. 774 (F. B.): 126 I. C. 689: A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 378.

A puisne mortgagee sued the prior mortgagees for redemption and a decree was passed for redemption or sale. He did not pay the decretal amount and the property was sold on the application of the prior mortgagees, but it failed to realize the full amount due to the prior mortgagees, who thereupon applied under S. 90 of the T. P. Act, to recover the balance from the puisne mortgagee personally. Held, that this rule does not apply to such a case. The word "defendant" which occurs in this rule does not include a puisne mortgagee.—Mata Amber v. Sri Dhar, 26 A. 507. See also Ram Lal v. Sil Chand, 23 A. 439, where it has been held that the word "defendant" in S. 90 of the T. P. Act, 1882, must mean the mortgagor-defendant, and that the money recoverable, by reason of the proceeds of the mortgaged property proving insufficient to pay off the decree passed under S. 89, T. P. Act (r. 5), from the person whose property had been mortgaged and sold, if legally recoverable from him.

A purchaser of the equity of redemption is under no personal liability to the mortgagee though he agreed to pay off the mortgage.—Nanku Prasad v. Kamta Prasad, 95 I. C. 970: 26 C. W. N. 771: A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 54.

Where a decree was passed under Or. XXXIV, r. 6 against the assets of the mortgagor in the hands of his widow and the next reversioner to whom she had surrendered the estate and thereafter in pursuance of an agreement between the widow and the next reversioner, she obtained a decree for a maintenance allowance with a charge on the property in his possession, and the mortgagee in execution of his decree sought to attach not only the corpus of the property in the hands of the reversioner but also the decree for maintenance obtained by the widow, held, that the decree was not a part of the assets and could not be attached.—Musst. Ram Sri v. Thakur Narain, 129 I. C. 374: A. I. R. 1931 All. 368.

"If the balance is legally recoverable."—The words "balance is legally recoverable" mean that the balance must be a balance which the mortgagee is not precluded by the terms of the mortgage from realizing otherwise than out of the property sold, or a balance the recovery of which is not barred by limitation—Musaheb Zaman v. Inayatullah, 14 A. 513 (referred to in Bageshri Dial v. Muhammad Naqi, 15 A. 331). See also Parbati Charan v. Gobinda Chandra, 4 C. L. J. 246 (23 B. 630 referred to). The transferee from a mortgagee who has agreed with the mortgagor to pay the mortgagee the amount due to him is not a person from whom the balance is recoverable legally under this rule because there is no contract between him and the mortgagee; hence no personal decree may be passed against him under this rule; Jamna Das v. Ram Autar, 34 A. 63 (P. C.): 16 C. W. N. 97: 15 C. L. J. 68: 39 I. A. 7: 13 I. C. 304 (affirming 31 A. 352); Nanku Prasad v. Kamta Prasad, 95 I. C. 970: 26 C. W. N. 771 (P. C.): A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 54.

Where a mortgage-decree gives the mortgagee a remedy against the mortgaged properties, the personal remedy on the money claim against the Award decrees.—An award decree directing that the mortgagee will recover personally any deficit after sale is not invalid.—Karachi Bank Ltd. v. Khemchand, 115 I. C. 336: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 44.

Application for supplementary decree—Service of notice and production of succession certificate, if necessary.—A personal decree for a large sum should not be passed ex parte. The person against whom the decree is sought to be obtained, has a right to be heard as to his personal liability, whether his property is liable for the debt and whether the amount claimed is correct.—Abdul Sattar v. Satya Bhushan, 35 C. 767.

Where a mortgagee died after preliminary decree and his heirs were substituted and a decree absolute for sale was made in their favour, but the sale-proceeds of the mortgaged property proving insufficient they applied for a personal decree under this rule for the recovery of the balance. Held, that no such decree could be made in their favour until they obtained a certificate under the Succession Certificate Act, VII of 1889.—Sahadev Sukul v. Sakhawat Hossein, 12 C. W. N. 145: 7 C. L. J. 658 and Abdul Sattar v. Satya Bhushan, 35 C. 767.

Dismissal of one application for default whether bars another.—It has been held that it is barred.—Dharamchand v. Sheoranlal, 124 I. C. 249: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 188: 26 N. L. R. 154; A. K. Etc. Chettiyar Firm v. Maher Singh, 8 R. 316: 126 I. C. 648: A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 257.

Limitation as regards personal remedy.—In a suit for sale on the basis of a mortgage deed the proper stage for deciding whether the mortgagee's claim for a personal decree is barred by limitation is after the net proceeds of the sale have been found insufficient to pay the decretal amount. The personal remedy on the basis of a registered mortgage bond can be enforced within six years under Art. 116 of the Limitation Act—Ratnasabapathy v. Devasigamony, 52 M. 105 (F. B.): 116 I. C. 817: 56 M. L. J. 10: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 53 (in this case the decisions of the Judicial Committee in the cases of Ram Din v. Kalka Prasad, 12 I. A. 12: 7 A. 502 (P. C.) and Ganesh Lal v. Khetra Mohan, 5 P 585 (P. C.): 53 I. A. 134: 31 C. W. N. 25 have been fully explained and distinguished); Jai Indra v. Khairati, 4 Luck. 107: 113 I. C. 489: 5 O. W. N. 836: A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 465; Sahu Radha Krishna v. Tej Saroop, 52 A. 363 (F. B.): 123 I. C. 321: 27 A. L. J. 1294: A. I. R. 1930 All. 69; Dharamdhar v. Indra Narayan, 36 C. W. N. 117; Kanto Mohan v. Galstaun, 51 C. L. J. 283; Umapada v. Haripada, 35 C. W. N. 1030.

See also cases cited under the previous heading, "If the balance is legally recoverable."

Limitation for an application under this rule.—The limitation governing an application for a personal decree under this rule is that prescribed by Art. 181 of the Limitation Act.—Pell v. Gregory, 52 C. 828 (F. B.): 89 I. C. 1: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 834. (See the authorities referred to and discussed in this case). Time runs from the date of confirmation of the sale—Krishnabandhu v. Panchkari, 58 C. 741: 35 C. W. N. 231: 130 I. C. 815: 52 C. L. J. 531: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 166.

Appeal.—An application for a decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 6 cannot be considered to come under 'plaint,' and so an appeal does not lie under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (1) from an order returning such an application to be presented to the proper Court—Bhup Singh v. Fateh Singh, 29 A. L. J. 893: A. I. R. 1931 All. 192.

r. 7.

7. (1) In a suit for redemption, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a preliminary decree—

Preliminary decree in redemption suit.

(a) ordering that an account be taken of what was due to the defendant at the date of such decree for—

- (i) principal and interest on the mortgage,
- (ii) the costs of suit, if any, awarded to him, and
- (iii) other costs, charges and expenses properly incurred by him up to that date, in respect of his mortgage-security, together with interest thereon ; or

(b) declaring the amount so due at that date ; and

(c) directing—

(i) that, if the plaintiff pays into Court the amount so found or declared due on or before such date as the Court may fix within six months from the date on which the Court confirms and countersigns the account taken under Clause (a), or from the date on which such amount is declared in Court under Clause (b), as the case may be, and thereafter pays such amount as may be adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges and expenses as provided in rule 10 together with subsequent interest on such sums respectively as provided in r. 11, the defendant shall deliver up to the plaintiff, or to such person as the plaintiff appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall, if so required, re-transfer the property to the plaintiff at his cost free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the defendant or any person claiming under him, or, where the defendant claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall also, if necessary, put the plaintiff in possession of the property ; and

(ii) that, if payment of the amount found or declared due under or by the preliminary decree is not made on or before the date so fixed, or the plaintiff fails to pay, within such time as the Court may fix, the amount adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges, expenses and interests, the defendant shall be entitled to apply for a final decree—

- (a) in the case of a mortgage other than a usufructuary mortgage, a mortgage by conditional sale, or an anomalous mortgage the terms of which provide for foreclosure only and not for sale, that the mortgaged property be sold, or
- (b) in the case of a mortgage by conditional sale or such an anomalous mortgage as aforesaid, that the plaintiff be debarred from all right to redeem the property.

(2) The Court may, on good cause shown and upon terms to be fixed by the Court, from time to time, at any time before the passing of a final decree for foreclosure or sale, as the case may be, extend the time fixed for the payment of the amount found or declared due under sub-rule (1) or of the amount adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges, expenses and interest.

8. (1) Where, before a final decree debarring the plaintiff from all right to redeem the mortgaged property has been passed or before the confirmation of a sale held in pursuance of a final decree passed under sub-rule (3) of this rule, the plaintiff makes payment into Court of all amounts due from him under sub-rule (1) of rule 7, the Court shall, on application made by the plaintiff in this behalf, pass a final decree or, if such decree has been passed, an order—

(a) ordering the defendant to deliver up the documents referred to in the preliminary decree, and, if necessary,—

(b) ordering him to re-transfer at the cost of the plaintiff the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree, and, also, if necessary,—

(c) ordering him to put the plaintiff in possession of the property.

(2) Where the mortgaged property or a part thereof has been sold in pursuance of a decree passed under sub-rule (3) of this rule, the Court shall not pass an order under sub-rule (1) of this rule, unless the plaintiff, in addition to the amount mentioned in sub-rule (1), deposits in Court for payment to the purchaser a sum equal to five per cent. of the amount of the purchase-money paid into Court by the purchaser.

Where such deposit has been made, the purchaser shall be entitled to an order for repayment of the amount of the purchase-money paid into Court by him, together with a sum equal to five per cent. thereof.

(3) Where payment in accordance with sub-rule (1) has not been made, the Court shall, on application made by the defendant in this behalf,—

(a) in the case of a mortgage by conditional sale or of such an anomalous mortgage as is hereinbefore referred to in rule 7, pass a final decree declaring that the plaintiff and all persons claiming under him are debarred from all right to redeem the mortgaged property and, also, if necessary, ordering the plaintiff to put the defendant in possession of the mortgaged property; or

(b) in the case of any other mortgage, not being a usufructuary mortgage, pass a final decree that the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and the proceeds of the sale (after deduction therefrom of the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court and applied in payment of what is found due to the defendant, and the balance, if any, be paid to the plaintiff or other persons entitled to receive the same.

COMMENTARY.

History.—The above rr. 7 and 8 were substituted for the old rr. 7 and 8 by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1929 which came into operation on the 1st April 1930. The old rules are reproduced below :—

7. In a suit for redemption, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree—

Preliminary decree in redemption suit.

(a) ordering that an account be taken of what will be due to the defendant for principal and interest on the mortgage and for his costs of the suit (if any) awarded to him on the day next hereinafter referred to, or

(b) declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree, and directing—

(c) that, if the plaintiff pays into Court the amount so due on a day within six months from the date of declaring in Court the amount so due, to be fixed by the Court, the defendant shall deliver up to the plaintiff, or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall, if so required, re-transfer the property to the plaintiff free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the defendant or any person claiming under him, or, where the defendant claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall, if necessary, put the plaintiff in possession of the property, but

(d) that, if such payment is not made on or before the day to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall (unless the mortgage is simple or usufructuary) be debarred from all right to redeem or (unless the mortgage is by conditional sale) that the mortgaged property be sold. [S. 92.]

8. (1) Where, on or before the day fixed, the plaintiff pays into Court the amount declared due as aforesaid, together with such subsequent costs as are mentioned in r. 10, the Court shall pass a decree—
Fiscal decree in redemption-suit.

(a) ordering the defendant to deliver up the documents which under the terms of the preliminary decree he is bound to deliver up, and, if so required,

(b) ordering him to re-transfer the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree, and, also, if necessary,

(c) ordering him to put the plaintiff in possession of the property.

(2) Where such payment is not so made, and the mortgage is not simple or usufructuary, the Court shall, on application made in that behalf by the defendant, pass a decree that the plaintiff and all persons claiming through or under him be debarred from all right to redeem the mortgaged property and also, if necessary, ordering the plaintiff to put the defendant in possession of the property.

(3) On the passing of a decree under sub-rule (2) the debt secured by the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged.

(4) Where such payment is not so made, and the mortgage is not by conditional sale, the Court shall, on application made in that behalf by the defendant, pass a decree that the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court and applied in payment of what.

is found due to the defendant, and that the balance (if any) be paid to the plaintiff or other persons entitled to receive the same :

Provided that the Court may, upon good cause shown and upon such Power to enlarge terms (if any) as it thinks fit, from time to time postpone time. the day fixed for payment. [S. 93.]

The old rule 7 corresponded to S. 92 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882, with some additions and alterations. The old section is reproduced here for the purpose of comparison :—

" In a suit for redemption, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree ordering—

" that an account be taken of what will be due to the defendant for the mortgage-money and for his costs of the suit, if any, awarded to him, on the day next hereinafter referred to, or declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree ;

" that, upon the plaintiff paying to the defendant or into Court the amount so due on a day within six months from the date of declaring in Court the amount so due, to be fixed by the Court, the defendant shall deliver up to the plaintiff, or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall re-transfer it to the plaintiff free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the defendant or any person claiming under him, or, when the defendant claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall, if necessary, put the plaintiff into possession of the mortgaged property ; and

" that if such payment is not made on or before the day to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall (unless the mortgage be simple or usufructuary) be absolutely debarred of all right to redeem the property, or (unless the mortgage be by conditional sale) that the property be sold "

Excepting Cl. (d), the provisions of this rule corresponded with the provisions of r. 2, which related to a preliminary decree for foreclosure.

The old rule 8 corresponded to S. 93 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882, with several additions and alterations as will appear on a comparison of this rule with the old section, which ran as follows :—

" If payment is made of such amount, and of such subsequent costs as are mentioned in S. 94, the plaintiff shall, if necessary, be put into possession of the mortgaged property.

" If such payment is not so made, the defendant may (unless the mortgage is simple or usufructuary) apply to the Court for an order that the plaintiff and all persons claiming through or under him be debarred absolutely of all right to redeem, or (unless the mortgage is by conditional sale) for an order that the mortgaged property be sold.

" If he applies for the former order, the Court shall pass an order that the plaintiff and all persons claiming through or under him be absolutely debarred of all right to redeem the mortgaged property, and may, if necessary, deliver possession of the property to the defendant.

"If he applies for the latter order, the Court shall pass an order that such property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and that the proceeds of sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court, and applied in payment of what is found due to the defendant, and that the balance be paid to the plaintiff or other persons entitled to receive the same.

"On the passing of any order under this section, the plaintiff's right to redeem and the security shall as regards the property affected by the order, both be extinguished :

"Provided that the Court may, upon good cause shown, and upon such terms (if any) as it thinks fit from time to time, postpone the day fixed under S. 92 for payment to the defendant."

Clauses (a) and (b) were new. There were no similar provisions in the old section. The word "absolutely" which stood after the word "debarred" in the old section has been omitted. Several other material alterations were made in this rule, as will appear on comparison.

The Transfer of Property Act does not contain any provision for the passing of a final decree in cases where payment is made in accordance with the terms of the preliminary decree. This is in our opinion an omission and we have provided in rr. 3 (1), 5 (1) and 8 (1) for the passing of a final decree in such cases.—See the Report of the Select Committee.

It will be observed that under sub-rule (3), on the passing of a final decree in a redemption suit, the debt secured by the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged. But under the old section (93), the effect of passing a final decree was to extinguish the mortgage security as well as the plaintiff's right to redeem.

The proviso attached to this rule was almost similar to the proviso attached to the old section. The indulgence allowed by the proviso was seldom required to be granted in a suit from redemption by the mortgagor, who generally comes into Court with his money ready and offers to pay the amount that will be found due to the defendant.

In a suit for redemption it is necessary to take accounts in order to ascertain whether or not the mortgage has been paid off.

It is noticeable that the payments under these rules are to be made into Court and not to the defendant. The provisions as to payment to defendant which were contained in the old sections have been omitted from these rules, the reason being that the Special Committee thought it better that in every case the payment should be made into Court.

Present changes.—Those stated under rr. 2 to 5 apply mutatis mutandis to these rules.

The new rule 7 sub-rule (1) (c) (ii) Cls. (a) and (b) specify the different kinds of mortgages in respect of which decrees for foreclosure or decrees for sales may be passed. (See S. 67 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1892).

Right of redemption.—The mortgagor has, at any time after the mortgage money has become payable by him, a right, on payment or tender of up to him all documented property and right to redeem." redemption. Rules 7 and 8 provide for decrees in suits for redemption.—See Transfer of Property Act, S. 60.

No such general rule of law exists in India as would preclude a mortgagor from redeeming a mortgage before the expiry of the term for which the mortgage was intended to be made unless the mortgagee succeeds in showing that by reason of the terms of the mortgage itself, the mortgagor is precluded from paying off the debt due by him to the mortgagee.—Bhagwat Das v. Parshad Singh, 10 A. 602. See also Rose Ammal v. Rajarathnam, 23 M. 33 (5 B. 22, 16 M. 486 considered). See, however, Raghubar Dayal v. Budhu Lal, 8 A. 95; Setrucherla v. Vairi Cherla, 2 M. 314.

Section 93 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882) (r. 8) does not, in its literal terms, apply to a case where there is no prior mortgage still in existence, but the principles there laid down ought to be followed in dealing with such a case. The position of the defendant who is in possession of the property under an obligation to re-transfer it, if the redemption money is paid on a fixed date, is analogous to that of a mortgagee by conditional sale.—Bepin Behary v. Mukunda Lal, 8 C. L. J. 547 : 36 C. 122.

One Karya Bharthi, who owned two villages, mortgaged them in 1904, without possession, with defendants, and in November 1908 he sold same to the defendants in lieu of the amount due to them under the mortgages, and the defendants obtained possession of the villages under the sale. Prior to the said sale, however, the plaintiff in execution of his money decree against the mortgagor (Karya Bharthi) had attached the villages in question in September 1908 and bought the equity of redemption at the auction sale in August 1909. The present suit was brought by the plaintiff to recover possession of the villages from the defendants on the ground that the latter's purchase of November 1908 was invalid by reason of the provisions of S. 64, Civil Procedure Code, 1908. Held, that the sale of November 1908 being admittedly invalid as against the plaintiff, the plaintiff was entitled to an unconditional decree for possession and as the mortgages of 1904 in defendant's favour did not give them any right to possession, and they obtained possession only by virtue of the invalid sale of November 1908, they were not entitled, in the present suit, to set up their mortgages as shields against the plaintiff's claim for possession.—Bijai Saran v. Rudra Bageshwari Prasad, 51 C. L. J. 70 (P. C.).

A mortgagor who has made default in the payment of the mortgage-money within the time limited by the decree in a suit for redemption is not entitled to apply for execution of the decree after the time limited.—Vallabha Valiya v. Vedapurathu, 19 M. 40 (F. B.).

Suit for redemption.—Under Or. XXXIV, r. 7 of the C. P. Code it is open to the Court either to order that an account shall be taken of what will be due to the defendant for principal and interest due on the mortgage and for his costs of the suit, if any, or to declare the amount due at the date of such order; but in either case, the Court should proceed to ascertain the amount which would be found due on the date which is to be fixed for payment and specify what the consequence of the payment of that amount or the non-payment thereof would be.—Mohkan Singh v. Thakur Chandra Pal, 10 O. L. J. 374.

There was a certain amount of inconsistency between old rules 7 and 8, Or. XXXIV. A preliminary decree in a mortgage suit ought not to direct more than this, that if a plaintiff makes a default then the mortgagee should have a right to ask for a final decree either for foreclosure or sale as is provided by Or. XXXIV, r. 8.—Kushaba Ranji v. Budhaji Sakaram, 46 B. 348: 23 Bom. L. R. 1176.

A redemption decree provided that on payment of a certain sum of money within a certain time, possession of the land was to be given. Held, it was not a preliminary decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 7.—Mahabir v. Kartar Singh, 76 I. C. 144.

Old r. 7 (d) applied to the case of a mortgagee only and has no application to the case of a co-mortgagor who had redeemed the entire mortgage — Ali Akbar v. Sultan-ul-Muluk, 69 I. C. 653: 1923 L. 129.

A mortgagor, who institutes a redemption suit, is entitled to put an alternative claim. He may aver that the mortgage money has been repaid, and, in the alternative, in the event of the Court finding any sum to be still due under the mortgage that he is prepared to pay such further sum.—Butchanna v. Varahalu, 24 M. 408.

Omission to draw up a decree in a proper form under S. 92 of the Transfer of Property Act does not deprive the mortgagee of the benefit of S. 93.—Murlidhar v. Parsharam, 25 B. 101.

Where the full amount fixed by the Court in a decree for redemption was paid into Court within the time limited by the decree, held that the plaintiff mortgagor did not lose his right to possession of the mortgaged property by the fact of his having attached and withdrawn from the Court a portion of the sum so paid in execution of his decree for costs in the suit.—Parmanand v. Lokman, 27 A. 392.

A trespasser who becomes the legal representative of the deceased debtor by intermeddling with the estate cannot represent the real heir and is not entitled to redeem.—Kishan v. Yeshwant, 28 N. L. R. 69.

Where the mortgaged property was sold for arrears of Government revenue.—Held, that if the sale took place owing to the mortgagee's default, it would not affect the mortgagor's right to redeem. The general rule that a sale for arrears of Government revenue gives a title against all the world, is subject to the exception that, if it is caused by the default of the mortgagee, it does not take away the mortgagor's right to redeem.—Kalappa v. Shirvaya, 20 B. 492. See also Har Shankar Prasad v. Shew Gobind, 26 C. 966: 4 C. W. N. 317; Nazir Ali v. Ojoodhyaram, 5 W. R. 83 (P. C.): 10 M. I. A. 540; Bisseswar Prosad v. Lala Sarnam Singh, 6 C. L. J. 134, 140.

In a suit for redemption, if the mortgagee has already obtained a decree for rent in respect of the mortgaged lands which were left in the possession of the mortgagor as tenant under the mortgagee and has allowed such decree to be barred by limitation, the mortgagee is not entitled to claim such arrears of rent.—Said Ahmad v. Raja Barkhandi, 9 O. W. N. 253.

The owner of six villages mortgaged one of them to D and subsequently all of them to X. D brought a suit on his mortgage but did not in the first instance implead X, who assigned his interest to P. X was afterwards impleaded as a party to the suit, a decree was obtained and D purchased the property mortgaged to him. P brought a suit afterwards to redeem the prior mortgage of D. Held, that P was entitled to redeem the mortgage of D but D had no right to redeem against P, that the mortgage of D should be treated as still subsisting and that P could redeem only on payment of the amount due under his mortgage and not merely the amount which D paid for the property in the execution sale.—Musst. Sheoratan v. Kamta Prasad, 11 P. 415.

A decree for redemption if bars a subsequent suit for the same relief.—A mortgagor who has obtained a decree for redemption which does not contain a proviso as to payment within the date fixed by the Court, and who has not enforced that decree and has not paid in the decretal amount within the time, can subsequently bring a second suit for redemption of the mortgage in respect of which such first decree was obtained.—Sita Ram v. Madho Lal, 24 A. 44 (F. B.) (19 A. 202 overruled; 21 A. 251, 6 M. 119, 7 M. 423, 8 M. 478, 21 M. 18, 11 A. 386, 20 A. 375 and 446 referred to; 7 B. 467, 17 M. 96, 4 A. 481, 13 B. 567 not followed). But the Madras High Court, in the Full Bench case of Vedapuratti v. Vallabha Valiya Raja, 25 M. 300 (F. B.) have held that where a suit for redemption has been instituted and a decree for redemption has been passed therein, but not executed, a subsequent suit is not maintainable for the redemption of the same mortgage (6 M. 119, 7 M. 423, 8 M. 478, 15 M. 366 overruled, 19 M. 40 (F. B.) explained; 21 M. 11 dissented from). See also Lachman v. Madsudan, 29 A. 481 4 A. L. J. 447, in which a similar view seems to have been taken. It would thus appear that all the cases on the point have been referred to, discussed and considered in the above two Full Bench rulings of the Allahabad and Madras High Courts.

When, under a compromise arrived at in a redemption suit, the parties did not agree that the plaintiff's right to redeem could be extinguished absolutely, he is not prevented from bringing a second suit for redemption. The mortgagee is still a mortgagee and does not become the absolute proprietor of the property.—Mohamdi Begam v. Tufail Hasan, A. I. R. 1926 All. 20 (A. I. R. 1922 All. 377 and A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 31 resd. to).

A person who does not deposit the redemption money within the time allowed can redeem afterwards, before a final order is made under this rule.—Bepin Behary v. Mokunda Lal, 36 C. 122. 8 C. L. J. 547 (22 B. 771, 16 C. 246, 19 M. 40, 19 A. 180, 24 A. 479, 11 C. W. N. 679 and 25 M. 300 referred to). Referred to in Krishna Chandra v. Jaleral Hug, 10 C. L. J. 115.

The Bombay High Court has held that a mortgagor who has brought a suit for redemption and obtained a decree nisi which neither the mortgagor nor the mortgagee has applied to be made absolute, can, after the execution of the decree is time-barred, bring a fresh suit for redemption, and that such fresh suit is not barred by S. 11 or S. 47.—Ramji v. Pandharinath, 43 B. 334 (F. B.): 49 I. C. 894. The plaintiff filed a suit to redeem a mortgage but withdrew it with permission to institute a fresh suit within two years; eight years after the order he brought a new suit. Held that the order for withdrawal imposing a limitation of two years was erroneous and the plaintiff's right to redeem during the period allowed by the Limitation Act was not affected.—Ram Chandra v. Hanmanta, 44 B. 939: 58 I. C. 45.

Payment into Court.—After the preliminary decree no payment or adjustment of the mortgage money made out of Court can be pleaded, because the Code expressly lays down that the payment must be made into Court. In this respect there is no difference between a decree in a foreclosure suit and a decree in a redemption suit.—Adari v. Nookalamma, 131 I. C. 487: 54 M. 708: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 592.

If an allegation of payment out of Court is made, the Court will not recognize it, but if the parties settle the matter amongst themselves and make a report the Court will act on it.—Viswanatha v. Chimmilutti, (1931) M. W. N. 1141.

For other cases see notes under rr. 3 and 4, ante.

Enlargement of time—Payment after expiry of time.—Old r. 8 of Or. XXXIV applied to redemption suits only and time for payment fixed by a decree could not be extended under that rule when the decree was not one for redemption.—Nand Kunwar v. Sujan Singh, 43 A. 25: 18 A. L. J. 771.

In redemption suits the decree passed under r. 7 is only in the nature of a decree nisi, and the order passed under this rule is in the nature of a decree absolute. Under the proviso to this rule, an application to extend the time for redemption fixed by the preliminary decree may be made at any time before the decree absolute is made.—Nandram v. Babaji, 22 B. 771.

The proviso to Or. XXXIV, r. 8 governs not only sub-rule (4) of the said rule but also sub-rule (2) of that rule.—Narsingh v. Partap, 50 A. 832: 111 I. C. 242 A. I. R. 1929 All. 480.

Where a decree for redemption omitted to state what would be the consequence of the non-payment of the mortgage money within the time specified, it was held that such omission could not operate to extend the period available to the plaintiff, for payment beyond the maximum term provided by r. 7.—Wazir v. Dhuman Khan, 16 A. 65 (14 A. 529 referred to: 14 A. 350 dissented from).

The plaintiff who did not deposit the redemption money within the time allowed by the Court can redeem afterwards, before a final decree is made under r. 8, that is, before the decree is made absolute. If a deposit of the redemption money is accepted by the Court before the final decree, but after the date fixed for payment, it becomes an effectual deposit although no formal order extending the time was passed.—Bepin Behary v. Mukanda Lal, 8 C. L. J. 547: 36 C. 192 (22 B. 771 and 25 M. 300, pp. 306-7 referred to). Referred to in Krishna Chandara v. Jakeral Hug, 10 C. L. J. 115.

Where a decree gives a right of redemption within a certain specified period with a certain specified result to follow, if redemption is not made within such period, the mere fact of an appeal being preferred against it will not suspend the operation of such decree extends the period limited by the original will be barred if not exercised within the

v. Dharam Singh, 18 A. 455 (18 A. 223 applied). See also Manavikraman v. Unniappan, 15 M. 170.

In a suit on a usufructuary mortgage, a decree for redemption was passed directing the plaintiff to pay a certain sum within six months. Against this decree there was an appeal, which was dismissed more than six months after the date fixed in the decree. Held, that as the mortgagee had never obtained an order for sale under S. 93 of the T. P. Act, and as the mortgagee's equity of redemption had not become extinct, he was entitled to redeem on tendering the amount mentioned in the decree.—Kanara v. Govinda, 16 M. 214.

The essential features of a usufructuary mortgage is that the mortgagee cannot sue for payment of his debt but is only entitled to remain in possession. If in such a case the mortgagee has a right of sale the mortgage is of an anomalous character. In the latter case a decree for sale may be made debarring the mortgagee from redeeming the land.—Atma Ram v. Surjan, 110 I. C. 81: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 355

An application for enlarging the time granted by a decree for redemption may be made after the prescribed time has expired. An order refusing the time is appealable under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47).—Rango v. Bhomshetti, 26 B. 121.

Failure to pay money on or before the date mentioned in the redemption decree does not absolutely bar the mortgagor's right to obtain possession of the mortgaged property; since the Court may, under S. 93 of the T. P. Act, upon good cause shown, enlarge the time for payment upon such terms as it thinks fit. The plaintiff within three years of the date of the decree produced in Court the decretal amount and prayed for possession of the mortgaged property. Held, such an application could be treated as one for enlargement of time under S. 93 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882).—Ishwar Lingo v. Gopal Jivaji, 28 B. 102 (26 B. 121 followed).

A mortgagor who has obtained a decree for redemption may pay in the decretal amount, and obtain redemption at any time up to the making of an order absolute.—Salig Ram v. Muradan, 25 A. 231 (20 A. 446 and 27 C. 705 followed). See also Alimea v. Reshun Ali, 3 C. L. J. 533 (27 C. 705, 16 C. 246, 22 M. 133 followed). See also Maung Tun v. Ma Ywe, 54 I. C. 507.

A decree in a suit for partition provided inter alia that the plaintiff could recover certain properties from the alienees on payment of a sum of money by a certain date, without any provision as to the effect of a non-payment. The plaintiff, however, paid the money on a subsequent date. Held, that the decree was in terms and effect one for redemption and that the Court had jurisdiction under Or. XXXIV, r. 8 to extend the time for payment.—Idumbu v. Pethu Reddy, 54 I. C. 451.

Although the Court of first instance is the proper Court for dealing with applications under this rule, the appellate Court has nevertheless jurisdiction.

to allow the enlargement of time in cases where there has been an appeal.—Babu Parshad v. Khiali Ram, 3 A. L. J. 828 : (1906) A. W. N. 203. See, however, Sheonarain v. Chunni Lal, 23 A. 88, where it has been held that such an application must be made to the Court of first instance and not to the appellate Court. See also Venkata v. Thiagaraya, 23 M. 521; Oudh Behari v. Nageshar Lal, 13 A. 278 (F. B.) ; Ram Dhani v. Lalit Singh, 31 A. 323 (23 A. 88 followed ; (1906) A. W. N. 203 dissented from) ; Dharmaraja v. Srinivasa, 39 M. 876 : 31 I. C. 240 : 29 M. L. J. 708 : 18 M. L. T. 486 ; Beni Prasad v. Harnam Das, 39 A. 396 : 39 I. C. 630.

"On application made by the plaintiff in this behalf."—There was no provision for this in the old rule and it was held under it that no application was necessary.—Moru v. Gangabai, 50 B. 730 : 98 I. C. 943 : A. I. R. 1927 Bom 32.

Notice.—Order XXXIV, r. 8 governing redemption suits does not require notice to be given of payment into Court.—dmbi v. Valia, 75 I. C. 566 : 45 M. L. J. 687.

For further notes see notes under heading "Power to enlarge time" under rr. 2 and 3, ante.

Appeal.—An order under r. 3 or r. 8 of Or. XXXIV, refusing to extend the time for the payment of the mortgage money is appealable. See Or. XLIII (c). But no appeal lies against an order extending the time so fixed.—Dharmaraja v. Sreenivasa, noted above ; Dattatraya v. Wasudeo Anant, 47 B 956 . 25 Bom L R 990.

Clog or fetter on the equity of redemption.—A mortgage is a conveyance of land or an assignment of chattels as a security for the payment of the debts or the discharge of some other obligation for which it is given. That is the idea of a mortgage and the security is redeemable on the payment or discharge of such debt or obligation, any provision to the contrary notwithstanding. Any provision inserted to prevent redemption on payment of the debt or performance of the obligation, for which the security was given is what is meant by a clog or fetter on the equity of redemption, and is therefore, void. It follows from this that once a mortgage always a mortgage ; but this principle does not involve the further proposition that the amount or nature of the further debt or the obligation, the payment or performance of which is to be secured, is a clog or fetter within the rule. A lease which is to last as long as the pendency of the mortgage, is not bad as being for an indefinite period.—Mahomad Cassum v. Joseph Ezekiel, 7 Bom. L. R. 772.

Certain mortgagors, having taken a second mortgage of the same property, or that they should not be at liberty to redeem the first. Held, that this was a clog or fetter on the right of redemption.—Muhammad Abdul v. Jaiwaj Mal, 3 A. L. J. 768 : (1906) A. W. N. 267. See also Bhartu v. Dalip, 3 A. L. J. 672 : (1906) A. W. N. 278 ; and Chatter Mal v. Baij Nath, 29 A. 712 : 3 A. L. J. 634 (26 A. 559 distinguished).

After the execution of a usufructuary mortgage the mortgagor executed a bond, which in addition to the usual stipulation for repayment of the money secured thereby, contained a condition to the effect that the mortgaged property should not be redeemed until the principal money and interest due under the bond had been paid. Held that such a provision was a clog or fetter on redemption placing in the way of the mortgagor a bar to the exercise of the right of redemption which the law gave him, and therefore a provision not to be enforced—Sheo Shankar v. Parma Mahton, 26 A. 559 (4 A 85 not followed). See also Rajmal Motiram v. Shivaji, 27 B. 154 (9 B. 233, doubted); Rugad Singh v. Sat Narain, 27 A. 178 (26 A. 559 followed). In Durga Pershad v. Dukhi Roy, 9 C. W. N. 789, the meaning of the words "clog or fetter on the equity of redemption" have been explained (9 B 233, 12 B. 231, 20 B. 346, 18 M. 368 referred to).

For the meaning of the expression "once a mortgage always a mortgage," see 9 C. W. N. 789 and 27 B. 154, noted above.

A covenant to renew perpetually a kanom mortgage is a clog on the mortgagor's right to redeem and is inoperative, if it is entered into simultaneously with the mortgage. According to the rules of equity, any agreement entered into at the time of the mortgage, having the effect of clogging the right of redemption is inoperative—Neelakundhan v. Ananthakrishna, 30 M. 61: 16 M. L. J. 462.

The right of redemption and the right of foreclosure are always co-extensive and from the postponement of the former, the Court will infer an intention to postpone the latter in the absence of an express provision on the point: where there is an express provision, giving the mortgagee power to foreclose at any time, any stipulation postponing the mortgagor's right to redeem is unilateral and void of consideration. A Court of equity will not enforce any agreement in restraint of the right of redemption which is oppressive and unreasonable. A mortgagor cannot by any contract entered into with the mortgagee at the time of the mortgage give up his right of redemption or fetter it in any manner by confining it to a particular time or a particular description of persons.—Adbul Hak v. Gulam Jilani, 20 B. 677 (followed in Sari v. Motiram, 22 B 375). See also Kanaran v. Kutooly, 21 M. 110; Bimal Jati v. Biranja Kuar, 22 A. 238. But see Krishnaji v. Mahesvar, 20 B. 346.

In a suit by a usufructuary mortgagee for possession and in the alternative for the mortgage money, a compromise decree was passed one of the terms of which was that the mortgagor was to pay the mortgage money in three years and redeem and on default the mortgagee was to take possession in execution. Held, that though there was a decree it was no better than a contract and so the relationship of mortgagor and mortgagee had not ceased to exist and on the footing that it was a contract and so was void and unenforceable as a clog on the equity of redemption in that it reduced the time for redemption from 60 years to 3 years.—Ambu Nair v. Kelu Nair, 53 M. 805.

Splitting up—partial redemption.—The mortgage-debt being indivisible and the mortgaged property being held in its entirety as security for the debt and every part of it, the property can only be redeemed in its entirety on payment of the whole debt. The above principle has been enunciated in the last para. of S. 60 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882).

The general rule is that a mortgage for an entire sum is from its very purpose indivisible and that character of indivisibility exists with reference not only to the mortgagee but also to the mortgagor and save by special arrangement between parties interested neither mortgagor nor mortgagee, nor any one acquiring a partial interest through either can obtain relief under the mortgage except in consonance with that principle of indivisibility.—Per Subramania Ayyar, J. in Huthasanan v. Parameswaran, 22 M. 209.

But there have been exceptions to this rule as will appear from the cases below.

Where the right of redemption is vested in several persons, one of them may redeem the whole mortgage on payment of the entire mortgage-debt.—Naro Hari v. Vithalbhat, 10 B 648; Mora v. Ramchandra, 15 B. 24; Narayan v. Ganpat, 21 B. 619; Kuppasami v. Papathi, 21 M. 369.

Where the right of redemption is vested in several persons, one of them cannot, by offering to pay his share of the debt redeem a proportionate part of the property.—Nilkant v. Suresh Chandra, 12 C. 414 (P. C.) : 20 A. 23. See also Girish Chunder v. Kedar Nath, 33 C. 590 : 10 C. W. N. 592 (21 M. 64, 19 A. 527, 26 A. 185 referred to). Followed in 11 C. W. N. 403.

But it was also held that where several owners of undivided shares in immoveable property mortgage their share with possession to another undivided sharer, a smaller number than the whole body of co-mortgagors could sue to redeem the mortgage if there had been no partition of the property mortgaged among the several co-owners.—Thillai v. Ramanatha, 20 M. 295 (following Mamu v. Kuttu, 6 M. 61, and distinguishing Naro Hari v. Vithalbhat, 10 B. 648). But see Hurdeo v. Guneshree Lall, 1 Agra 36, where it has been held that any one of the mortgagors or his legal representatives, is, if the mortgage-debt has been repaid, entitled to sue for redemption, and to be put in possession of his own share of the estate, whatever his co-parceners may choose to do in the matter. Later decisions have favoured partial redemption, as splitting up of security was held permissible.

After a mortgage executed by three mortgagors there was a partition by the latter of their equity of redemption by which each became entitled to an undivided one-third in the same; two of the mortgagors then redeemed their two shares on the basis of paying two-thirds of the principal and interest due and two-thirds of a sum said to be due on account of excess assessment and took possession of their shares; and the other mortgagor was allowed to redeem his one-third share on the footing that one-third of the mortgage-debt was payable by him—Lakshuman v. Madhan, 15 B. 186.

Certain mortgagors co-sharers after the mortgage transaction effected a division among themselves and apportioned their liability under the mortgage-debt, according to their shares, with the acquiescence of the mortgagee, it was held that though the mortgagee was not bound to recognize the arrangement made by the mortgagors among themselves still as he appropriated the amounts paid by some of the mortgagors in paying off their respective shares of the mortgage-debt without there being a special direction to that effect from the mortgagors he was entitled to recover the remainder of that debt from the share of the mortgagor co-sharer by whom it was due.—Mahadaji v. Ganpatshet, 15 B. 257.

Where a division of a joint family is effected by consent an arrangement by some of the members with a mortgagee of the joint family property by which their shares were to be released on payment of their share of the debt is binding on members who are not parties to the arrangement, so long as they are not called upon to pay more than their share of the debt as settled by partition.—Venkatachella v. Srinivasa, 28 M. 555.

If a plaintiff mortgagee suing on the basis of his mortgage either for sale or foreclosure thinks fit to exempt from his suit some portion of the mortgaged property and to sell or to foreclose the mortgage in respect of the remainder, there is nothing in law to prevent his doing so. He is not bound to sue in respect of the whole of the mortgaged property. He may confine his suit to a portion of the property giving up his claim to the rest and implead only those interested in that portion. The only thing in such a case is to see that the burden of the mortgagors sued does not increase by the course adopted.—Sheotahal v. Sheodan, 28 A. 174 (F. B) : 2 A. L. J. 630.

Where a mortgagee acquires a part of the mortgaged property, and thus a fusion takes place of the rights of the mortgagee and mortgagor in the same person, the indivisible character of the mortgage is broken up, and one of several mortgagors, may in such case redeem his own share only on payment of a proportionate part of the mortgage money —Kallan Khan v. Mardan Khan, 28 A. 155 (2 A. 565, 17 A. 63 referred to ; 15 B. 24 distinguished). See also 3 C. L. J. 377, and Brij Kishore v. Madho Singh, 23 A. 279.

Where the equity of redemption in respect of a part of the mortgaged property becomes vested in the mortgagee whether by purchase or by inheritance or otherwise, there is a merger of rights and the integrity of the mortgage is broken up.—Hamida Bibi v. Ahmad Husain, 31 A. 335 (17 A. 63 followed ; 28 A. 155, 29 A. 262 referred to).

Where subsequent to the date of a mortgage, different persons had become interested in different fragments of the equity of redemption, the owner of any portion of the equity of redemption is entitled to ask that not more than a rateable part of the mortgage-debt should be thrown upon the property in his hands. The mortgagees cannot claim to throw the entire burden upon a portion of the mortgaged premises, because by reason of their own laches they have lost their remedy against the remainder (30 C. 755 : 2 C. L. J. 202, referred to). A mortgagee cannot release from his claim a portion of the mortgage security so as to prejudice the rights of others, who might have already acquired an interest in the released portion.—Imam Ali v. Baij Nath, 33 C. 613 : 10 C. W. N. 551. 3 C. L. J. 576 (2 C. L. J. 202 : 1 C. L. J. 337 followed, 18 W. R. 120, 25 A. 79 dissented from). See also Debendra Nath v. Abdul Samed, 10 C. L. J. 150.

Where in a suit upon a mortgage the purchaser of one of the mortgaged properties from the mortgagor was not made a party having been released by the plaintiff mortgagee. Held, that the suit could not be dismissed. The mortgage should be treated as having been split up and the release of one of the properties by the mortgagee should be held to have the same effect as if the mortgagee had himself bought it and the mortgage debt apportioned between that property and the other mortgaged property.—Hari Kissen v. Feliat Hossein, 30 C. 755 : 7 C. W. N. 723. See also Surjiram v. Brahamdeo,

1 C. L. J. 337; 2 C. L. J. 202; Inu Khan v. Naimuddin, 3 C. L. J. 377; Imam Ali v. Baij Nath, 33 C. 613; Hakim v. Ram Lal, 6 C. L. J. 46. See also Budhmal v. Rama, 44 B. 223; Ponnusami v. Srinivasa, 31 M. 333.

Where the mortgagee purchases a portion of the mortgaged property the determination of the question whether the whole of the mortgage-debt is chargeable on the remaining properties mortgaged, depends on whether the mortgagee purchased only the equity of redemption or the entire interest of the mortgagor and in the latter case no portion of the mortgage-debt is extinguished.—Jasodha v. Kali Kumar, 34 C. W. N. 673.

A purchaser of a part of the mortgaged property who was not made a party in a suit brought by the mortgagee for foreclosure is entitled to redeem that portion of the mortgaged property in which he has acquired an interest.—Brij Kishore v. Madho Singh, 28 A. 279; 3 A. L. J. 27. See Ajmut Ali v. Jowahir Singh, 14 W. R. 17 (P. C.); 13 M. L. A. 404; Bekon Singh v. Deen Doyal, 24 W. R. 47; Hirdy Narain v. Allaoolah, 4 C. 72; 2 C. L. R. 580, and Debendra Nath v. Abdul Samed, 10 C. L. J. 150.

On the question whether the mortgagee may release a portion of the security to the prejudice of the mortgagor there is some conflict of judicial opinion which has been pointed out in Mir Eusuff Ali v. Panchanan, 15 C. W. N. 800 thus :—

“To put the matter in another way as between the mortgagor and mortgagee the latter is entitled to release a portion of the hypothecated property and diminish his own security to that extent. It is not obligatory on him to proceed against all the properties rateably or to exhaust them for the satisfaction of his debt. This principle is recognized in the cases of Roghu Nath v. Haralal, 18 C. 320; Hara Kumari v. Eastern Mortgage & Agency Co. Ltd., 7 C. L. J. 274 and Krishna v. Muthukumarasawmi, 29 M. 217. While therefore we adhere to the view taken in the cases of Imam Ali v. Baijnath, 33 C. 613 and Hakim Lal v. Ram Lal, 6 C. L. J. 46, namely, that a mortgagor who has a security upon two or more properties, which he knows belong to different persons, cannot release his lien upon one so as to increase the burden upon the others without the privity and consent of the persons affected (Kettlewell v. Watson, 21 Ch. D. 686 at p. 714), we are of opinion that this doctrine has no application to the present case when the release took place at a time when the appellants had not purchased any interest in the mortgage premises, and the mortgagors alone were the persons affected by the release. We must not, however, be assumed to adopt the rule laid down by the learned Judges of the Allahabad High Court that such release may be granted even to the prejudice of persons who had previously acquired an interest in the mortgaged property. This view is clearly opposed to principles of justice, equity, and good conscience, even though recognized in Sheo Prasad v. Behari Lal, 25 A. 79; Sheo Talal v. Sheodan, 28 A. 174; Ghafur Hasan v. Kifayatullah, 28 A. 19 and Pirbhu Narain v. Amir Singh, 29 A. 369, and was not adopted in Ram Ranjan v. Indra Narain, 33 C. 890, and the case of Krishna v. Muthukumarasawmi, 29 M. 217, if it lays down a similar principle cannot to that extent be supported. The contrary view which accords with the rule adopted by this Court was followed in Ponnusami v. Srinivasa, 31 M. 333.”

The general rule appears to be that a mortgagee has a right to insist that his security shall not be split up (Hurreehur v. Dabee, 1864 W. R. 260; Moulvie v. Jhubboo, 1864 W. R. 75); but of course (1) when he does not insist on such a right (Asansab v. Vamana, 2 M. 223; Ram Kristo v. Musst. Ameroonissa, 7 W. R. 314; Mirza Ali v. Tarasoodere, 2 W. R. 150; Kesree v. Roshun Lal, 2 N. W. P. 4), or (2) where the original contract recites that the mortgagors join together in mortgaging their separate shares or (3) where the mortgagee has himself split up the security (Kuray Mal v. Puran Mal, 2 A. 565; Marana v. Pendyala, 3 M. 230; Nawab Azimat Ali v. Jowahir Singh, 13 M. I. A. 404; Nathoo Sahoo v. Lalal Ameer, 15 B. L. R. 303; Mahtab Rai v. Sant Lal, 5 A. 276) there can be no objection to rateably distribute the mortgage-debt.—Narayan v. Ganpat, 21 B. 619. See also Nand Kishore v. Raja Hari Raj, 20 A. 23 (F. B.) and the cases referred to therein.

There is nothing in the Transfer of Property Act to support the view that as between the mortgagee and the holders of the equity of redemption the mortgagee is bound to distribute his debt rateably upon the mortgaged property. He may however be compelled to do so when by his act he has prejudicially affected the rights of the holders of the properties to contribution among themselves. Where some only have been compelled to pay the whole debt, they are entitled to contribution from the other parties who are liable, though the properties in their hands have not been included in the suit.—Krishna v. Muthukumarasami, 29 M. 217 (referring to Timmappa v. Lakshamma, 5 M. 385 and following Jagat Narain v. Qutub Husain, 2 A. 807; Chagandas v. Gansing, 20 B. 615).

On the question whether owners of the equity of redemption of only a share in the mortgaged estate can redeem their share only or whether their rights and obligations are to redeem the whole, it was held in Huthasanan v. Paramswaram, 22 M. 200, that a person entitled to a part only of the equity of redemption had the right to redeem the whole notwithstanding the mortgagee's objection that he should not be permitted to redeem more than his share of the equity. This decision has been followed in Baikantha v. Mohesh, 22 C. W. N. 123 and Protap v. Peary Mohan, 22 C. W. N. 800, in which there was no question of the other partial owner having been discharged. It has been adversely commented upon in Rathna Mudali v. Perumal, 33 M. 310. See in this connection Yad Ali Beg v. Tukaram, 47 I. A. 207; 48 C. 22 (P. C.): 25 C. W. N. 241; 57 I. C. 535.

Where the integrity of a mortgage has once been destroyed, a mortgagor suing for redemption is not entitled to claim redemption of more than his share in the mortgaged property.—Ahmad Husain v. Muhammad Qasim, 48 A. 171 (Shiam Saran v. Banarsi Das, 20 A. L. J. 258 not approved, and referring to Kallan v. Mardan, 29 A. 155; Munshi v. Daulat, 29 A. 262 and Zaibunissa v. Maharaja Parbhu Narain, 39 A. 618).

Contribution.—The section of the Transfer of Property Act which deals with the right of contribution is S. 82, and it is in these terms:—"Where several properties, whether of one or of several owners, are mortgaged to secure one debt, such properties are, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, liable to contribute rateably to the debt secured by the mortgage after deducting from the value of each property the amount of any other encumbrance to which it is subject at the date of the mortgage." This section prescribes the conditions in which contribution is payable as between owners of equities of redemption subject to a common mortgage, and it is not permissible to introduce into the matter any equitable or other extrinsic principle to modify the statutory provisions.—Ganeshi Lal v. Thakur Charan, 52 C. L. J. 117 (P. C.). See also Faqir Chand v. Aziz Ahmad, 36 C. W. N. 437 (P. C.) in which it has been held that when several properties are mortgaged to secure one debt and one of them, along with other properties, is subject to a prior mortgage, then in assessing the contribution of such property towards the subsequent mortgage under S. 82 of the Transfer of Property Act, what is to be deducted from its value is not the total amount of the prior mortgage, but the rateable share which is to be attributed to this property under the prior mortgage.

Effect of redemption of whole mortgage by a part owner of the equity of redemption.—By redeeming a mortgage of ordinary kind under which possession did not pass to the mortgagee, one of the several mortgagors becomes entitled to a charge on the interests of the other mortgagors for the amount payable by the latter.—Malik Ahmad v. Shamsi Jahan Begam, 33 I. A. 81 : 28 A. 482 (P. C.) : 10 C. W. N. 626 : 3 C. L. J. 481 : 16 M. L. J. 269 : 8 Bom. L. R. 397 : 3 A. L. J. 360. See also Asansab v. Vamana Rau, 2 M. 223, Vithal Nilkanth v. Vishvasrav Bin, 8 B. 497.

Sub-mortgagee's rights of redemption and in redemption suits.—The owners of a mortgaged property executed a usufructuary mortgage in favour of certain persons; they then executed another mortgage in favour of other parties agreeing that the latter should get possession of the property after redeeming the former mortgage; the said other parties sub-mortgaged the property to the plaintiff and the latter was held entitled to redeem the earlier mortgage.—Ram Subhag v. Nar Singh, 27 A. 472 (distinguishing Ganga Prasad v. Chuni Lal, 18 A. 113).

In a suit for redemption of land which has been sub-mortgaged by the mortgagee in which the sub-mortgagees are co-defendants, the mortgagee is entitled to have an account taken of the sub-mortgage. The judgment should direct an account of what is due to the original mortgagee and then of what is due to the sub-mortgagee, and that upon payment to the latter of the sum due to him, not exceeding the sum due to the original mortgagee, and on payment of the residue, if any, of what is due to the original mortgagee both shall convey to the mortgagor.—Narayan v. Gitabai, 15 B. 693.

In a suit by a mortgagee to redeem his sub-mortgage the original mortgagor is not a necessary party, though he may be a proper party: The original mortgagee may redeem the derivative mortgagee and the latter may foreclose the original mortgagee without making the original mortgagor a party.—Ganesh v. Vasudeo, 68 I. C. 741 : 24 Bom. L. R. 911 : A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 424. A sub-mortgagee may be impleaded as a defendant in a suit for redemption by the mortgagor.—Padgaya v. Baji, 20 B. 549.

If a proper party in a mortgage suit has been omitted, his rights are not affected by that suit in the sense that he can still pursue his own remedy. So, if a sub-mortgagee has not been impleaded in a suit for redemption of the mortgage, his right to bring his own suit for sale of the property mortgaged to him is not affected, but this cannot, however, alter the legal effect of the redemption suit as between the mortgagor and mortgagee. So if, in-that suit, the mortgagor paid off the mortgagee, the mortgage is gone and the sub-mortgagee has nothing left to bring to sale. He cannot enforce his sub-mortgage and all he is entitled to is only a personal decree against his own mortgagors.—Viswanatha v. Chimmikutti. (1931) M. W. N. 1141: 34 L. W. 635.

8-A. Where the net proceeds of any sale held under the last preceding rule are found insufficient to pay the amount due to the defendant, the Court, on application by him, may, if the balance is legally recoverable from the plaintiff otherwise than out of the property sold, pass a decree for such balance. [New.]

Recovery of balance due on mortgage in suit for redemption

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule is new and has been introduced by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1929. It provides for a personal decree in a suit for redemption on the lines of r. 6 which provides for a personal decree in a suit for sale.

9. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, if it appears, upon taking the account referred to in rule 7, that nothing is due to the defendant or that he has been overpaid, the Court shall pass a decree directing the defendant, if, so required, to re-transfer the property and to pay to the plaintiff the amount which may be found due to him: and the plaintiff shall, if necessary, be put in possession of the mortgaged property. [New.]

Decree where nothing is found due or where mortgagee has been overpaid.

COMMENTARY.

History.—"This rule is new. It is a recognition of existing practice and remedies an obvious omission in the T. P. Act, 1882."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

It has been framed adopting the principles laid down in the following cases:—

In a suit for account and redemption, if the mortgagee on taking the accounts, is found to have been overpaid, the general practice is to order the payment by him, of the balance due to the mortgagor with interest from the date of the institution of the suit.—Janoji v. Janoji, 7 B. 185.

... has realised a sum of money in excess equitable practice to allow to the mortgagee same rate at which interest has been allowed to the mortgagee on his mortgage-debt.—Dechoo Singh v. Rai Sree Sahoy, 1 N. W. P. H. O. R. 111.

If upon taking an account between mortgagor and mortgagee it appears that the mortgage has been fully satisfied, the mortgagor is not only entitled to have the property back, but the Court is bound as a Court of equity and acting upon the principle that it is always the aim of a Court of equity to determine finally as far as possible all questions concerning the subject of the suit, to cause an account to be taken up to the time of the decree, the account so taken being considered binding, the parties not being at liberty except under peculiar circumstances to re-open it in any other suit.—Kullyan Das v. Sheo Nundun, 18 W. R. 65; Roy Dinkur Doyal v. Sheo Golam, 22 W. R. 172; Lutafat Hossein v. Chowdhury Mahomed, 22 W. R. 269.

A mortgagee, who has obtained a decree for an account and sale, is not entitled to withdraw from the taking of accounts in his execution proceedings when those accounts appear to be going against him.—Doolee Chand v. Omda Khanum, 6 C 377 · 7 C. L. R. 375.

Where it appears that there is nothing due to the mortgagee or that he has been overpaid, his suit will be dismissed with costs, and he should be also ordered to pay over the balance with interest from the date of the institution of the suit.—Ram Chandra v. Janardan, 14 B. 19 (7 B. 185 referred to).

10. In finally adjusting the amount to be paid to a mortgagee in case of a foreclosure, sale or redemption, the Court shall, unless in the case of costs of the suit the conduct of the mortgagee has been such as to disentitle him thereto, add to the mortgage-money such costs of the suit and other costs, charges and expenses as have been properly incurred by him since the date of the preliminary decree for foreclosure, sale or redemption up to the time of actual payment. [New.]

Costs of mortgagee subsequent to decree.

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule has been substituted for the old r. 10 by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1929 which came into force on the 1st April 1930. The old rule is reproduced below :—

10. In finally adjusting the amount to be paid to a mortgagee in case of a foreclosure or sale or redemption, the Court shall, unless the conduct of the mortgagee has been such as to disentitle him to costs, add to the mortgage-money such costs of suit as have been properly incurred by him since the decree for foreclosure or sale or redemption up to the time of actual payment. [S. 94.]

The old rule corresponds to S. 94 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882, with some additions and alterations, as will appear on a comparison of that rule with the old section which ran as follows :—

" In finally adjusting the amount to be paid to a mortgagee in case of a redemption or a sale by the Court under this chapter, the Court shall, unless the conduct of the mortgagee has been such as to disentitle him to costs, add to the mortgage-money such costs of suit as have been properly incurred by him since the decree for foreclosure, redemption, or sale, up to the time of actual payment."

In the first part of the old section there was no reference to a foreclosure; it was evidently an omission which was supplied in the present rule by insertion of the word "foreclosure" before the words "or sale or redemption."

This rule provides for the payment of costs incurred by the mortgagee subsequently to the decree. Under S. 35, C. P. Code, the Court has full discretion to award and apportion costs incurred in a suit before the decree and that section will still regulate such costs. But costs incurred after decree will be regulated by this rule. Such costs must be the costs of carrying out the directions of the decree, e.g., costs of a reconveyance, etc.

Present change.—The words "and other costs, charges and expenses" are new and make it clear that they are to be included in the final adjustment

Unless the conduct of the mortgagee has been such as to disentitle him to costs.—The discretion given under S. 220, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 35), is one which is to be exercised with reference to general principles. Where a plaintiff comes to enforce a legal right and there has been no misconduct on his part, no omission or neglect which would induce the Court to deprive him of his costs, the Court has no jurisdiction and cannot take away the plaintiff's right to costs. There may be misconduct of many sorts: for instance, there may be misconduct in commencing the proceedings or some miscarriage in the procedure, or an oppressive or vexatious mode of conducting the proceedings, or other misconduct which will induce the Court to refuse costs; but where there is nothing of the kind, the rule is plain and well-settled as stated above. It is, for instance, no answer, where a plaintiff asserts a legal right, for a defendant to allege ignorance of such right and to say "if I had known of your right, I should not have infringed it."—Kuppuswami Chetty v. Zamindar of Kalahasti, 27 M. 341.

As a general rule, a mortgagee trying to enforce his rights upon the mortgage is entitled to costs in the absence of any misconduct or any other conduct which, in the opinion of the Court, disentitles him to the expenses—Damodar Das v. Budh Kuar, 10 A. 179; and Rutnessur Sein v. Jusoda, 14 C. 185

"Such costs of suit as have been properly incurred."—The costs mentioned in this rule and costs which are properly incurred in the suit in carrying out the directions contained in the decree are liable to be treated as quite distinct and independent from the suit itself. These costs the decree-holder can realize separately by execution against the judgment-debtor personally and is not bound to add to the mortgage-money.—Het Ram v. Dat Prasad, A. I. R. 1926 All. 68 (on Letters Patent appeal, 48 A. 682; 96 I. C. 592; A. I. R. 1926 All. 722).

Costs—Mode of realisation.—Whether the suit be one for foreclosure, sale or redemption, the mortgagee is entitled to all costs properly incurred by him, including costs subsequent to the decree; Maharaja Bahadur Singh v. Basiruddin, 41 C. L. J. 607: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 1135.

A mortgage-decree under S. 88 of the T. P. Act (r. 4), cannot impose personal liability for costs. It may contain a declaration of the personal liability of the defendant for principal or costs, but such a declaration is not part of the usual form of decree under the T. P. Act, and is enforceable only under r. 6—Kamamma v. Komandur, 30 M. 464: 17 M. L. J. 317. See also Rajkumar v. Sheonarayan, 35 C. 431: 8 C. L. J. 152: 12 C. W. N. 364; Maqbul v. Lalta Prasad, 20 A. 523 (F. B.).

In a mortgage suit it is open to a Court of appeal to direct that such costs as it may award against the unsuccessful appellant may be recoverable from him personally, but if there is no such express direction the costs are, as a matter of ordinary practice sanctioned by Or. XXXIV, rr. 2, 4 and 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure, added to the mortgage-money and are in the first instance recoverable from the mortgaged property after the decree is made final.—Muhammad Ifukharullah v. Banke Lal, 45 A. 630: 21 A. L. J. 617.

A decree-holder in executing a mortgage-decree must, for the purpose of recovering costs awarded by the decree, proceed in the first instance against the property mortgaged; and in the event of the same being found insufficient, he can proceed against properties other than the mortgaged property. The order for costs is a part of the mortgage-decree.—Rajkumar v. Sheo Narayan, 35 C. 431: 8 C. L. J. 152: 12 C. W. N. 364 (20 A. 523 followed; 10 A. 179; 14 C. 185 distinguished). See also Sadiq Husain v. Umma-tul-Fatima, 48 I. C. 329; Dambar Singh v. Kalyan Singh, 40 A. 109: 15 A. L. J. 914. Costs omitted in the preliminary decree cannot be included by the executing Court.—Dambar Singh v. Kalyan Singh, 40 A. 109: 15 A. L. J. 914; Muhammad Ifukharullah v. Banke Lal, 45 A. 630: 21 A. L. J. 617.

A decree for sale under S. 88, T. P. Act, IV of 1882 (r. 4), can only be executed for the amount decreed or found on an account being taken to be due, and the order for sale cannot, except with regard to any additional costs which may be provided for by an order under S. 94 of the T. P. Act, extend in any way the liability of the judgment-debtor or his property under the decree—Kashi Prasad v. Sheo Sahai, 19 A. 186 (5 A. 493 distinguished).

The costs awarded by the decree directing the sale of the mortgaged property form part of the mortgage-decree, the payment of which can be enforced personally against the mortgagor under this rule, if the sale-proceeds are insufficient to satisfy the mortgagee's claim—Rajkumar v. Sheo Narayan, 35 C. 431: 12 C. W. N. 364: 8 C. L. J. 152 (20 A. 523 followed; 14 C. 185, 10 A. 179 distinguished). See also Kamamma v. Komandur, 30 M. 464: 17 M. L. J. 317, and Maqbul v. Lalta Prasad, 20 A. 523 (F. B.).

A mortgagee who has obtained an order absolute for foreclosure may proceed against the mortgagor personally for the costs of the suit—Shaffar Khan v. Satyanunda Das, 13 C. W. N. 742 (14 C. 185; 10 A. 179 followed; 35 C. 431: 12 C. W. N. 364: 8 C. L. J. 152 and 20 A. 523 distinguished).

Unless there is an express condition in the mortgage as to payment of costs, in the absence of special circumstances those costs are merely added to the mortgage-security and are not payable by the mortgagor personally; but where the mortgagor has chosen to raise an untenable defence.

it is proper to direct him to pay the costs if the security is not sufficient. It makes no difference even if the mortgagor is dead and is represented by his legal representatives; Fraylal v. Venkataswami, 52 B 459: 30 Bom. L. R. 402: 108 I. C. 794 A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 123.

Costs incurred in connection with the suit up to the time of the payment of the decree whether before or after the final decree must be included in the sum which can be realised by sale of the mortgaged property.—Kashif v. Sashadhar, 122 I. C. 783 A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 328 7 O. W. N 398.

Ordinarily costs must be included in the amount due on the mortgage and the property must be sold for the total amount and the decree for costs cannot be executed separately as a personal decree against the mortgagor.—Kannu v. Bhagwan, 129 I. C. 554: A. I. R. 1931 All. 124.

Unless there is in the judgment a specific direction that the costs should be recovered from the mortgagor personally, the presumption must be that the decree directed costs to be added to the mortgage amount.—Kannu v. Bhagwan, 129 I. C. 554: A. I. R. 1931 All. 124.

The question whether in a mortgage suit, the costs are to be paid by judgment-debtor personally must always be regarded as one of construction of the decree and the intention of the Court is to be gathered from the terms of the decree. If a decree on a proper construction should be held to have made the costs payable personally by the defendants, apart altogether from the securities or the sale of them, there is no and could not be any rule or principle of law saying that such a decree could not be executed according to its tenor. Where a Court after being informed of satisfaction having been entered up of the original decree, deliberately amended the decree and made an order against a party for the payment of costs without there being any reference whatever to the mortgage-securities. Held that the obvious intention of the Court was that the amount must be paid personally and a construction which would have the effect of importing into the decree a reference which was not there, to the mortgage-security or the sale of it, would be unreasonable.—Ramaswami v. Chinnathayammal, 109 I. C. 63: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 604.

A mortgagee's suit for sale of the mortgaged properties was contested unsuccessfully by a puisne mortgagee who was impleaded as a party defendant, although the mortgagor admitted the claim of the mortgagee. The Court passed a preliminary decree for sale and made an order for costs on the uncontested scale against the mortgagor and on the contested scale against the puisne mortgagee. Execution sale was held but the sale-proceeds fell short of the mortgage-debt and a final personal money-decree was passed against the mortgagor. The mortgagee then applied for execution of the order for costs against the puisne mortgagee. Held, that the mortgagee had a right to execution against the puisne mortgagee personally in respect of such part of the costs although a final personal money-decree
C. A. M. K. Chettyar Firm v. P. I.
 A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 181 (2).

Where a prior mortgagee sued the mortgagor and a puisne mortgagee and was given a decree for sale of the properties mortgaged to him and an order for costs making the puisne mortgagee liable for them jointly with the mortgagor, the puisne mortgagee is, in the absence of a special order or special reasons to the contrary, personally liable for the costs, though of course, there is no right to a final personal money-decree against any party other than the mortgagor. The mortgagee is not bound to credit the sale-proceeds to costs before they are credited to the mortgage-debt and though the Code provides that costs payable by the mortgagor to the mortgagee shall be payable in the first instance out of the proceeds of the sale of the mortgaged property, there is no such provision postponing the recovery of costs awarded against parties other than the mortgagor; Maung Po Mya v. M. A. S. Chettyar Firm, 9 R. 186: 133 I. C. 225; A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 153.

A final personal money-decree for costs may be given against the mortgagor even in a case where the personal remedy of the mortgagee against the mortgagor for the mortgage-money and interest thereon is time-barred.—Maung Po Mya v. M. A. S. Chettyar Firm, 9 R. 186: 133 I. C. 225; A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 153.

Other costs, charges and expenses.—The mortgagee is entitled to preserve the mortgaged property from being lost for non-payment of rent; where rent is paid after the preliminary decree and before the final decree, the money so paid should be added.—Allahabad Bank Ltd. v. Mati Lal, 44 C. 448: 22 C. W. N. 374.

History.—"This clause was in the Transfer of Property Act Bill, but was omitted by the Select Committee from that Bill on the ground that it ought to find a place in the Civil Procedure Code."—See the Report of the Special Committee

It was inserted in the Code by the Act of 1908. The Committee inserted this rule in compliance with the suggestion of the Privy Council in Gopi Narain v. Bansidhar, 27 A. 325 (P. C.): 32 I. A. 123: 2 C. L. J. 173: 9 C. W. N. 577: 15 M. L. J. 191: 7 Bom. L. R. 427: 2 A. L. J. 336.

In the above Privy Council case the following rule had been laid down. A mortgage-decree directed, that, in the event of the decretal amount not being paid within a certain time, the defendant should be absolutely debarred of all right to redeem the mortgaged property. A puisne mortgagee who was a party to a suit by the first mortgagee for foreclosure, and who satisfies the decree made therein and thus prevents foreclosure, acquires under S. 74 of the T. P. Act, all the rights and the powers of the first mortgagee. He is not entitled, however, to ask the Court to work out under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1892 (S. 47), his rights as owner of the first mortgage and as second mortgagee, as against other incumbrancers who were parties to the suit. As soon as the money due under the foreclosure decree has been paid by the puisne mortgagee and withdrawn by the decree-holder it is discharged and satisfied and there-is nothing to be done in the execution department. A new decree is required to work out the respective rights of the parties and S. 214, C. P. Code, 1882, (S. 47), is no bar to a separate suit, which is necessary to adjust the rights of the parties. Section 86 of the T. P. Act contemplates a suit between one mortgagee and the mortgagor only and should be treated as a common form not to be literally followed in every suit for foreclosure but to be adapted to the particular circumstances of each case. To regulate the rights of puisne mortgagees, in mortgage decrees a form of order known in the Chancery Division of the High Court in England might be adopted in India.

The rule has now been transferred to the Transfer of Property Act by the Amending Act of 1929 and has been inserted in it as S. 94.

Right of mesne mortgagee to redeem and foreclose.—A puisne mortgagee is entitled to redeem from the prior mortgagee who obtains a foreclosure decree in a suit to which the puisne mortgagee is not made a party or from the purchaser in the foreclosure suit; and it is immaterial whether the puisne mortgage is or is not registered, or whether the prior mortgagee at the date of the suit had or had not notice of the puisne mortgage.—Sankana Kalana v. Virupakshapa, 7 B. 146.

A mortgagee created a sub-mortgage in favour of the plaintiff, of land mortgaged to him. The sub-mortgagor in express terms transferred his interest in the land to the sub-mortgagee. The sub-mortgagor also left a portion of the consideration-money in the hands of the sub-mortgagee for redemption of a prior mortgage. The prior mortgagee refused to accept the sum due to him and deliver up possession. Held, that the sub-mortgagee is entitled to redeem the prior mortgage.—Ramsubhag v. Narsingh, 27 A. 472; 2 A. L. J. 162.

A perpetual lessee of the mortgaged premises from the mortgagor, holding under a lease granted upon a payment of the premium with a yearly fixed rental is entitled to redeem.—Raghunandan v. Ambika Singh, 29 A. 679; 4 A. L. J. 703.

Where the prior mortgagee purchased the property mortgaged to him in a suit in which the puisne mortgagee was not made a party, and the latter also purchased the same property subsequently in a suit in which the prior mortgagee was not made a party: Held, that each party would be entitled to redeem the other; but the preferable right to redeem was with the puisne mortgagee.—Kedar Prosanna v. Girindra Prosad, 8 C. L. J. 173.]

11. In any decree passed in a suit for foreclosure, sale or redemption, where interest is legally recoverable, the Court may order payment of interest to the mortgagee as follows, namely:—

(a) interest up to the date on or before which payment of the amount found or declared due is under the preliminary decree to be made by the mortgagor or other person redeeming the mortgage—

(i) on the principal amount found or declared due on the mortgage,—at the rate payable on the principal, or, where no such rate is fixed, at such rate as the Court deems reasonable,

(ii) on the amount of the costs of the suit awarded to the mortgagee,—at such rate as the Court deems reasonable from the date of the preliminary decree, and

(iii) on the amount adjudged due to the mortgagee for costs, charges and expenses properly incurred by the mortgagee in respect of the mortgage-security up to the date of the preliminary decree and added to the mortgage-money,—at the rate agreed between the parties, or, failing such rate, at the same rate as is payable on the principal, or failing both such rates, at nine per cent. per annum; and

(b) subsequent interest up to the date of realization or actual payment at such rate as the Court deems reasonable—

(i) on the aggregate of the principal sums specified in Clause (a) and of the interest thereon as calculated in accordance with that clause; and

(ii) on the amount adjudged due to the mortgagee in respect of such further costs, charges and expenses as may be payable under rule 10. [NEW.]

COMMENTARY.

History and object.—This rule is new and has been introduced by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1929, which came into operation on the 1st April, 1930. Its object is to codify the case-law on the question of interest, removing certain conflict that existed in it.

In certain decisions it had been held that S. 34 of the Code did not apply to mortgage decrees—Giriya Cheltiar v. Sabapathy, 29 M. 65; Rajwanta Kuar v. Shiam Narain, 36 A. 220; 12 A. L. J. 283. But see Allahabad Bank Ltd. v. Suraj Kuar, 26 I. C. 177; 1 O. L. J. 544, in which a contrary view was taken.

There having been no specific rule as to interest this rule has been enacted.

Summary of the previous law.—The Court was bound to award to the mortgagee, (a) interest on the principal sum prior to the date of the suit, at the rate provided by the mortgage unless the rate is penal, in which case the Court may award such interest as it thought proper; Khaga Ram v. Ramsankar, 42 C. 652; 27 I. C. 815; 19 C. W. N. 775; 21 C. L. J. 79; (b) interest on the principal sum from the date of the suit to the date fixed by the Court for payment of the mortgage-debt also at the rate provided by the mortgage unless the rate is penal, in which case the Court may award such interest as it thought proper; Rameswar v. Mehdi Hossein, 26 C. 39 (P. C.); 2 C. W. N. 633; 25 I. A. 179 (explained in Sundar Koer v. Sham Krishen, 34 C. 150 (P. C.)); 34 I. A. 9; 11 C. W. N. 249; 5 C. L. J. 106; Surya v. Jogendra, 20 C. 360; Chaturbhai v. Harbhamji, 20 B. 744; Subbaraya v. Ponnusami, 21 M. 364; Tara Chand v. Brojo Gopal, 17 C. W. N.

457); (c) interest on the aggregate amount of principal, interest and costs decreed, from the date fixed for the payment of the mortgage-debt up to the date of realisation or actual payment as the Court thinks proper. Such interest might be allowed either at Court-rate, i.e., 6 per cent.; Sundar Koer v. Sham Krishen, 34 C. 150 (P. C.); 31 I. A. 9; Venkatachalapathy v. Thavasi, 42 M. 465; 51 I. C. 67; Saminathan v. Swamiappa, 29 M. 170; or at any other rate; Lachmi Narain v. Uman Dat, 29 A. 322, Bhagat Singh v. Jai Ram, 26 I. C. 402. Where the interest was excessive and the transaction was substantially unfair, the Court might reduce it under the Usurious Loans Act, 1918. This Act was amended in 1926 and it has been held that the effect of the amendment has been to make the Act applicable to suits for redemption of mortgages in respect of loans made before or after the commencement of the Act of 1918.—Jnan Chandra v. Mahim Chandra, 35 C. W. N. 654.

Other cases on interest.—Section 34 (1) does not control and negative the effect of rr. 2 and 4 of Or. XXXIV of the C. P. Code. The Court in a mortgage suit is bound to award interest on the principal sum prior to the date of the suit as well as from the date of the suit to the date fixed for redemption at the rate mentioned in the mortgage, unless the rate is penal; Kali Prosonno v. Pratap, 17 C. L. J. 221.

A puisne mortgagee seeking to redeem prior incumbrances must pay the interest at the rate agreed upon in the mortgage; there being no authority under S. 209, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 34) to "reduce it to the Court-rate."—Umes Chunder v. Zahur Fatima, 18 C. 164 (P. C.); 17 I. A. 201.

There is no provision made rule of Or. XXXIV, for interest after the date fixed in the decree for payment, as there is in rule 4, which relates to a decree for sale. The reason is to be sought in the difference between a foreclosure and sale. In the former case interest stops because the mortgagee gets the property in lieu of his debt, whereas a sale must be subject to some substantial delay and in many cases is subject to long delays.—Maharaja of Bhartpur v. Kanno Dei, 23 A. 181 (P. C.); 28 I. A. 35; 5 C. W. N. 137.

Where in a decree for foreclosure, interest subsequent to the decree was included in the amount made payable to the plaintiff, held, that such future interest supposing it could be properly payable, could not be treated as a charge upon the land.—Bhawani Prasad v. Brij Lal, 16 A. 269. See also Rajkumar v. Bisheshar, 16 A. 270.

Where by a consent decree in second appeal the time for redemption is extended from that fixed in the first Court, interest should be allowed up to the date of extension.—Rafikunnissa Bibi v. Tarini Churn, 20 C. 279.

The prevailing practice in mortgage cases is to allow interest at the contract rate up to the date fixed for payment by the decree nisi and thereafter interest at the usual Court-rate of six per cent. per annum. The words "the date of realization" in the decree mean the date fixed for payment by the decree, that is, a date within and not after the period of grace.—Maha Pershad Singh v. Surendra Mohan, 9 C. L. J. 288. See also Sundar Koer v. Sham Krishen, 34 C. 150 (P. C.); 34 I. A. 9; 11 C. W. N. 249; 5 C. L. J. 106; Lachmi Narain v. Uman Dat, 29 A. 322; 4 A. L. J. 209; Gokuldas v. Ghasi-ram, 35 C. 221 (P. C.); 12 C. W. N. 369; 7 C. L. J. 233. In Meghraj Marwari v. Narsing Mohan, 33 C. 846, meaning of the words "up to the date of realization" in the decree, explained. See also Tekait Krishna Prasad v. Surendra Mohan, 2 P. L. T. 78; 5 P. L. J. 598. On a preliminary decree for foreclosure or sale under Or. XXXIV, rr. 2 and 4, a mortgagee is entitled to interest at the rate and with the rests stipulated in the mortgage down to the date fixed for redemption by the decree; and if the decree is varied on appeal, down to the date for redemption fixed by the appellate Court.—Jagannath v. Surajmal, 54 I. A. 1: 54 C. 161 (P. C.): 99 I. C. 686: A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 1 (following Sundar Koer v. Sham Kishen, 34 C. 150 (P. C.) and explaining Raghunath v. Sarju Prasad, 51 I. A. 101: 8 P. 279: 28 C. W. N. 834).

In a suit on a mortgage-bond the plaintiffs are entitled to recover the agreed rate of interest without any deduction.—Futtehma Begum v. Mohamed Ausur, 9 C. 309.

Interest on money lent was contracted to be payable, "even if a suit should be instituted," at the rate fixed for the period for which the money was lent. Held, the interest must be decreed at this rate, according to the contract, down to the institution of the suit.—Balgobind Das v. Narain Lal, 15 A. 339 (P. C.) (p. 352). 20 I. A. 116.

Interest after due date is in the discretion of Court, notwithstanding that a fixed rate of interest is mentioned as payable up to realization in the bond sued upon.—Mangniram v. Dhowtal Roy, 12 C. 569 (F. B.). See also Deendoyal Lall v. Het Narain, 2 C. 41: 25 W. R. 189. But see Rama Chandra v. Devu, 12 M. 485, and Surya v. Jogendra, 20 C. 360, in which it has been held that the terms of S. 86, Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), exclude the discretion conferred on the Court by S. 209, C. P. Code, 1882, in cases coming under the Transfer of Property Act, and that interest at the stipulated rate must be computed down to the date fixed for payment. In Achalabala v. Surendra Nath, 24 C. 766: 1 C. W. N. 550 (dissenting from Amalak Ram v. Lachmi Narain, 19 A. 174), it has been held that the Court has power under a decree in a mortgage-suit to allow interest subsequent to the date of decree, and the date fixed by the decree for payment, until realization. This case has been followed in Bakar Sajjad v. Udit Narain, 21 A. 361 (F. B.) (overruling 19 A. 174). See also Subbaraya Ravuthaminda v. Ponnusami Nadar, 21 M. 364 and Jogendra Nath v. Methana Abraham, 6 C. W. N. 769; Rameswar Prasad v. Rai Sham Kishen, 29 C. 43. The same principle has been laid down in Commercial Bank of India v. Ateendralayya, 23 M. 637; Saminathan v. Swamiappa, 29 M. 170: 16 M. L. J. 133; Rameswar v. Mehdi Hosen, 26 C. 39 (P. C.): 2 C. W. N. 633 (P. C.): 25 I. A. 179; Maharaja of Bhartpur v. Kanno Dei, 5 C. W. N. 137 (P. C.): 23 A. 181 (P. C.): 23 I. A. 35; Raja Balwant Singh v. Amolak Ram, 28 A. 223 (P. C.): 3 C. L. J. 85; Ganga Ram v. Jaiballav, 30 C. 953; Manoo Lal v. Durga Prasad, 5 C. W. N. 653; Prayag Kapri v. Shyam Lal, 31 C. 138; Jagannath v. Surajmal, 54 I. A. 1: 54 C. 161: 99 I. C. 686: A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 1.

Where there is an express covenant to pay interest at a certain rate after the stipulated date of payment, the Court is bound to allow interest at that rate up to the date of decree.—Chab Nath v. Kamta Prasad, 7 A. 333 (1 A. 603 referred to).

When a mortgage-bond contains no stipulation for the payment of interest after due date, interest is payable by virtue of the Interest Act (XXXII of 1839).—Mat Singh v. Ramo Hari, 24 C. 699 (F. B.) (considered in Ghantayya v. Papayya, 23 M. 634).

Where a mortgage-bond does not provide for interest post diem, a mortgagee is entitled to receive such interest by way of damages.—Ghajmal

Das v. Brij Bhukan, 17 A. 511 (P. O.) : 22 I. A. 197; Ghuznavi v. National Bank of India, 20 C. W. N. 562 : 23 C. L. J. 256 (17 A. 511 (P. O.) referred to). See also Jwala Prasad v. Khuman Singh, 2 A. 617; Bishen Dayal v. Udit Narain, 8 A. 486; Mansab Ali v. Gulab Chand, 10 A. 85; Bhagwant Singh v. Daryao Singh, 11 A. 416 and Sri Niwas Ram v. Udit Narain, 13 A. 330. The measure of damages would prima facie be the same as the rate of interest stipulated for by the parties; Budhu Ram v. Niamat Ali, 4 L. 406; 75 I. C. 375 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 632 (17 A. 511 (P. O.) referred to). See also Badi Bibi v. Sami Pillai, 18 M. 257; Thayar Ammal v. Lakshmi Ammal, 18 M. 331; Nityananda v. Radha Charana, 20 M. 371; Pedda Subbaraya v. Ganga, 20 M. 149; Mahadeo v. Tikni, 3 O. L. J. 390; Malayappier v. Puthai Asari, (1915) M W N. 208. But whether such post diem interest would constitute a charge on the mortgaged property or not, there is a difference of opinion. In Bikramjit Tewari v. Durga Dyal, 21 C. 274; Rama Reddi v. Appaji Reddi, 18 M. 248; and Kristna Reddi v. Varadarajulu Reddi, 18 M. 338-note, it has been held that such post diem interest would constitute a charge on the mortgaged property. But in Narindra Bahadur v. Khadim Husain, 17 A. 581 (F. B.) ; Gudri Koer v. Bhubaneswari Coomar, 19 C. 19 ; and Rikhi Ram v. Sheo Parshan, 18 A. 316, it has been held that such post diem interest does not constitute a charge on the mortgaged property. (See also Balwant Singh v. Gayan Singh, 35 A. 534 : 11 A. L. J. 829). These latter cases seem to have been disapproved by the Judicial Committee in Mathura Das v. Narindra Bahadur, 19 A. 39 (P. C.) : 23 I. A. 138 (followed in Sarala Dasi v. Jogendra, 25 C. 246). See also Bundesri Naik v. Ganga Saran, 20 A. 171 (P. C.) : 25 I. A. 9.

Where in a decree for foreclosure, interest subsequent to the decree was included in the amount made payable to the plaintiff—held, that such future interest, supposing it could be properly payable, could not be treated as a charge upon the land.—Bhawani Prosad v. Birji Lal, 16 A. 269. See also Rajkumar v. Bisheshar, 16 A. 270.

Where the decree nisi in a mortgage suit allowed no interest after the expiry of the period of grace, it is not open to the Court, upon the application of the decree-holder, to insert any provision for further interest which was not made in the decree nisi.—Moha Prasad v. Ramani Mohun, 13 C. W. N. 744. See also Udit Narayan v. Jasoda, 27 C. L. J. 576

A usufructuary mortgagee who allows his mortgagor to retain possession of a part of the mortgaged property and makes no claim in respect of the stipulation in the mortgage-deed which provides for payment of interest, his claim for interest is barred by acquiescence.—Jhunku Singh v. Ohhotkan Singh, 31 A. 325 (6 A. L. J. 54 referred to).

Mortgagors on redemption of the mortgaged property should be directed to pay the mortgagee's interest up to the date fixed for redemption by the Court.—Bishenchand v. Bishen Devi, 107 I. C. 393 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 96.

The mortgagee in possession who holds over after payment of everything due to him will be charged with subsequent receipts and interest from the date at which the mortgage-debt was paid with annual rests. Where the lower Court awarded interest at 9 per cent., which was the rate provided in the bond, held, that the High Court will not interfere with the exercise of discretion by the lower Court.—Krishnaji v. Motilal, A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 337 : 31 Bom. L. R. 476.

The trial Court decreed a mortgage suit and awarded interest at the bond rate till the date of grace which was fixed six months after the date of decree. The appellate Court confirmed the judgment of the trial Court and allowed the mortgagor three months' further time to pay up the debt. Held, that it would be wrong to say that the three months' further time allowed by the appellate Court was not the time of grace as contemplated by r. 4. It was an enlargement of time fixed for payment by the appellate Court and hence interest according to bond rate must be calculated till the date thus fixed for payment by the appellate Court.—Jamuna v. Chakradhar, 126 I. C. 906 : A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 380.

Section 34 of the C. P. Code gives the Court no discretion to award interest in excess of damdupat for the period after the date on which the suit was filed, in the case of a decree based on a mortgage to the provisions of which the rule of damdupat applies.—Ramkuar v. Ramrao, 130 I. C. 159 : A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 88.

Section 34 does not give any jurisdiction to the Court with regard to interest after the date of the suit in cases to which Or. XXXIV, rr. 2 and 4 apply, and further since r. 11 makes full provision for payment of interest during the period while the matter rests within the domain of contract, the discretion under S. 34 cannot be exercised in mortgage suits where the law of damdupat prevents the inclusion of any interest pendente lite in the calculation.—Marotirao v. Man Kunwarbai, 27 N. L. R. 312 : 134 I. C. 274 : 14 N. L. J. 109 : A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 161.

Where the preliminary decree in a mortgage suit provides for interest up to date of realisation, the decree-holder is entitled to such interest even though the final decree does not give any express direction regarding the same. Nature of preliminary and final decree discussed ; Dwarka v. Umrao, 130 I. C. 337 : 7 O. W. N. 1205 : A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 47.

The awarding of future interest rests on the discretion of the trial Court which will not be interfered with by the appellate Court unless on the strongest grounds.—Said Ahmad v. Raja Barkhandi, 9 O. W. N. 253.

Though it is correct to allow interest at the bond rate up to the expiry of the period of grace, there is nothing in the Code compelling the Court to do so. The statutory authority for allowing interest at the bond rate beyond the date of the preliminary decree appears to be in Or. XXXIV, r. 11 and even that only says "may order".—Sripat Singh v. Naresh Chandra, 13 P. L. T. 545.

The words "subsequent interest" in Or. XXXIV, r. 4 as it stood before the amendment of 1929 did not take away the discretion which the Court always has had in allowing interest on the mortgage amount subsequent to the date fixed for repayment in the decree ; such discretion is not confined only to the question of rate of interest, and the Court may in a proper case refuse interest altogether to the mortgagee after such date.—Registered Jessore Loan Co. v. Shailajandath, 59 C. 722.

Rule of damdupat.—It was held in Madras that the rule of damdupat does not apply to a mortgage governed by the Transfer of Property Act.—Madhwa v. Venkata, 26 M. 662. This has been dissented from in Calcutta and Bombay.—See Jeewanbai v. Manordas, 35 B. 199: 12 Bom. L. R. 992; Kunjilal v. Narsamber, 42 C. 826: 20 C. W. N. 110.

In Calcutta it has been held that the rule of damdupat applies only when the contracting parties are Hindus.—Wooma v. Sreehari, 1 C. W. N. 178 (notes); Nobin v. Romesh, 14 C. 781. The rule exists only so long as the contractual relation of debtor and creditor exists and not when that relation ceases by reason of a decree.—In re Harilal Mullick, 33 C. 1269: 10 C. W. N. 884; Dhondshet v. Ravji, 22 B. 86. Damdupat does not apply to interest accruing after date fixed for redemption under a decree passed on a mortgage, when the relation between the parties has passed from the realm of contract into that of judgment.—Nandalal v. Dharendra, 40 C. 710.

In Bombay it has been held that a Mahomedan mortgagor cannot enforce the rule of damdupat against a Hindu creditor.—Dawood v. Vullubhdas, 18 B. 227. A Mahomedan debtor by transferring the mortgaged properties to a Hindu cannot prejudice his creditor or reduce the interest.—Hari Lal v. Nagar, 21 B. 38. So long as the mortgagor was a Hindu and the mortgagee a Mahomedan the rule was applied, but when the Hindu mortgagor transferred his interest to a Mahomedan the rule ceased to apply.—Ali Saheb v. Shabji, 21 B. 85. The rule does not forbid the interest being converted to principal by agreement between the parties.—Sukalal v. Bapu Sakharam, 24 B. 305. Ranade, J. summed up the following principles of the rule:—(1) The damdupat rule applies in all cases as between Hindu debtors and creditors both in respect of simple as also of mortgage-debts; (2) it does not however apply where the mortgagee has been placed in possession and is accountable for profits received by him as against the interest due; (3) but where the profits are by the terms of the bond received for only a portion of the interest on the mortgage-debt the general rule of damdupat will govern such mortgage accounts.—Sundarabai v. Jayavant, 24 B. 114. (See the cases referred to in this case).

For other cases see notes under S. 34, ante.

Present rule.—The points to be noted in the present rule are the following:—

1. It applies to all suits on mortgages, i.e., for foreclosure, sale and redemption.

2. It provides for cases 'where interest is legally recoverable'. This makes the rule subject to S. 74 of the Contract Act, and S. 3 of the Usurious Loans Act, 1918.

3. (a) Interest up to date fixed for payment by the preliminary decree is to be awarded

(i) On principal at the contract rate, if any, or else at a reasonable rate,

(ii) On costs awarded at a reasonable rate from the date of preliminary decree, and (iii) On mortgagee's costs, charges and expenses incurred up to date of preliminary decree at contract rate if any, or if no contract rate therefore at rate payable on the principal, or failing both such rates at 9 p. c per annum.

(b) Subsequent interest at a reasonable rate up to date of realization on the aggregate of (i), (ii) and (iii) of Cl. (a), and on such further costs, charges and expenses as may be payable on rule 10.

12. Where any property the sale of which is directed under this Order is subject to a prior mortgage, the Court may, with the consent of the prior mortgagee, direct that the property be sold free from the same, giving to such prior mortgagee the same interest in the proceeds of the sale as he had in the property sold. [S. 96.]

subject to prior mortgage

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 96 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882), with some alterations of a merely verbal character. The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if"; the words "this Order" have been substituted for the words "this Chapter," and the word "direct" has been substituted for the word "order," which occurred in the old section. These are the only modifications made in this rule.

Scope.—Compare this rule with Cl. (b) of S. 73 of this Code, which gives to the Court a similar power to that contained in this section. From the language of this rule and of S. 73, it is clear that property may be sold under a decree subject to a prior mortgage: but the Court may, with the consent of the prior mortgagee, direct the sale of the property free from his mortgage giving the prior mortgagee the same interest in the sale-proceeds as he had in the property sold. Without the consent of the prior mortgagee the Court cannot direct such a sale.

The implication of S. 96 of the Transfer of Property Act or Or. XXXIV, r. 12, C. P. Code is that without the consent of the prior mortgagee the property cannot be sold free from the prior encumbrance.—Radha Kishun v. Khurshid Hossein, 47 C. 662 (P. C.); 25 C. W. N. 417.

This rule cannot be construed as implying that whenever a property is not to be sold free from a prior mortgage, the decree should reserve the prior mortgagee's right in express terms even when such rights have to be admitted and are undisputed; and his rights therefore will be left unaffected by the omission to make a special reservation of them in the decree itself.—Srinivasa v. Yamunabhai, 29 M. 84; 16 M. L. J. 50 (Lachmi Narain v. Jwala Nath, 18 A. 344 referred to).

Section 96 of the T. P. Act, 1882, does not support the view that the puisne mortgagee is not required to redeem the prior mortgagee when the latter is a party to the suit. The prior mortgagee may no doubt consent to a sale free of incumbrances, but it is not impossible that the section was intended to cover cases in which the prior mortgagee is not a party to the suit but intervenes after the decree. Where the prior mortgagee sues for and obtains a decree for sale without making a second mortgagee a party and himself purchases the property, a purchaser of the property from him cannot claim the value of improvements from the second mortgagee under S. 51 of the T. P. Act in a suit by the second mortgagee to enforce the rights under his mortgage. A mortgagee of property has the right to bring to sale all buildings on such property whether erected before or subsequent to the mortgage.—Cangayam v. Gompertz, 31 M. 425 : 18 M. L. J. 298 (20 M. 120 followed).

The words "subject to a prior mortgage" in this rule, evidently refer to such mortgages under which the mortgaged property can be sold; they do not refer to usufructuary mortgages under which the mortgaged property cannot be sold—See Bhaqwandas v. Bhawani, 26 A. 14. But see Rengasami v. Subbaroya, 30 M. 409 : 17 M. L. J. 403 (29 M. 424 followed; 26 A. 14 dissented from), noted under rule 13 below.

A executed successive mortgages in favour of B and C sold the equity of redemption to D. C sued impleading B, C and D as parties and though D had paid up B's mortgage he did not claim a prior charge in the suit and no such charge was specified in the preliminary decree. Held that D was a prior mortgagee for the purposes of Or. XXXIV, r. 12 and the property could not be sold otherwise than subject to his claim.—Gopal Singh v. Ladha Mal, 130 I. C. 49 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 1063.

13. (1) Such proceeds shall be brought into Court and applied as follows:—

first, in payment of all expenses incident to the sale or properly incurred in any attempted sale;

secondly, in payment of whatever is due to the prior mortgagee on account of the prior mortgage, and of costs properly incurred in connection therewith;

thirdly, in payment of all interest due on account of the mortgage in consequence whereof the sale was directed, and of the costs of the suit in which the decree directing the sale was made;

fourthly, in payment of the principal money due on account of that mortgage; and lastly, the residue (if any) shall be paid to the person proving himself to be interested in the property sold, or if there are more such persons than one, then to such persons according to their respective interests therein or upon their joint receipt.

(2) Nothing in this rule or in rule 12 shall be deemed to affect the powers conferred by Section 57 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 97 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882). Except the second clause, all the clauses of this rule are almost similar to the corresponding clauses of the old section. The second clause of the old section ran as follows: "Secondly, if the property has been sold free from any prior mortgage, in payment of whatever is due on account of such mortgage." On comparison of the second clause of this rule with the second clause of the old section, the changes will be clearly understood.

The other changes are of a mere verbal character. Compare this section with Cl. (c) of S. 73 of this Code, in which there is a saving clause in favour of Government, but there is no such saving clause here. It will be observed that the provisions of rr. 12 and 13 shall not be deemed to affect the powers conferred by S. 57 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882), which under the terms of that section can be exercised by the High Court, District Court or by any other Court specially authorized by the Local Government.

"Persons interested in the property sold" in the last clause of this rule would include the mortgagee or any subsequent mortgagees according to their respective priorities proved in the mortgage suit.

Applicability.—The provisions of this rule are in terms applicable only to cases where a sale is ordered under r. 12 free of the prior mortgage. But the principle of this rule is applicable to sales other than under r. 12. The duty of applying the proceeds is laid on the Court and not on the decree holder.—Satapathi v. Chockalinga, 25 M. L. J. 552.

Sub-rule (2).—The Transfer of Property Act not having been extended to the Santhal Parganas, sub-rule (1) has no application there.—Ragunandan v. Wajed Ali, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 439.

In the Punjab where the Transfer of Property Act is not in force a decree for sale is not a necessary preliminary to the sale of the equity of redemption at the instance of the mortgagee in all circumstances.—Abdul Aziz v. Alliance Bank, A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 483; 132 I. C. 215.

Sale of property subject to prior mortgage and application of proceeds.—From the language of rr. 12 and 13 it is clear that property may be sold under a decree subject to a prior mortgage. But in the Full Bench case of Matadin v. Kazim Husain, 13 A. 432, it was held that the right of redemption left in the mortgagor after the execution of the first mortgage is not specific immoveable property and cannot be sold and that the Court cannot direct the sale of any property subject to a prior mortgage at the instance of the puisne mortgagee. A similar view was also taken in later decisions of that Court. (See notes under heading "Subject to the provisions of the Code" and "redemption security or in the right of view has been dissented from in Madhub v. Sourendra, 23 C. 795; J. 205, and also in Ram Shankar v. Gonesh Parshad, 29 A. 385 (F. B.); 4 A. L. J. 273.

A person holding two mortgages on the same property, the first usufructuary and the second simple, can bring the property to sale in a suit on the second mortgage free of the first mortgage. Sections 96 and 97 of the T. P. Act do not in terms exclude usufructuary mortgages and their provisions may be applied to such mortgages.—Rengasami v. Subbaraya, 30 M. 403: 17 M. L. J. 403 (29 M. 424 followed, 26 A. 14 not followed). In Bhagwan Das v. Bhawani, 26 A. 14, it has been held that where a mortgagee held several simple mortgages over properties A and B, and also a usufructuary mortgage of prior date over property B, he was not entitled to bring to sale the property covered by his simple mortgages, subject to the usufructuary mortgage held by him, nor could he bring to sale the whole property for the aggregate amount of his mortgages, simple and usufructuary (13 A. 432, 20 A. 322 referred to). See also Dorasami v. Vekataseshayyar, 25 M. 108 (20 A. 322 referred to).

If a mortgagee receives any money out of the surplus sale-proceeds of a share of the property mortgaged to him, sold in execution of a decree on a prior mortgage from some of the mortgagors to whom the share belonged, and against whom the decree was obtained, he is bound to apply the money to the satisfaction of his mortgage-debt only in case he receives it by virtue of his security, and not otherwise, although the payment might be made to him by the said mortgagors in satisfaction of other debts due to him from them.—Gangaram v. Jaiballav Narain, 30 C. 953.

An order for distribution ought not ordinarily to be made before the confirmation of the sale; although it may be open to the Court to distribute the sale-proceeds amongst the claimants before the sale has been confirmed, it is not obligatory on the Court to distribute it then nor is the sum distributable as a matter of course; in such distribution interest should be paid on the principle of S. 84 of the Transfer of Property Act up to the date of confirmation of the sale and not up to the date fixed for payment in the decree.—Benode v. Harish, 15 C. W. N. 783.

Where there exists a prior usufructuary mortgage, a subsequent mortgage of the same property cannot bring the mortgaged property to sale in virtue of his incumbrance until such time as the usufructuary mortgage becomes capable of redemption—Akhara v. Suba Lal, 18 A. 83 (13 A. 432 explained and followed).

Where a mortgagee, with two mortgages on the same property, obtained a decree for sale of the mortgaged property in satisfaction of the first mortgage, he is debarred from bringing a subsequent suit for sale on the second mortgage if no mention is made of it in the plaint in the former suit. But it may be open to him, when the decree in the first suit is executed, to enforce his claim on the second mortgage under S. 97 of the T. P. Act, by proceeding against any surplus that remains after satisfying the decree.—Krishnamachariar v. Annangarachariar, 30 M. 353: 17 M. L. J. 301 (34 A. 429 (P. C.) applied; 25 M. 103 referred to; 20 A. 322 dissented from). Where a prior mortgage is postponed to a subsequent mortgagee on the ground that his mortgage is not a registered one, he comes next in rank to the subsequent mortgagee; but he is an incumbrancer who takes precedence over an attaching creditor under a money-decree against the mortgagor.— Padmanabh v. Khemu Komar, 18 B. 684.

See notes under S. 73, ante.

14. (1) Where a mortgagee has obtained a decree for the payment of money in satisfaction of a claim arising under the mortgage, he shall not be entitled to bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise than by instituting a suit for sale in enforcement of the mortgage, and he may institute such suit notwithstanding anything contained in Order II, rule 2.

(2) Nothing in sub-rule (1) shall apply to any territories to which the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, has not been extended. [S. 99.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope and object of the rule—This rule corresponds to S. 99 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882), with some additions, alterations and omissions, as will appear on a comparison of the present rule with the old section, which is reproduced here—“Where a mortgagee in execution of a decree for the satisfaction of any claim, whether arising under the mortgage or not, attaches the mortgaged property, he shall not be entitled to bring such property to sale, otherwise than by instituting a suit under S. 67, he may institute such suit notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, S. 43.”

It would appear on comparison that the omission of the words “or not” which stood after the words “under the mortgage,” in the old section is most significant, inasmuch as the present rule does not preclude the mortgagee from bringing to sale the mortgaged property in execution of a money-decree unconnected with the mortgage-debt; in other words, a mortgagee who has obtained a money-decree against the mortgagor in satisfaction of any claim not arising under the mortgage but quite unconnected with it, will be able to bring the mortgaged property to sale. But if he obtains a simple money-decree upon his mortgage, he will not be entitled to sell the property comprised in the mortgage in execution of that decree, without instituting another suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act, and r. 2 of Or. II will not bar such a suit.

Under the old section the mortgagee was precluded from selling the mortgaged property in satisfaction of any claim, whether arising under the mortgage or unconnected with it, without instituting a suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act.

The reasons for the amendment will appear from the following report of the Special Committee:—“We approve of the proposal to repeal the provisions of S. 99 of the T. P. Act. We think that those provisions have worked considerable hardship and are not really needed.” The first part of the section enacts that a mortgagee shall not bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise than by instituting a suit under S. 67 of the Act.

In so far as it precludes the mortgagee from selling the mortgaged property under a judgment unconnected with the mortgage-debt it is in our opinion inexpedient; it is beyond doubt competent to a mortgagee to purchase the equity of redemption from the mortgagor by an agreement subsequent to and distinct from the mortgage transaction, and we can see no reason why it should not be equally competent to him to have it sold in satisfaction of any claim which he may have against the mortgagor unconnected with the mortgage (Khairajmal v. Daim, 32 C. 296 (P. C.) : 1 C L J. 584: 9 C. W. N. 201 · 7 Bom. L. R. 1 · 2 A. L. J. 71; Reeve v. Lisle, (1902) A. C. 461)."

"In so far as it precludes the mortgagee from selling the property under a judgment for the mortgage-debt it serves no useful purpose. We understand that the provision was enacted to prevent mortgagees from suing their mortgagors on the debt as such and in execution selling the mortgagor's interest in the property; we, however, think that no such provision was needed, seeing that under the law as it stood prior to the Act, the Courts never allowed the sale of a bare equity of redemption under a judgment on the covenant. (Syud Emam v. Raj Coomar, 23 W. R. 187; Khairajmal v. Daim, 32 C. 296 (P. C.)."

It would appear from the above report of the Select Committee that at first it was proposed to repeal S. 99 of the T. P. Act altogether, and not to insert any similar provision in the present Code, and S. 99 was, therefore, altogether omitted from the Bill. But subsequently r. 14 has been inserted in the present Code in an amended form, whereby a mortgagee has been empowered to bring the mortgaged property to sale in execution of any other money-decree not arising on his mortgage and quite unconnected with and distinct from the same, without instituting a suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act. He is, however, precluded under the present rule from bringing the mortgaged property to sale without instituting a suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act, if he obtains a simple money-decree upon his mortgage without enforcing his mortgage security. In such a case, he is entitled to bring a second suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act, for that purpose, and his second suit will not be barred by Or. II. r. 2.

The re-insertion of S. 99 of the T. P. Act in the Code in the amended form, has rendered para. 2 of the Select Committee's Report obiter.

The obvious intention of this rule is to prevent the mortgagee from executing a money-decree against the mortgaged property so as to deprive the mortgagor of his right of redemption conferred by law.

Meaning of the term "mortgagee" in this rule.—"Mortgagee" in Or. XXXIV, r. 14, was intended to mean the holder of a subsisting and effective mortgage which could still be set up by the mortgagee against a purchaser or would-be purchaser of the mortgaged property. A mortgage which has become inoperative or time-barred should not be deemed to be a mortgage which should bar the sale of the property.—Chedilal v. Sadatunnissa, 39 A. 36 : 14 A. L. J. 902.

A usufructuary mortgagee obtained a money-decree which had nothing to do with thereby. The mortgagee transferred his money-decree to a third party. Held, that there is nothing to prevent the transferee from bringing to sale the mortgaged property.—Banh Bal v. Manni Lal, 27 A. 450 (22 C. 813 distinguished).—Dissented from in Jivarathnam v. Srinivasa, 31 M. 33: 17 M. L. J. 503.

A mortgagee of a usufructuary mortgage instituted a suit on the basis of the mortgage for recovery of the amount which had remained due to him after two-thirds of the mortgage had been redeemed, and obtained a simple money-decree which contained a provision that the mortgagor was to get the property back after the decree was passed. Held that the decree-holder was entitled to sell the mortgaged property in execution.—Khan Chand v. Ghasita, 131 I. C. 119: 29 A. L. J. 159: A. I. R. 1931 All. 350.

The claim of the plaintiff, under a money-decree which he sought by this suit to enforce, was one which arose independently of a usufructuary mortgage held by him and in respect of which he had attached the interest of the mortgagor. Held, that the suit under S. 67, T. P. Act, was the course to be adopted while there was a subsisting attachment of the mortgagor's interest entitling the plaintiff to sue thereunder, and having regard to the object of S. 99 of the T. P. Act, the decree to be made in such a suit should not be merely for the sale of the equity of redemption, but should be for the sale of the property free from the mortgage claim of the plaintiff and the sale-proceeds should be applied first to discharge the mortgages on the property in order of their priority, and the surplus towards the satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim under the attachment, so far as may be necessary.—*Govinda Bhatta v. A mortgagee brought a suit for sale on his mortgage, the suit resulted in a compromise and he took a money-decree in which however the property originally hypothecated to him was set out as being charged. Held, that the mortgagee decree-holder could not bring the mortgaged property to sale in execution of this decree, but if he wished to do so he should have to institute a suit under S. 67, T. P. Act, on the decree.—Hem Ban v. Biharigir, 28 A. 58: 2 A. L. J. 479 (22 C. 859 followed).

A landlord who holds a mortgage over his tenant's holding cannot in execution of a decree obtained by him against the tenant for rent bring the holding to sale, except by means of a suit under S. 67 of the T. Section 99 of the T. P. Act does not prevent a mortgagee from bringing the mortgaged property to sale in execution of a decree for interest only obtained in accordance with the terms of the mortgage bond.—Kasi Pershad v. Jamuna, 31 C. 922.

Sale of mortgaged property in satisfaction of a money-decree obtained upon the mortgage.—A mortgaged property cannot be sold in accordance with the provisions of S. 99 of the T. P. Act. C. 813. But in Lal Behari v. ... C. 473; Fazil Hawladar v. ... it was held that a decree which is

Or. XXXIV, r. 1, mean, that the decree should relate to the money in satisfaction of a claim arising under the mortgage, i.e. independent of the decree. It can have no application where the mortgage is created by the decree and where the direct payment of money is in no sense in respect of a claim against the charge of the mortgage.—Ambalal v. Narayan, 43 B. 62, 698: 51 I. C. 929.

In order to escape the mischief aimed at by Or. X of the mortgage must be distinct from, that is to say the transaction. The words "a claim arising under the mortgage claim under the mortgage.—Kadma Pasin v. Muhammad Ali, 481: 50 I. C. 134.

Order XXXIV, r. 14 of the C. P. Code, is confined to claims under the mortgage and does not apply to a case where the sale takes place in execution of a decree for money upon a claim not arising out of the mortgage.—Jagadish Chandra Deo Dhabal v. Bhubaneswar, 27 C. W. N. 38.

A mortgagee cannot sell the mortgaged property in execution of an ordinary money-decree in satisfaction of a claim not arising under the mortgage. Section 99, T. P. Act, limits the right of a decree-holder in such a case and provides that he shall not bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise than by instituting a suit under S. 67 of that Act.—Jadib Lall v. Madhu Lal, 21 C. 34 See also Hanmant Timaji v. Raghavendra, 44 B. 981: 22 Bom. L. R. 550.

Where the mortgagee being in possession gave the mortgaged property in lease to the mortgagor, it being stipulated that the rent payable under the lease would be taken in lieu of interest, and the equity of redemption having been sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained by the mortgagee on the basis of the lease and purchased by the mortgagee. Held, that the sale was not in execution of a decree for the satisfaction of a claim arising under the mortgage.—Uttam Chandra v. R. Krishna, 47 C. 377 (F. B.): 24 C. W. N. 229: 31 C. L. J. 98: 55 I. C. 14 (followed in Ramnarayan v. Bishevanath, (1920) P. 250). See also Kadma Pasin v. Mohamed Ali, 17 A. L. J. 481: 50 I. C. 134; Bhai Chand v. Rancho Das, 22 Bom. L. R. 670: 58 I. C. 231; Lakshmikutti v. Mariathamma, 6 I. C. 504: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 127. 47 M. L. J. 798.

When a landlord has taken a mortgage of the holding of a tenant he is debarred by S. 99 of the T. P. Act, from bringing the tenure to sale in execution of his rent decree otherwise than by instituting a suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act.—Rai Ramani Dasi v. Surendra Nath, 1 C. W. N. 80.

A usufructuary mortgagee who had leased the mortgaged premises to the mortgagor could not, in execution of a simple money-decree for rent against the mortgagor, attach and sell the mortgaged premises, but must bring a suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882.—Azimulla v. Najimunnissa, 16 416. See also Mahabir v. Saira Bibi, 17 A. 520; Ibrahim Goolam v. Nihal Chand, 44 B. 366: 22 Bom. L. R. 113: 55 I. C. 536. See, however, Parmanand v. Daulat Ram, 24 A. 549.

A usufructuary mortgagee obtained, against his mortgagor, a simple money-decree which had nothing to do with the mortgage or the debt secured thereby. The mortgagee transferred his money-decree to a third party. Held, that there is nothing to prevent the transferee from bringing to sale the mortgaged property.—Banh Bal v. Manni Lal, 27 A. 450 (22 C. 813 distinguished).—Dissented from in Jivarathnam v. Srinivasa, 31 M. 33: 17 M. L. J. 503.

A mortgagee of a usufructuary mortgage instituted a suit on the basis of the mortgage for recovery of the amount which had remained due to him after two-thirds of the mortgage had been redeemed, and obtained a simple money-decree which contained a provision that the mortgagor was to get the property back after the decree was passed. Held that the decree-holder was entitled to sell the mortgaged property in execution.—Khan Chand v. Ghasita, 131 I. C. 119: 29 A. L. J. 159: A. I. R. 1931 All. 350.

The claim of the plaintiff, under a money-decree which he sought by this suit to enforce, was one which arose independently of a usufructuary mortgage held by him and in respect of which he had attached the interest of the mortgagor. Held, that the suit under S. 67, T. P. Act, was the course to be adopted while there was a subsisting attachment of the mortgagor's interest entitling the plaintiff to sue thereunder, and having regard to the object of S. 99 of the T. P. Act, the decree to be made in such a suit should not be merely for the sale of the equity of redemption, but should be for the sale of the property free from the mortgage claim of the plaintiff and the sale-proceeds should be applied first to discharge the mortgages on the property in order of their priority, and the surplus towards the satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim under the attachment, so far as may be necessary.—Govinda Bhatta v. Naraina Bhatta, 29 M. 424: 16 M. L. J. 285

A mortgagee brought a suit for sale on his mortgage, the suit resulted in a compromise and he took a money-decree in which however the property originally hypothecated to him was set out as being charged. Held, that the mortgagee decree-holder could not bring the mortgaged property to sale in execution of this decree, but if he wished to do so he should have to institute a suit under S. 67, T. P. Act, on the decree.—Hem Ban v. Bihargir, 28 A. 58: 2 A. L. J. 479 (22 C. 859 followed).

A landlord who holds a mortgage over his tenant's holding cannot in execution of a decree obtained by him against the tenant for rent bring the holding to sale, except by means of a suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act.—Basiruddi v. Kailas Kamini, 33 C. 113 (26 C. 164 followed). See also Sonu Singh v. Behari Singh, 33 C. 283 (26 C. 164, 30 C. 463, 22 M. 347 referred to); Mohamed Yakub v. Namar Ali, 55 C. 104: 104 I. C. 353: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 884. See, however, Parmanand v. Daulat Ram, 24 A. 549.

Section 99 of the T. P. Act does not prevent a mortgagee from bringing the mortgaged property to sale in execution of a decree for interest only obtained in accordance with the terms of the mortgage bond.—Kasi Pershad v. Jamuna, 31 C. 922.

Sale of mortgaged property in satisfaction of a money-decree obtained upon the mortgage.—A mortgaged property cannot be sold in execution of a decree obtained not strictly in accordance with the provisions of the T. P. Act.—Chandra Nath v. Burroda, 22 C. 813. But in Lal Behari v. Habibur, 26 C. 166; Jogemaya v. Thachomoni, 24 C. 473; Fazl Hawladar v. Krishna Bundhoo, 25 C. 580, it has been held that a decree which is not strictly in accordance with the provisions of the T. P. Act, but is a mortgage-decree, may be regarded as a mortgage-decree under the T. P. Act.

A mortgagee who has obtained a simple money-decree in satisfaction of a claim arising under his mortgage is competent to bring the mortgage property to sale in execution of his decree if the mortgage has ceased to be enforceable. Order XXXIV, r. 14 applies only where the decree obtained by the mortgagee is for the payment of money in satisfaction of the claim arising under the mortgage; but the mortgage must be a subsisting mortgage and not one which, by the reason of flow of time or any other like circumstance, has ceased to be enforceable by law.—Tansukh Bai v. Sri Gopal, 63 I. C. 445. See also Arumugam Pillai v. Alagappa Chettiar, 41 M. L. J. 160.

Where the mortgage has been declared to be a nullity and the mortgagee obtains a money-decree in lieu of what was originally considered to be a mortgage the rule has no application.—Sheo Prasad v. Mufassal Bank Ltd., 27 A. L. J. 958; 118 I. C. 590; A. I. R. 1929 All. 580. So also where it was held that the title to the property was with a third person and so a money-decree was passed.—Gowri Ambal v. Ramanathan, 53 M. 670; 122 I. C. 366; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 138.

Where a mortgagee held a money-bond from the mortgagor and transferred the money-bond to another, held, the transferee suing upon the money-bond can bring the mortgaged property to sale and his suit is not barred by S. 99, T. P. Act, as he did not take the bond subject to any liability or equity, to which his transferor, the mortgagee, was subject with regard to the mortgaged property.—Narhar v. Shivram, 7 Bom. L. R. 816 (32 C. 296 (P. C.)), p. 361 referred to).

The transferee of a money-decree obtained by a mortgagee is prohibited from selling the mortgaged property in execution of such decree, as by virtue of Ss. 232 and 233, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 49), he takes the decree subject to the conditions prescribed by S. 99 of the T. P. Act. There is nothing in that section to prohibit the attachment of the mortgaged property.—Jeevarathnam v. Srinivasa, 31 M. 33; 17 M. L. J. 503 (27 A. 450 dissented from; 9 Bom. L. R. 728 approved; 22 C. 813 referred to). See also Chhagan Guman v. Lakshman, 31 B 462; 9 Bom. L. R. 728, and Banh Bal v. Manni Lal, 27 A 450.

Even though the mortgagee abandons his right under the mortgage and asks for and obtains a simple money-decree, he is precluded by S. 99, T. P. Act, 1882, from bringing the mortgaged property to sale in execution of the simple money-decree.—Kishan Lal v. Umrao Singh, 30 A. 146; 5 A. L. J. 121. Relinquishment of the mortgage lien does not prevent the property from being mortgaged property and the mortgagor cannot be deprived of his right of redemption.—Madho Prasad v. Baijnath, 2 A. L. J. 356; (1905) A. W. N. 152.

A mortgagee is entitled to waive his right to proceed against the mortgaged property and to bring a suit only for a money-decree, but he cannot bring to sale the mortgaged property in execution of such decree without recourse to the provisions of S. 67 of the T. P. Act.—Ram Keshab v. Sonatun Pal, 2 C. W. N. 320. But see Ramchandrudu v. Krishna-Reddi, 115 I. C. 829.

Where a decree-holder holds both a decree for sale on a mortgage as well as on a simple money-decree against the same judgment-debtor, it was not unlawful for him to bring to sale the mortgaged property for the realization of the combined amounts of both the decrees.—Behari Bharthi v. Bhagwangir, 31 A. 114 (29 A. 196 referred to).

A mortgagor obtained a simple money-decree upon an instalment mortgage-bond and in execution brought to sale and purchased the mortgaged property. In a suit by the mortgagor to redeem, held, that the mortgagor having been a party to the decree and to the order of sale was not entitled to redeem.—Dharanikota v. Budharazu, 30 M. 362: 17 M. L. J. 325 (22 M. 372 followed, 22 B. 624 and 5 B. L. R. 450 dissented from).

The equitable right of the mortgagor to redeem property brought to sale in contravention of S. 99, T. P. Act by the mortgagee cannot arise when the auction-purchaser at such sale is not the mortgagee and is no party to the suit in which the property was sold.—Muthu v. Karuppan, 30 M. 313: 17 M. L. J. 163 (22 M. 347 distinguished).

The rule applies to charges.—It was so held under S. 89 of the Transfer of Property Act IV of 1882.—Aubhoyessury v. Gouri Sankar, 22 C. 859. Under the Code it has been so held.—Venkata v. Seetayya, 43 M. 786: 57 I. C. 764 (in which the authorities are discussed); Gobinda v. Kailas, 45 C. 530: 25 C. L. J. 354: 41 I. C. 73; Mohamed Yakub v. Namar Ali, 55 C. 104: 104 I. C. 353. A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 884; Raj Kumar v. Jai Karan, 57 I. C. 653.

A maintenance decree declaring a charge on the family property comes within S. 99 of the T. P. Act, and the decree-holder cannot bring the properties charged to sale without instituting a fresh suit.—Venkata Subbamma v. Venkanna, 17 M. L. J. 217. Contra.—Braja Sundar v. Sarat Kumari, 2: P. L. J. 55: 38 I. C. 791, Harī Sankar v. Musst. Tapai, 4 P. 693.

Sale held in contravention of the terms of this rule, if absolutely void or merely voidable.—The provisions of Or. XXXIV, r. 14, C. P. Code, are not so wide as those of S. 99 of the T. P. Act and deal only with a matter of procedure not of substantive law.

A sale held in contravention of the terms of S. 99, T. P. Act (IV of 1882) is not a nullity, but an irregular sale and is liable to be avoided by an application under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), before or after its confirmation on the ground that the provisions of S. 99 of the T. P. Act, have been contravened.—Ashutosh v. Behari Lal, 35 C. 61 (F. B.): 6 C. L. J. 320: 11 C. W. N. 1011; Lal Bahadur Singh v. Abharan Singh, 37 A. 165: 13 A. L. J. 138 (F. B.). See also Bhai Chand v. Ranchhoddas, 22 Bom. L. R. 670. The Full Bench case is based upon the Privy Council case of Khairaj Mal v. Diam, 32 C. 296: 1 C. L. J. 534: 9 C. W. N. 201: 7 Bom. L. R. 1: 2: A. L. J. 71, and in the Full Bench case the cases noted below have been referred to and discussed.

According to a long series of rulings, viz. Sathuvayyan v. Muthusami, 12 M. 325; Durgayya v. Anantha, 14 M. 74; Shib Dass v. Kali Kumar, 30 C. 463: 7 C. W. N. 532; Vigneswara v. Bapayya, 16 M. 436; Sheodeni Tewari v. Ram Saran, 26 C. 164: 3 C. W. N. 290; Basiruddi v. Kailas Kamini, 33 C. 113; Sonu Singh v. Behari Singh, 33 C. 283;

Chundra Nath v. Burroda, 22 C. 813; Aubhoyessury v. Gouri Sankar, 22 C. 859; Matangini v. Chooneymoney, 22 C. 903; Lachmi Narain v. Nand Kishore, 29 C. 537, 543; Tokhan Singh v. Girwar Singh, 32 C. 494; 9 C. W. N. 372; 1 C. L. J. 118; Hemban v. Beharigir, 28 A. 58, the principle has been laid down that a sale so held is null and void. In Azimullah v. Nujmunnissa, 16 A. 415; in Mahabir v. Saira Bibi, 17 A. 520; in Gobinda Bhatta v. Naraina Bhatta, 29 M. 424; 16 M. L. J. 235; Matangini v. Chooneymoney, 22 C. 903; and in Lachmi Narain v. Nand Kishore, 29 C. 537, it has been held that a suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act is necessary to enforce the mortgage or charge before the holder thereof can sell the property and obtain satisfaction of a money-decree held by him.

It has been uniformly held that if a mortgagee, in execution of a money-decree, seeks to sell the mortgaged property in contravention of the provisions of S. 99 of the T. P. Act, and if an objection is taken before the sale by the holder of the equity of redemption, the objection must be allowed and the sale prevented. To this effect are the decisions in Chandra Nath v. Burroda, 22 C. 813; Aubhoyessury v. Gouri Sankar, 22 C. 859; Rai Ramani v. Surendra, 1 C. W. N. 80; Tokhan Singh v. Girwar Singh, 32 C. 494; Hemban v. Beharigir, 28 A. 58; Madho Pershad v. Baij Nath, 2 A. L. J. 356; Kaveri v. Ananathayya, 10 M. 129; Kaji Inus v. Kaji Inus, 8 Bom. L. R. 576.

In the following cases it has been held that a sale of the mortgaged property by a mortgagee in execution of a money-decree in contravention of the provisions of S. 99 of the T. P. Act, passes no title to the purchaser. In other words, the purchaser acquires no title under the sale.—12 M. 325; 14 M. 74; 26 C. 164; 30 C. 463; 33 C. 113 and 23 B. 119.

Where a mortgagee in contravention of S. 99 of the T. P. Act has attached the mortgaged property and brought it up to sale and purchased it himself, the mortgagor or his transferee cannot successfully maintain a suit for redemption of the property without first getting the sale set aside.—Uttam Chandra v. Raj Krishna, 47 C. 377 (F. B.); 24 C. W. N. 229; 31 C. L. J. 98; 55 I. C. 157.

In the following cases it has been held that sale in execution of a money-decree in contravention of S. 99, T. P. Act, is an illegal sale, which requires to be set aside in order that it may cease to be operative, viz., 16 M. 436, 22 M. 347, 22 M. 372, 10 M. L. J. 110, 18 A. 329, 27 A. 517, 33 C. 283 and 17 M. L. J. 217.

In the following cases it has been held that a sale held contrary to the provisions of S. 99, T. P. Act, is not a nullity and that though voidable, yet, if it is not formally annulled, it does not affect the right of redemption of the mortgagor, viz., 22 B. 624, 23 M. 377, 22 M. 347 and 29 M. 421. But if such a sale does in fact take place and is confirmed and a certificate granted to the purchaser, it cannot afterwards be impeached.—Kishan Lal v. Umrao Singh, 30 A. 146; 5 A. L. J. 121 (12 C. W. N. 1, 10 M. L. J. 110, 26 C. 727, 29 A. 612, 33 C. 283 referred to).

The principle laid down in the Full Bench case of the Calcutta High Court, Ashutosh v. Behari, supra, has also been adopted by the Madras High Court in Muthu v. Karuppan, 30 M. 313; 17 M. L. J. 163, where it has been held that a sale in violation of S. 99 of the T. P. Act is voidable only and not void (22 M. 347, 22 B. 624, 23 M. 377 referred to). See also Dharanikota v. Budharazu, 30 M. 362 : 17 M. L. J. 325, and the cases therein referred to ; Muhammad Abdul v. Dilsukh Rai, 27 A. 517 ; Bhaichand v. Ranchhoddas, 22 Bom. L. R. 670 : 58 I. C. 231.

Order II, r. 2, C. P. Code, is no bar to a subsequent suit.—The effect of this rule is that if the mortgagee obtains a simple money-decree upon his mortgage he cannot sell the property comprised therein without instituting another suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act and such suit is not barred by S. 43, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2).—Bhola Nath v. Muhammad Sadiq, 26 A. 223 (16 A. 415 and 25 B. 161 referred to). See also Surajnarain v. Jagbali, 18 A. L. J. 677.

Section 43 of the C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2), is directed against two evils: the splitting of claims and the splitting of remedies. If a man omits from his suit a portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of it: if he omits one of his remedies, he cannot afterwards pursue it; so that if a mortgagee sues on his personal security alone he cannot afterwards sue on his real security. Section 99 of the T. P. Act is aimed at another distinct evil—the hardship inflicted on the mortgagor by mortgagees proceeding to realize their claim by execution of money-decrees passed in respect of the mortgagor's personal liability. Consequently, that section provides that the mortgaged property shall not be sold in execution of a decree otherwise than by an ordinary mortgagee's suit. It will be seen, therefore, that the primary purpose of S. 99 is not to increase, but to curtail a mortgagee's powers; and to secure that end, and for that purpose alone, the bar imposed by S. 43, C. P. Code, 1882, has to be relaxed.—Govind v. Parashram, 25 B 161 (167).

Suit by mortgagee for personal decree in one Court—Subsequent suit against mortgaged property in another Court—Latter suit not within jurisdiction of former Court. Held, that the latter suit was not barred by reason of the former suit either under S. 13 or under S. 43 of the C. P. Code, 1882.—Narasinga v. Venkata Narayana, 16 M. 481.

Procedure for setting aside the sale.—The question was considered by Mookerjee, J. in Ashutosh v. Behari Lal, 35 C. 61 (F. B.) : 11 C. W. N. 1011 : 6 C. L. J. 320, and it was observed :—When a sale has been held in contravention of the provisions of S. 99 of the Transfer of Property Act, the sale is not a nullity : it is an illegal and voidable sale; it may be set aside by an application under S. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code at any time before it has been confirmed; it may also be set aside by a similar application after confirmation, if the applicant proves that he had no notice of the sale or of the confirmation by reason of fraud or otherwise; the only element which is necessary for reversal of the sale is that S. 99 has been contravened. The second question, namely, whether the right of redemption of the mortgagor is or is not affected by such a sale need not be answered, as it arises only in a suit for redemption and not in the present proceedings for reversal of the sale. See also Kishan Lal v. Umrao Singh, 30 A. 146 ; Muthu v. Karuppan, 30 M. 313 ; Bhai Chand v. Ranchhoddas, 22 Bom. L. R. 670 : 58 I. C. 231.

It has been held, however, that if the equity of redemption is sold in execution of a decree and the sale is confirmed such equity being purchased either by the mortgagee with the leave of the Court or by a third party, it is suit in which the decree of money was obtained.—Muthuraman v. Ettappasami, 22 M. 372.

A third person purchasing mortgaged property bona fide at a sale in execution of a money-decree obtained by the mortgagee against the mortgagor obtains a good title free from the mortgage lien, unless the sale is made subject to it.—Husein v. Shankargiri, 23 B. 119 (22 B. 694 distinguished).

Section 99, T. P. Act, 1882 is as binding on a revenue Court as it is on a Civil Court.—Tara Chand v. Imdad Husain, 18 A. 325.

Where in a mortgage suit brought by the mortgagee against several co-mortgagors, one of them alone redeemed the mortgaged property by paying the mortgage debt and then brought a suit for contribution under S. 95 of the T. P. Act, got a decree which imposed not only a personal obligation upon the said co-mortgagors but also a proportionate charge upon the properties liable to contribution; held that that it was not necessary for him to bring a fresh suit under rr. 14 and 15, but the decree could be enforced by sale in the present suit.—Kumar Birendra Nath v. Tarini, 47 C. L. J. 107.

15. All the provisions contained in this Order which apply to a simple mortgage shall, so far as may be, apply to a mortgage by deposit of title deeds within the meaning of section 58, and to a charge within the meaning of section 100 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.

Mortgages by the deposit of title-deeds and charges,

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule has been substituted for the old r. 15 by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1929. The old rule ran as follows —

15. All the provisions contained in this Order as to the sale or redemption of mortgaged property shall, so far as may be, apply to property subject to a charge within the meaning of S. 100 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. [PART of S. 100.]

This rule has been framed by taking a portion of S. 100 of the T. P. Act. The following words of S. 100 of the T. P. Act, viz., "And all the provisions hereinbefore contained as to a mortgagee instituting a suit for the sale of the mortgaged property," have been repealed by the Fifth Schedule of the O. P. Code of 1908. Section 100 of the T. P. Act, in which the word "charge" has been defined, is reproduced below:—

"Where immoveable property of one person is by act of parties or operation of law made security for the payment of money to another, and the transaction does not amount to a mortgage, the latter person is said to have a charge on the property, and all the provisions hereinbefore contained as to a mortgagor shall, so far as may be, apply to the owner of such property, and the provisions of Ss. 81 and 82 * * * shall, so far as may be, apply to the person having such charge."

Present changes.—In the case of Uttam Ishlok v. Phulman Rai, 2 A. L. J. 379, Banerji, J. expressed the view that the holder of a charge, is like a mortgagee suing for sale, entitled to ask for and obtain a decree under S. 90 of the Transfer of Property Act, and unless he be a person who is not entitled to a personal remedy against the person whose property is subject to the charge, he was entitled to obtain such remedy in view of the wide words of that section. He was of opinion that the words "all the provisions hereinbefore contained as to a mortgagor shall, so far as may be, apply to the owner of such property and the provisions of Ss. 81 and 82 and all provisions hereinbefore contained as to a mortgagee instituting a suit for the sale of the mortgaged property" shall so far as may be, apply to the person having the charge although they referred to the rights of a mortgagee instituting a suit for the sale of the mortgaged property and did not in terms refer to any other right were wide enough to include the right to obtain a personal decree in accordance with S. 90 of the Act. Richards, J., was of opinion that the words referred to only those provisions which dealt with a sale of the mortgaged property. In the same case when it went up on appeal under the Letters Patent, 28 A. 365, the question was not decided but the view of Banerji, J., was approved. In 1908 the words of S. 100 were cut down. the words "all provisions hereinbefore contained as to a mortgagee instituting a suit for the sale of the mortgaged property" were deleted and the matter was reproduced in Or. XXXIV, r. 15 as set out above. The words of that rule in their ordinary significance would limit the applicability of only those provisions in the Order which relate to the sale or redemption of mortgaged property to property which is subject to a charge. The remedy by way of a personal decree, was not provided for in the rule. It was, however, held in some cases that the personal remedy was open to the holder of a charge.—See Lala Kalwar v. Amir Haider, 123 I. C. 215: A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 10. Where the compromise in which the liability under the promissory note in suit became merged created a mortgage or charge, and the decree that was passed on the compromise related to the satisfaction of the claim arising under the mortgage or charge, held, that Or. XXXIV, r. 14 applied even if it be assumed that the mortgage or charge must precede the decree—Posti Mal v. Radha Kishan, 54 A. 763: 138 I. C. 603: 30 A. L. J. 486: A. I. R. 1932 All. 439. The present change has removed the difficulty by providing that all the provisions contained in the Order which apply to the case of a simple mortgage will be applicable to the case of a charge within the meaning of S. 100 of the Transfer of Property Act.

Moreover, though mortgage by deposit of title deeds was not a form of mortgage under the Indian Law before the amendments of 1929, the Judicial Committee held that the charge created by a deposit of title deeds enabled the charge-holder to have a personal remedy.—Jeena Bahu v. Parmeshwar, 46 I. A. 294: 47 C. 370 (P. C.): 23 C. W. N. 490: 29 C. L. J. 443. By the present change this has received legislative sanction, mortgage by deposit of title deeds being placed on the same footing as simple mortgages.

Distinction between mortgage and charge.—The main distinction between a charge and a simple mortgage is, that by a charge the creditor becomes entitled to have his claim satisfied out of a particular property, but that property is not transferred to him. By mortgage the interest of the mortgagor in specific immoveable property is transferred to the mortgagee. (See S. 58 of the T. P. Act). But a charge does not involve a transfer of an interest in specific immoveable property. (See S. 100 of the T. P. Act).

By sale, all the rights of the vendor in the property are transferred to the purchaser. By mortgage an interest of the mortgagor in the mortgaged property is only transferred whereby he is entitled to bring the mortgaged property to sale. By charge neither any right nor any interest in the property is transferred but the creditor is entitled to have his claim satisfied out of the particular property, but neither that property nor any interest in it is transferred to him.

A simple mortgage is in the nature of an equitable lien, it does not vest any estate in the mortgagee, but only creates a lien as incident to the debt—Nadir Hossein v. Pearoo Thovildarinee, 19 W. R. 255: 14 B. L. R. 425-note. The mortgagor remains the owner of the property and may deal with it in any manner he pleases subject only to the conditions of the mortgage. For the distinction between simple mortgage and charge, see Rangasami v. Muttukumaraappa, 10 M. 509. In Royzuddi Sheik v. Kati Nath, 33 C. 985: 4 C. L. J. 219, the distinction between a charge and mortgage has been clearly pointed out by Mookerjee, J.: "There is considerable difficulty, as is well known, in drawing a sharp line of demarcation between a mortgage and a charge; but there is this well marked distinction between the two, that a mortgage does, whereas a charge does not, involve a transfer of an interest in specific immoveable property. (Narayana v. Venkataramana, 25 M. 220, p. 237). A charge differs altogether from a mortgage: by a charge the title is not transferred, but the person creating the charge merely says that out of the particular fund he will discharge particular debt." A mortgagee can follow the mortgaged property in the hands of a transferee from the mortgagor, whereas a charge can be enforced against a transferee, only if it is shown that he has taken with notice of the charge. (Kishan Lal v. Ganga Ram, 13 A. 23, p. 44). A charge-holder cannot follow the property in the hand of an innocent purchaser for value without notice of the charge. If a charge is created by operation of law, and the charge does not amount to a mortgage, any subsequent mortgage or sale of the property to a bona fide purchaser or mortgagor for value without notice will not be affected by the prior charge. A charge-holder can, of course, follow the property if it remains in the hands of the person creating the charge (Cooling v. Saravana, 12 M. 69).

A charge under this rule is created as soon as the document is executed. A document which is not creating any charge at the time of its execution but is to operate only as a charge upon the principal money at a future date, does not create a charge.—Madho Misser meaning of this rule.—Madho Misser Harjas Rai v. Naurang, 3 A. L. J. 220:

an unregistered agreement stating that as a security for the loan, a mortgage deed will be executed whenever required by the plaintiff, and also depositing some title-deeds, does not create any charge.—Konchadi v. Shiva Rao, 23 M. 54.

Creation of charge by act of parties.—A Hindu executed a document attested by witnesses, whereby he agreed to pay to his sister and after her death to her daughter Rs. 10 per annum, from the produce of an estate inherited by him from his maternal grand-mother. Held, that a corrody or charge on the profits of the estate was created, which bound the estate in the hands of the widow of the grantor.—Chalti v. Pandrangi, 7 M. 23. See also Ramnad Zemindar v. Dorasami, 7 M. 341, and Collector of Thanav. Krishnanath, 5 B. 322.

A man by his will may charge his debts on his property either by express words to that effect or by giving to his executors, being the devisees of his estate, a direction to pay his debts. As against a purchaser from the executor such a charge cannot be made good unless it is shown that he had notice of the debts and of the intention to defeat them.—Greender Chunder v. Mackintosh, 4 C. 897: 4 C. L. R. 193; Kherole Money v. Doorgamoney, 4 C. 455; Anundmoye v. Girish Chunder, 7 C. 772; Hemangini v. Nabin Chand, 8 C. 789: 11 C. L. R. 370.

A charge may be created for religious purposes, and in such cases notwithstanding the religious declaration, the property descends beneficially to heirs subject to a trust or charge for the purposes of religion.—Ashutosh Dutt v. Doorga Churn, 5 C. 438 (P. C.): 6 I. A. 182 (approved in Jagatindra Nath v. Hemanta Kumari, 31 I. A. 203: 32 C. 129 (P. C.): 8 C. W. N. 809: 7 Bom. L. R. 765). See also Sonatun Bysack v. Juggut Soondree, 8 M. I. A. 66.

Where having regard to all the circumstances of a transaction, there remains no doubt that a document shows an intention to make the land security for the payment of the money mentioned therein, the document does create a charge.—Janardana v. Anant, 32 B. 386: 10 Bom. L. R. 575.

In a suit for declaration of right, for partition and account, a consent decree was made which provided that a certain sum of money should be paid by the defendant to the plaintiff within a specified time, that the same should form a charge on certain property mentioned, and that in case of default the property should be sold for the realization of the money. Held, that the decree was similar to a mortgage-decree vis directing a property to be sold on non-payment of amount due within a specified time, that such a decree was not a final one, that the plaintiff had to apply in the same suit for a sale order, and that the suit was a pending one.—Kissory Lal v. Sewbux Bogla, 13 C. W. N. 787 (22 C. 859 distinguished and 9 C. W. N. 17 followed).

Creation of charge by operation of law—Under S. 95 of the T. P. Act, 1882, a redeeming co-mortgagor has a charge on the share of each of the other co-mortgagors.—Vasudev v. Balaji, 26 B. 500, p. 503.

By redeeming a mortgage of the ordinary kind under which possession did not pass to the mortgagee, one of the several mortgagors becomes entitled to a charge on the interest of the other mortgagors for the amount payable by the latter.—Ahmad Wali Khan v. Shamsi Jahan Begam, 28 A. 482 (P. C.): 10 C. W. N. 626: 3 C. L. J. 481: 3 A. L. J. 360: 16 M. L. J. 269: 8 Bom. L. R. 397.

Where one of two or more co-sharers owning an estate subject to the payment of revenue to Government pays the whole revenue, in order to save and so does save the estate from liability to be sold by Government for realizing the arrear of revenue, he is by operation of law entitled to a charge upon the share of each of the co-sharers for the realization of the latter's share of the revenue, as between the co-sharers.—Rajah of Vizianagram v. Rajah Setrucherla, 26 M. 686 (F. B.). But this case is opposed to the Full Bench case of the Calcutta High Court (Kinu Ram v. Mozaffer Hosain, 14 C. 809), and of the Allahabad High Court (Sethchitor Mal v. Shib Lal, 14 A. 273), and also of the Bombay High Court (Achut Ram Chandra v. Hari Kamti, 11 B. 313). In the Madras Full Bench case all the rulings on the point have been referred to and discussed. See also Ibn Hasan v. Brihbukan, 26 A. 407 (F. B.) and the cases therein referred to.

A mortgagor who discharges the whole mortgage-debt obtains thereby a charge on his co-mortgagor's share of the mortgaged property in respect of the amount paid by him in excess of the share of the mortgage-debt for which he is proportionately liable: and that such charge takes priority over a subsequent mortgage on the same property created by one of the other co-mortgagors.—Har Prasad v. Raghunandan, 31 A. 166 (4 A. 58 referred to). See also Bhagwan Das v. Har Dei, 26 A. 227 (11 M. 416 referred to).

A person who is entitled to contribution also acquires, in the case of a mortgage, a charge upon the property of his co-mortgagors.—Ibn Hasan v. Brihbukan, 26 A. 407 (F. B.) where all the cases of the several High Courts have been referred to and discussed. See also Raushan Ali v. Kali Mohan, 4 C. L. J. 79.

A mortgagee having obtained a decree on his mortgage, the decretal amount was paid off by one of several representatives of the deceased mortgagor. Held, that the latter did not thereby acquire a charge on the mortgaged property within the meaning of S. 100 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882).—Jahan Ara Begam v. Mirza Shujauddin, 9 C. W. N. 865 (26 A. 227 disapproved; 26 B. 379 distinguished; 25 C. 565 referred to).

Charge created by a decree.—A charge created by a decree does not convert the suit into a mortgage suit and make the provisions of Or. XXXIV applicable. There can be no question of a preliminary or a final decree in such a case.—Ramaswami v. Subbaraya, 49 M. L. J. 490.

Charge under the Rent Act.—The charge referred to in S. 65 of the B. T. Act, VIII of 1885, is not such a charge as that defined in S. 100 of the T. P. Act, 1882, and does not require to be enforced in the same manner; the only consequence which follows from the provisions that rent is a first charge upon an under-tenure, is, that a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, produces the effect described in Ch. XVI of the Bengal Tenancy Act.—Sourendra v. Surnomoyi, 26 C. 103; Royzuddi Sheik v. Kali Nath, 33 C. 985; 4 C. L. J. 219; Fotick Chunder v. Foley, 15 C. 492; Tarini v. Narayan Kumari, 17 C. 301. Neither is a charge for rent created by S. 5 of the Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908) a charge within the meaning of S. 100 of the T. P. Act.—Suramma v. Suriyanarayana, 42 M. 114; 48 I. C. 794; but see Venkata v. Seetayya, 43 M. 786; 57 I. C. 764.

Where the plaintiffs and the defendants are co-tenants of certain jotes which were sold in execution of a rent-decree and the plaintiffs by paying the decretal amount under S. 174 of the B. T. Act, had the sale set aside, they did not by such payment acquire any charge on the shares of their defaulting co-tenants.—Gopi Nath v. Ishur Chundra, 22 C. 800:.

Kinuram v. Mozaffur Hessein, 14 C. 809 (F. B.); Upendra Lal v. Girindra Nath, 25 C. 565; 2 C. W. N. 425. But see Manindra Chandra v. Jamabir Kumari, 32 C. 643 (1 C. W. N. 453, 6 C. W. N. 794 followed). The principle laid down in this latter case is not reconcilable with the principles laid down in the former cases.

Rent-decree and mortgage-decree—Priority.—A purchaser in execution of a rent-decree has priority over the purchaser in execution of a mortgage-decree.—Gopinath v. Kashinath, 9 C. L. J. 234; 13 C. W. N. 412; Meherunnessa v. Sham Sundar, 6 C. W. N. 834.

A vendor has a charge on the property sold for his unpaid purchase-money. See S. 55 (4) (b) of the T. P. Act, 1882.

The charge which a vendor obtains under S. 55 of the T. P. Act, is different in its origin and nature from the vendor's lien given by the English Courts of Equity to an unpaid vendor. The English cases as to a vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money though useful for the purpose of illustration are not authoritative in the interpretation of law on the subject as laid down in S. 55 of the T. P. Act.—Webb v. Macpherson, 30 I. A. 238; 31 C. 57 (P. C.); 8 C. W. N. 41 (P. C.) (followed in Rama Krishna v. Subrahmania, 29 M. 305). In this case it has been also held (overruling 21 M. 141, 24 M. 233 and 27 M. 28) that Art. 132 of the Limitation Act, 1877, is applicable to a suit to enforce such a charge and not Art. 111.

The lien of the unpaid vendor, under S. 55 (4) (b) of the T. P. Act, is non-possessory. He has only a right to retain the title-deeds and to a charge for the unpaid purchase-money, but he cannot retain possession of the property sold against the vendee.—Velayutha Chetty v. Govindaswami, 30 M. 524.

Mortgage being invalid, whether it creates any charge.—An instrument which cannot operate as a mortgage by reason of its not fulfilling the requirements of S. 59 of the T. P. Act, 1882, does not operate to create a charge under S. 100 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882.—Tofaluddi v. Mahar Ali, 26 C. 78 (approved in Prannath v. Jadunath, 32 C. 729; 9 C. W. N. 697). See also Rani Kumari v. Srinath, 1 C. W. N. 81; Royzuddi Sheik v. Kali Nath, 33 C. 985; 4 C. L. J. 219 (26 C. 78 and 246, 7 Bom. L. R. 934, followed; 10 M. 509, 24 M. 397 disapproved); Samoo Patter v. Abdul Sammad, 31 M. 337 (33 C. 935 and 7 Bom. L. R. 934 followed; 17 M. L. J. 39 and 24 M. 397 not followed); and Nabin Chand v. Raj Coomar, 9 C. W. N. 1001.

Hindu widow's right of maintenance whether creates a charge upon her husband's property.—See the cases on maintenance decrees noted under r. 15 of the T. P. Act, 1882, and the cases on "charges".—See Gajadhar v. Nagendrabala, 8 C. L. J. 489; 11 M. 111 (by Cox, J.) that a Hindu widow's right of maintenance is a charge on her husband's estate in the hands of heirs and of the purchasers colluding with heirs to defeat the widow's rights, although it may not be so in the hands of persons who have purchased it honestly, without notice and without any attempt to defraud the widow of her rights.

Mahomedan widow's claim for dower, if charge upon her husband's property.—A widow's claim for dower under Mahomedan law is not a lien on her husband's property, such as is obtained by a mortgage, but ranks on a par with ordinary debts.—Ameer Ammal v. Sankaranarayanan, 25 M. 658. See also Wahidunnissa v. Shubratun, 6 B. L. R. 54. In Bholanath v. Magbulunnissa, 26 A. 28, it has been held that a widow's claim for dower though not a charge upon her husband's property, a decree for dower is entitled to priority over the decree against the heir for the heir's personal debt.

Charge on the surplus proceeds of sale for arrears of revenue or rent.—The proceeds of a sale for arrears of revenue or rent, being substituted for the mortgaged property, become subject to the lien to which that property was subject. This principle is recognized in S. 73 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882).

The surplus sale-proceeds whether in the hands of the Collector or of creditors of the mortgagor are available to satisfy the mortgagee's claim. See Heera Lall v. Janokeenath, 16 W. R. 222; Kristodas v. Ram Kant, 6 C. 142, Gosto Behary v. Shub Nath, 20 C. 241; Raja Gopalachari v. Subbaraya, 7 M. 31 (5 M. 371 overruled); Subramanya v. Rajaram, 8 M. 573; Prem Chand v. Purnima Dasi, 15 C. 546 (referred to in Beni Prosad v. Rewat Lall, 24 C. 746). See also Jogeshur v. Ghanasham, 5 C. W. N. 356; Berhamdeo v. Tara Chand, 33 C. 92; 9 C. W. N. 989; Umatara v. Uma Charan, 3 C. L. J. 52; in these cases it has been held, that a mortgagee is entitled to a charge on the surplus sale-proceeds after the payment of the arrears of revenue, and that the limitation for a suit to enforce the charge is 12 years under Art. 132 of the Limitation Act, and the period of limitation begins to run from the due date of the mortgage-bond and not from date of sale. See also Chowdhry Jogessur v. Khetter Mohun, 17 C. 148 and Kamala Kant v. Habibulla, 27 C. 180.

On a sale of mortgaged property for arrears of rent, the mortgagee has a charge on the surplus sale-proceeds and can enforce his charge.—Gobind Sahai v. Sibdut Ram, 33 C. 878. See Hem Chandra v. Tafazzel Hossein, 8 C. W. N. 332. But where the sale is occasioned by the mortgagee's own default, he is debarred from recovering the surplus sale-proceeds.—Chitkali Koer v. Mathura Lal, 3 C. L. J. 220.

Sale of the mortgaged property for arrears of revenue.—Purchase of the surplus sale-proceeds by the mortgagee is entitled to have the property sold by the mortgagee's successors in title for realization of the balance.—Ganga Sahai v. Tulshiram, 25 A. 371 (23 C. 397 referred to).

ORDER XXXV.

INTERPLEADER.

1. In every suit of interpleader the plaintiff shall, in addition to other statements necessary for complaints, state—

- (a) that the plaintiff claims no interest in the subject-matter in dispute other than for charges or costs;
- (b) the claims made by the defendants severally; and
- (c) that there is no collusion between the plaintiff and any of the defendants. [S. 471.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 471 of the C. P. Code, 1882 with some modifications.

In para. 1, the word "shall" has been substituted for the word "must," which occurred in the old section.

The language of Cl. (a) has been materially changed. Clause (a) of the old section ran as follows: "That the plaintiff has no interest in the thing claimed otherwise than as a mere stake-holder."

Clauses (b) and (c) are exactly similar to the corresponding clauses of the old section.

See S. 88 and notes thereto, where all the cases relating to interpleader-suits are collected.

2. Where the thing claimed is capable of being paid into Court or placed in the custody of the Court, the plaintiff may be required to so pay or place it before he can be entitled to any order in the suit. [S. 472.]

is actually suing the plaintiff in respect of the subject-matter of such suit, the Court in which the suit against the plaintiff is pending shall, on being informed by the Court in which the interpleader-suit has been instituted, stay the proceedings as against him; and his costs in the suit so stayed may be provided for in such suit; but if, and in so far as, they are not provided for in that suit, they may be added to his costs incurred in the interpleader-suit. [S. 476.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 476, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" in the beginning; the word "plaintiff" has been substituted for the word "stake-holder" which occurred in the old section. The words "on being informed by the Court in which the interpleader-suit has been instituted," have been substituted for the words "on being duly informed by the Court which passed the decree in the interpleader-suit in favour of the stake-holder that such decree has been passed," which occurred in the old section. The above change is material, because under the old section the proceedings in other Court could be stayed only after the passing of decree in the interpleader-suit; but under the present rule, the proceedings in another Court can be stayed after the institution of the interpleader-suit. The object of the change is clearly explained in the following report of the Special Committee:—

"The Committee think that the institution of the interpleader-suit affords a sufficient reason for the stay of other litigation in reference to the same subject-matter and they have modified S. 476 so as to give effect to this view."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Appeal.—Under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (p), an appeal lies from an order under this rule.

4. (1) At the first hearing the Court may—

Procedure at first hearing. (a) declare that the plaintiff is discharged from all liability to the defendants in respect of the thing claimed, award him his costs, and dismiss him from the suit; or

(b) if it thinks that justice or convenience so require, retain all parties until the final disposal of the suit.

(2) Where the Court finds that the admissions of the parties or other evidence enable it to do so, it may adjudicate the title to the thing claimed.

(3) Where the admissions of the parties do not enable the Court so to adjudicate, it may direct—

(a) that an issue or issues between the parties be framed and tried, and

(b) that any claimant be made a plaintiff in lieu of or in addition to the original plaintiff, and shall proceed to try the suit in the ordinary manner.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 473, C. P. Code, 1882, with several additions and alterations. The old section is reproduced below to observe the changes introduced in the present rule:—

"At the first hearing, the Court may—

"(a) declare that the plaintiff is discharged from all liability to the defendants in respect of the thing claimed, award his costs, and dismiss him from the suit,

"or, if it thinks that justice or convenience so require,

"(b) retain all parties until the final disposal of the suit; and, if it finds that the admissions of the parties or other evidence enable it,

"(c) adjudicate the title to the thing claimed; or else it may

"(d) direct the defendants to interplead one another by filing statements and entering into evidence for the purpose of bringing their respective claims before the Court, and shall adjudicate on such claims."

Procedure where defendant does not appear.—The plaintiffs who were in possession of a sum of money filed an interpleader suit against the two rival claimant-defendants. The Court found that the proper order would be to direct the defendants in respect of the money and dismiss them from the suit, and to direct them to pay the balance into the Court to the credit of the suit after getting their taxed rates.—Khemchand Isardas v. Khairuddin Ranglahi, 53 I. C. 365: 21 Bom. L. R. 948.

Appeal.—Under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (p), an appeal lies from an order under this rule.

The adjudication upon the claims of the defendants in an interpleader suit is a decree, and stands on the same footing as a decree in a suit between other parties. See Section 598, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 598).

Appeal.—Under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (p), an appeal lies from an order under this rule.

The adjudication upon the claims of the defendants in an interpleader-suit is a decree, and stands on the same footing as an adjudication of any kind under the provisions of S. 540, C. P. Code, to interpleading is an order appealable under Singh v. Chittar Mal, 30 A. 22; 4 A. L. J.

5. Nothing in this Order shall be deemed to enable agents to sue their principals, or tenants to sue their landlords, for the purpose of compelling them to interplead with any persons other than persons making claim through such principals or landlords. [S. 474.]

Agents and tenants may not institute interpleader-suits

Illustrations.

(a) A deposits a box of jewels with B as his agent. C alleges that the jewels were wrongfully obtained from him by A, and claims them from B. B cannot institute an interpleader-suit against A and C.

(b) A deposits a box of jewels with B as his agent. He then writes to C for the purpose of making the jewels a security for a debt due from him- self to C. A afterwards alleges that C's debt is satisfied, and C alleges the contrary. Both claim the jewels from B. B may institute an interpleader-suit against A and C.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 474, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The words "nothing in this order shall be deemed" have been substituted for the words "nothing in this chapter shall be taken," which occurred in the old section. No other change has been made.

Interpleader-suit by tenants.—Plaintiff giving habuliyats to two sets of landlords cannot bring an interpleader-suit against the latter to settle the nature and extent of their right in the land.—Shelley Bonnerjee v. Raj Chandra, 37 C 552: 11 C. L. J. 577: 14 C. W. N. 784.

A tenant can maintain an interpleader-suit against a landlord and another person when the latter alleges that the landlord only acted as trustee in granting such lease.—Orr v. Chidambaram, 33 M. 220.

A tenant has a right to bring a suit to have it determined which of the two defendants, both of whom obtained rent-decrees against him, is his landlord.—Gopal Das v. Hari Charan, 5 C. L. J. 34-n. See also Kasim Saib v. Luis, 17 M. 82. But see Koylash v. Goluk, 2 C. W. N. 61, noted under S. 88.

Interpleader-suit by a Railway Company.—A Railway Company can file an interpleader-suit against the consignor and a third party claiming adversely to the consignor, as the company is not an agent of the consignor within the meaning of Or. XXXV, r. 5.—Chhaganlal v. B. B. C. I. Railway, 23 I. C. 948.

6. Where the suit is properly instituted the Court may provide for the costs of the original plaintiff by giving him a charge on the thing claimed or in some other effectual way. [S. 475.]

Alterations.—This section corresponds to S. 475, O. P. Code, 1882, with some changes of a verbal character.

ORDER XXXVI.

SPECIAL CASE.

1. (1) Parties claiming to be interested in the decision of any question of fact or law may enter into an agreement in writing stating such question in the form of a case for the opinion of the Court, and providing that, upon the finding of the Court with respect to such question,—

Power to state case for Court's opinion.

(a) a sum of money fixed by the parties or to be determined by the Court shall be paid by one of the parties to the other of them ; or

(b) some property, moveable or immoveable, specified in the agreement, shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other of them ; or

(c) one or more of the parties shall do, or refrain from doing, some other particular act specified in the agreement.

(2) Every case stated under this rule shall be divided into consecutively numbered paragraphs, and shall concisely state such facts and specify such documents as may be necessary to enable the Court to decide the question raised thereby. [S. 527.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 527, C. P. Code, 1882, with a verbal change, viz., the words "specify such" have been added before the word "documents" in sub-rule (2). No other change has been made.

Conditions to be satisfied.—This rule lays down the necessary conditions to be satisfied for a case stated for the Court's opinion.—Trustees of the Port of Bombay v. Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay, 54 B. 825: 125 I. C. 897: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 232: 32 Bom. L. R. 416.

No appeal lies when Court decides under this rule.—The parties to a suit for possession came to an agreement that they should ask the Court to decide the question of title on the basis of the thak-bust map only and the plaintiff agreed to abide by that decision. The Court decided accordingly. Held, that in deciding the question on the basis of the thak-bust map, in accordance with the agreement of the parties, the Court acted as arbitrator and hence no appeal lay from that decision.—Kumar Saradindu Roy v. Bhagobati Debya, 10 C. W. N. 835.

2. Where the agreement is for the delivery of any property, or for the doing, or the refraining from doing, any particular act, the estimated value of the property to be delivered, or to which the act specified has reference, shall be stated in the agreement. [S. 528.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 528, C. P. Code, with this modification that the word “where” has been substituted for the word “when” in the beginning.

3. (1) The agreement, if framed in accordance with the rules hereinbefore contained, may be filed in the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit, the amount or value of the subject-matter of which is the same as the amount or value of the subject-matter of the agreement.

(2) The agreement, when so filed, shall be numbered and registered as a suit between one or more of the parties claiming to be interested as plaintiff or plaintiffs, and the other or the others of them as defendant or defendants; and notice shall be given to all the parties to the agreement, other than the party or parties by whom it was presented. [S. 529.]

COMMENTARY.

Applicability.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 529, C. P. Code, 1882.

The filing of a proper agreement as mentioned in r. 1, is a necessary condition to be satisfied; and where the provisions (a), (b) and (c) are not satisfied and the case began by stating that the parties have concurred in stating the question of law arising therein in accordance with the Code for the opinion of the Court and it ended by setting out the question, and stating in effect that judgment with costs is to be entered for the plaintiff or the defendant according as whether the question is answered in the affirmative or the negative but it did not contain the agreement, it was held that the case did not comply with the Code.—Trustees of the Port of Bombay v. Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay, 54 B. 825: 125 I. C. 897: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 232: 32 Bom. L. R. 416.

4. Where the agreement has been filed, the parties to it shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the Court and shall be bound by the statements contained therein. [S. 530.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 530, C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification that the word “where” has been substituted for the word “when” in the beginning.

5. (1) The case shall be set down for hearing as a suit instituted in the ordinary manner, and the provisions of this Code shall apply to such suit so far as the same are applicable.

Hearing and disposal of case.

(2) Where the Court is satisfied, after examination of the parties, or after taking such evidence as it thinks fit,—

(a) that the agreement was duly executed by them,

(b) that they have a bona fide interest in the question stated therein, and

(c) that the same is fit to be decided, it shall proceed to pronounce judgment thereon, in the same way as in an ordinary suit, and upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow. [S. 531.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 531, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

In para. 1, the words "in the ordinary manner" have been substituted for the words "under Chapter V" which occurred in the old Code.

The sentence, "and shall be enforced in the manner provided in this Code for the execution of decrees," which stood after the words, "a decree shall follow," in the last para. of the old section, has been omitted, probably, as unnecessary. The other changes are merely verbal.

Court.—Where the legislature has constituted a special tribunal with special and effective powers for determining a dispute, the Civil Court ought not to interfere by giving some partial decision which it cannot make effective and which accordingly will not, necessarily end the dispute.—Trustees of the Port of Bombay v. Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay, noted ante under r. 3..

Fit to be decided.—Where a Court can give merely a declaration without any substantial relief and such substantial relief was reserved to entirely different tribunals under the statute, thereby barring a fresh suit founded on the declaration, the case cannot be one "fit to be decided" within the meaning of this rule.—Trustees of the Port of Bombay v. Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay, noted ante under r. 3.

Appeal.—Where both the parties to a suit referred the matters in dispute between them to the Court, and agreed to abide by the decision, and the Court passed a decree awarding a certain sum to the plaintiff; held, that no appeal lay from the decree, the decision of the Court being in the nature of an arbitration award.—Sayad Zain v. Kalahbai, 23 B. 752.

Court-fee.—The written agreement must be on a court-fee of Rs. 10 [Sch. II, Art. 19, Court-Fees Act (VII of 1870)].

ORDER XXXVII.

SUMMARY PROCEDURE ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

Application of Order

1. This order shall apply only to—

- (a) the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay;
- (b) the Chief Court of Lower Burma;
- (c) the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Sind; and
- (d) any other Court to which sections 532 to 537 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, have been already applied. [S. 538.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 538, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

Clause (e) and the last three paras. of the old section, relating to the power of Local Government to extend these rules to any other Court, have been omitted, and several alterations have been made in the wording and language of Cls. (a), (b), (c) and (d), as will appear on comparison.

Small Cause Courts.—"As Chapter XXXIX of the Code is transferred into rules, the Committee have not reproduced paragraph (c) of S. 538, as its appropriate place will be in rules under the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Paragraph (c) of the old section ran as follows: "(c) the Courts of Small Causes in Calcutta, Madras and Bombay."

The sections have been applied to the following other Courts in—

(1) Burma—

- (a) Court of the Judge of Moulmein, and
- (b) Court of the Deputy Commissioner of Akyab;

see, Burma Rules Manual, Ed. 1897, p. 116.

(2) the Madras Presidency—

- (a) District and Subordinate Judges' Courts, and
- (b) District Munsifs' Courts;

see, Madras List of Local Rules and Orders, Ed. 1898, Vol. I, p. 196.

A Subordinate Judge who is a presiding officer of an ordinary Sub-Court and not a Court of Small Causes has not, when exercising Small Cause Court powers, authority to act under this Order, but when acting as a Court of Ordinary

Perivanayaga, 51 M. 491: 109

M. L. J. 114.

2. (1) All suits upon bills of exchange, hundis or promissory notes may, in case the plaintiff desires to proceed hereunder, be instituted by presenting a plaint in the form prescribed; but the summons shall be in Form No. 4 in Appendix B or in such other form as may be from time to time prescribed.

(2) In any case in which the plaint and summons are in such forms, respectively, the defendant shall not appear or defend the suit unless he obtains leave from a Judge as hereinafter provided so to appear and defend; and, in default of his obtaining such leave or of his appearance and defence in pursuance thereof, the allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted, and the plaintiff shall be entitled to a decree—

(a) for the principal sum due on the instrument and for interest calculated in accordance with the provisions of section 79 or section 80, as the case may be, of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, up to the date of the institution of the suit, or for the sum mentioned in the summons, whichever is less, and for interest up to the date of the decree at the same rate or at such other rate as the Court thinks fit; and

(b) for such subsequent interest, if any, as the Court may order under section 34 of this Code; and

(c) for such sum for costs as may be prescribed:

Provided that, if the plaintiff claims more than such fixed sum for costs, the costs shall be ascertained in the ordinary way.

(3) A decree passed under this rule may be executed forthwith. [S. 532.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 532 of the old Code except in the following particulars:—

(1) The Explanation to S. 532 has been omitted and in lieu thereof the words “the allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted” have been added to sub-rule (2).

(2) The fourth paragraph of S. 532 has been omitted.

(3) The italicized words in Cls. (a), (b) and (c) of sub-rule (3) and in sub-rule (3) have been substituted by S. 4 of the Negotiable Instruments

(Interest) Act, 1926 (XXX of 1926) for the words beginning with the words "for any sum not exceeding" and ending with the words "executed forthwith" of the old rule.

Object and scope of the rule.—"The explanation to S. 632 was inserted to negative the effect of the decision in 1 C. 130, but its meaning, as it stands, is obscure. The committee have therefore deleted the explanation, and added words in the body of the rule which will remove the doubts at which the explanation was aimed."—See the Report of the Special Committee. See also Bhupati Ram v. Sourendra, 30 C. 446; 7 C. W. N. 412.

By the addition of the words "the allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted," it has now been made clear that in default of defendants obtaining leave to appear and defend, the allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted. The provisions of this rule are, therefore, not limited to those simple cases in which the bill itself together with mere lapse of time is sufficient to establish for the plaintiff a prima facie case to recover, as pointed in Remfrey v. Shillingford, 1 C. 130; but they are applicable to suits on promissory notes in which there is no express stipulation to pay interest or there is provision for payment by instalments, as the allegations of those facts in the plaint will be deemed to be admission of the defendant, and no further evidence would be required to prove them.

Negotiable instrument, bill of exchange, promissory note.—The term "Negotiable Instrument" has been defined in S. 13 and the terms "Promissory Note" and "Bill of Exchange" in Ss. 4 and 5, respectively of the Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881). See also S. 2, Cls. (2), (3) and (22) of the Indian Stamp Act (II of 1899).

As to "negotiable instrument," see also Jetha Parkha v. Ram Chandra, 16 B. 689; and Bharata Pisharodi v. Vasudevan, 27 M. 1 (F. B.) (16 M. 283 overruled; 23 M. 156-n. and 13 B. 669 approved).

An instrument signed bearing one-anna stamp, was in the following terms, viz: "On deposit of title-deeds named therein below for value received by me, I promise to pay three months after date, Rs. 160 to A. B. or order"; then followed the details of the title-deeds. Held, that the instrument was a negotiable instrument.—Ramachandra v. Sesha, 17 M. 85.

Practice and procedure in suits under this order.—A summary suit under this chapter differs from a suit instituted in the ordinary manner on negotiable instruments in the following respects: (1) A summary suit can only be instituted in the Courts mentioned in r. 1; (2) It must be brought within one year from the date on which the debt becomes due and payable, under Art. 5 of Sch. I of the Limitation Act, 1908, as amended by Act XXX of 1925; (3) The defendant in a summary suit is not, as in a suit brought in the ordinary manner, entitled as of right to put in a defence. He must in a summary suit apply for leave to defend and such application under Sch. I, Art. 159 of the Limitation Act must be made within 10 days from the service of summons on him. If no leave is granted, the plaintiff is entitled to get a decree, and the Court is not entitled to pass at the instance of such a defendant an order for the payment of the decretal amount by instalments under Or. XX, r. 11 (1).—Pestonji v. Jamsedji, 50 B. 262; 94 I. C. 9; A. I. B. 1926 Bom. 250.

Suit for amount due on a hundi or for compensation in the alternative.—A suit for the amount due on a hundi or in the alternative for compensation under Ss. 32 and 117 (c) is maintainable under this summary chapter.—Naraindas v. Chandiram, 107 I. C. 218 : A. I. R. 1928 Sind 86 : 22 S. L. R. 305.

Interest.—In a suit instituted under this Chapter, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover, any interest unless such interest is specified in the note itself, or to give evidence regarding any agreement to interest.—Bhupati Ram v. Sourendra, 30 C. 446 : 7 C. W. N. 412 (1 C. 130 referred to).

In a suit on a promissory note instituted under Chapter 37 of the C. P. Code, where no leave had been obtained to defend the suit, the plaintiff is not entitled to a decree for interest at 18 per cent. on the strength of an oral agreement alleged in the plaint. The plaintiff can only get interest at 6 per cent.—Kader Buksh v. Shaik Serajuddin, 49 C. 716 : 70 I. C. 130 : A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 513. Section 80 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, as amended by Act XXX of 1926, provides that when no rate of interest is specified in the instrument, the interest on the amount due thereon shall be calculated at the rate of 6 p. c. per annum from the date at which the same ought to have been paid by the parties charged, notwithstanding any agreement relating to the interest between any parties to the instrument.

Costs.—If a suit on a promissory note which is cognizable by the Small Cause Court is instituted in the High Court under Or. XXXVII of the Code, the provisions of S. 22 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act apply and no costs can be allowed to the plaintiff unless the trying Judge certifies that the suit was a fit one to be brought in the High Court.—Manmotha v. Abu Jafer, 56 C. 484 : 33 C. W. N. 95 : 116 I. C. 736 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 560.

“The allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted.”—The effect of these words which have been substituted for the Explanation to S. 532 of the old Code is to enable the plaintiff to succeed on his own allegations, though the allegations may be of such a nature that if the defendant appeared and denied them, they would have to be proved by the plaintiff. The fundamental principle of law is that the plaintiff, when he comes to Court, must prove his case and he must prove it to the satisfaction of the Court. Under the C. P. Code such proof can be dispensed with and the allegations in the plaint considered as admitted only in undefended cases of Bills of Exchange, Promissory Notes and Hundis as contemplated in Or. XXXVII, r. 2 of the Code.—J. B. Ross & Co. v. C. R. Scriven, 43 C. 1001 : 20 C. W. N. 1192.

Decree.—A plaintiff suing on a bill of exchange the drawer, acceptor and endorser, where the endorsement has been made before maturity and without restriction, is entitled to a decree against all the defendants; a decree containing a condition exempting the endorser from liability until the plaintiff has exhausted his remedies against the drawer or acceptor is therefore illegal.—Bank of Bengal v. Kartick Chunder, 16 C. 804. After the usual return of service and the expiration of the period mentioned in the summons, an order of Court for a decree should be obtained.—Schiller v. Marker, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 283.

Summons.—In a suit under this Chapter, the Court has no power, after the time fixed by the summons for obtaining leave to appear and defend has expired, to extend the time.—Quazie Mahmudar Rohman v. Sarat Chandra, 5 C. W. N. 259 (3 B. L. R. O. S. 83, and 3 C. 539 distinguished).

In a suit under the Chapter, the defendant is bound to make his application for leave to defend the suit within 10 days, from the date of service of summons as shown in the Sheriff's return. He cannot be allowed extension of time on the ground of his absence from the dwelling house when the service is alleged to have been effected.—Madhub Lall v. Woopendra Narain, 23 C. 573.

The plaintiff is entitled to claim by his summons whatever sum, principal or interest, is, on the legal construction of the instrument, demandable, though as to interest beyond the scope of the instrument, the question is a different one and out of the scope of the Act.—De Souza v. Ranganian, 6 M. H. C. R. 257.

One who takes a promissory note in his own name benami for another is the only party entitled to sue thereon and that the true owner is precluded from maintaining an action in his own name for the amount thereof.—Ramanuja Ayyangar v. Sadagopa, 28 M. 205; Subba Narayana v. Ramaswami, 28 M. 244, where it has been further held that the defendant is precluded from pleading that the plaintiff is not the true owner of the note. See also Subba Narayana v. Ramaswami, 30 M. 88 (21 M. 391 overruled). An assignee of a negotiable instrument otherwise than by endorsement may sue.—Muthar Sahib v. Kadir Sahib, 28 M. 511.

No person can claim a title to a negotiable instrument through a forged endorsement. Such an endorsement is a nullity and must be taken as if no endorsement was on the instrument (32 C. 799, 815 not followed; 24 B. 65, 67 followed). Where a plaintiff establishes the fact that a negotiable instrument was obtained from its lawful owner by means of fraud, the onus of proving that a third party was a holder in due course lies on the defendant.—Banku Behari v. Secretary of State, 36 C. 239.

"Leave to defend."—See notes to next rule.

Limitation.—It is optional with the plaintiff to bring a suit under this order, or in the ordinary way. If he sues under this order then the period of limitation is 6 months from the date when the money becomes payable. See Art 5 of the Limitation Act, IX of 1903. But when the plaintiff sues in the ordinary way then the limitation is 3 years. See Arts. 69 to 80 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1903).

Appeal.—The effect of this rule is that if the Judge refuses leave to defend or gives leave on terms which the defendant is not able to comply with, the plaint is taken to be admitted and the plaintiff becomes automatically entitled to a decree within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent. See Ramanlal v. Ohunilal, 34 Bom. L. R.

3. (1) The Court shall, upon application by the defendant, give leave to appear and to defend the suit, upon affidavits which disclose such facts as would make it incumbent on the holder to prove consideration, or such other facts as the Court may deem sufficient to support the

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 533, C. P. Code, with some additions, alterations and omissions.

The words "upon the defendant paying into Court the sum mentioned in the summons," which occurred in the old section after the words 'to defend the suit' have been omitted; and in sub-rule (2), the words "Leave to defend may be given unconditionally or subject to such terms as to payment into Court" have been added. Under sub-rule (2) discretion has been given to Courts to allow the defendant to defend the suit unconditionally or subject to such terms as to payment into Court, as the Court thinks fit. Under the old section it was obligatory upon the Court to grant leave.

"Upon affidavits."—An affidavit in support of an application for leave to defend as required by Or. XXXVII, r. 3 (1) of the C. P. Code, must disclose facts sufficient to support the application.—Kooverbhan Sukanand v. Madandas Siroomal, 49 I. C. 193: 12 S. L. R. 70.

"Leave to defend."—The Court will give leave to a defendant to appear and defend a suit, where he shows a defence apparently real; but where there is a doubt as to the bona fides of the defence, payment of money into Court will be ordered or security directed to be given.—Vonlintzgy v. Narayan Sing, 6 B. L. R. App. 64.

As a rule, leave to defend should be given unconditionally if the defendant shows a prima facie case or raises a triable issue. Leave should be made conditional if the Court doubts the bona fides of the defendant or thinks the defence is only put in to gain time.—Peria Miyana v. Subramania, 78 I. C. 505: 46 M. L. J. 255: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 612. See Madanlal v. Kedarnath, noted under the heading "Appeal," post.

In a suit under Act V of 1866 the summons should be returned in the usual way; and after the expiration of the required time, an order of the Court or a decree should be obtained.—Schiller v. Marker, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 283.

The High Court has power to extend the time within which a defendant in a suit brought under this Chapter, can come in and obtain leave to defend; therefore in a suit in which it appeared that a defendant resided at Peshawar, the time for the defendant to obtain leave from the Court to appear and defend was extended to 23 days.—Groom v. Wilson, 3 C. 539 (distinguished in Quazie Mahmudar Rohman v. Sarat Chandra, 5 C. W. N. 259, where it has been held that the Court has no power to extend the time).

In a summary suit, if a defendant has been arrested before judgment and claims compensation for such arrest under S. 491, C. P. Code, 1882, he is entitled on the ground to apply for leave to defend the suit, and if a prima facie case is made out, leave to defend should be given.—Roulet v. Fetterle, 18 B. 717.

In a summary suit on a bill of exchange under Or. XXXVII, the defendant cannot be allowed to counter-claim for the damages caused by the alleged failure of the plaintiff to supply goods of the right sort.—Weiss Bihellet and Brooks Ltd. v. Habibbhoj Ganggs, 120 I. C. 529.

A defendant entering appearance under protest denying that he was a partner, in a suit filed under this order is not entitled to ask for trial of an issue whether he was a partner. The plaintiff may disregard the appearance under protest and proceed again in his endeavours to serve the summons under the provisions of Or. XXX, r. 3.—Ramanujachary v. Pohoomal, 50 B. 665; 99 I. C. 495; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 585.

"Subject to such terms as to payment into Court."—Where a decree in a suit under the summary procedure described by Or. XXXVII is set aside on the defendant depositing into Court the amount sued for, the amount deposited becomes charged with the decretal amount and is available for the satisfaction of any other decree passed. It is not competent to the Court passing the decree to enquire into the question whether the amount deposited was or was not the defendant's own money.—Gopalaiyar v. Tiruvengadam Pillai, 32 M. L. J. 503; 5 L. W. 407.

Where in a suit on a promissory note filed under Or. XXXVII, the defendant by his affidavits shows that he has a real defence to the suit, but the sincerity of which may be open to doubt the proper course is to give the defendant leave to defend on his bringing the suit money into Court.—G Chakrapany Ohttiar v. Kamalvalli Ammal, 12 L. W. 712.

Limitation.—Application for leave to appear and defend must under Art. 159 of the Limitation Act be made within 10 days from the date of service of summons on the defendant. In determining any question as to limitation arising on an application under this rule, the date shown in the sheriff's return as the date of service should only be referred to.—Madhub Lall v. Woopendra Narain, 23 C. 573.

Appeal.—An order under this rule is not appealable. See Sukhlal v. Eastern Bank Ltd, 42 C. 735. But where the Judge first passed an order giving conditional leave to the defendants to defend the suit or depositing certain amount in Court before a certain date and subsequently passed an ex parte decree the security not having been furnished, the latter order is appealable and the defendants can challenge therein the previous order also which in effect deprived them of their right to defend.—Madanlal v. Kedarnath, 125 I. C. 438; A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 364; 32 Bom. L. R. 660.

4. After decree the Court may, under special circumstances, set aside the decree, and if necessary stay or set aside execution, and may give leave to the defendant to appear to the summons and to defend the suit if it seems reasonable to the Court so to do, and on such terms as the Court thinks fit. [S. 534.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 534, C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the words "to the defendant" after the words "may give leave." No other changes have been made.

Special circumstances.—This rule gives the defendant a right under special circumstances to set aside the decree, and, if necessary, to stay or set aside execution; and where a defendant fails to obtain leave to defend on the ground of the expiration of 10 days from the date of service of summons his remedy is under this rule.—Quazie Mahmudar Rohman v. Sarat Chandra, 5 C. W. N. 259.

A defendant who has obtained no leave to defend a summary suit, cannot be allowed to appear while the hearing is proceeding. Order XXXVII contemplates that a decree should be passed in such a case in accordance with the plaint. Thereafter the defendant can apply under Or. XX, r. 11 (2), for payment of the decretal amount by instalments or to grant him any of the reliefs in Or. XXXVII, r. 4.—Pestonji v. Jamsedji, 50 B. 262: 94 I. C. 9: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 250.

An appeal lies from an order made under this rule, refusing to set aside an ex parte decree.—Luckmidas v. Ebrahim, 2 B. 644.

5. In any proceeding under this Order the Court may order the bill, hundi or note on which the suit is founded to be forthwith deposited with an officer of the Court, and may further order that all proceedings shall be stayed until the plaintiff gives security for the costs thereof. [S. 535.]

ORDER XXXVIII.

ARREST AND ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT.

ARREST BEFORE JUDGMENT.

1. When at any stage of a suit, other than a suit of the nature referred to in section 16, clauses (a) to (d), the Court is satisfied, by affidavit or otherwise—

Where defendant may be called upon to furnish security for appearance.

(a) that the defendant, with intent to delay the plaintiff, or to avoid any process of the Court or to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him—

(i) has absconded or left the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(ii) is about to abscond or leave the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(iii) has disposed of or removed from the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court his property or any part thereof, or

(b) that the defendant is about to leave British India under circumstances affording reasonable probability that the plaintiff will or may thereby be obstructed or delayed in the execution of any decree that may be passed against the defendant in the suit, [S. 477.]

the Court may issue a warrant to arrest the defendant and bring him before the Court to show cause why he should not furnish security for his appearance: [S. 478.]

Provided that the defendant shall not be arrested if he pays to the officer entrusted with the execution of the warrant any sum specified in the warrant as sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim; and such sum shall be held in deposit by the Court until the suit is disposed of or until the further order of the Court. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations and their effect.—This rule corresponds to Ss. 477 and 478, C. P. Code, 1882 with several alterations and omissions.

Special circumstances.—This rule gives the defendant a right under special circumstances to set aside the decree, and, if necessary, to stay or set aside execution; and where a defendant fails to obtain leave to defend on the ground of the expiration of 10 days from the date of service of summons his remedy is under this rule.—Quazie Mahmudar Rohman v. Sarat Chandra, 5 C. W. N. 259.

A defendant who has obtained no leave to defend a summary suit, can not be allowed to appear while the hearing is proceeding. Order XXXVII contemplates that a decree should be passed in such a case in accordance with the plaint. Thereafter the defendant can apply under Or. An appeal lies from an order made under this rule, refusing to set aside an ex parte decree.—Luckmidas v. Ebrahim, 2 B. 644.

5. In any proceeding under this Order the Court may order the bill, hundi or note on which the suit is founded to be forthwith deposited with an officer of the Court, and may further order that all proceedings shall be stayed until the plaintiff gives security for the costs thereof. [S. 535.]

It is not necessary for the plaintiff to show that the defendant intends to obstruct or delay the plaintiff in execution of his decree in order to justify an application to the Court for his arrest before judgment; it is enough if his going away will have that effect.—Agra and Masterman's Bank v. Minto, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 265.

A defendant failing to show good cause will be ordered to find security for the amount of the claim and the costs of the suit, and "good cause" must be either (1) that he is not going to leave India, or not for so long a time as will obstruct, or be likely to obstruct the plaintiff, should he succeed; (2) that the suit is not a bona fide one; or (3) that even if it is, the titillation of it has been vexatiously delayed till the defendant is about to depart from India, in order to embarrass or coerce him.—Spencer's Hotel v. Anderson, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 294-note.

Where an officer proceeding from Burma to England on leave, resided 7 days in Madras on the way; held, that such residence was sufficient for the purposes of S. 648, C. P. Code, 1892, to render him liable to arrest before judgment.—Everett v. Frere, 8 M. 205.

Where a person has to leave his place of residence for attendance in a civil Court, his departure is not with a view to delay the plaintiff or to obstruct the process of Court or to obstruct or delay execution and an order under Or. XXXVIII, r. 1, is not justifiable.—Daulat Ram v. Kirpa Ram, 4 J. 423.

The mere fact that an appeal is pending against a decree is no reason for enforcing execution by arrest when the execution has not been completed.—Mehr Chand v. Ram Lal, 73 I. C. 766.

A suit was instituted against the master of a vessel for repairs done to the vessel and for hire of a dock in which the vessel had been. The master, about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, the plaintiffs applied under S. 477, C. P. Code, 1892 (Or. XXXVII), for an order that the defendant should give security for the amount of the claim within 7 days. The Court, under S. 477, C. P. Code, ordered the defendant to give security for the amount of the claim within 7 days. 695.

Warrant.—For Form of Warrant of arrest under this rule, see Appendix, No. 1.

Consequence of obtaining arrest on insufficient grounds.—See S. 95.

2. (1) Where the defendant fails to show such cause the Court shall order him either to deposit in Court money or other property sufficient to secure the claim against him, or to furnish security for his appearance at any time when called upon while the suit is pending and until satisfaction of any decree that may be passed in the suit, or make such order as it thinks fit in

The provisions of Ss. 477 and 478 have been amalgamated in this rule. Some of the words and phrases of S. 477 have been changed and replaced by more appropriate words and phrases; and the last para. of S. 477, which runs as follows: "The plaintiff may apply to the Court that security be taken for the appearance of the defendant to answer any decree that may be passed against him in the suit," has been omitted probably as unnecessary.

The last para. only of S. 478 has been embodied in this rule, and the other portions of the section, which contained provisions almost similar to S. 477, have been omitted, probably as redundant. Section 478, C. P. Code, is reproduced below for the purpose of comparison and to observe the changes introduced by the present rule:—

"If the Court after examining the applicant, and making such further investigation as it thinks fit, is satisfied—

"that the defendants, with any such intent as aforesaid—

"(a) has absconded or left the jurisdiction of the Court, or

"(b) is about to abscond or to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or

"(c) has disposed of, or removed from the jurisdiction of the Court, his property or any part thereof, or

"that the defendant is about to leave British India under the circumstances last aforesaid,

"the Court may issue a warrant to arrest the defendant, and bring him before the Court to show cause why he should not give security for his appearance."

On comparison it would appear that the first para. of S. 478, which contained provisions for the examination of the applicant and for making further investigation before issuing warrant for arrest has been omitted; the last para. of the section has been retained and embodied in this rule, and the other portions of the section, the provisions of which were almost similar to S. 477, have been omitted as redundant.

Clauses (a) to (d) of S. 16 refer to the following classes of suits: (a) for the recovery of immoveable property, (b) for partition of immoveable property, (c) suits for foreclosure, sale or redemption in the case of a mortgage of or charge upon immoveable property, (d) for the determination of any other right to or interest in immoveable property. All these suits are excluded from the operation of this rule.

The proviso is new, and it is similar to r. 38 of Or. XXI.

Under the present rule no further examination of the applicant or investigation, except the affidavit, is needed to take action under this rule. Under the old S. 478 it was necessary to examine the applicant and to make further enquiry before taking action under Ss. 477 and 478. The present rule has simplified the procedure to a certain extent.

"The Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise."—A creditor is not entitled, merely because he has a just demand against his debtor, to move the Court to put in force the extraordinary processes of arrest or attachment; he must also have good reason to believe that his debtor is about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or to deal with his property in such a manner that it will be unavailable for satisfaction of the claim against him.—Goutiere v. Charriol, 2. N. W. P. H. O. R. 91. See also Seth Chand Mul v. Purushotham, 50 M. 27 : 94 I. C. 512 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 594 : 50 M. L. J. 348.

It is not necessary for the plaintiff to show that the defendant intends to obstruct or delay the plaintiff in execution of his decree in order to justify an application to the Court for his arrest before judgment; it is enough if his going away will have that effect.—*Agra and Masterman's Bank v. A defendant failing to show good cause will be ordered to find security for the amount of the claim and the costs of the suit, and "good cause" must be either (1) that he is not going to leave India, or not for so long a time as will obstruct, or be likely to obstruct the plaintiff, should he succeed; or (2) that the suit is not a bona fide one; or (3) that even if it is, the institution of it has been vexatiously delayed till the defendant is about to depart from India, in order to embarrass or coerce him.—Spencer's Hotel Company v. Anderson, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 294-note.

Where an officer proceeding from Burma to England on leave, resided a few days in Madras on the way; held, that such residence was sufficient for the purposes of S. 643, C. P. Code, 1882, to render him liable to arrest before judgment.—Everett v. Frere, 8 M. 205.

Where a person has to leave his place of residence for attendance in a criminal Court, his departure is not with a view to delay the plaintiff or avoid the process of Court or to obstruct or delay execution and an order under Or. XXXVIII, r. 1, is not justifiable.—Daulat Ram v. Kirpa Ram, 4 L. L. J. 423.

The mere fact that an appeal is pending against a decree is no reason for not enforcing execution by arrest when the execution has not been stayed.—Mehr Chand v. Ram Lal, 73 I. C. 766.

A suit was instituted against the master of a vessel for repairs done to his vessel and for hire of a dook in which the vessel had been. The master being about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, the plaintiffs applied under S. 477, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXVII), for an order that the defendant should give security for his appearance.—Held, that the case fell within S. 477, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXVII), and that the defendant should furnish security for his appearance.—Probode Chunder v. Dowe, 14 C. 695.

Court shall order him either to deposit in Court money or other property sufficient to answer the claim against him, or to furnish security for his appearance at any time when called upon while the suit is pending and until satisfaction of any decree that may be passed against him in the suit, or make such order as it thinks fit in regard to the sum which may have been paid by the defendant under the proviso to the last preceding rule. [S. 479.]

(2) Every surety for the appearance of a defendant shall bind himself, in default of such appearance, to pay any sum of money which the defendant may be ordered to pay in the suit.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 479, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and additions.

In sub-rule (1), the words "or make such order as it thinks fit in regard to the sum which may have been paid by the defendant under the proviso to the last preceding rule," have been added. The addition has been made on account of the addition of proviso to r. 1.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of the section with change of some words only; no change has been made in the meaning.

Deposit in Court.—Where after deposit in Court, other decree-holders of the defendant attach the money so deposited, or the defendant becomes an insolvent, the plaintiff on obtaining his decree is entitled to priority over the claims of the other attaching decree-holders and the Official Receiver.—Ramiah v. Gopalier, 41 M. 1053.

Security.—The object of a security bond executed under Or. XXXVIII is merely to secure the rights of judgment-creditor. The Court has no power to declare forfeiture of the bond in favour of Government. The bond should be enforced only on the application of the judgment-creditor and only to the extent of the sums found payable under the decree.—Hussein Ali v. Secretary of State, 28 I. C. 92. The amount of security to be furnished under this rule should be limited to the sum mentioned in the warrant under r. 1; Elie Goldberg v. Sarojini, 56 C. 700; A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 732.

A surety bond which provides that the liability of the surety extends to paying the amount claimed in the suit in the event of a decree being passed is not illegal.—Srinivasa v. Ghouse Sahib, 115 I. C. 244.

Payment by surety.—Money paid by a surety after decree, is liable to rateable distribution.—Ghisu Lal v. Todarmull, 26 O. W. N. 169; 70 I. C. 539 A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 19.

Notice to surety should be given when execution is sought against him for failure to produce judgment-debtor.—Although a notice is issued to a surety to produce the judgment-debtor, it is necessary when he fails to do so, to issue a further notice to him to show cause why execution of the decree should not issue against him.—Mahomed Sultan v. Nagoji, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 828 (1931) M. W. N. 963.

Extent of liability of surety.—Where a person stands surety under Or. XXXVIII, r. 2, C. P. Code for another arrested before judgment, the surety is not discharged from liability unless at the time when the judgment-debtor is produced, he can be called upon to pay up the decretal amount or suffer imprisonment in default. The mere production of the debtor with a production order does not absolve the surety.—Subrahmanya Iyer v. Abdul Rahman, 1 Bur. L. J. 196.

Appeal.—An order under this rule is appealable, see Or. XLIII, r. 1 (g).

3. (1) A surety for the appearance of defendant may at any time apply to the Court in which he became such surety to be discharged from his obligation.

Procedure on application by surety to be discharged.

(2) On such application being made, the Court shall summon the defendant to appear or, if it thinks fit, may issue a warrant for his arrest in the first instance.

(3) On the appearance of the defendant in pursuance of the summons or warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Court shall direct the surety to be discharged from his obligation, and shall call upon the defendant to find fresh security. [S. 480.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 480. C. P. Code, 1832, with some verbal changes only.

"Voluntary surrender."—A defendant who appears in Court to defend his suit is exempt from personal arrest under S. 185 of the C. P. Code. A surety for the appearance of the defendant cannot therefore claim to initiate proceedings under this rule with a view to obtain his discharge when the defendant appears in Court to defend his suit. Nor does the appearance of the defendant on that occasion amount to a voluntary surrender within the meaning of Or. XXXVIII, r. 3.—Odaya Mangalath v. Issak Mackadam, 37 M. L. J. 435.

Discharge of surety.—The adjudication of a judgment-debtor as an insolvent does not release a surety who has undertaken to produce him whenever required until the decree is satisfied from his liability to produce the debtor.—A. Sowdagar v. B. Shi, 6 R. 241: 111 I. C. 15: A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 184; and where a surety who had undertaken to produce a judgment-debtor whenever required applied under this rule to be discharged from his suretyship and produced the judgment-debtor but the decree-holder did not appear and the surety then withdrew his application for discharge, it was held that the surety was not discharged by the appearance of the judgment-debtor.—(Ibid).

Duty of the Court when surety is discharged.—After discharging the surety under this rule the Court should give some time to the defendant such a case.—Goyal v. Emperor, 116 I. C. 709: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 163.

Appeal.—An order under this rule is appealable, see Or. XLIII, r. 1 (g).

Form.—For Form of Summons to defendant, see App. F, Form No. 3.

4. Where the defendant fails to comply with any order under rule 2 or rule 3, the Court may commit him to the civil prison until the decision of the suit, or where a decree is passed against the defendant, until the decree has been satisfied :

Procedure where defendant fails to furnish security or find fresh security.

Provided that no person shall be detained in prison under this rule in any case for a longer period than six months, nor for a longer period than six weeks when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit does not exceed fifty rupees :

Provided also that no person shall be detained in prison under this rule after he has complied with such order. [S. 481.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 481, C. P. Code, with some alterations and additions.

In the concluding part of para. 1, the words "or where a decree is passed against the defendant, until the decree has been satisfied," have been substituted for the words "or if judgment be given against the defendant, until the execution of the decree," which occurred in the old section. The other changes are of a verbal character only.

Section 482, C. P. Code, 1882, which contained provisions for payment of subsistence allowance to defendants arrested under this Order, has been omitted, on account of insertion of the new S. 134, in the body of the Code, which is applicable to all persons arrested under this Code.

Failure to furnish security—A Judge of Small Cause Court in the Muffasil could direct the jailor to bring up before the Court, at the hearing of the suit, a defendant committed to custody under this rule, without having recourse to the procedure under Act XV of 1869.—Kilaram Maji v. Narayan Das, 5 B. L. R. 215: 13 W. R. 278.

Held, that imprisonment under this rule becomes, after decree, imprisonment in execution of the decree, and the imprisonment suffered after that date must consequently be taken into consideration in calculating the period of 6 months, which by S. 53 of the Code is the limit allowed for an imprisonment in execution of a decree.—Ghanasham Das v. Joharimull, 7 B. 431.

Appeal.—An order under this rule for the arrest of the defendant is appealable under S. 104 (h).—Syed Hoossein v. Chettiar Firm, 2 R. 362: 84 I. C. 270: A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 361.

5. (1) Where, at any stage of suit, the Court is satisfied, by affidavit or otherwise, that the defendant, with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him—

Where defendant may be called upon to furnish security for production of property.

(a) is about to dispose of the whole or any part of his property, or

(b) is about to remove the whole or any part of his property from the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court, the Court may direct the defendant, within a time to be fixed by it, either to furnish security, in such sum as may be specified in the order, to produce and place at the disposal of the Court, when required the said property or the value of the same, or such portion thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree, or to appear and show cause why he should not furnish security.

(2) The plaintiff shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, specify the property required to be attached and the estimated value thereof.

(3) The Court may also in the order direct the conditional attachment of the whole or any portion of the property so specified. [Ss. 483 and 484.]

COMMENTARY

Alterations.—The provisions of Ss. 483 and 484, C. P. Code, 1882, have been amalgamated in this rule with several additions, alterations and omissions.

The reason for amalgamation seems to be that it has been considered unnecessary to retain two separate sections containing almost similar provisions—Hence the provisions of the two sections have been embodied in one rule

The provisions contained in Cl. (a) of S. 483, and similar provisions contained in S. 484, have been inserted in this rule by making two separate Cls. (a) and (b); and the provisions contained in Cl. (b) of S. 483, and similar provisions contained in S. 484, which ran as follows: "(b) has quitted the jurisdiction of the Court, leaving therein property belonging to him"; and the first part of S. 484, C. P. Code, 1882, which ran as follows, "if the Court after examining the applicant and making any further investigation which it thinks fit," have been altogether omitted from the present rule.

Under the present rule it is neither necessary to examine the applicant nor to make any further investigation before taking any action under the provisions of Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 but under S. 484 of the old Code, it was necessary to examine the applicant and to make further investigation before proceeding under those sections.

The other changes introduced in this rule do not seem to be material. Those changes are merely verbal.

Scope and object of the rule.—The main object of an attachment before judgment is to enable the plaintiff to realize the amount of the decree, supposing a decree is eventually passed, from the defendant's property.—Ganu Singh v. Jangilal, 26 C. 531. An attachment before judgment is not an attachment for the enforcement of the decree but it is a step taken merely for the purpose of preventing the defendant from obstructing or delaying such enforcement when the decree subsequently passed against him in the suit is sought to be executed.—Sri Ram Manik v. Tincowri, 4 B. L. R. 63, 67, 68 (F. B.); Basiram v. Kattyayani, 38 C. 448: 15 C. W. N. 795. The scope and object of this and the following rules are merely to safeguard the plaintiff against any loss which may arise if the defendant disposes of or removes his property pending the disposal of the suit; Sri Ram Manik v. Tincowri, 4 B. L. R. 63, 68 and 74 (F. B.)

"The Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise."—In an application under this rule the Court must be satisfied that a removal of goods is being made or about to be made, with a view to evade the execution of a decree in a specific suit, though it is not necessary that the suit should be actually commenced at the time of their removal.—Ram Narain v. Levy, 2 Hyde 183.

Before proceeding under this rule to attach property, the Court should be thoroughly satisfied that the defendant is really disposing of his property with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him.—Soshee Sekhorewar v. Harogobind, 13 C. L. R. 356; Chandrika Prasad v. Hira Lal, 73 I. C. 721; Khoka Marwari v. Ramachander, 44 I. C. 240; Badri Prasad v. Chokhe Lal, 48 A. 510: 95 I. C. 829: A. I. R. 1926 All. 406: 24 A. L. J. 561. Mere vague allegations that the defendant is about to remove the whole or any part of his property from the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court are not sufficient.—Senaji Kapur Chand v. Pannaji Devi Chand, 46 B. 431: 64 I. C. 530: A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 276.

Where a mortgagee asks for attachment before judgment of the other properties of the mortgagor it is not enough for him to show that the mortgagor has allowed sales in invitum or sales for arrears of revenue in respect of other properties by gross neglect, but he must show that the mortgagor has been deliberately and fraudulently effecting sales or mortgages of his other properties with the object of defeating any personal decree that may be passed against him.—Shikharjanath v. Raja Janokinath, 36 C. W. N. 746.

Where the plaintiff applied for attachment before judgment on the ground that the defendants were trying to alienate the properties and the defendant undertook to file a petition undertaking not to alienate the properties pending the suit but did not file such a petition, the Court has no power to pass an order of attachment at once unless it was satisfied that the plaintiff had made out a sufficient case according to law in order to enable the Court to pass such an order.—Ram Khelawan v. Singhaswar Prasad, 106 I. C. 532: A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 172.

Where a mortgage decree for sale of the mortgaged property provides that if the sale-proceeds be insufficient to satisfy the decree, the decree-holder shall be at liberty to proceed against the person of the judgment-debtor the Court can order attachment of his other property under Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 even before the sale of the property mortgaged takes place if it is prima-facie satisfied that the mortgaged property is likely to prove insufficient to satisfy the decree and there is danger of the judgment-debtor disposing of his other property to evade satisfaction of the decree.—Muhammad Din v. Devi Das, 118 I. C. 446: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 402.

"Is about to dispose of the whole or any part of his property."—This rule contemplates attachment of property which the defendant is about to dispose of or remove from the jurisdiction of the Court and not of the property already disposed of.—Hari Bakhsh v. Babu Lal, 112 I. C. 295: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 772.

The Court is not restricted to attempts at alienation made after the commencement of the action. It is open to the Court to look to the conduct of the parties immediately before the suit and to examine also surrounding circumstances.—J. D. Mac Gregor v. Cawnpore Sugar Works, Ltd., 9 C. L. J. 86 n.

An order directing the issue of a notice upon the defendant to show cause why attachment should not issue before judgment and at the same time directing the defendant not to part with the property in any way is not an order in accordance with this rule.—Mahendra v. Gurudas, 23 C. L. J. 392.

It does not apply to the joint property of a partnership, of which the judgment-debtor is a member. In cases of this kind the proper order to make is the appointment of a receiver.—Damodar v. Panna Lal, 9 Bom. L. R. 540. See Hari Bakhsh v. Babu Lal, 112 I. C. 295: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 772.

Where a plaintiff has applied for leave to sue in forma pauperis an order under this rule cannot be passed before the leave is granted.—Purna v. Tara, 21 C. W. N. 870: 25 C. L. J. 159.

The plaintiff in a mortgage suit who applies for attachment of certain other properties of the defendant on the ground of insufficiency of the mortgaged security has a right to get an attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 of the C. P. Code.—Jogemaya v. Baidyanath, 46 C. 245.

Meaning of property, whether property outside the jurisdiction of the Court can be attached.—The term "property" as used in this rule is wide enough to include property of every description, moveable or immovable, whether in the actual possession of the defendant or some other person on his behalf.—Chedi Lal v. Kuarji Dicit, 17 A. 82; Bishambar Sahai v. Sukhdevi, 16 A. 186.

The Court can attach before judgment property outside the local limits of its jurisdiction and, further, it can entertain an application for removal of such attachment and remove the attachment.—M. S. M. M. Chettyar Firm v. Maung Sein, 9 R. 561: A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 279; Gajanan v. Bhaskar, 28 Bom. L. R. 380: 94 I. C. 116: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 278; Kanhayi Ram v.

Dina Nath, 93 I. C. 361 : A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 330 : 8 L. L. J. 125 : 27 P. L. R. 144. See notes under heading "Property Specified" in the next rule.

A Court constituted by Order in Council under the Foreign Jurisdiction Act is not competent to attach before judgment moveable property of a defendant British subject which is in a foreign state.—Mela Mal v. Bishen Das, 13 L. 206 : 134 I. C. 822 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 723 : 32 P. L. R. 645.

"With intent to obstruct or delay, the execution of any decree that may be passed against him."—Pending a suit against him for a money claim, the defendant agreed to sell a small portion of his considerable property. The trial Judge thereupon ordered, under Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 attachment before judgment of the defendant's property. Held, setting aside the order, that merely because the defendant attempted to sell some of his immoveable property whilst proceedings against him were pending, it did not follow that he was disposing of the property with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that might be passed in the suit; Nowroji Pudamji v. The Deccan Bank Ltd., 63 I. C. 958 : 45 B. 1256.

The fact that the defendant is running into debts or attempting to secure debts already incurred by executing a mortgage in respect of them does not necessarily indicate an intention to obstruct or delay the execution of a decree to be passed when the value of the properties far exceeds the amount of such debts as well as the claim in the suit.—Sourendranath v. Tarubala, 31 C. W. N. 432 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 354 : 101 I. C. 9.

Where groceries are being sold in the ordinary course of business and not with a view to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed, attachment before judgment is not justified.—Kanhayi Ram v. Dina Nath, 93 I. C. 361 : A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 330 : 8 L. L. J. 125 : 27 P. L. R. 144.

To justify an order of attachment before judgment, the Court must be satisfied that the defendant has a present intention of disposing of property with intent to delay or obstruct execution. The mere fact that in the past he mortgaged his property or otherwise disposed of it, would not be a sufficient ground for passing an order under r. 6.—Manmatha v. Nagendra, 94 I. C. 880 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 855.

Divorce proceedings.—An order for attachment before judgment will not be made in divorce proceedings under the Indian Divorce Act (IV of 1869).—Philips v. Philips, 37 C. 613.

Effect of attachment before judgment.—See Notes to r. 10.

"Court may direct to furnish security."—The defendants were called upon under this rule to furnish security or to show cause why security should not be furnished. The Court also directed the defendants to show cause why the property should not be attached. The defendants, in order to show cause, showed that they had mortgaged the property to the plaintiff and then showed cause; but the Sub-Judge, who was the trial Judge, said that the mortgage was an end, and that he could not cancel the mortgage. The trial Judge was wrong; the security so given was not a bar to attachment before judgment provided for under this rule and did not preclude the defendants from showing cause why no security should be furnished.—Lollikar v. Lollikar, 5 B. 613.

Section 145 applies to sureties under this rule.—Babooram v. Hurkhoo Sing, 7 W. R. 329.

The words "produce and place at the disposal of the Court" refer only to such property as is capable of being produced in Court.—Ohedi Lal v. Kuarji Dichit, 17 A. 82.

The property to be attached and its value should be specified. An application under this rule should specify the property to be attached and the estimated value thereof and security can only be taken for producing and placing at the disposal of the Court such property or the value of the same or such portion thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree.—Hari Baksh v. Babu Lal, 112 I. C. 295 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 772.

Whether Court can extend time for the furnishing of the security.—Under its general powers the Court may, if necessary, extend the time for the furnishing of the security.—Haji Mohamuddin & Co. v. The Eastern Japan Trading Co., 50 C. 215.

Extent of surety's liability after the decree of first Court is appealed against.—Where two persons stood sureties for production of property attached before judgment by the Court of first instance, the liability of the sureties is fully incurred by each of them jointly and severally as soon as the first Court passes a decree in favour of the plaintiff for a certain sum of money ; and if the defendant after filing an appeal against that decree obtains a stay order on furnishing fresh security, and subsequently the appellate Court passed a decree for a large sum against the defendant, the sureties cannot contend that the decree of the first Court having been merged in the appellate decree they were not liable at all under the bond, or that they were responsible only for so much of the decree as was adjudged against the defendant by the first Court, or that their original liability had been extinguished by reason of execution having been stayed without their assent by the appellate Court on defendant's furnishing fresh security.—Shek Suleman v. Shivram, 12 B. 71. As to the liability of the surety when the suit is dismissed and appeal is made against the order of dismissal, see rule 9 post and notes thereunder.

Death of defendant does not operate as a discharge of the surety.—Where the defendant dies, pending the suit, and the cause of action they are brought on the record, as a discharge of the surety.—
 88: 19 Bom. L. R. 112.

Whether consent decree operates as a discharge of the surety.—A surety would be bound by a compromise decree if it be consistent with the obligation which the surety had undertaken to discharge ; but where the plaintiff in a suit obtained attachment before judgment and a person stood surety under this rule and executed a security bond in Form 6 to Appendix F of the Code, and the plaintiff subsequently compromised with the defendants and agreed to receive the amount sued for in monthly instalments and a compromise decree was passed on those terms, the surety was discharged, because the compromise which was embodied in the decree was, not in the contemplation of the plaintiff and the surety when the latter became a surety.—Mahomedalli v. Lazmibai, 54 B. 118 : 124 I. C. 227 : A. I. R. 1930

Section 145 applies to sureties under this rule.—Babooram v. Hurkhoo Sing, 7 W. R. 329.

The words "produce and place at the disposal of the Court" refer only to such property as is capable of being produced in Court.—Chedi Lal v. Kuarji Dicht, 17 A. 82.

The property to be attached and its value should be specified. An application under this rule should specify the property to be attached and the estimated value thereof and security can only be taken for producing and placing at the disposal of the Court such property or the value of the same or such portion thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree.—Hari Bakhsh v. Babu Lal, 112 I. C. 295 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 772.

Whether Court can extend time for the furnishing of the security.—Under its general powers the Court may, if necessary, extend the time for the furnishing of the security.—Haji Mohamuddin & Co. v. The Eastern Japan Trading Co., 50 C. 215.

Extent of surety's liability after the decree of first Court is appealed against.—Where two persons stood sureties for production of property attached before judgment by the Court of first instance, the liability of the sureties is fully incurred by each of them jointly and severally as soon as the first Court passes a decree in favour of the plaintiff for a certain sum of money ; and if the defendant after filing an appeal against that decree obtains a stay order on furnishing fresh security, and subsequently the appellate Court passed a decree for a large sum against the defendant, the sureties cannot contend that the decrees of the first Court having been merged in the appellate decree they were not liable at all under the bond, or that they were responsible only for so much of the decree as was adjudged against the defendant by the first Court, or that their original liability had been extinguished by reason of execution having been stayed without their assent by the appellate Court on defendant's furnishing fresh security.—Shek Suleman v. Shivram, 12 B. 71. As to the liability of the surety when the suit is dismissed and appeal is made against the order of dismissal, see rule 9 post and notes thereunder.

Death of defendant does not operate as a discharge of the surety.—Where the defendant dies, pending the suit, and the cause of action survives against his legal representatives, and they are brought on the record, the death of the defendant does not operate as a discharge of the surety.—Chandulal v. Jeshangbhai, 41 B. 402 : 39 I. C. 88 : 19 Bom. L. R. 112.

Whether consent decrees operates as a discharge of the surety.—A surety would be bound by a compromise decree if it be consistent with the obligation which the surety had undertaken to discharge ; but where the plaintiff in a suit obtained attachment before judgment and a person stood surety under this rule and executed a security bond in Form 6 to Appendix F of the Code, and the plaintiff subsequently compromised with the defendants and agreed to receive the amount sued for in monthly instalments and a compromise decree was passed on those terms, the surety was discharged, because the compromise which was embodied in the decree was not in the contemplation of the plaintiff and the surety when the latter became a surety.—*Mahomedalli v. Power of Small Causes Court to attach before judgment.—See r. 13 below.

Attachment before judgment in mortgage suit.—An attachment before judgment may be granted in a suit on a mortgage.—Jogmaya v. Baidyanath, 46 C. 245 : 50 I. C. 924 ; Rani Jotirmoyee v. Raghunath, 3 P. 966 : (1925) Pat. 63 : 85 I. C. 94 : A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 291 ; Mahammad Din v. Devi Dass, 118 I. C. 446 : A. I. R. 1929 Lab. 402 ; Shridhar v. Lakshman, A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 329 : 33 Bom. L. R. 514.

Attachment before judgment during pendency of application for leave to sue in forma pauperis.—Where a plaintiff has applied for leave to sue in forma pauperis, a Court has no jurisdiction to pass an order of attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII, r. 5, C. P. Code, without determining whether the leave of the Court should be granted to the plaintiff to sue in forma pauperis.—Purna v. Tara, 21 C. W. N. 870 : 25 C. L. J. 159.

Attachment before judgment during pendency of application for appointment of guardian.—Pending the disposal of an application for the appointment of a guardian of a minor defendant in a suit, a conditional order, which simply prevents the minor's property from being alienated, cannot be said to be invalid merely because the proposed guardian subsequently comes and states that he is unwilling to act.—Batchu Perraju v. Bachu Venkataratnam, 106 I. C. 142 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1.

Clause (3).—It is not competent to a Court to make an ad interim order for attachment under Cl. (3) of r. 5 of Or. XXXVIII, C. P. Code, of a debt payable to the defendant outside its jurisdiction by a person not resident within its jurisdiction.—Surendra Nath v. Bansi Badan, 22 C. W. N. 160 : 24 C. L. J. 533.

There is nothing in the language of S. 95, C. P. Code, which excludes conditional attachments of the class contemplated by Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 (3) and in such cases Courts may award compensation; and therefore even where no final order of attachment before judgment was passed but there was only a conditional order of attachment which was withdrawn under Or. XXXVIII, r. 6(2), the Court after the disposal of the suit may pass an order for compensation to the defendant under S. 95, C. P. Code, if the suit be dismissed.

Forms.—For form of attachment before judgment with order to call for surety, see App. F, Form No. 6. For form of surety for production of property; see App. F, Form No. 6.

6. (1) Where the defendant fails to show cause why he should not furnish security, or fails to furnish the security required, within the time fixed by the Court, the Court may order that the property specified, or such portion thereof as appears sufficient to satisfy any decree which may be passed in the suit, be attached.

Attachment where cause not shown or security not furnished.

r. 6.

(2) Where the defendant shows such cause or furnishes the required security, and the property specified or any portion of it has been attached, the Court shall order the attachment to be withdrawn, or make such other order as it thinks fit. [S. 485.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 485, C. P. Code, with some additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (2) the words "or make such other order as it thinks fit" have been added after the word "withdrawn." The other changes are merely verbal.

"Property specified."—This means the property specified by the plaintiff as required by r. 5 (2). Such property may be within or beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court. The words "property within the jurisdiction of the Court" which occurred in the penultimate para. of S. 483 of the old Code, have been omitted. The reason for the omission has been clearly explained in the following report of the Special Committee. "The Committee have omitted the words "property within the jurisdiction of the Court," as they have caused a conflict of decisions; and they think, as a matter of policy, there should not be the restriction these words suggest." The conflicting rulings referred to are —Krishnasami v. Engel, 8 M. 20; Kedar Nath v. Seeva Veyana, 1 C. L. R. 336; Balaram v. Solano, 8 B. L. R. 335; Haji Jwa Nur Muhammad v. Abu Bakar, 8 B. H. C. R. 29; in all these cases it was held that the property of the defendant which is not within the jurisdiction of the Court could not be attached before judgment. Contra in Amara Veerayya v. Annamala Chetty, 31 M. 502; Ram Pertab v. Madho Rai, 7 C. W. N. 216 and In re Abraham, 6 B. H. C. R. 170, where it has been held that the property of the defendant which is not within the jurisdiction of the Court can be attached before judgment. The Legislature adopting the views expressed in the latter cases has omitted the words above referred to, and has removed the restriction which existed under the old Code, in attaching property situated beyond the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is instituted.—See Kanshiram v. Hindustan National Bank Ltd., 106 I. C. 803: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 376. See also notes under r. 48 of Or. XXI.

Conditional order of attachment before judgment.—It is absolutely necessary that the Courts in attaching property of the defendant before judgment should strictly adhere to the procedure prescribed by the Code; and therefore before an order of attachment before judgment is passed, the Courts should issue an order for attachment before judgment only if the defendant shows such cause or furnishes such security and it is satisfied that the Court can pass an order for attachment; but a mere allegation that the defendant is likely to dispose of his property is vague and indefinite and wholly insufficient to justify the proceedings being taken.—Kanshi Ram v. Hindustan National Bank Ltd., 106 I. C. 803: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 376.

A conditional order of attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII, r. 6 of the C. P. Code cannot be passed until after the defendant has either failed to show cause why he should not furnish security or has failed to furnish security. A conditional order of attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 (3) cannot be made without an accompanying order under Cl. (1) directing the defendant to furnish security or to show cause.—Abdul Karim v. Nur Mohammed, 57 I. C. 907. Order XXXVIII, r. 6, Cl. (1) contemplates an order of attachment. Order XXXVIII, r. 6, Cl. (2) contemplates a conditional attachment made in terms of r. 5, Cl. (3). Where the Court issued notices upon the defendants to show cause why an attachment before judgment should not be made and at the same time directed the defendants not to part with the properties in any way: held, that the order was not in accordance with Or. XXXVIII, r. 5; Mahendra Narain v. Gurudas, 23 C. L. J. 392.

An attachment before judgment under this rule issued by a Court at the instance of a third party, prohibited the creditor from recovering, and the debtor from paying, the debt. Held, that an order in those terms was not an order staying the institution of a suit within the meaning of S. 15 of the Limitation Act.—Beti Maharani v. Collector of Etawah, 22 I. A. 31: 17 A. 198 (P. C.) (affirming 14 A. 162).

"The Court may order.....be attached."—Where an order is passed to furnish security or to show cause why security should not be furnished within a date fixed, and no security is furnished, the Court would have first to determine judicially that there had been a failure before drawing up a writ of attachment.—Sourendra v. Tarubala, 31 C. W. N. 432: 101 I. C. 9: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 354; and an unconditional attachment can only be ordered when the defendant fails to comply with an order made under rule 5.—Jai Dev v. Jai Singh, 107 I. C. 276: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 445.

Application to vacate ex parte order for attachment before judgment not pressed.—Whether a subsequent suit for damages lies in such a case.—An application was made to vacate an ex parte order for attachment before judgment but it was not prosecuted and no such order was obtained. On the other hand monies deposited under the order of attachment were taken by the plaintiffs in execution of the decree which they obtained. In a suit brought by the defendant for damages for malicious attachment, held, that the righteousness or otherwise of the order of attachment could not be gone into in the present suit, and so long as the order itself stood, there was no cause of action for the said suit.—Satis Chandra v. Lala Munilal, 36 C. W. N. 447.

Appeal.—Under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (g), an appeal lies from an order under this rule.—Jhanday Lal v. Sarman Lal, 21 A. 291. See also Mir Ali v. Behari Lal, 21 B. 273; Haji Mohamuddin & Co. v. The Eastern Japan Trading Co., 50 C. 215: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 639.

When in response to a notice issued under r. 5, the defendant appears and shows cause and the Court accepts his contention, the order passed is under r. 6 (2) and from such an order an appeal lies under Or. XLIII, r. 1.—Chokhey Lal v. Sri Kishen, 30 A. L. J. 228: A. I. R. 1932 All. 269. Where in an application for attachment the Court ordered notice and after enquiring an order for attachment or security was not passed but the defendant gave an undertaking not to alienate certain immoveable properties and the petition was closed, it was held that there was an order under Or. XXXVIII, r. 6 and the same was appealable and no revision would lie from such an order.—Seetharama v. Sellathammal, (1929) M. W. N. 125.

Form.—For form of attachment before judgment, see App. F, Form No. 7.

7. Save as otherwise expressly provided, the attachment shall be made in the manner provided for the attachment of property in execution of a decree. [S. 486.]

Mode of making attachment.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 486, C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the words "save as otherwise expressly provided" in the beginning.

Procedure for laying attachment when the property is outside the local limits of the Court.—If the property of the defendant sought to be attached is outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of a High Court, the proper course for the Court to follow is to transmit the order for attachment before judgment to the Court in whose jurisdiction the property is situated, with a request that that Court should levy the attachment. It should not appoint the plaintiff's solicitor's clerk a special bailiff for the purpose of levying attachment.—Gajanan v. Bhaskar, 28 Bom L. R. 390 : 94 I. C. 116 : A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 278.

Presumption as to whether an attachment has been legally effected.—When there is no positive evidence that the attachment is not effected in accordance with law, the presumption that attaches to official acts as regards their regularity cannot be ignored.—O. L. Kiernander v. Benmadhab, 53 C. 598 : 134 I. C. 561 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 763.

An order prohibiting a person from withdrawing a sum of money from Court on the application of a creditor who has filed a suit against him may amount to an attachment before judgment even though it is worded in the form of an injunction.—Maung Ba Kin v. Ma Pwa Thin, 116 I. C. 473 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 94.

Attachment of debt.—A Court attaching a debt, either before judgment or in execution, has no power to enquire into the truth of the existence of the alleged debt.—Alwar v. Subramania, 61 M. L. J. 863 : 34 L. W. 906.

8. Where any claim is preferred to property attached before judgment, such claim shall be investigated in the manner hereinbefore provided for the investigation of claims to property attached in execution of a decree for the payment of money. [S. 487.]

Investigation of claim to property attached before judgment.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 487, C. P. Code, 1882, with the change of the word "where" for "if," and the addition of the words "payment of" before the word "money."

Section 281, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI. r. 61), has not been applied to claims to property attached before judgment for this rule which prescribes the manner of investigation is silent as to the result.—Turner v. Pestonji, 20 B. 403, Mir Ali v. Behari Lal, 21 B. 273.

Claim to property attached before judgment.—An assignee of a decree which is attached before judgment in another Court may prefer a claim to the latter for withdrawal of the attachment and the Court ought to withdraw it.—Sadagopachariar v. Raghunatha, 33 M. 62.

Order XXI, r. 63, C. P. Code, applies to orders on claims preferred to property attached before judgment.—Mallikharjuna v. Matiapalli, 41 M. 849 (F. B.) 35 M. L. J. 231 (41 M. 23 overruled) 6 L. W. 518; M. S. M. M. Chettyar Firm v. Maung Sein, 9 R. 561; A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 279.

Order XXXVIII, r. 8 simply provides for the manner of investigation into claims to properties sought to be attached before judgment. An order passed is not final subject to a suit as provided in Or. XXI, r. 63, and a party against whom an order under this rule is passed in a claim case is not precluded from asserting his right to the property in any other proceedings.—Ramanamma v. Bathula, 5 L. W. 704 39 I. C. 863 (37 A. 575, dissented from).

Investigation of the claim.—The question of possession is the only question to be considered by the Court in an enquiry under this rule; but where it is impossible to determine the question of possession without going into the question of title, the Court has jurisdiction to go into the question of title also.—Sunder Koer v. Janki Das, 119 I. C. 555; A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 747.

The procedure to be followed in investigation of claims under Or. XXXVIII, is the same as the procedure to be followed under Or. XXI, r. 58 and the subsequent sections of the Code. Order XXI, r. 59 of the Code indicates the scope of the enquiry under r. 58 and it limits the enquiry to this, that the claimant must show that at the date of the attachment he had some interest in or was possessed of the properties attached.—Sashi Dulal v. Nanda Lal, 48 C. L. J. 594; 115 I. C. 268; A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 162.

9. Where an order is made for attachment before judgment, the Court shall order the attachment to be withdrawn when the defendant furnishes the security required, together with security for the costs of the attachment, or when the suit is dismissed. [S. 488.]

Removal of attachment when security furnished or suit dismissed

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to S. 488, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations only. The words "is made" have been substituted for the words "is passed"; and the words "to be withdrawn" for the words "shall remove."

Termination of attachment when suit is dismissed.—The liability of the surety ceases as soon as the suit is dismissed and it is obligatory upon the Court to withdraw the attachment before judgment upon the dismissal of the suit and the reversal of the judgment of dismissal on appeal does not operate to revive the attachment which had been cancelled under this rule; and so a decree-holder is not entitled to bring the properties to sale without a fresh attachment.—Sasirama v. Meherban, 13 C. L. J. 243: 9 I. C. 918; D. Manackjee v. R. M. N. Chettyar Firm, 5 R. 492: 105 I. C. 540: A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 310; Sailesh v. Joy Chandra, 87 I. C. 756: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 1147. See Maung Ba Kin v. Ma Pwa Thin, 116 I. C. 473: A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 94. See also Secthai Ammal v. Narayana Ayyangar, 113 I. C. 63: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 976: (1928) M. W. N. 70.

But the words in the section requiring the Court to remove the attachment is not intended to be more than directory, or in other words, not so imperative as to render before judgment a perpetual attachment in the absence of an order removing the same; and so, even where an attachment before judgment was not withdrawn after the dismissal of the suit by the trial Court and the suit being subsequently decreed on appeal, the decree-holder applied for the sale of the judgment-debtor's property without fresh attachment and the property was sold under Court's order, and thereafter the judgment-debtor objected to the confirmation of the sale, it was held that there was no regularly perfected attachment which was an essential preliminary to the sale, and as such the sale was de facto void.—Ram Chand v. Pitam Mal, 10 A. 506: (1888) A. W. N. 195. In Abdul Rahman v. Aman Sharif, 45 C. 780. 22 C. W. N. 927: 44 I. C. 229, it has been held that a Court should when dismissing a suit at the same time make the order directing the attachment before judgment to be withdrawn, but even if the order is not made, on the dismissal of the suit the attachment before judgment falls to the ground, whether an appeal is filed or not. See also Chindha v. Chhaganlal, 115 I. C. 414: A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 545: 30 Bom. L. R. 1488, in which it has been held that an attachment obtained before judgment must be considered to have been withdrawn when the suit is dismissed. The Madras High Court at first dissented from this view in Namaqiri v. Muthu Vellappa, 111 I. C. 887: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 940: (1928) M. W. N. 122. In the anal. was no terms of

on the dismissal of a suit for default, no formal order had been passed withdrawing the attachment before judgment and the dismissal of the suit was subsequently set aside and the suit restored after a considerable interval, the order of attachment continued in force. But later on a Full Bench of the same High Court overruled this decision and held that no formal order withdrawing the attachment is necessary when a suit is dismissed because

A. I. R. 1930 Mad.

514: 58 M. L. J. 675 It has also been held in this case that this rule does not throw any burden upon the defendant whose property is attached, to apply to the Court to withdraw the attachment order and the duty is one thrown directly on the Court and no application from the party is necessary. See also Pindi v. U Thaw Ma, 9 R. 472: 134 I. C. 748: A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 231.

Effect of abatement of suit.—Where a suit abates and comes to an end, the attachment before judgment dies with it; and in this respect, there is no difference between dismissal of a suit and abatement of a suit; and the restoration of the suit after setting aside the abatement does not revive the attachment before judgment.—Jyotish v. Har Chandra, 47 C. L. J. 282 : 109 I. C. 164 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 234.

Attachment before judgment not to affect rights of strangers, nor bar decree-holder from applying for sale.

10. Attachment before judgment shall not affect the rights, existing prior to the attachment, of persons not parties to the suit, nor bar any person holding a decree against the defendant from applying for the sale of the property under attachment in execution of such decree. [S. 489.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to S. 489, C. P. Code.

Effect of attachment.—The effect of an attachment of a property under the C P. Code, whether made before or after decree is the same; and any alienation of property attached before judgment, is therefore void.—Raj Chunder v. Isser Chunder, Bourke, O. C. 139. See also Ganu Singh v. Jangi Lal, 26 C. 531, and Sewdut Roy v. Sree Canto, 33 C 639 : 10 C. W. N. 634, where it has been held that the object and effect of attachment before judgment is simply to safeguard the property attached so as to enable the plaintiff to realize the amount of his decree if he should get one. A plaintiff decree-holder who has attached before judgment has not by reason of such attachment or process identical thereto, any right to be treated preferentially to other judgment-creditors. There must be a realization in execution to give rights of priority.

An attachment before judgment does not by itself create any interest in the property attached.—Madhusudan v. Rash Mohan, 21 C. L. J. 614; Jogendra v. Monmota, 16 C. L. J. 566; nor does it operate as an injunction.—Munsar v. Abhova, 21 C. W. N. 1147.

By the attachment before judgment the attaching creditor does not obtain any lien or charge on the attached property and acquires no interest in the equity of redemption and therefore a fortiori he cannot hand over any such charge to the purchaser at the auction, nor can he retain in himself the right to redeem by purchasing the property himself at such auction.—O. L. Kiernander v. Benimadhab, 58 C. 598 : 134 I. C. 561 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 763.

Where a defendant furnished security by paying money into Court in obedience to an order under Or. XXXVIII, r 5, such payment will not create a charge in favour of the plaintiff.—Errikulapa v. Official Assignee of Madras, 39 M. 903. But see Janaki v. Ramaswami, 11 L. W. 5.

An attachment before judgment has no effect against the Official Assignee, who holds the property of the judgment-debtor under a vesting order of Court made before the order for attachment was passed.—Miller v. Mon Mohan, 7 C. 213 : 8 C. L. R. 213. See also Bank of Bengal v. Newton, 12 B. L. R. App. 1; Jaya Ramji v. Jadavji Natha, 1 B. H. C. R. 223, and Lata Ramjee v. Jadooji Nather, 2 B. H. C. R. 150.

When a vesting order has been made, after attachment and before decree, the title of Official Assignee takes effect, and prevents the attaching creditor from obtaining satisfaction of his decree by sale.—Sadayappa v. Ponnama, 8 M. 554; Shib Kristo v. Miller, 10 C. 150 (F. B.); 13 O. L. R. 433; Turner v. Pestonji, 20 B. 403; Krisnaswamy v. Official Assignee of Madras, 26 M. 673, where all the cases on the point have been referred to, discussed and explained. See Damodar Das v. Official Receiver, 117 I. C. 145. See also notes under S. 64.

In attachment before judgment, the Court does not interfere with the legal disposal of the property attached, beyond declaring that possession shall not be taken without its previous sanction, undertaking only that, if no subsequent order to the contrary be made, the property shall be forthcoming at the time of pronouncing of the decree to abide whatever order it shall make about it.—Java Ramji v. Jadhavji Natha, 1 B. H. C. R. 224; Lava Ramjee v. Jadooji Nather, 2 B. H. C. R. 150.

Where in a suit against one member of an undivided Hindu family, not as representing the family, there is an attachment before judgment of family property, and the defendant dies before decree is passed, the right of survivorship takes effect before the attachment becomes effectual for the purpose of execution.—Ramanayya v. Rangappayya, 17 M. 144.

Attachment before judgment not to affect rights of persons not parties to the suit—Property transferred to a stranger a few days before the actual attachment before judgment in a suit, would not be affected by the attachment, and such a transfer cannot be said to be contrary to such attachment.—Chindha v. Ohhaganlal, 115 I. C. 414; A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 545; 30 Bom. L. R. 1488. There is no reason to hold that the provision in this rule is limited to rights in rem; and where an agreement to sell had been executed before the attachment before judgment, the purchaser has a right to have the contract to sell specifically performed and under Or. XXXVIII, r. 10 that right is not affected by the attachment.—Madan v. Rebati, 23 C. L. J. 115. See Deokinandan v. Jawad Hussain, 106 I. C. 356; A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 199. But in Taraknath v. Sanat Kumar, 33 C. W. N. 805; A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 494, it has been held that a contract for sale entered into before attachment would not create any interest or charge on the property which would prevail over the attachment. In this case different views were taken by Cumming, J. and Pearson, J. as to the basis of the decision in Madan v. Rebati, noted ante.

Where a judgment-debtor's interest in the joint family property is attached before judgment, and after such attachment and decree he dies, his co-parcenary interest in the property passes by survivorship to the other members of the family, the decree-holder is not entitled to have his share sold in execution of the decree.—Subrao v. Mahadevi, 38 B. 105; 21 I. C. 330; 15 Bom. L. R. 848; Sunderlal v. Raghunandan, 3 P. 250; A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 465; 83 I. C. 413. But a contrary view was taken by the Madras High Court in Sankaralinga v. Official Receiver, 49 M. L. J. 616; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 72; 92 I. C. 504, where it was held (following 5 C. 148 (P. C.) and 26 M. L. J. 517) that an attachment before judgment has the effect of preventing the interest of the deceased judgment-debtor from passing by survivorship in a case where the judgment-debtor dies after decree; though in case the judgment-debtor dies before decree, his interest passes by survivorship to other members of the family.—Muthaya Cheltiar v. Lakshmanan, (1931) M. W. N. 1015.

Where a person to whom a decree has been mortgaged has been appointed as a Receiver in a suit upon the mortgage, his right to execute his decree as a Receiver is not affected by the fact that the decree has, subsequent to his appointment as a Receiver, been attached before judgment by another creditor of the mortgagor.—Nadirshaw v. Purshottam Das, 118 I. C. 694; A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 279; 31 Bom. L. R. 320. An attachment before judgment does not affect the rights of a mortgagee of immovables—Ebrahim Haji v. Noor Mahomed, 8 B. 494; 128 I. C. 839; A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 49.

Attachment before judgment not to bar rights of other decree holders.—Attachment before judgment does not prevent the property from being attached and sold in execution of any other decree against the same judgment-debtor—Bishesar Das v. Ambika, 37 A. 575; Sewdut v. Sree Canto, 33 C. 639, 643; 10 C. W. N. 634; Madhusudan v. Rash Mohan, 21 C. L. J. 614; Harnandan v. Pran Nath, (1921) Pat. 205; 61 I. C. 922; Fishnu Dhonddev v. Rampratap, 45 B. 360; 22 Bom. L. R. 1407; Cassim v. Abdul Kader, 91 I. C. 93; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 85.

11. Where property is under attachment by virtue of the provisions of this Order and a decree is subsequently passed in favour of the plaintiff, it shall not be necessary upon an application for execution of such decree to apply for a re-attachment of the property.

Property attached before judgment not to be re-attached in execution of decree.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations and their effect.—This rule corresponds to S. 490, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The words "a decree is subsequently passed" have been substituted for the words "a decree is given"; and the words "upon an application for execution of such decree to apply for a re-attachment of the property," have been substituted for the words, "to re-attach the property in execution of such decree," which occurred in the old section. By the addition of the words "upon an application" it has now been made clear, that after obtaining a decree, the plaintiff must apply for execution like any other creditor under S. 235, C. P. Code, 1882 [Or. XXI, r. 11 (2)]. The above amendment has been made adopting the law as laid down in 12 B. 400 and 33 C. 639; 10 C. W. N. 634, noted below.

Order XXXVIII, r. 9 applies only to what happens before decree; and what happens after the decree is dealt with by this rule.—Shrinivas v. Hari Sabaji, 53 B. 543; 119 I. C. 769; A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 321; 31 Bom. L. R. 662.

Reattachment.—It is only when a decree is subsequently given in favour of the plaintiff that reattachment in execution of that decree becomes unnecessary. But when the suit is dismissed, attachment before judgment terminates with the dismissal of the suit; and if the suit is subsequently decreed on appeal, a fresh attachment is necessary for the validity of the sale in execution of that decree.—Ram Chand v. Pitam Mal, 10 A. 506.

When property is attached before judgment, the fact that a decree is made in the plaintiff's favour does not determine the attachment which continues in force.—Heramba Nath v. Sourendra Nath, (1919) Pat. 465: 53 I. C. 20. See Shivlal v. Taniram, 113 I. C. 353: A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 444, and when there has been a decree followed by an execution petition the property attached before judgment is treated as "property attached in execution" within the meaning of Or. XXI, r. 57, and hence upon the dismissal of such an application for execution on account of the decree-holder's default in taking steps to enable the Court to proceed further with the execution, the attachment ceases.—Meyyappa Chettiar v. Chidambaram, 47 M. 483 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 494: 79 I. C. 144: 46 M. L. J. 415: 34 M. L. T. 118 (1924) M. W. N. 392. (For other cases on this point see notes to Or. XXI, r. 57, ante).

Where the decree-holder applies for execution by bringing the attached property before the Court, the attachment is not dismissed for default the attachment comes to an end under the provisions of Or. XXI, r. 57, and the decree-holder merely endeavours to execute the decree by sale of moveable property only and not of the immovable property attached, the attachment before judgment will not come to an end by the dismissal of the application for execution; and further, the decree-holder's request that he may be given a rateable share in the proceeds of the execution of a decree got by another decree-holder, does not amount to an application by the decree-holder for sale of the attached property.—Shrinivas v. Hari Sabaji, 53 B. 543: 119 I. C. 769: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 321: 31 Bom. L. R. 652.

Under S. 490 (r. 11), read with S. 273 (Or. XXI, r. 53), where the property of a judgment-debtor attached before judgment is brought into Court by stress of the attachment, and, the creditor will be entitled, without application, to a rateable share in the proceeds of the sale of such property out of the sale-proceeds of such property under S. 295, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 73).—Amara Veerayya v. Annamala Chetty, 31 M. 502: 4 M. L. T. 348.

A decree-holder who has attached before judgment is not entitled under S. 295, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 73), to a rateable distribution of the assets unless, subsequently to his decree, he has applied for execution under S. 235, C. P. Code, 1882, Or. XXI, r. 11 (2). Section 490, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 11), does not by implication confer upon a decree-holder who has attached before judgment, the right to come in under S. 295 (S. 73) and share in the distribution of the sale-proceeds of the property which he has attached.—Pallanji Sharpurji v. Jordan, 12 B. 400 (referred to in Sewdut Roy v. Sree Canto, 33 C. 639: 10 C. W. N. 634). See also Arunachellam v. Hajee Sheik Meera, 34 M. 25.

An attachment before judgment, though it gives a security, does not create any charge on the property attached, which remains that of the defendant. Nor does a decree following such attachment place ipso facto in a better position the creditor, who must apply for execution from which he is not exempted by S. 490, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 11). On such application for execution, the attachment before judgment enures and becomes an attachment in execution. But neither attachment before judgment nor process incidental thereto, such as sale of goods attached prior to decree under S. 269, C. P. Code (Or. XXI, r. 43), gives a decree-holder applying for execution any right to preferential treatment over another judgment-creditor who has also before the date of such application himself taken execution of his decree.—Sewdut Roy v. Sree Canto, 33 C. 639 : 10 C. W. N. 634.

Where another creditor attached and brought to sale the property attached before judgment, and the judgment-debtor paid the amount of the second decree and the sale was set aside, it was held that the attachment before judgment revived and the first decree-holder could bring the property to sale in execution without a fresh attachment.—Firm named Chaitanya v. Jagat Chandra, 44 C. L. J. 553 : 99 I. C. 895 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 240.

The effect of this rule is to put a person attaching before judgment in the same position as if he had attached after decree, if a decree is passed in his favour after attachment before judgment.—Ramaswamy v. Chakrapany, 17 M. L. J. 488 ; Ram Piari Lall v. Nathu Ram, 2 P. L. T. 719 : 6 P. L. J. 332.

An attachment applied for before judgment but actually effected after decree has still the force of an attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII, and the provisions of Or. XXXVIII do not lay down imperatively that the attachment should be actually effected before judgment.—Venkatasubbiah v. Venkata Seshaiya, 42 M. 1 : 48 I. C. 232 : 35 M. L. J. 337.

Objection by defendant that property attached before judgment is not saleable.—The fact that a defendant did not raise any objection under S. 60 on the ground that the property is not saleable when it was attached before judgment does not preclude him from raising that objection when application for execution of the decree is made after a decree is subsequently passed in the suit.—Basiram v. Kattyayani, 38 C. 448.

Reattachment does not operate as waiver of the attachment before judgment.—Reattachment in execution of a decree though no reattachment is necessary under this rule, is not by itself a waiver or abandonment of the attachment before judgment unless there was an express or manifest abandonment.—Shubnath v. Sheikh Saberuddin, 56 C. 416 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 465.

12. Nothing in this Order shall be deemed to authorize the plaintiff to apply for the attachment of any agricultural produce in the possession of an agriculturist, or to empower the Court to order the attachment or production of such produce. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—"The rule represents the views of the Government of India, as expressed in the former Bill."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Compensation for improper arrest or attachment.—Section 491, C. P. Code, 1882, which contained provisions for compensation for improper arrests and attachments has been relegated to the body of the Code as S. 95, and all the cases bearing on the point have been noted under that section. Besides the cases noted under S. 95, see also the following cases:—

An order under S. 483, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXVIII, r 5), where the application has been made on insufficient grounds must necessarily cause damages to the credit and reputation of the party against whom the order is made, and general and special damages are recoverable. Quere—Whether it is necessary to prove that the defendant acted maliciously in the above case.—Palani Kumarasamia v. Udayar Nadan, 32 M. 170 · 18 M. L. J. 490.

Pending a civil suit against him, the defendant was arrested before judgment, but was afterwards released. He then made a claim of Rs. 25,000 against the plaintiff as damages for his wrongful arrest and applied to include in the suit his counterclaim of Rs. 25,000. Held, that the question which the defendant desired to be tried was not one which ought to be tried by counterclaim.—Magoomal Jethanand v. Hamid Bin Ali, 10 Bom. L. R. 1002.

No appeal will lie from an order under S. 491, C. P. Code, 1882 (S 95), granting compensation to a person against whom an attachment has been obtained upon insufficient grounds.—Loknath v. Amir Singh, 28 A. 81 (Narasinga v. Govinda, 24 M. 62 followed).

Section 104 (g) of the present Code has given an appeal from an order under S. 95. The cases (28 A. 81, and 24 M. 62) have been overridden by S. 104 (g).

Small Cause
Court not to attach Immoveable property.

13. Nothing in this Order shall be deemed to empower any Court of Small Causes to make an order for the attachment of immoveable property.

COMMENTARY.

Scope.—This is a new rule added by the Amending Act I of 1926 to set at rest the previous conflicting decisions as to whether a Small Cause Court had power to make an order for the attachment of immoveable property. Its effect is retrospective because the said Act is a declaratory act and not a repealing or amending Act and a right to apply for the attachment is a processual right, and so the usual presumption that an Act is not retrospective does not apply; and an interim order of attachment before judgment by a Small Cause Court before the passing of the Act which was made subsequent to the coming into force of the Act is void.—Muthu Kr. Ayyaswami, 113 I. C. 416: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1173: 65 M. L. J. 340 notes of S. 7, C. P. Code, ante.

ORDER XXXIX.

TEMPORARY INJUNCTIONS AND INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.

TEMPORARY INJUNCTIONS.

1. Where in any suit it is proved by affidavit or otherwise—

Cases in which temporary injunction may be granted

(a) that any property in dispute in a suit is in danger of being wasted, damaged or alienated by any party to the suit, or wrongfully sold in execution of a decree, or

(b) that the defendant threatens, or intends, to remove or dispose of his property with a view to defraud his creditors, the Court may by order grant a temporary injunction to restrain such act, or make such other order for the purpose of staying and preventing the wasting, damaging, alienation, sale, removal or disposition of the property as the Court thinks fit, until the disposal of the suit or until further orders. [S. 492.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 492, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "when" in the beginning.

In clause (b), the word "intends" has been substituted for the words "is about," and the words "with a view" have been substituted for the words "with intent" which occurred in Cl. (b) of the old section.

In the last para. the words "or make such other order," have been substituted for the words "or give such other order" which occurred in the old section; and the words "until the disposal of the suit or until further orders," have been added, after the words "as the Court thinks fit."

Injunctions.—An injunction is an order or command preventing a party from doing that which he is under a legal obligation not to do. Injunctions are of two kinds, temporary and perpetual. Temporary injunctions are such as are to continue until a specified time, or until further order of the Court. They may be granted at any period of a suit and are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure (S. 94 and Or. XXXIX, rr. 1 and 2). The object of the temporary injunction is to prevent mischievous malicious waste, unlawful alienation, fraudulent removal, or disposal or wrongful seizure in execution of the property in dispute pending the trial of the suit, to preserve the property in dispute in status quo until the further hearing of the case or until further order; it is merely provisional in its nature and does not conclude a right; and it may be dissolved at any time under S. 95 and Or. XXXIX, r. 4 of the C. P. Code, on defendant's showing sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the Court against the order granting the injunction. Before granting a temporary injunction it must be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that unless the defendant is immediately restrained by an injunction, irreparable loss or damage will be caused to the plaintiff, during the pending of the suit. A perpetual injunction can only be granted by the decree made at the hearing and upon the merits of the suit: the defendant is thereby perpetually enjoined from the assertion of a right, or from the commission of an act, which would be contrary to the rights of the plaintiff. It is regulated by Ss. 55-57 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877).

Principles governing temporary injunctions.—The effect and object of an interim injunction is merely to keep matters in status quo until the final disposal of the suit, and the principles on which such injunction will issue or will be continued pending the final disposal of the suit are well settled. The person who seeks the aid of the Court in that behalf must, as a rule be able to satisfy the Court on three points: (1) that there is a serious question to be tried at the hearing, and there is a probability that he will be entitled to the relief sought by him or in other words, that he has a prima facie case to go to trial, (2) that the Court's interference is necessary to protect him from that species of injury which the Court calls irreparable before his legal right can be established on trial, and (3) that the comparative mischief or the inconvenience which is likely to arise from withholding the injunction will be greater than that which is likely to arise from granting it.—Daily Gazette Press Ltd. v. Karachi Municipality, 127 I. C. 690: A. I. R. 1930 Sind 287. This ad interim injunction is merely provisional in nature and it does not conclude or purport to conclude a right.—The Hindu Panchayat of Laki v. The Mahomedan Community of Laki, A. I. R. 1928 Sind 82: 21 S L R. 368. The granting of such an injunction under the powers conferred by this rule is a matter of discretion. True, it is a matter of judicial discretion. But if the Court which grants the injunction rightly appreciates the facts and applies to those facts the true principles, then that is a sound exercise of judicial discretion.—Per White, C. J. in Subba Naidu v. Haji Badsha, 26 M. 168.

It should not be lightly granted because it would be a serious thing if the persons in possession were restrained from making use of the property merely because a suit has been instituted with reference to the property. It is only in cases where property, which it is essential should be kept in its existing condition during the pendency of the suit, is in danger of being wasted, alienated or damaged that the Court ought to interfere so as to restrain persons who may turn out in the final event of the litigation to be the actual owners of the property from proper enjoyment and possession of it.—Begg Dunlop & Co. v. Satish Chandra, 46 C. 1001: 23 C. W. N. 677: 29 C L J. 584. See Lalbharethi v. Panchayat Akhada, 110 I. C. 621.

The general principle applicable to a case of interim injunction is that where a permanent injunction cannot be given, no prayer for a temporary injunction will be allowed.—Bishnu Prasad v. Sashi Bhusan, A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 133.

The Court, in granting an ad interim injunction, will first see that there is a bona fide contention between the parties, and then on which side, in the event of obtaining a successful result to the suit, will be the balance of inconvenience if the injunction do not issue, bearing in mind the principle of retaining immoveable property in status quo.—Gomes v. Carter, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 411; Begg Dunlop & Co. v. Satish Chandra, 46 C. 1001: 23 C. W. N. 677: 29 C. L. J. 584; Krishna Chandra v. Hem Chandra, 21 C. L. J. 462: 29 I. C. 855; Doherty v. Allman, 3 App. Cas. 709; Subba v. Haji Badsha, 26 M. 168, 175; Allah Din v. Shankar Das, 66 I. C. 599; Kanshi Ram v. Sharf Din, A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 356: 66 I. C. 161; Kenneth Arthur Hill v. Ranjan Baydhan, 75 I. C. 859.

The withdrawal of a relief as to permanent injunction would not always preclude the plaintiff from obtaining a temporary injunction of a like nature because the other reliefs asked for in the suit may be sufficient for the purpose.—Nandalal v. Kalipada, 36 C. W. N. 290: 54 C. L. J. 317.

A person who seeks the aid of the Court by way of interlocutory injunction must as a rule be able to satisfy the Court (1) that there is a serious question to be tried at the hearing and that on the facts before it there is a probability that he will be entitled to relief, (2) that the Court's interference is necessary to protect such person from that species of injury which the Court calls irreparable before his legal right can be established upon trial, and (3) that the comparative mischief or the inconvenience which is likely to issue from withholding the injunction will be greater than that which is likely to arise by granting it.

Thus when a mortgagee or attaching creditor is proceeding to sell the right title and interest of his debtor, the balance of convenience is in favour of the creditor, that no injunction should issue in such cases and all that the Court might do ex majeure cautela is to require the creditor to give an undertaking that at the time of the sale, whether it be through Court or otherwise, the intending purchasers should be informed of the pendency of the suit.—Ismail v. Tayaballi, A. I. R. 1929 Sind 182.

In a suit by sons for partition of property by their father with whom they form a joint family, a temporary injunction can be granted to the plaintiff to restrain the father from alienating the property until the Court to record a finding as to whether the plaintiffs are entitled to contest the compromise made by their father on the ground that it was not bona fide.—Ram Rakhi v. Brij Bhusan, 110 I. C. 118: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 235: 29 Punj. L. R. 50.

In a suit by sons for partition and declaration that the debts incurred by their father were illegal and immoral, if the sons applied for a temporary injunction to stop the sale threatened by some of the creditors, the chief ground for granting or refusing an injunction is whether, apart from considerations of balance of convenience and inconvenience, the plaintiffs have or have not a bona fide claim, and in deciding this, it is inevitable that the Court should pre-judge the merits of the case to a certain extent.—Vithal v. Dawoo, 127 I. C. 345: A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 106.

Where it is shewn to the satisfaction of the Court that the defendant in possession is likely to endanger or make away with any property in dispute in the suit, the Court in such a case ought to issue an injunction to the defendant to refrain from the particular act complained of, and, in case of necessity, appoint a receiver or manager of so much of the property only as is in dispute.—Joy Narain v. Shib Persad, 6 W. R. Misc. 1. See also Mun Mohinee v. Ichamoyee, 13 W. R. 60.

The power of a Court to attach property and to appoint a receiver extends only to the better management or custody of any property which is in dispute and ceases when the suit comes to an end. An injunction in respect of property cannot be maintained after a claim is dismissed or pending an appeal.—Moheooddeen v. Ahmed Hossain, 14 W. R. 384.

A Civil Court has no right to issue an injunction which would have the effect of staying proceedings in a Criminal Court.—Munni Begum v. Dooli Chand, 2 I. C. 266.

The distinction between a case in which a temporary injunction may be granted and a case in which a receiver may be appointed, is that, while in either case, it must be shown that property should be preserved from waste or alienation, in the former case it would be sufficient if it be shown that the plaintiff in the suit has a fair question to raise as to the existence of the right alleged, while, in the latter case a good prima facie case has to be made out.—Chandidat Jha v. Padmanand Singh, 22 C. 459; Gurusami v. Chinna, 10 L. W. 551: 53 I. C. 760. See also Nasarvanji Cowasji Arjani v. Shahjadi Begam, 24 Bom. L. R. 378.

No Court would grant an injunction against persons residing outside its jurisdiction and not subject to its jurisdiction in case, where there would be no means of enforcing the order. But where the acts complained of are acts taking place within the Court's jurisdiction and the party although a resident outside the Court's jurisdiction appears in the suit and submits personally to the jurisdiction of the Court (not under protest or to question the Court's jurisdiction) the Court has power to grant an injunction against him. Before granting a temporary injunction the Court must be satisfied in the first instance that the plaintiff applicant has a fair question to raise as to the existence of the rights alleged and further that the defendants have infringed or are threatening an infringement of these rights.—Maharaj Bahadur Singh v. Hukum Chand, 71 I. C. 11: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 209: 4 P. L. T. 48.

A obtained a decree against B and others (Hindus), on a title of purchase from them, for possession of an undivided moiety of a dwelling-house, to the remaining moiety of which C a (Hindu) was jointly entitled. On A's proceeding to execute his decree, C brought a suit alleging that A had obtained no title under his purchase, and praying for partition of the property and for an interim injunction to restrain A from executing his decree pending the partition suit. The Court granted the prayer.—Anant Nath v. Mackintosh, 6 B. L. R. 571.

The plaintiffs, being in possession of a dock used for docking and repairing vessels, and being threatened by the defendant with an ejectment suit, sued the defendant for specific performance of the contract and for an injunction to restrain him from ejecting them until the completion of the repairs of their two vessels. Both parties filed contradictory affidavits. Held, that, looking into the inconvenience of allowing the same matter to be litigated simultaneously in different Courts between the same parties, an interim injunction may issue although there is a contradiction on the facts.—Moran v. River Steam Navigation Company, 14 B. L. R. 352.

The plaintiffs, who were in possession of certain premises, brought a suit to restrain the defendant from selling a share in them which he had attached in execution of a decree upon a mortgage, to him of that share, and to set aside the deed of mortgage, on the ground that the mortgagors to the defendant had no interest in the property at the time of their mortgage to him (defendant). The plaintiffs applied for an ad interim injunction and the Court granted the application.—Rup Lal v. Mahima Chunder, 5 B. L. R. 254; Sree Narain v. Miller, 5 B. L. R. 254-note.

'... In a suit to restrain the defendant from using the plaintiff's alleged trade-mark, the plaintiff applied for an ad interim injunction. Held, that the plaintiff's right to an ad interim injunction depended on his making out a strong if not an overwhelming prima facie case.—Reddaway & Co. v. Schroder Smidt & Co., 8 C. W. N. 151.

The Court has to be satisfied that the applicant has a prima facie case, and further that the protection of his interest requires the issue of a temporary injunction.—Vathiar Ramanuja v. Aiyanaachariar, 23 M. L. J. 316; Kalidas v. Probal Chandra, 18 I. C. 394. See also Sant Lal v. Ishar Das, 46 P. L. R. 1919: 51 I. C. 108; Begg Dunlop & Co. v. Satish Chandra, 46 C. 1001: 23 C. W. N. 677: 29 C. L. J. 584; Sundar Singh v. Ramsarandas, 5 L. L. J. 262; Upendra Nath v. Union Drug Co. Ltd., 43 C. L. J. 405: 95 I. C. 667: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 837.

In a suit for a permanent injunction, a temporary injunction ought not to be refused where the refusal would defeat the object of the suit and amount to denial of justice to the applicant.—Gunabala v. Hemnalini, 43 I. C. 24.

The defendant company acting under a bona fide claim of right commenced already finished constructing a declaration of their under ent injunction restraining the defendant company from interfering with the same and also applied for a temporary injunction. The first Court granted the temporary injunction. The High Court set aside the order granting the temporary injunction on the ground that the balance of convenience was in favour of the defendant company being allowed to continue the mining operations, the plaintiff having stood by and allowed the defendant to spend a considerable sum of money. Principles on which temporary injunction should be granted pointed out.—Singaram Coal Syndicate v. Indra Nath, 10 C. W. N. 173.

An application for a temporary injunction by the defendants that the plaintiffs should, pending the disposal of the suit, be restrained by injunction from interfering with the defendant's right to worship in, and have free access to, the temple does not fall either within Cl. (a) or Cl. (b) of Or. XXXIX, r. 1, C. P. Code.—Karori Chand v. Maharaj Bahadur, 1 P. L. J. 560.

An injunction cannot be issued on a mere allegation that the defendant wished to realize debts by bringing actions in Court, without proof of an intention of waste, damage or alienation.—Prosunnomoyee v. Woomamoyee, 14 W. R. 409. There must be some evidence that the property in dispute in the suit is in danger of being wasted, damaged or alienated by any party to the suit.—Dhundiran v. Chandanbai, 2 B. H. C. R. 98.

In a suit for the specific performance of an agreement to grant a lease, the Court should grant a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from granting a lease to any other person for the disposal of the suit.—Promathanath v. Jagannath, 17 C. L. J. 427; 16 I. C. 359.

A Court cannot be asked to give the relief which forms the cause of action in the suit, under colour of a temporary injunction.—Brojendra Kishore v. Nawab Syed Abdur Sobhan, 21 C. L. J. 461.

An injunction although subsequently discharged when the plaintiff's case failed, must be obeyed while it lasts.—Eastern Trust Co. v. McKenzie Mann & Co., 20 C. W. N. 457 (P. C.); 35 I. C. 378.

During the pendency of an application to restore to file a suit which had been dismissed for default, a Court has no jurisdiction to pass an injunction order, as there is no suit pending then.—Ram Sarup v. Emperor, 77 I. C. 238.

Temporary injunction in suit for declaration only.—Although a hard and fast rule cannot be laid down that an ad interim injunction can never be granted in a suit for declaration, it should not be granted when in that suit there is no prayer for consequential relief or for a perpetual injunction and where the plaintiff, if successful in his suit for declaration, must bring another action for enforcing the right which he seeks to keep undisturbed by such injunction.—Shiroman v. Banta, 8 L. L. J. 239.

Temporary injunction restraining proceedings in Legislative Council—A temporary injunction can only be granted if the Court is satisfied that in all probability the declaration which is the foundation of the permanent injunction will be made when the suit comes to be tried. The Court cannot make a declaration that a Bill in the form in that moment which is sought to be introduced in the Legislative Assembly is ultra vires, because a Bill as such has no legal effect, and if the declaration is meant to refer to the Act which may be passed, the Court is invited to deal with a future and hypothetical question which may never arise. It follows that no temporary injunction can be passed in such a case.—Mulji Haridas v. Sir Ibrahim Rahimtulla, 34 Bom. L. R. 231; A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 166 (distinguishing Kumar Shankar v. H. E. A. Cotton, 85 I. C. 14; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 373, in which it has been held that proceedings of a local legislature could be held to be ultra vires on the ground that they were inconsistent with the provisions of an Act of the Government of India).

Against whom injunction can be issued.—An injunction under this rule cannot be issued to a Court but only to a party, and an injunction to a party contemplates that some property, the subject-matter of the suit, is in danger of being wasted.—Raja Ram v. Dharam Das, 2 A. L. J. 601; Sant Lal v. Ishar Das, 46 P. L. R. 1919; 51 I. C. 108; Malhiuddin v. Athar Hossain, 44 I. C. 496.

During the pendency of an application by the mother for the guardianship of her minor girl, the Court on the application of the mother, granted an injunction restraining the bridegroom's brother and some other persons who were residing out of the jurisdiction of the Court, and who were not parties to the proceeding, from marrying or allowing the marriage of the minor. Held, that S. 12 of the Guardian and Wards Act (VIII of 1890) authorizes the Court to make such order for the protection of the person of the minor; and that the mere fact that a person resides outside the jurisdiction of the Court is not per se sufficient to prevent the Court from granting an injunction.—Harendra Nath v. Brinda Rani, 2 C. W. N. 521.

Injunction against a person not a party to the suit.—No injunction can be granted under this rule against a person who is not a party to the suit.—Ram Sunder v. Ram Dheyan, (1918) P. 302: 46 I. C. 224; Ram Saran v. Maulu, 96 I. C. 540: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 284.

"Property in dispute in a suit".—The property in respect of which an injunction may be granted under Cl. (a) of this rule must be property in dispute in the suit and no other.—Joy Narain v. Shib Persad, 6 W. R. Misc. 1. No injunction can, therefore, be granted to restrain a man who is alleged to be a debtor from parting with his property.—Sunder Singh v. Ram Saran, 5 L. L. J. 262: 81 I. C. 322: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 227.

Power of Court to issue injunction where defendant resides outside jurisdiction but has property within jurisdiction.—On an application for a temporary injunction to restrain a sale in execution of a decree, pending a suit, the applicant must show a prima facie case. A Court has jurisdiction to issue an injunction upon a person residing outside its territorial limits if he has property within the jurisdiction against which the Court could proceed in the event of any contempt of the Court's authority.—Rameshwar Singh v. Gaganand Singh, 1 P. L. R. 462: 75 I. C. 381.

"Wrongfully sold in execution of a decree."—By these words, the Legislature intended that an injunction might be granted when property which the claimant claimed to be his was in danger of being sold in execution of a decree against another person or even against himself.—Abdullah Khan v. Banke Lal, 33 A. 79 (F. B.): 7 A. L. J. 932.

The Rules Committee of the High Court of Allahabad has now amended Or. XXXIX, r. 1 (a) by deleting the words "or wrongfully sold in execution of a decree" and in a case which came up to that High Court after the amendment, where one K obtained a money-decree against M, the husband of G and attached a building in execution of the decree, but G successfully objected to the attachment claiming the building as her property, and K subsequently brought a suit for declaring that the property was attachable in execution of his decree and succeeded, and in such appeal against that decision when G applied for execution it was held, that G had that remedy under the law as it stood before the said amendment by the Rules Committee, and if the previous law were in force, this was pre-eminently a case in which an injunction should have been granted but in view of the amendment no relief could be granted to her and her application for injunction should be refused, although the result would be that the house would be sold in execution, and if G succeeded in second appeal, she would be thrown into another litigation with the auction-purchaser.—Gomti v. Kanhaiya Lal, 116 I. C. 794: A. I. R. 1929 All. 115: 27 A. L. J. 214.

A prohibitory order by way of injunction can be issued so long as the property in dispute is in danger of being wrongfully sold in execution of a decree, but once it is sold no such order can be passed.—Dharam Chand v. Mitsui Bussan Kaisha & Co., 54 I. C. 928.

"With a view to defraud his creditors."—The threat or intent to remove or dispose of property with a view to defraud creditors must be proved by definite evidence.—Kalian Singh v. Musst. Shanno, 6 L. L. J. 298: 85 I. C. 68: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 718.

Temporary injunction to restrain execution of decree lawfully obtained cannot be granted.—A Court has no power to issue a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from executing a decree lawfully obtained by him.—Varada Charyulu v. Narasimha Charyulu, 92 I. C. 615: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 258.

Temporary injunction to stay execution and sale—When there is a bona fide contention to be determined between the parties and the balance of convenience is that the execution sale should be stayed, an ad interim injunction to prevent the sale should be passed.—Nawal Kishore v. Santosh, 123 I. C. 527: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 109: 31 P. L. R. 587.

After rejection of a claim, the unsuccessful party may institute a suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 of the C. P. Code and ask for a temporary injunction to stay sale, and a temporary injunction may be granted when the property which the claimant claimed to be his is in danger of being sold in execution of a decree against another person or even against himself.—Abdullah Khan v. Banke Lal, 33 A. 79 (F. B.): 7 A. L. J. 932 (10 A. 80 followed; 26 A. 311 overruled). See also Brojendra v. Rup Lal, 12 C. 515 (followed in Narendra v. Haji Abdul, 25 I. C. 9). As to principles which should govern disposal of application for temporary injunction to stay execution of decree, see Bhabhikan Singh v. Chakradhar Prasad, 9 I. C. 227.

In execution of a money-decree certain property belonging to the judgment-debtor was attached, to which a claim under Or. XXI, r. 58, C. P. Code, was successfully preferred, and thereupon the decree-holder brought a suit under r. 63 for a declaration of the judgment-debtor's right to the property and the suit was dismissed. The defendant preferred an appeal to the High Court and sought an injunction against the execution of the decree. The injunction could not be granted, inasmuch as it was impossible to say that the attached property was in danger of being "wrongfully" sold in execution of a decree within the meaning of this rule.—In the matter of Chando Bibi, 26 A. 311 (10 A. 80, overruled).

In a suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 after rejection of a claim to establish a right to the property attached and advertised for sale, an injunction to stay execution proceedings should not issue. The proper course is to apply by petition for a postponement of the sale, the attachment continuing.—Luchoomput Singh v. Secretary of State, 11 B. L. R. App. 27: 20 W. R. 11; Doorga Churn v. Ashoolosh, 24 W. R. 70.

After rejection of a claim, when the unsuccessful claimant brings a suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 to establish his title to the property, his proper course is to apply to the Court in which the suit is brought for an injunction to stay the sale; the Court executing the decree cannot stay the sale.

on his application.—Brojendra v. Rup Lall, 12 C. 515. Referred to in Amir Dulhin v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 23 C. 351, where it has been further held that a subordinate Court may issue an injunction restraining proceedings in execution pending before a superior Court.

After the dismissal of a suit brought by an unsuccessful claimant under Or. XXI, r. 63 for a declaration of his right to the property in dispute, the Court cannot grant a further injunction restraining the decree-holder from executing his decree, merely on the possibility of the appellate Court reversing its decision.—Gossain Money Puree v. Gour Pershad, 11 C. 146. But where an appeal is preferred against the order of dismissal of a suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 and the property was sold in execution of the decree but possession was not delivered to the auction-purchaser, the appellate Court can grant ad interim injunction preventing the delivery of possession.—Inayat Ullah v. Gurdit Singh, 127 I. C. 360: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 850: 31 P. L. R. 972.

There is no distinction between the cases of sale in execution of a money decree and of a mortgage-decree except this that in the latter case there is no attachment and that is the reason why the claim sections such as Or. XXI, r. 58 are not applicable to cases of a mortgage decree but Or. XXXIX, r. 1 is intended to cover cases of this kind and a temporary injunction restraining sale under an order absolute passed in a mortgage suit can be granted when a suit is brought by a person for a declaration that the property really belonged to him and not to the judgment-debtor in the mortgage suit.—Fate Mahammad Mia v. Ebrahim Biswas, 35 C. W. N. 910.

Where a person claimed to be a mortgagee of the property purchased in execution by the decree-holder himself and was proceeding in appeal to get it decided whether his mortgage was before or after the attachment and applied for stay of confirmation of sale in favour of the decree-holder and thereupon the order of stay was passed by the Court on certain condition, but the same was not communicated to the petitioner and the condition being unfulfilled the sale was confirmed, the High Court declined to refuse possession to the decree-holder at that stage but asked the decree-holder to give security for mesne profits pending the result of the appeal.—Beni v. Lachman, 133 I. C. 128: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 289: 32 P. L. R. 171.

The rule that a stay order issued by an appellate Court suspends the power and jurisdiction of the executing Court to conduct further proceedings from the moment the order of the superior Court is passed, cannot be extended to the case of an injunction passed under Or. XXXIX, r. 1.—Dharam Chand v. Mitsui Bussan Kaisha & Co., 54 I. C. 928.

Where an ancestral property was attached in execution of a decree, and a son of the judgment-debtor instituted a suit to establish his right to the property, and made an application for a temporary injunction directing stay of sale pending the decision of the suit; held that what was advertised for sale was the rights and interest of the judgment-debtor in the property, and it could not be said that the property being "wrongfully sold in execution of a decree," the injunction prayed for could not be granted. Order granting an injunction without notice to the opposite party is irregular.—Amalak Ram v. Sahib Singh, 7 A. 550.

In a case in which the defendants have submitted to the jurisdiction of a Court by entering appearance, the Court has jurisdiction to grant an injunction restraining the defendants from executing in another Court, a decree which they had obtained against the plaintiff; Kumar Ganga Singh v. Pirthi Chand, 1 P. 356. See also Maharaj Bahadur Singh v. Hukum Chand, 71 I. C. 11 : A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 209 : 4 P. L. T. 48.

Stay of sale in execution of a decree of revenue Court.—The term "decree" as used in the Code of Civil Procedure does not include the decree of a Court of Revenue. Held, therefore, that an application under S. 492, C. P. Code, 1882, for stay of a sale in execution of a decree of a Revenue Court under S. 93 of Act XII of 1881, cannot be entertained by a Civil Court.—Onkar Singh v. Bhup Singh, 16 A. 496.

The Revenue Courts are Courts of civil jurisdiction within the meaning of the C. P. Code, in that their decrees, when transferred in the regular course, are to be treated in all respects, as if they were passed by a Court of civil jurisdiction. Held, therefore, that an application under this section for stay of a sale in execution of a decree of a Revenue Court can be entertained by a Civil Court.—Ram Lochan v. Beni Prasad, 36 C. 252 : 9 C. L. J. 125 : 13 C. W. N. 791 (16 A. 496 dissented from; 9 C. 295 (P. C.) : 5 A. 406 referred to); followed in Jit Lal v. Raja Kamaleswari, 16 C. L. J. 555.

Injunction to restrain marriage.—Under S. 26 of the Indian Contract Act (Act X of 1872) every agreement in restraint of the marriage of a person who is of age is void and consequently no injunction can be granted in respect of the breach of such agreement.

This rule is not applicable to a suit for specific performance of contract to give in marriage, and the Court will not grant an interim injunction to restrain the defendant from making another marriage with a third person.—Gunput Narain v. Rajun Kooer, 24 W. R. 207 : 1 C. 74. See, however, Nanabhai Ganpatrav v. Janardhan, 12 B. 110; Venkata Charyulu v. Ranga Charyulu, 14 M. 316; Harendra Nath v. Brinda Rani, 2 C. W. N. 521; and Kanahi Ram v. Biddya Ram, 1 A. 549.

Power of High Court to restrain a party from proceeding with a suit pending in another Court—It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that the powers of High Courts to grant a temporary injunction are not confined to the terms of rr. 1 and 2 of this Order, and that these Courts have inherent power, under their general equity jurisdiction, to grant such an injunction independently of the provisions of the Code, and, further, that such power can be exercised by a single Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court.—Mungle Chand v. Gopal Ram, 34 C. 101; Rash Behary v. Bhowani, 34 C. 97; Mul Chand v. Gill & Co., 44 B. 283 : 53 I. C. 518 : 21 Bom. L. R. 963. It has been held by the Bombay High Court that it has inherent power to restrain by injunction a defendant in a suit filed in the High Court from proceeding, in the Small Cause Court at Bombay, with a suit filed by the defendant referring to the same matter to which the High Court suit relates; Uderam v. Hyderally, 33 B. 469 (Jairamdas v. Zamonia, 27 B. 357 distinguished). Where pending the disposal of an appeal by the High Court the party had filed a suit in the lower Court and thereupon an application was made to the High Court for an injunction restraining the party from proceeding with the suit till the disposal of the appeal, the High Court could grant the injunction if the balance of convenience was in favour of such a course.—Muhamada v. Jhanda, 129 I. C. 889: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 65: 31 P. L. R. 550. As to the question whether the power of a Chartered High Court to restrain a party from proceeding with a suit pending in another Court is confined to suits pending in a Court subordinate thereto, or whether it extends to suits pending in any Court in British India, it has been held by the Bombay High Court (per Macleod, J.) that though the Court has power to restrain a party from proceeding with a suit pending in a Court subordinate to it, it has no such power in respect of a suit pending in a Court not subordinate to it.—Narayan v. Jankibai, 39 B. 604 (F. B.).

The plaintiff, in a suit instituted in the High Court for money due on a balance of account, sought for an injunction to restrain the defendants from proceeding with a suit previously instituted in the Court of the Sub-Judge at Bareilly, in which the present defendants sought to recover from the present plaintiff a sum of money as balance due to themselves on the same account. Held, that the High Court was competent to grant the injunction. The powers of the High Court to grant temporary injunctions are not confined to the terms of Ss. 492 and 493, C. P. Code, 1882.—Mungle Chand v. Gopal Ram, 34 C. 101. But see Vulcan Iron Works v. Bishumbhur Prosad, 36 C. 233: 13 C. W. N. 346, where it has been held (dissenting from 34 C. 101) that the High Court can only restrain a person from proceeding with a suit in a foreign Court if the person sought to be restrained is within the jurisdiction of the Court.

The High Court is not bound by the Code in issuing injunctions in appropriate cases. Thus the High Court can restrain a decree-holder from executing his ex parte decree, pending an appeal from an order refusing to set such ex parte decree aside.—Govindarajulu v. Imperial Bank of India, 136 I. C. 346: A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 180.

The powers of the High Court in the matter of issuing injunctions on parties to an appeal pending before it are not circumscribed by the provisions of Or. XXXIX, r. 1. Any order may be made which the ends of justice or expediency may require.—Nandalal v. Kalipada, 36 C. W. N. 290: 64 C. L. J. 317: A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 353.

Unless a party can satisfy the Court that no advantage can be gained by the defendant in proceeding with the action in which he is plaintiff in another part of the King's Dominions, the Court should not stop him from proceeding with the only proceedings which he as plaintiff can control, where therefore, the defendant had filed a suit earlier in point of time against plaintiffs in the Supreme Court of Ipoh and in the subsequent suit in British India, the defendant did not file a written statement and there was nothing to show that the foreign suit was vexatious or oppressive as against the plaintiff, it was held that assuming that the subordinate Court in British India had the power to restrain the defendant from prosecuting the foreign suit, it was not a proper case in which such an order should be passed.—Periakaruppan v. Ramaswami, 109 I. C. 291: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 491. See also Naik v. Balwant, 29 Bom. L. R. 138: 100 I. C. 951: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 135.

The High Court has no power to stay a partition proceeding in a Revenue Court which is not subordinate to the High Court and an injunction also cannot be issued for that purpose.—Matloob Hasan v. Kalawati, 53 A. 180: 132 I. C. 42: 28 A. L. J. 1469.

Effect of a temporary injunction.—The effect of a temporary injunction granted under Or. XXXIX, r. 1 is not to make a subsequent alienation of the property in question illegal and void.—Balbhaddar v. Balia, 127 I. C. 577: A. I. R. 1930 All. 387; Darbari Ram v. Ghulam Farid, 128 I. C. 304: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 858. Hence if a party, against whom a temporary injunction is granted restraining him from alienating the property, sells or mortgages the property pending the injunction, the sale or mortgage is not void. The only penalty that he incurs by alienating the property in spite of the injunction is that prescribed by r. 2 (3), namely, that his other property may be attached and sold for awarding, out of the sale-proceeds, compensation to the party on whose application the injunction was granted, and he may also be detained in the civil prison. But alienation after attachment has a different effect. When a property is attached, any private alienation of the property contrary to the attachment is void under S. 64.—Delhi and London Bank v. Ram Narain, 9 A. 497; Manohar v. Ram Autor, 25 A. 431; Beli Ram v. Ram Lal, 6 L. 380: 90 I. C. 937: A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 644. See Hakim Singh v. Wasan Singh, 108 I. C. 395: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 639, in which it has been held that an alienation effected in violation of an injunction is not void though the person who alienates it may be liable for action in contempt of Court or damages.

Appeal.—An order refusing or granting an injunction is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (r), C. P. Code.—Lachmi Narain v. Ram Charan, 35 A. 425: 11 A. L. J. 613; Ottapurakkal v. Alabi Mashur, 27 I. C. 131. An order refusing temporary injunction is appealable.—Harilal v. Prayag Ram, 17 C. W. N. 996: 18 C. L. J. 39. But where the lower Court in granting or refusing to grant an ad interim injunction, has exercised its discretion judicially, the mere fact that the Judge of the appellate Court might have come to a different conclusion is not sufficient ground for interference.—Daily Gazette Press Ltd. v. Karachi Municipality, 127 I. C. 690: A. I. R. 1930 Sind 287.

Appellate Court's power to stay interim injunction.—An appellate Court can order stay of an interim injunction ex parte provided it thinks that a fit case has been made out.—Syed Ahmad v. Barlow, A. I. R. 1932 All. 223.

Revision.—No appeal lies to the High Court from an order made by the lower appellate Court under this rule; see S. 104 (2). But where a temporary injunction was refused by the lower appellate Court, the Calcutta High Court made an order granting an injunction in the exercise of powers conferred upon High Courts by S. 15 of the Charter Act.—Israil v. Shamser, 41 C. 436; Hemanta v. Baranagore Jute Factory Co., 19 C. W. N. 442: 24 I. C. 318.

This rule does not apply to probate proceedings.—An application by a caveator in probate proceedings, for a temporary injunction, cannot be granted, as a probate proceeding is not a suit in which any property is in dispute.—Nirod v. Chamatkarini, 19 C. W. N. 205: 27 I. C. 617.

Valuation and court-fee in suits for injunction.—In a suit for injunction the Court has no power to increase the valuation of the suit. Section Cl. (iv) (d) of the Court-Fees Act requires that, in a suit for injunction, the plaintiff shall state the amount at which he values the relief sought; the Court has, therefore, no power to increase the valuation and to return the plaintiff's writ of jurisdiction.—Guruvajamma v. Venkatakrishnama, 24 M. 34.

In a suit for injunction and damages on the allegation of possession the Court has no power to ascertain the value of the property for the purpose of jurisdiction but it should accept the value of the relief stated in the plaint both for the purposes of court-fee and jurisdiction.—Hari Sankar v. Ka Kumar, 32 C. 734; 9 C. W. N. 690 (17 B. 56, 18 B. 207, 2 A. 320, 15 A. 376 and 20 M. 289 referred to; 8 C. 757 and 17 C. 680 distinguished). Followed in Vachhani v. Vachhani, 33 B. 307.

As to court-fee, see also Manmatha Nath v. Rohilli Mohi, 27 A. 406.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES GOVERNING GRANT OF INJUNCTIONS (TEMPORARY OR PERPETUAL)—SPECIAL CASES.

(a) Alienation by Hindu widow—Prevention of waste.—A creditor of a Hindu widow obtained a decree against her, whereupon the next reversioner brought a suit to set aside the decree on the ground of fraud and collusion. This suit was compromised on the reversioner's surrendering up his reversionary interest to the widow for a consideration. Subsequently the more remote reversioners sued to set aside the decree on the compromise as fraudulent and collusive, and prayed for an ad interim injunction which was granted.—Gopee Nath v. Kally Doss, 10 C. 225.

If there is any reasonable apprehension of waste by a Hindu widow sufficient provision should be made in the final decree for partition for the prevention of such waste, to safeguard the interests of the reversioners; a separate suit for injunction is not necessary.—Durganath v. Chintamani, 31 C. 214; 8 C. W. N. 11 (6 M. I. A. 433 distinguished and 2 C. 262 and 9 C. 580 referred to).

A suit by a heir presumptive against a life tenant to restrain waste by the life-tenant and for an injunction and appointment of receiver is maintainable. (Question of court-fee).—Manmatha Nath v. Rohilli Mohini, 27 A. 406 (8 I. A. 14; 6 C. 764 (P. C.) followed; 10 M. 90 referred to; and 8 C. 12 dissented from).

(b) Breach of agreement.—Where more than 20 artisans signed an agreement, whereby they constituted themselves an association for the purpose of enhancing the price of their work by bringing all the business of the trade into one shop, and dividing the prices amongst the members according to their skill, but which association was not registered as a company under Act X of 1866, held, that the Court could not to grant an injunction to restrain the breach of such agreement.—Bhikaji Sabaji v. Bapu Saju, 1 B. 550.

A Hindu widow in order to settle disputes with the relatives of her husband entered into an agreement with them that she would not adopt a son. Subsequently her husband's relatives brought a suit against her alleging that the widow, in violation of the agreement was about to adopt a son, and praying for an interim injunction to restrain the adoption, but the Court refused to grant the interim injunction.—Assur Purshotam v. Ratanbai, 13 B. 56.

The granting of an injunction under this rule, for breach of contract, is a matter of judicial discretion. Quere—Whether the principles which govern the grant of a temporary injunction under the O. P. Code are the same as those which are laid down in the Specific Relief Act to the grant of a perpetual injunction.—Subba Naidu v. Haji Badsha, 26 M. 168.

The defendant signed an agreement in England with a Railway Company contracting to serve the company for 4 years in India under a penalty of £ 100. The defendant having accordingly served it for two years, left its service for that of another employer, alleging ill-treatment. Held, that the plaintiff company was entitled to an injunction restraining the defendant from serving others on the terms that the plaintiff company should consent to retain him in its employ.—Madras Railway Company v. Rust, 14 M. 18

Agreement not to work for a rival tradesman—Agreement made when under criminal charge—Suit for injunction to restrain the defendant from working for a rival tradesman. Held, that in the exercise of the discretion given to the Court by S. 22 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), the injunction should be refused, but the Court should award pecuniary compensation to plaintiff as his proper remedy.—Callianji Harjivan v. Narsi Tricum, 19 B. 764.

Injunction granted to restrain a partner from excluding his co-partner from the partnership business, and from doing any act to prevent its being carried on according to the articles.—Verdachala v. Ramasvami, 1 M. H. C. R. 341.

Where a charter-party has been actually completed, the Court will, by injunction, prevent an employment of the ship inconsistent with the terms of the charter-party; but where there is only an agreement for a charter-party, no such injunction will be granted.—Abdul Allarakhi v. Abdul Bacha, 6 B. 5.

(c) Collection of rents—Injunction to restrain the defendant from collecting without any title, from the ryots of the plaintiff's estate, two annas rent over and above the full sixteen annas in the rupee, may be granted without proof of any actual damage.—Nadir Jumma v. Ram Chunder, W. R. (1864) 362.

(d) Digging well.—The digging of a well by a talukdar intermediate between the zemindar and the ryots, is not an act of waste to restrain which the Court will issue an injunction.—Magneeram v. Gunesh Dutt, W. R. (1864) 275.

(e) Digging close to a neighbour's land.—Where an act threatening danger to a person's land is such that injury will inevitably follow, a Court may grant a perpetual injunction restraining the continuance of the act.—Dindu Bashini v. Jahnabi Chowdhurani, 24 C. 260. See, however, Moho La! v. Bai Jirkore, 28 B. 472, where it has been held that a person has a right to build on his land and for the purpose of building to make ditches for foundations.

(f) Stay of execution of decree.—An injunction restraining a decree-holder from executing a decree against the person applying for the injunction was granted, on the ground that the proceedings by which the decree was obtained against him were altogether illegal.—Dhuronidhur v. Agra Bank, 5 C. 86 : 4 C. L. R. 434 (reversing in review 4 C. 380 ; 3 C. L. R. 283 ; 3 C. L. R. 421). See also Amir Dulhin alias Muhamdiyan v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 23 C. 351 ; and Appu v. Raman, 14 M. 425. But see Venkatesa Tawker v. Ramasami, 18 M. 338, where the suit for injunction to restrain execution of decree was dismissed on the ground that the injunction sought for was not necessary to prevent a multiplicity of proceedings within the meaning of S. 56, Cl. (a) of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877).

(g) Injury or obstruction to rights to property.—A tank for the use of the public having been dug by the ancestor of the plaintiffs, they claimed its exclusive conservancy and repairs, and prayed for an injunction prohibiting others from interfering with the general conservancy of the tank. Held, that whether or not they were entitled to exclude others from interfering with the repairs of the tank they were not entitled to an injunction prohibiting others from interfering with the general conservancy of the tank.—Muttaya v. Sivaraman, 6 M. 229 (affirmed by the Privy Council in 12 M. 241).

The plaintiff's ancestor built a temple and a ghat close to it, to which persons on the point of death were removed and certain ceremonies were performed. The defendants used the ghat for landing goods. Held, that if, when the plaintiff's ancestor erected the buildings he intended to grant to the Hindu community merely a right of easement over the property, and not to transfer the ownership to the community ; the plaintiff was entitled to maintain a suit to restrain defendants from using the ghat for trading purposes.—Jaggamon Dasi v. Nilmoni Ghosal, 9 C. 75 : 11 C. L. R. 502.

Plaintiff's beams overhung defendant's soil and defendant erected a building which overhung those beams. Held, that the defendant being the owner of the soil was entitled prima facie to all above it and the diminution in his rights by reason of the beams did not extend beyond the protrusion of the beams themselves.—Rancho Shamji v. Abdulabhai, 28 B. 423.

Where a man erects a building overhanging the land of another, he commits a trespass for which an action will lie against him and he will by prescription acquire a right to the space occupied by such projection and the right to maintain it in its position. A cornice overhanging a neighbour's land cannot be removed by such neighbour, if it has been in existence for more than 12 years.—Rathinavelu v. Kolandavelu, 29 M. 511 (3 B. 174, followed).

If a stranger builds on the land of another believing it to be his own, the owner is entitled to recover the land and the party building on the land of another is allowed to remove the building, unless there are special circumstances amounting to a standing by so as to induce the belief that the owner intended to forego his right or to an acquiescence in his building on the land.—Govind Venkaji v. Sadashiv, 17 B. 771 ; Premji v. Haji Cassum, 20 B. 298.

Where the plaintiff's eaves had projected over the defendant's roof, which rested on a wall common between the parties for more than 30 years, and the plaintiff had thus acquired a right to have the water carried from his roof on to the defendant's roof, and where the defendant raised the common wall and removed the plaintiff's eaves, held, that the plaintiff was entitled to relief either by damages or by injunction.—Nasarbhai Ahmedbhai v. Badruddin, 16 B. 533.

(h) Erection of building.—Building erected after suit filed but before hearing—At the hearing the Court may grant mandatory injunction directing removal of the building, although only preventive relief was prayed for in the plaint.—Magan Lal v. Chhotalal, 26 B. 136. See, however, Sri Rangachariar v. Rungasami, 32 M. 291.

(i) Intrusion upon office.—A Vatandar Joshi of a village has the right to recover damages from a person who has intruded upon his office and received fees properly payable to him; but the Court will not grant any injunction against such intruder which would have the effect of forcing upon any section of the community the services of a priest whom they are unwilling to recognize, and forbidding them to employ a priest whose ministrations they desire.—Raja Valad Shivapa v. Krishnabhat, 3 B. 232.

The plaintiff, who had bought a share in a Kulkarnivatan and Joshi Vritti was obstructed by the defendants in the performance of his duties. Held, that he was entitled to an injunction against the defendants.—Moro Mohadev v. Anant Bhimaji, 21 B. 821.

Plaintiffs sued for an injunction to prevent defendant from interfering with their right to present to certain persons at a certain festival in a certain temple a crown and water. The lower Court found that the plaintiffs possessed the right claimed and granted the injunction. Held, that the injunction was properly granted.—Srinivasa v. Trivangada, 11 M. 460.

The trustees of a temple may be restrained by injunction from making unjustifiable changes which would affect the character of the temple as a religious institution—Introducing a new metal idol in addition to the existing stone idol —Krishnasami v. Samaram, 30 M. 158.

(j) Obstruction to light and air.—When the Court is asked to interfere by injunction to restrain the obstruction of light and air to a dominant tenement, the question to be determined is—Is the obstruction such as seriously to interfere with the comfort or enjoyment of the owners of the dominant tenement, or such as to cause material injury to it, an injury which cannot be completely compensated by damages? The Court will in such cases interfere as well by mandatory as by preventive injunction, provided that in the circumstances of the case there is nothing inequitable in putting in force the former remedy.—Ratanji Hormasji v. Edalji Hormasji, 8 B. H. C. R. 181.

The right of the owner of the dominant tenement is a right to the reception of light and air in a lateral direction; but to constitute an actionable obstruction the same must amount to a nuisance. The question that has to be decided is not how much light is left in spite of the obstruction, but whether there has been such a diminution of light as to constitute an actionable nuisance.—Anath Nath v. Galstaun, 35 C. 661: 12 C. W. N. 519.

To constitute an actionable obstruction to light and air, it is not enough that the light is less than before and the plaintiff enjoys less flow of air. The test is whether the obstruction complained of is a nuisance. An injunction was granted where it was found that a wall built by the defendant on his own land would cause such privation of light and impede the flow of air to such an extent as would prevent the plaintiff's carrying on their business as beneficially as before.—Anderson v. Hardut Roy, 9 C. W. N. 543.

To establish that the plaintiffs have suffered substantial damage to their rights to light and air they must show material diminution in the value of their heritage or material interference with their physical comfort. Meaning of the expression "physical comfort" explained.—Framji Shapurji v. Framji Shapurji, 30 B. 319.

In cases of obstruction to light and air, where the plaintiff prays for a perpetual injunction: Held, that, under S. 51 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), an injunction is not be given when the remedy in damages is considered adequate.—Dhunjibhoy v. Lisboa, 13 B. 252; Ghansham Nilkant v. Moroba Pam Chandra, 18 B. 474; Sultan Nawazjung v. Rustomji Nanabhoy, 20 B. 704; Boyson v. Deane, 23 M. 251; Kallian Das v. Tulsi Das, 23 B. 786; Delhi and London Bank v. Hem Lall, 14 C. 839; and Chota Lal v. Lallubhai, 23 B. 157. But where the obstruction to light and air is of such a nature as to render the house quite unfit for the ordinary purposes of habitation or business, and renders it practically useless, an injunction and not merely damages is the appropriate remedy.—Kadarbhai v. Rahimbhai, 13 B. 674; Delhi and London Bank v. Hem Lall, 14 C. 839; Yaro v. Sanaullah, 19 A. 259 and Jethalal v. Lalbhai, 28 B. 298.

Re-erection of his house by the defendant, notwithstanding notice from the plaintiff, so as to darken some of the principal rooms of the plaintiff's house, making them unfit for occupation during the day without artificial light, is an injury which cannot be redressed by award of damages, and against which the Court will grant relief by issuing a mandatory injunction directing the defendant to pull down so much of the house as is necessary, to stop the injury.—Jamna Das v. Atmaram, 2 B. 133.

The plaintiff had two windows in his house. He rebuilt his house and opened new windows, which were of nearly the same size, but were little higher than the old ones. Subsequently the defendant built his house and blocked up these two new windows. The plaintiff sued for injunction. Held, that where the position of the old windows has been changed, the old easement is lost and the easement respecting the new windows can be acquired only by enjoying it for the required length of time.—Bai Hariganga v. Tricamlal, 26 B. 374.

There are at least two necessary ingredients for a quia timet action. There must be, if no actual damage is proved, the proof of imminent danger, and there must also be proof that the apprehended damage will, if it comes, be very substantial or irreparable.—Gangabai v. Purshotam, 32 B. 146: 9 B. L. R. 912.

Where the defendant without leave or license took possession of the plaintiff's window as completely as if he had blocked it up altogether, held, that no precedent warranted the substitution of damages for an injunction in such a case against the plaintiff's will.—Nandkishore v. Bhagubhai, 8 B. 95. See also Kunni Lal v. Kundan Bibi, 29 A. 571 : 4 A. L. J. 477.

Where the plaintiff and the defendant, being owners respectively of two adjoining houses and the verandahs immediately in front of those houses, agreed that they should keep the verandahs open, and not build upon them or divide them by a wall, held, that the mere fact that the defendant, when rebuilding his house, built its new front wall in advance of the plaintiff's, thus encroaching on the defendant's own verandah in breach of the agreement, is not sufficient in itself to justify the Court in granting a mandatory injunction ordering its removal.—Ranchhod Jamna Das v. Lallu Haribhai, 10 B. H. C. R. 95.

(k) Effect of delay and acquiescence.—Where a plaintiff has not brought his suit or applied for an injunction at the earliest opportunity, but has waited till the building has been completed, and then asks the Court for its removal, a mandatory injunction will not generally be granted. Mere notice not to continue building so as to obstruct a plaintiff's rights, is not, when not followed by legal proceedings, a sufficiently special circumstance for granting such relief—Benode Coomaree v. Soudaminy, 16 C. 252 (2 B. 133 referred to). Followed in Ulagappan v. Ohidambaran, 29 M. 497 and in Haji Syed Muhammad v. Gulab Rai, 20 A. 325. See, however, Provabutti v. Mohendra Lal 7 C. 453, where a mandatory injunction was granted, although the plaintiff brought his suit two days after completion of the building; and also Maganlal v. Chottalal, 26 B. 136.

Improper delay in applying for a temporary injunction stands in the way of its being granted.—Yoshimi Boshaka v. Firm of Dwarkadas, 139 I. C. 490 : 26 S. L. R. 335.

(l) Obstruction to a view of a shop.—The defendants built a shed and put screens on their own land in front of the plaintiff's shop, the view to which was obstructed on account of these constructions. Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to have the construction removed on the ground that the view to his shop was interrupted from the neighbouring road.—Gopi Nath v. Munno, 29 A. 22 : 3 A. L. J. 637.

(m) Obstruction to watercourse or right to flow of water.—In cases of obstruction of right to an uninterrupted flow of water, it must appear from the circumstances in evidence in each case that the interference or obstruction complained of is not a trivial, but a substantial injury in order to warrant relief by way of injunction.—Ponnusawmi Tevar v. Collector of Madura, 5 M. H. C. R. 6; Kristna Ayyan v. Venkatachella, 7 M. H. C. R. 60.

Alteration of watercourse by opening a new channel.—Where the new channel effected a material alteration in the mode of passage of the water from the defendant's land into that of plaintiff, the plaintiff was entitled to the injunction.—Raja of Venkatagiri v. Rajah Muddukrishna, 29 M. 15. See Rama v. Subramania, 31 M. 171 : 18 M. L. J. 178, where injunction was granted for blocking up the entrance of a channel; and Belbhadar Persad

v. Barkat Ali, 11 C. W. N. 85, where an injunction was granted restraining the defendant from interfering with the natural flow of water.

In a suit for an injunction to compel defendant to reduce to its original dimensions an embankment which he had recently raised to a greater height, on the ground that the effect of defendant's act had been, and would be, to injure plaintiff's land by preventing the passage of water which used to overflow that land; held, that the plaintiff was bound to establish an injury caused by infraction of some right which plaintiff possessed or by the omission of something which defendant was legally bound to do.—Prankisto v. Horo Chunder, 16 W. R. 435. See also Venkata Chalam v. Zamindar of Sivaganga, 27 M 409 (18 M 158 distinguished).

Obstruction to plaintiff's right to have the water carried from his roof on to the defendant's roof—See Nasarbhai Ahmedbhai v. Badruddin, 16 B 533.

(n) Obstruction to right of way.—The defendants closed a gateway leading across a level-crossing of their railway over which there was a public right of way. The plaintiff alleged that by the closing of this gateway access to his bungalow during the monsoon was completely stopped, and he sued to have the gateway re-opened. Held, that the inconvenience caused to the plaintiff was real and substantial; that the plaintiff was entitled to the use of the right of way in question, and under the circumstances to an injunction against its obstruction.—G. I. P. Railway Company v. Nowroji, 10 B. 390.

Right of way—Ownership of soil.—Suit for trespass, injunction and to close doors. Held, that the plaintiffs had not such a property in the soil of the lane as would entitle them to prevent the defendant from making new doors on the lane, and to restrain him from using the doors already made; they had only a right of way, but an injunction was granted, restraining the defendant from using his doorways for the purpose of cleaning his privies, or in any other manner so as to obstruct the free use by the plaintiffs of the lane.—Madan Mohan v. Chandra Kumar, 9 B. L. R. 329; 18 W. R. 379.

(o) Right of co-sharer to deal with joint property.—Before a Court will, in case of co-sharers, make an order directing that a portion of the joint property, alleged to have been dealt with by one of the co-sharers without the consent of others, should be restored to its former condition (as, for instance, where a tank has been excavated), a plaintiff must show that he has sustained, by the act he complains of, some injury which materially affects his position.—Joy Chunder v. Bipro Churn, 14 C. 336 (approved and followed in Atarjan Bibee v. Sheikh Ashak, 4 C. W. N. 783 and in Ananda Chundra v. Parbati, 4 C. L. J. 198). See also Shamnugger Jute Factory v. Ram Narain, 14 C. 189; Watson & Co. v. Ram Chund Dutt, 17 I. A. 110; 18 C. 10 (P. C.) (reversing 15 C. 214); Lachmeswar Singh v. Manowar Hossein, 19 I. A. 48; 19 C. 253 (P. C.); and Paras Ram v. Sherjit, 9 A. 661. In all these cases it has been laid down that there is no such broad proposition as that one co-owner is entitled to an injunction restraining another co-owner from exceeding his rights, absolutely and without reference to the amount of damages to be sustained by the one side or the other from the granting or withholding of the injunction. See, however,

r. 1.

Shadi v. Anup Singh, 12 A. 436 (F. B.); and Najju Khan v. Imtiaz-uddin, 18 A. 115, where it has been held that one of several joint owners is not entitled to erect a building upon the joint property without the consent of the other joint-owners, notwithstanding that the erection of such building may cause no direct loss to the other joint-owners. In Macneil v. Debendra, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 293, it has been held that an order passed against a co-sharer restraining him from building upon a portion of the joint property must be passed with great caution.

In disputes between members of a joint Hindu family in respect of joint property, the exercise of a Court's discretion to grant relief by injunction should be confined to acts of waste, illegitimate use of the family property, or acts amounting to ouster.—Anant Ramrav v. Gopal Balvant, 19 B. 269. Followed in Soshi Bhusan v. Gonesh Chunder, 29 C. 500, where it has been further held that in a case where the act of the defendant amounts to an ouster of the plaintiff from his possession of joint property, pecuniary compensation not being an adequate relief, an injunction would be the proper remedy.

(p) To restrain the act of public functionaries.—The High Court has jurisdiction by proceeding in the nature of a quo warranto to restrain the functions of a municipal corporation in the matter of municipal elections.—In the matter of Corkhill, 22 C. 717. See also In the matter of Mutty Lal Ghose, 19 C. 192; In the matter of Rajendra Lal Mittra, 195-note; and In the matter of Election of Municipal Commissioners &c., 198.

Suit for injunction restraining the Municipality from pulling down a house which is alleged to be in a ruinous condition—Meaning of dangerous structures—Power of Municipality to remove dangerous structures—Person affected by the action of the Municipality is entitled to be heard as a matter of common justice.—Lalbahar v. Municipal Commissioner of Bombay, 33 B. 334.

An individual is not entitled to protection by way of injunction against the act of a corporation, which affects that individual's character and reputation, whether private, professional or commercial, though the act in question was one which the corporation had no power to do under its instrument of incorporation and was in excess of its power where he would not have been entitled to such protection had the act complained of been committed by an individual defendant.—Shepherd v. Trustees of the Port of Bombay, 1 B. 132.

A suit to restrain the Municipality from cutting off pipe water connection from the plaintiff's house is maintainable.—Surat Municipality v. Tyabji, 32 B. 460 : 10 Bom. L. R. 623.

A suit does not lie against the corporation for an injunction restraining the same from causing portions of plaintiff's buildings to be demolished which had been erected without sanction from the Chairman or the General Committee in alleged breach of the building regulations.—Bholaram v. Corporation of Calcutta, 13 C. W. N. 740.

Where a public body has received by statute a discretionary power to buy, and is laid under an obligation to collect a rate, an injunction

v. Barkat Ali, 11 C. W. N. 85, where an injunction was granted restraining the defendant from interfering with the natural flow of water.

In a suit for an injunction to compel defendant to reduce to its original dimensions an embankment which he had recently raised to a greater height, on the ground that the effect of defendant's act had been, and would be, to injure plaintiff's land by preventing the passage of water which used to overflow that land; held, that the plaintiff was bound to establish an injury caused by infraction of some right which plaintiff possessed or by the omission of something which defendant was legally bound to do.—Prankisto v. Horo Chunder, 10 W. R. 435. See also Venkata Chalam v. Zamindar of Sivapanga, 27 M. 409 (18 M. 158 distinguished).

Obstruction to plaintiff's right to have the water carried from his roof on to the defendant's roof.—See Nasarbhai Ahmedbhai v. Badruddin, 16 B. 533.

(n) Obstruction to right of way.—The defendants closed a gateway leading across a level-crossing of their railway over which there was a public right of way. The plaintiff alleged that by the closing of this gateway access to his bungalow during the monsoon was completely stopped, and he sued to have the gateway re-opened. Held, that the inconvenience caused to the plaintiff was real and substantial; that the plaintiff was entitled to the use of the right of way in question, and under the circumstances to an injunction against its obstruction.—G. I. P. Railway Company v. Nowroji, 10 B. 390.

Right of way—Ownership of soil.—Suit for trespass, injunction and to close doors. Held, that the plaintiffs had not such a property in the soil of the lane as would entitle them to prevent the defendant from making new doors on the lane, and to restrain him from using the doors already made; they had only a right of way, but an injunction was granted, restraining the defendant from using his doorways for the purpose of cleaning his privies, or in any other manner so as to obstruct the free use by the plaintiffs of the lane.—*Madan Mohan v. C.); and Paras Ram v. Sherjit, 9 A. 661. In all these cases it has been laid down that there is no such broad proposition as that one co-owner is entitled to an injunction restraining another co-owner from exceeding his rights, absolutely and without reference to the amount of damages to be sustained by the one side or the other from the granting or withholding of the injunction. Shadi v. Anup Singh, 12 A. 436 (F. B.); and Najju Khan v. Imtiaz-uddin, 18 A. 115, where it has been held that one of several joint owners is not entitled to erect a building upon the joint property without the consent of the other joint-owners, notwithstanding that the erection of such building may cause no direct loss to the other joint-owners. In Macneil v. Debendra, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 293, it has been held that an order passed against a co-sharer restraining him from building upon a portion of the joint property must be passed with great caution.

In disputes between members of a joint Hindu family in respect of joint property, the exercise of a Court's discretion to grant relief by injunction should be confined to acts of waste, illegitimate use of the family property, or acts amounting to ouster.—Anant Ramrao v. Gopal Balwant, 19 B. 269. Followed in Soshi Bhusan v. Gonesh Chunder, 23 C. 500, where it has been further held that in a case where the act of the defendant amounts to an ouster of the plaintiff from his possession of joint property, pecuniary compensation not being an adequate relief, 'an injunction would be the proper remedy.

(p) To restrain the act of public functionaries.—The High Court has jurisdiction by proceeding in the nature of a quo warranto to restrain the functions of a municipal corporation in the matter of municipal elections.—In the matter of Corkhill, 22 C. 717. See also In the matter of Mutty Lal Ghose, 19 C. 192; In the matter of Rajendra Lal Mittra, 195-note; and In the matter of Election of Municipal Commissioners &c., 198.

Suit for injunction restraining the Municipality from pulling down a house which is alleged to be in a ruinous condition—Meaning of dangerous structures—Power of Municipality to remove dangerous structures—Person affected by the action of the Municipality is entitled to be heard as a matter of common justice.—Lalbai v. Municipal Commissioner of Bombay, 33 B. 334.

An individual is not entitled to protection by way of injunction against the act of a corporation, which affects that individual's character and reputation, where the act is one of the ordinary functions of the corporation. An individual defendant.—Shepherd v. Trustees of the Port of Bombay, 1 B. 132.

A suit to restrain the Municipality from cutting off pipe water connection from the plaintiff's house is maintainable.—Surat Municipality v. Tyabji, 32 B. 460 : 10 Bom. L. R. 622.

A suit does not lie against the corporation for an injunction restraining the same from causing portions of plaintiff's buildings to be demolished which had been erected without sanction from the Chairman or the General Committee in alleged breach of the building regulations.—Bholaram v. Corporation of Calcutta, 13 C. W. N. 740.

Where a public body has received by statute a discretionary power to buy, and is laid under an obligation to collect a rate, an injunction cannot be granted by a Court so as to deprive such public body of the power of exercising its discretion or to prohibit it from discharging the obligation.—Municipal Commissioners of Madras v. Branson, 3 M. 201.

(g) Trade-mark.—In an application for an injunction to restrain the use of a trade-mark, it is not a sufficient defence to say that there was no fraudulent intention, and that is no reason for granting the application.—Graham & Co. v. Ker Dods & Co., 3 B. L. R. App. 4.

The defendants adopted a label, which though different in some respects from the picture on the plaintiff's label, was in its general appearance so similar to plaintiff's trade-mark as to amount to a colourable imitation thereof, and to be likely to deceive purchasers: Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to an injunction against the defendants.—Badische Anilin v. Manecke, 17 B. 584.

The right of exclusive user of a name or a number as trade-mark is not an absolute and unqualified right which would entitle the owner to prevent another person from using it under all circumstances. It is only when the use of that name or number deceives, or is reasonably likely to deceive the public that it can be interfered with or prevented. There must be a reasonable probability of purchasers being deceived; it is not enough to show a mere possibility of deception.—Barlow v. Gobind Ram, 21 C. 361; 1 C. W. N. 281. See also Reddaway & Co. v. Schroder Smidt & Co., 8 C. W. N. 151 (affirmed in 32 C. 401).

An importer and seller of matches bearing manufacturer's or producer's trade-mark is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the defendants from importing or selling in Bombay or other parts of India matches similar in appearance to a certain class of matches imported or sold by the plaintiff.—Heiniger v. Droz, 25 B. 433.

(r) Copy right.—In order to justify the grant of a temporary injunction in an action by the plaintiff restraining the defendant from infringing his copy-right, it is not necessary to make out a strong case and show that there is no other remedy open to him by which he can protect himself from the consequence of the injury. In such a case, ordinarily an injunction is the appropriate relief. In doubtful cases, where the question as to the legal right is one on which the Court is not prepared to pass an opinion, or the legal right being admitted the fact of its violation is denied, the course of the Court is either to grant the injunction pending the trial or to order the motion to stand over until the legal right has been tried. In such a case in determining which of those two alternatives it shall adopt, the Court is governed by the consideration as to the comparative mischief or inconvenience to the parties which may arise from granting or withholding the injunction.—Kartar Singh v. Ladha Singh, 132 I. C. 586; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 624.

The plaintiff brought out a new and annotated edition of a well-known Sanskrit work on religious observances. The defendants printed and published one edition of the same work, the text of which was identical with that of the plaintiff's work, which, moreover, contained the same additional passages and the same foot-notes at the same places, with many slight differences. Held, that the plaintiff's work was an original work and entitled to protection and that as the defendants had pirated the plaintiff's work, they must be restrained by injunction.—Gangavishnu Srikisondas v. Moreshwar Bapuji, 13 B. 358.

(s) Landlord and tenant.—Where land has been let out for agricultural purposes, the erection of an indigo factory on any part of such land renders it unfit for the purposes of tenancy and the landlord is entitled to a permanent injunction restraining the tenant from erecting the factory.—Surendra Narain v. Hari Mohan, 31 C. 174: 9 C. W. N. 87 (reversed in 34 I. A. 133: 34 C. 718 (P. C.): 11 C. W. N. 794: 6 C. L. J. 19: 9 Bom. L. R. 750: 17 M. L. J. 361).

The tenant of an agricultural holding planted his jote with mango trees to the knowledge, but without the consent of his landlord, thus changing the character of the land. More than three years afterwards the landlord sued for a mandatory injunction to have the mango trees removed. Held, that having stood by more than three years, and allowed the tenant to spend his labour and capital, the landlord was not entitled to a mandatory injunction.—Noyya Misser v. Rupikuan, 9 C. 609: 12 C. L. R. 300. See, however, Lakshmana v. Ram Chandra, 10 M. 351.

A landlord cannot have a mandatory injunction in respect of a building erected by a tenant of an agricultural holding, if knowing of such construction he does not object.—Ulagappan v. Chidambaram, 29 M. 497.

A zemindar sued for an injunction to compel the defendant who held agricultural lands with occupancy rights, to demolish a dwelling-house which he had erected thereon for purposes not connected with agriculture and to restrain him from altering the character of the land. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the injunction sued for.—Ramanathan v. Zamindar of Ramnad, 16 M. 407. See, however, Prosunno Coomnar v. Jagunnath, 10 C. L. R. 25 (reversing 9 C. L. R. 221).

In the absence of custom, the general rule is that the property in timber on a tenant's holding vests in the landlord, but the landlord has no right to interfere with the enjoyment by the tenant of the trees upon his holding so long as the relation of landlord and tenant subsists. Held, therefore, that a landlord is not entitled to an injunction restraining the tenant from offering obstruction to the cutting down and removal of the trees upon the holding.—Ganga Dei v. Badam, 30 A. 134: 5 A. L. J. 99 [W. R. (1864) 367 referred to].

(t) Nuisance.—Nuisance by erection of a privy close to plaintiff's house by order of Municipality—Injunction granted to remove the privy.—Jafir Sahib v. Kadir Rahiman, 12 B. 634.

Where the defendant, the owner of a shellac factory, discharged into the municipal drain, which was not constructed or intended for carrying off such stuff, refuse liquid of an offensive character which interfered with the ordinary comfort of the plaintiff's occupation of property and caused him special injury: held, that the plaintiff was entitled to restrain him:

that an injunction was the only effectual remedy in the case and substantial damages should be awarded against the defendant who has persisted in a nuisance causing material injury to plaintiff.—Galstaun v. Doonia Lal, 32 C. 697 : 9 C. W. N. 612.

Nuisance for using land as a burial and burning ground—Injunction refused as it was not proved to be an actionable nuisance.—Muhammad Mohidin v. Municipal Commissioners of Madras, 25 M. 118.

The right of Muhammadans to slaughter kine is one to which they are legally entitled irrespective of custom, and it is only when they abuse the right that its exercise can be interfered with.—Shahbaz Khan v. Umrao Puri, 30 A. 181 : 5 A. L. J. 147.

The use of a building as a masjid and giving "bang" by a Mulla in the vicinity of a Hindu temple is an actionable wrong which can be prevented by an injunction.—Hindu Panchayat of Laki v. Mahomedan Community of Laki, A.I. R. 1928 Sind 82 : 21 S. L. R. 368.

Nuisance from cotton-mill—Noise, smoke, and fluff of mill—Damages—Combination of injunction and damages. The Court, after going into the evidence, considered that the case would be best dealt with by a combination of damages and injunction, and made an order for injunction to issue against noise, smoke, and cotton fluff so as to be a nuisance to the plaintiffs. Such injunction not to issue in case the defendants should pay to the plaintiffs the sum of Rs. 40,000 before the expiration of a fortnight from the date of the decree.—Land Mortgage Bank of India v. Ahmedbhoy Habibhoy, 8 B. 35.

(u) Trees overhanging neighbour's Land—Injunction.—It is competent to a Court to grant a perpetual injunction directing the defendant to remove the branches of trees overhanging his neighbour's land and also to restrain him from planting trees so close to his neighbour's land that their roots may not extend or penetrate his land.—Lakshmi Narain v. Tara Prosanna, 31 C. 944 : 8 C. W. N. 710; Behari Lal v. Ghisa Lal, 24 A. 499; Hari Krishna v. Shankar Vithal, 19 B. 420. In Ram Lal v. Dalganyan, 5 A. 369, it has been held that a plaintiff has no right to the removal of trees planted by the defendant on his own land until the plaintiff's enjoyment of his own land is directly and immediately interfered with by the growth of the trees.

(v) Stay of criminal proceedings pending civil suit.—Per Ghose, J.—The High Court has power to direct that criminal proceedings in the Court of a Magistrate should be stayed, until the disposal of a civil suit, in which the question at issue in the criminal proceedings shall have been decided. Contra—Per Rampini, J. (following B. A Civil Court has no jurisdiction to restrain a party by an injunction from pursuing her remedy under S. 488, Or. P. Code for maintenance in a criminal Court.—Krishna Govinda v. Kishori Bala, 129 I. C. 103 : A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 753. But a suit is maintainable for a declaration that the defendant had no right to a share in the maintenance out of plaintiff's properties.—Deraji Malinga v. Marati, 30 M. 400 (14 C. 276 followed; 18 A. 29 explained).

2. (1) In any suit for restraining the defendant from committing a breach of contract or other injury of any kind, whether compensation is claimed in the suit or not, the plaintiff may, at any time after the commencement of the suit, and either before or after judgment, apply to the Court for a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from committing the breach of contract or injury complained of, or any breach of contract or injury of a like kind arising out of the same contract or relating to the same property or right.

(2) The Court may by order grant such injunction, on such terms as to the duration of the injunction, keeping an account, giving security, or otherwise, as the Court thinks fit.

(3) In case of disobedience, or of breach of any such terms, the Court granting an injunction may order the property of the person guilty of such disobedience or breach to be attached and may also order such person to be detained in the civil prison for a term not exceeding six months, unless in the meantime the Court directs his release.

(4) No attachment under this rule shall remain in force for more than one year, at the end of which time, if the disobedience or breach continues, the property attached may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award such compensation as it thinks fit, and shall pay the balance, if any, to the party entitled thereto. [S. 493.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 493, C. P. Code of 1882, with some additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (1) the words "of any kind" have been added after the words "other injury."

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para 2 of the old section with omission of the words "or refuse the same" which occurred after the words "thinks fit."

Sub-rule (3) has been substituted for para. 3 of the old section; the para. have been completely changed. below to observe the changes made e, an injunction granted under this section or S 492, may be enforced by the imprisonment of the defendant for a term not exceeding six months or the attachment of his property or both."

Sub-rule (4) corresponds to para. 4 of the old section with some alterations. The words "if the disobedience or breach continues" have been substituted for the words "if the defendant has not obeyed the injunction"; and the words "shall pay the balance to the party entitled thereto" have been substituted for the words "may pay the balance (if any) to the defendant," which occurred in the old section.

Temporary injunction to restrain breach of contract.—To prevent the violation of contracts, the Court has the power to interfere by injunction and to compel parties to perform their covenants and agreements by injunction, temporary or perpetual, mandatory, or otherwise. This rule deals with temporary injunctions to restrain the breach of a contract. Perpetual injunctions to restrain the breach of a contract are regulated by S. 56 (f) and S. 57 of the Specific Relief Act, 1887. The ordinary remedy for breach of contract is damages. Hence no injunction can be granted where damages afford adequate relief. See also Sohanlal Chuman Lal v. Jai Narain Babu Lal, 54 I. C. 546, where the principles governing grant of temporary injunction to restrain breach of contract have been explained.

"Or other injury."—The words "or other injury" in this rule mean any legal injury other than that arising from breach of contract, as in the case of obligation arising from transfer of property or trust or in cases of tort. The addition of the words "of any kind" in this rule makes it clear that injunction can be granted to prevent injury from any wrongful act whatever be its nature. The word "injury" in Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (1), C. P. Code, means an act which is contrary to law. To justify a temporary injunction plaintiff must show irreparable injury or inconvenience likely to result to him before the disposal of the suit, if the opposite party were not restrained by injunction.—Firm of Manohar Lal Mahabir Pershad v. Firm of Jai Narain Babu Lal, 2 L. L. J. 283 : 55 I. C. 403, Firm of Kirpal Das Kalian Das v. Firm of Gaganmal, 15 S. L. R. 5; Rameshwar Das v. Yakim-ud-din, 75 I. C. 428.

A suit for a declaration that a certain person is not eligible to stand as a candidate cannot be said to be a suit for restraining him from committing an injury of any kind. To restrain the defendant in such a case would be tantamount to granting the plaintiff the relief sought in his suit and might deprive the defendant of a right to which he is really entitled.—The Election Officer, Gujrat v. Abdul Ghani, A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 47.

Under Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (1) the Court may grant an injunction restraining a person living within the jurisdiction of another Court from instituting certain proceeding.—A. Milton & Co. v. Ojha Automobile Engineering Co., 57 C. 1280 : 130 I. C. 252 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 279.

Mode of execution of a decree for injunction.—See the cases noted under Or. XXI, r. 32.

Sub-rule (3)—Disobedience of order for injunction—Contempt of Court.—The proper remedy for disobedience of an order of injunction passed by a Civil Court is committal for contempt.—In the matter of the petition of Chandra Kanta De, 6 C. 445: 7 C. L. R. 350. See Salam Chand v. Joogul Kissore, 55 C. 777: 32 C. W. N. 114: 107 I. C. 65: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 462; in which it has been said that under the Code permanent injunctions are enforced in execution but under Or. XXXIX, interlocutory injunctions are enforced under a special power which is given to Courts in the mofussil and as well as to the High Court notwithstanding that such Courts have no inherent right of arrest for contempt. The provision is contained in Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (3).

Order XXXIX, r. 2 (3) applies not only to disobedience of an order issued under Cls. (1) and (2) of that rule, but has a more general application and applies equally to disobedience of all injunctions issued under S. 94 of the Code. Where an injunction order issued by a Division Bench of the High Court is disobeyed by a party residing in the Bench, in punishing him for contempt, S. 136 of the I. P. Code, and send to the appropriate District Court the warrant of arrest and the order of attachment for necessary action being taken. In such a case, the District Court, on receipt of the warrant and order, will adopt the procedure laid down in S. 136—Adakkala v. Imperial Bank, Madura Branch, 50 M. L. J. 401: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 574: 95 I. C. 196.

In Balbhaddar v. Balla, 127 I. C. 577: A. I. R. 1930 All. 387; it has been observed that the provisions of Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (3) were intended to be applied to a breach of an injunction under r. 1 also, but as it is included under r. 2, it would follow that its provisions will not apply to r. 1.

Therefore in case of disobedience of an order of injunction the Court may punish the party under Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (3); Wadhawa Singh v. Ladha Singh, 131 I. C. 343: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 201: 12 L. L. J. 309 (referring to Ram Parshad v. Benares Bank Ltd., 42 A. 98: 58 I. C. 600; Vidyapurana v. Vicar of Surakkal Church, 44 I. C. 56; Adakkala v. Imperial Bank, noted ante).

But it is the Court which actually granted the injunction that can punish the contempt under Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (3) and not the Court to which the suit may be transferred but which did not grant the injunction.—Jaharuddi v. Hari Charan, 18 C. W. N. 470: 22 I. C. 499.

In case of disobedience by a person, residing outside the local limits of the Original Side of the High Court of Calcutta (i.e. at Nadia), who is guilty of contempt of Court in not having handed over certain articles to the Receiver appointed by the Court, it is extremely doubtful whether the High Court on its Original Side can direct the District Judge of Nadia to execute a warrant of arrest of the person; but it is eminently desirable to proceed regularly by asking for an injunction in express terms, in which case S. 136 of the Code can be applied and the High Court has statutory power to make the necessary order.—Salam Chand v. Joogul Kissore, noted ante; Mathura Das v. Venkat Rao, 21 M. L. J. 829. The Court can order either arrest or attachment of property and is not bound in the first instance to attach and then only to order imprisonment.—Suppi v. Kunhi Koya, 39 M. 907 (F. B.); Mawazzam v. Shebesh, 31 C. W. N. 814: 105 I. C. 348: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 598.

Where a personal guardian appointed by the Court undertook not to marry the minor without the Court's permission, the marriage or connivance at marriage with the ward without the consent of the Court is contempt of Court liable to be punished; but the power of the Court to punish for this act is limited to the actual guardian in respect of whom the order is made and cannot be exercised against persons who indirectly committed the breach by assisting the guardian in the act.—Bar Mani v. Bhai Lal, A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 417; 31 Bom. L. R. 1120.

Where a temporary injunction was issued against a person directing him not to get the girl who had gone to his house married and when the person was not responsible in promoting or bringing about the marriage but did not do all that he could do to prevent it, it cannot be said that he actually disobeyed the order as it was passed and so an order for his detention in prison is incompetent.—Muhammed Wazir Agha v. Muhammed Abdul Gafoor, 118 I. C. 675; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 273.

Before a Court commits a party to prison for alleged disobedience of an order of injunction in a case where the party contends that he received no notice of the order, he should be given an opportunity to establish his contention.—Basanta v. Nagendra, 137 I. C. 425; A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 719.

A judgment-debtor applied to the High Court for stay of sale of certain property attached in execution of a decree of a Subordinate Court and got the order of stay subject to certain conditions but afterwards transferred a part of the property ignoring the condition. Held, that the Court could punish him for disobedience under Or. XXXIX, r. 2.—Ram Prasad v. Benares Bank Ltd., 17 A. L. J. 1127.

When an injunction has been granted restraining a person from interrupting the access of light and air to certain windows, and the Court considers that the injunction has been infringed, an attachment will issue, even though the defendant has proceeded according to the advice of his surveyor and legal adviser in constructing the building complained of as a breach of the injunction. The Court in such cases is not bound by the opinion of surveyors.—Pranyivan Dass v. Mayaram, 1 B. H. C. R. 148.

Where a plaintiff has once obtained a decree for a perpetual injunction directing the defendant to refrain from certain acts, it is not necessary for him, if in future, the defendant ignores such injunction, to sue again for a similar relief; such a suit would be barred by the principle of res judicata. When the person to whom the order has been issued disobeys that order, he is guilty of contempt of Court, and the Court can take proceedings to enforce its authority notwithstanding anything contained in Art. 182 of the Limitation Act.—Ram Saran v. Chatar Singh, 23 A. 465 (followed in Bagwan Das v. Sukdei, 28 A. 300; 3 A. L. J. 836).

The jurisdiction which a Court has to commit in case of disobedience to an injunction is conferred by this Rule; but the powers conferred therein are only exercisable when the Court is set in motion by a party who deems himself aggrieved.—Kochappa v. Sachi Devi, 26 M. 494.

By this rule, the Legislature indicated that the imprisonment for contempt should not extend beyond six months. Where, however, the defendant had been in jail for more than 20 months for the criminal offence (contempt of Court), the Court would not be justified in indirectly adding to its duration.—Advocate-General of Bombay v. Gangji Akhai, 19 B. 152.

By S. 43 (4) of the Guardian and Wards Act, 1890, in case of disobedience to an order passed under sub-sections (1) and (2) of that section, in relation to the conduct or proceedings of guardians, the order may be enforced in the same manner as an injunction granted under Or. XXXIX, rr. 1 and 2 of the C. P. Code.—Abdul Rahman v. Ganapathi, 23 M. 517.

In Basanta v. Nagendra, 137 I. C. 425; A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 719, it was doubted whether a proceeding for the appointment of a guardian can be treated as a suit or a proceeding to restrain the other party from committing a breach of contract or other injury within the meaning of Or. XXXIX, r. 2, so as to confer jurisdiction in the Court to commit the other party for alleged disobedience of an order of temporary injunction passed therein.

No second appeal lies against an order under this rule, dismissing a petition to commit for disobedience to an injunction.—Venkatapathi Naidu v. Tirumalai Chetti, 24 M. 447.

The defendant having built a wall on the plaintiff's land, the plaintiff brought a suit in which he asked for damages for trespass, and an injunction, and a decree was passed for damages, and for a mandatory injunction, directing the defendant within two months to remove the wall. Two years subsequently the plaintiff brought another suit for damages. Held, that the suit would not lie for damages for non-compliance with the mandatory injunction, to compel the performance of which the plaintiff had his remedy in execution.—Jawitri v. Emile, 13 A. 98 (11 App. Cas. 127 distinguished).

Temporary mandatory injunction.—A doubt was expressed in Rasul Karim v. Pirubhai, 38 B. 381 as to whether mofussil Courts have power to issue mandatory injunctions. It was not followed in Kandaswami v. Subramania, 41 M. 238; 33 M. L. J. 448, where it has been held that the description of a temporary injunction in S. 53 of the Specific Relief Act does not exclude injunctions of a mandatory nature. See also Israel v. Shamser, 41 C. 436; Champsey Bhimji & Co. v. The Jamna Flour Mills Co., 16 Bom. L. R. 565; 28 I. C. 121.

Whether the injunction be one restraining a party from altering the position of affairs or directing him to restore the conditions which prevailed at the time the cause of action arose, that order must not go further and must not create a totally new state of things.—Lahore Electric Supply Co., Ltd. v. Bombay Motor Cycle Co., 67 I. C. 742.

Appeal.—An appeal lies under Or. XLIII (1) (r) against an order under Or. XXXIX, r. 2; and a person cannot be deprived of his right of appeal merely because the lower Court acts under Or. XXXIX, r. 2 by virtue of S. 141 of the Code.—Muhammad Wazir Agha v. Muhammad Abdul Gafoor, 118 I. C. 675; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 273.

An appeal lies to the District Court from an order of the District Munsif refusing to take action under Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (3) for an alleged breach of a temporary injunction granted under Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (3).—Suppi v. Kunhi, 39 M. 907 (F. B.); Devan Chand v. Jharla Coal Co., 5 I. L. J. 142.

Where on an application for an interlocutory injunction the defendant gave an undertaking that he would not alienate the property pending the disposal of the suit which was recorded in the Court's order and then in breach of that undertaking sold the property and the plaintiff thereupon applied for proceedings for contempt of Court, but the lower Court refused the application, it was held that the undertaking given by the defendant read in conjunction with the order of the Court recording it, amounted to the grant of injunction, and an appeal lay from the order of the lower Court refusing the application for proceedings for contempt.—Chaturbhuj Das v. Natvarlal, 134 I. C. 1165 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 509.

3. The Court shall in all cases, except where it appears that the object of granting the injunction would be defeated by the delay, before granting an injunction, direct notice of the application for the same to be given to the opposite party. [S. 494.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 494 of the C. P. Code, 1882.

Notice.—This rule enacts that as a general rule where an application for the issue of an injunction is made, notice of the same must be given to the opposite party but such notice may be dispensed with in urgent cases where the Court thinks that the object of granting the injunction would be defeated by the delay. The power to issue an ex parte injunction no doubt exists, but the greatest care should be employed in its exercise, and it should be exercised only in cases where considerable mischief might ensue if the issue of the process were delayed until notice was given.—Hari Pandurang v. Secretary of State, 27 B. 424, 451; Amalak Ram v. Sahib Singh, 7 A. 550, Burma Oil Co. Ltd. v. Sampson, 13 Bur. L. T. 227.

Where a Court made an order granting a temporary injunction without directing notice of the application for injunction to be issued to the other side, and its order, directing stay of sale of property in execution, was passed ex parte, without the other side being given an opportunity to show cause, held that the order was irregular.—Amolak Ram v. Sahib Singh, 7 A. 550. See also Baddam v. Dhunput Singh, 1 O. W. N. 429, where it has been held that an injunction should not issue without notice to the opposite party.

A petition praying for a temporary injunction was presented by the plaintiff in a Subordinate Court. The Judge refused to pass orders on it without notice to the opposite party. On appeal, the District Judge granted the injunction. Held, that no appeal lay from the order of the Subordinate Court, and that the District Judge had acted illegally.—Luis v. Luis, 19 M. 186

4. Any order for an injunction may be discharged, or varied, or set aside by the Court, on application made thereto by any party dissatisfied with such order. [S. 496.]

Order for injunction may be discharged, varied or set aside.

COMMENTARY.

History—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 496, C. P. Code, 1882. It is intended to cover two classes of cases (1) when an urgent order ex parte has been passed under rr. 3 and 4 will allow the party against whom it has been passed to apply to have it discharged or varied or set aside; and (2) when an injunction order already in force has, owing to fresh circumstances, become unduly harsh or unnecessary or unworkable, it would be open to either party to apply under r. 4 to the Court to discharge, vary or set it aside. But this rule (r. 4) is not intended to set at naught the ordinary curius curie that, once a Court has decided a matter after giving each side an opportunity of being heard, its order is final and binding on itself as much as on the parties, and cannot be re-opened except on the presentation of some new matter not available when the original order was passed.—Govinda Ramanuja v. Vijayaramaraju, A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 803.

Compensation to defendant for issue of injunction on insufficient grounds.—Section 497, C. P. Code, 1882, contained the provisions for awarding compensation to a defendant for issue of injunction on insufficient grounds, the provisions of that section have been embodied in S. 95 of the present Code—See notes under that Section.

Appeal—An appeal will lie under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (r), from an order under this rule—See Zabada Jan v. Muhammad Tarab, 15 A. B.

Whatever be the scope of Or. XXXIX, r. 4 it cannot be that a party can appeal against a mere re-iteration of the original order of injunction when he has failed to appeal against the original order. Therefore, where an order under Or. XXXIX, r. 1 staying delivery of property in execution was passed after notice, and the non-applicant without filing an appeal applied under this rule for dissolution of the order, and the Court thereupon appointed a Receiver, the original injunction staying delivery remained in full force and was re-iterated and revised and was not varied though the Court purported to do so by appointing a Receiver—Govinda Ramanuja v. Vijayaramaraju, A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 803.

5. An injunction directed to a corporation is binding not only on the corporation itself, but also on all members and officers of the corporation whose personal action it seeks to restrain. [S. 495.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 495, C. P. Code, 1882, with the omission of the words "or public company" which occurred in the old section after the word "corporation."

Corporation.—An individual is not entitled to protection by way of injunction against the act of a corporation which affects that individual's character and reputation, whether private, professional or commercial, though the act in question was one which the corporation had no power to do under its instrument of incorporation and was in excess of its power, where he would not have been entitled to such protection had the act complained of been committed by an individual defendant.—Shepherd v. Trustees of the Port of Bombay, 1 B. 132.

Agreement that the plaintiffs should be the agents of a company for 25 years—Resolution of the directors ousting the plaintiff from their agency—Suit by agents of the company to restrain it from carrying into effect the resolution of the directors. Held, that in as much as the Court would not, by a decree for specific performance or by injunction, compel the company to retain the plaintiff in the confidential position of agent, it would not restrain the defendants or the company from appointing a solicitor, which was only a violation of what was ancillary or incidental to the principle part of the contract, viz., the agreement that the plaintiff should be the agent of the company for 25 years.—Nasserwanji v. Gordon, 6 B. 266.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.

6. The Court may, on the application of any party to a suit, order the sale, by any person named in such order, and in such manner and on such terms as it thinks, fit, of any moveable property, being the subject-matter of such suit, or attached before judgment in such suit, which is subject to speedy and natural decay, or which for any other just and sufficient cause it may be desirable to have sold at once. [S. 498.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 498, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. It gives power to a Court to sell a perishable article but does not authorise it to send a commissioner to sell any crop.—Kristnayya v. Karnedhan, 126 I. C. 284 : A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 224.

In order to enable a Court to order an interim sale of moveable property it must either be the subject-matter of the suit, or it must have been attached before judgment in a suit but if either of these two conditions do not exist then the Court cannot exercise the power conferred by this rule.—Kalu Mal v. Ganga Bishan, 134 I. C. 118.

The words "or attached before judgment in such suit" and the words "or which for any other just and sufficient cause it may be desirable to have sold at once," have been added.

"Words have been added to S. 498, so as to empower the Court to order a sale of securities when the state of the market requires such a course."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Detention, preservation, inspection, etc. of subject-matter of suit.

7. (1) The Court may, on the application of any party to a suit, and on such terms as it thinks fit,—

(a) make an order for the detention, preservation or inspection of any property which is the subject-matter of such suit, or as to which any question may arise therein ;

(b) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid authorize any person to enter upon or into any land or building in the possession of any other party to such suit; and

(c) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid authorize any samples to be taken, or any observation to be made or experiment to be tried, which may seem necessary or expedient for the purpose of obtaining full information or evidence.

(2) The provisions as to execution of process shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to persons authorized to enter under this rule. [S. 499.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This section corresponds to S. 499, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. In Cl. (a) the words "or as to which any question may arise therein" have been added; the other changes are merely verbal.

Inspection of subject-matter of suit.—In a suit for damages alleged to have been caused to plaintiff's house by the erection by the defendant of an adjoining house the defendant applied for an order allowing him to enter into the plaintiff's house for the purpose of inspecting, examining, and surveying the alleged injuries. Held, that the house and the premises of the plaintiff formed the "subject of the suit," within the meaning of this rule and the Court had the power to make the order applied for.—Dhorany Dhur v. Radha Gobind, 24 C. 117: 1 C. W. N. 99.

"For all or any of the purposes aforesaid, etc."—The Court has jurisdiction to make an order for preparation of any inventory under this rule.—Amjad v. Ali Hossain, 12 C. L. J. 519: 15 C. W. N. 353; Giribala v. Prokash Chandra, 49 C. L. J. 484: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 498, in which it has also been held that the Probate Court also is invested with powers to make an order for preparing an inventory by S. 228 of the Succession Act. But see Mahomed Rasek v. Tahidunnissa, 52 I. C. 33.

Production of property.—In a suit by a pledgor against the pledgee for redemption of the pledge, held, that the Court is competent to make an order for the production of the property pledged under Or. XXXIX, r. 7 (1) (a).—Jitendra Nath v. Asoke Nath, 30 C. L. J. 64: 52 I. C. 4.

8. (1) An application by the plaintiff for an order under rule 6 or rule 7 may be made after notice to the defendant at any time after institution of the suit.
Application for rule 6 or rule 7 may be made after notice to the defendant at any time after institution of the suit.
such orders to be after notice.

(2) An application by the defendant for a like order may be made after notice to the plaintiff at any time after appearance.

[S. 500.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 500, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications.

In sub-rule (1), the words "after institution of the suit" have been substituted for the words "after service of summons" which occurred in the old section; and in sub-rule (2) the word "appearance" has been substituted for the words "after the applicant has appeared" which occurred in the old section. The other changes are merely verbal.

Notice.—An application under this rule can only be made by a plaintiff, after summons has been served, and after reasonable notice of the intention to apply for the order has been given in writing to the defendant. —Sengotha v. Ramasami, 7 M. 241.

Appeal or review—If an interlocutory order is wrongly refused by one Judge, the proper course is to apply for a review or to appeal from it; not to seek to obtain the order by resorting to another Judge, even though arguments should then be forthcoming which were not put before the first Judge.—Motwahu v. Premvahu, 16 B. 511.

9. Where land paying revenue to Government, or a tenure liable to sale, is the subject-matter of a suit, if the party in possession of such land or tenure neglects to pay the Government revenue, or the rent due to the proprietor of the tenure, as the case may be, and such land or tenure is consequently ordered to be sold, any other party to the suit claiming to have an interest in such land or tenure may, upon payment of the revenue or rent due previously to the sale (and with or without security at the discretion of the Court), be put in immediate possession of the land or tenure; and the Court in its decree may award against the defaulter the amount so paid, with interest thereon at such rate as the Court thinks fit, or may charge the amount so paid, with interest thereon at such rate as the Court orders, in any adjustment of accounts which may be directed in the decree passed in the suit. [S. 501.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 501, C. P. Code, 1882 with the substitution of the word "where" for "when" in the beginning

Plaintiff was put in possession of property in suit under this rule, and the suit was dismissed; but no order was passed under the latter part of the rule to enable the defendant for recovery of what he had lost during the period of dispossession by the plaintiff. Held that the defendant was entitled to obtain mesne-profits in execution of the decree and that a separate suit was unnecessary.—Radhey Singh v. Mangniram, 6 C. W. N. 710.

10. Where the subject-matter of a suit is money or some other thing capable of delivery, and any party thereto admits that he holds such money or other thing as a trustee for another party, or that it belongs or is due to another party, the Court may order the same to be deposited in Court or delivered to such last-named party, with or without security, subject to the further direction of the Court. [S. 502.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 502, C.P. Code, 1882 with the substitution of the word "where" for "when" in the beginning.

"Holds."—This rule would seem to apply only when the party making the admission holds the property or other thing which the party in whose favour the order is made, seeks to have delivered to him. But even if that rule was intended to apply to a case where the property is not so held by the party making admission, it would not cover a case where the money was held by another Court to the credit of another suit.—Rajah Parthasarathi v. Rajah Rangiah, 27 M. 168. 13 M. L. J. 501.

Deposit.—As to liability for interest for money not deposited, see Ram Dass v. Prosunno Moyee, 16 W. R. 297.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order under this rule, see Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (r).

ORDER XL.

APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVERS.

1. (1) Where it appears to the Court to be just and convenient, the Court may by order—
Appointment of receivers. (a) appoint a receiver of any property, whether before or after decree;

(b) remove any person from the possession or custody of the property;

(c) commit the same to the possession, custody or management of the receiver; and

(d) confer upon the receiver all such powers, as to bringing and defending suits and for the realisation, management, protection, preservation and improvement of the property, the collection of the rents and profits thereof, the application and disposal of such rents and profits, and the execution of documents as the owner himself has, or such of those powers as the Court thinks fit.

(2) Nothing in this rule shall authorize the Court to remove from the possession or custody of property any person whom any party to the suit has not a present right so to remove. [S. 503.]

2. The Court may by general or special order fix the Remuneration. amount to be paid as remuneration for the services of the receiver. [S. 503, Cl. d.]

Duties. 3. Every receiver so appointed shall—
(a) furnish such security (if any) as the Court thinks fit, duly to account for what he shall receive in respect of the property;
(b) submit his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court directs;
(c) pay the amount due from him as the Court directs; and

(d) be responsible for any loss occasioned to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations and their effect.—Section 503 of the C. P. Code, 1882, has been divided into these three rules.

The wording and the language of the first para. of the old section have been materially changed, and several additions, alterations and omissions have been made.

In sub-rule (1) the words "where it appears to the Court to be just and convenient" have been substituted for the words "whenever it appears to the Court to be necessary for the realization, preservation or better custody or management of any property, moveable or immovable, the subject of a suit, or under attachment," which occurred in the first para. of the old section.

By the above change the power of the Court in the matter of appointment of receivers has been enlarged. According to the language of sub-rule (1), the Court can appoint a receiver where it appears to it to be just and convenient. The conditions attached to the para. of the old section are no longer necessary for the appointment of a receiver. The omission of the words "the subject of a suit" or "under attachment," is material, as the words "property the subject of a suit" were the subject of much discussion in Poresk v. Omerto, 17 C. 614 and in Ramasami Nair v. Ramasami Chetty, 30 M. 255. By the omission of the above two expressions, a receiver can now be appointed where a personal remedy is sought against the defendant or the property is not under attachment (30 M. 255). The other alterations are mere change of words and phrases.

Receiver in proceedings other than suits.—Section 503 of the Code of 1882 contained the words "subject-matter of a suit." Under the old Code, therefore, a receiver could only be appointed in a suit. By the omission of these words in the present rule, a receiver may now be appointed even in proceedings other than a suit—Asadali v. Mahomed, 43 C. 986 : 36 I. C. 177. A receiver may be appointed in a suit—Shankar, 17 B. 388 ; or in proceedings other than a suit—In re Bai Jamnabai, 36 B. 1 I. C. 554 ; Chandrawati v. Jagannath, 7 L. L. J. 291 : 90 I. C. 611 : A. I. R. 1925 Lab. 489 ; Godubai v. Janabai, 116 I. C. 642 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 119. But a Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver in proceedings under the Succession Certificate Act.—Kanhaya v. Kanhaya Lal, 46 A 372 : 79 I. C. 363 : A. I. R. 1924 All. 376 ; or in proceedings for the removal of a trustee under S. 74 of the Trusts Act—Assardas v. Thakuribai, 103 I. C. 816 : A. I. R. 1927 Sind 237.

"Just and convenient."—The words "just and convenient" have been taken from the English Judicature Act, 1873. They mean that the Court should appoint a receiver for the protection of property or the prevention of injury, according to legal principle, and not that the Court can make such appointment because it thinks convenient to do so. They confer no arbitrary and non-regulated discretion on the Court.—Hobibullah v. Abtia Kallah, 23 C. L. J. 567; Pana Seenev v. Ana, 8 I. C. 1191; Dharendra v. Surendra, 34 C. W. N. 440; 129 I. C. 609; A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 610; Bhupendra v. Manohar, 28 C. W. N. 86. See also Hemendra v. Prokash, 35 C. W. N. 1066. Before appointing a receiver in any particular case, the Court must take the whole circumstances of the case into consideration and then decide whether it would be "just and convenient" to appoint a receiver. Primarily this discretion is to be exercised by the Court in which the case is pending and to which the application is made. The Court has full discretion to appoint or remove a receiver and the appellate Court will not as a rule when the first Court has acted after considering all the circumstances, interfere with the exercise of that discretion.—Kadir Bakhsh v. Ghulam Mahomed, 55 I. C. 50; Amar Nath v. Tehal Kaur, 4 U. P. L. R. 73; 67 I. C. 353; Dhumi v. Nawab Muhammad Suddat Ali Khan, 73 I. C. 600; A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 623; Benoy Krishna v. Satish Chandra Giri, 55 I. A. 131; 55 C. 720 (P. C.); 32 C. W. N. 681; 47 C. L. J. 424; 108 I. C. 348; A. I. R. 1928 P. C. 49; 54 M. L. J. 423; 30 Bom. L. R. 815; 5 C. W. N. 272; 23 A. L. J. 481 (on appeal from Satish Chandra Giri v. Benoy Krishna, 96 I. C. 30; A. I. R. 1926 Cal 1092); Jaswant Singh v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 133 I. C. 433; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 82. Where there is no apprehension of waste or damage a receiver will not be appointed merely on the ground that the applicant apprehends difficulty in obtaining possession of the property in the event of success or in realising the mesne profits which will accrue during the pendency of the appeal.—Tinath Singh v. Shriomani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee, 134 I. C. 799; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 688; 32 P. L. R. 665.

"May by order."—The order on an application under Or. XL, r. 1, should not express an opinion on the merits of the case.—Bhupendra v. Manohar, 28 C. W. N. 86.

The appointment of a receiver is a matter resting in the discretion of the Court. The powers of appointing a receiver conferred by this rule, must be exercised with a sound discretion, upon a view of the whole circumstances of the case, not merely the circumstances which might make the appointment expedient for the protection of the property, but all the circumstances connected with the right which is asserted and has to be established. The Court will not interfere by appointing a receiver where a right is asserted to property in the possession of a defendant claiming to hold it under a legal title, unless a strong case is made out.—Sidheswari v. Abhayaswari, 15 C. 818; Meyappa Chetty v. Narayana Chetty, 43 I. C. 550; Isht v. Shib Ram, 71 I. C. 743; A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 239. See also Mai Bu v. Mai Oh Gyi, 5 R. 70; 101 I. C. 717; A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 179. Where property is shown to be in medio, i.e., in the enjoyment of no one, the Court can hardly do wrong in appointing a receiver, for it is the common interest of all parties to prevent a scramble.—Alkama Dibi v. Syed Istak, 29 C. W. N. 836; 89 I. C. 183; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 970. The mere circumstances that the appointment of a receiver will do no harm to any one is no ground for appointing a receiver.—Prasonomoyi v. Beni Madhab, 5 A. 556; Kunhan v. Kannan, 79 I. C. 561; 46 M. L. J. 133; A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 482. Neither can a receiver be appointed simply for the purpose of ascertaining the income of an estate in order to fix the amount of maintenance to be paid out of it.—Rujammal v. Tyagaraja, A. I. R. 1925 Mad.

1245: 89 I. C. 943. In Chandidat v. Padmanand, 22 C. 459, it has been further held that the distinction between a case in which a temporary injunction may be granted and a case in which a receiver may be appointed, is that, while in either case, it must be shown that the property should be preserved from waste or alienation; in the former case, it would be sufficient if it be shown that the plaintiff in the suit has a fair question to raise as to the existence of the right alleged; while in the latter case, a good prima facie title has to be made out.—Sivagnanathammal v. Arunachalam, 2 M. W. N. 75. See also Mikanbai v. Dassimal Gangaram, 45 I. C. 224.

Selection of persons for appointment as receivers and their removal.—The selection and appointment of a particular person as a receiver is a matter of judicial discretion to be determined by the Court according to the circumstances of the case.—Kali Kumari v. Bachhan Singh, 17 C. W. N. 974; 19 I. C. 873; Sripati v. Bibhuti, 53 C. 319; 92 I. C. 940; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 593.

There is no hard and fast rule that a party or his agent should not be appointed a receiver; and that is a question which must be determined under the peculiar circumstances of each case; Dhiyan Singh v. Har Narain, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 780. But as a general rule the receiver appointed should be a disinterested person, although it is competent to the Court upon the consent of the parties and in a proper or special case without such consent, to appoint a person mixed up in the subject-matter of the litigation, if it will be beneficial to the estate.—Bhupendra v. Manohar, 28 C. W. N. 86; Kali Kumari v. Bachhan Singh, noted ante.

Residence beyond jurisdiction is not by itself a fatal objection, but when a non-resident is appointed receiver, there must be an adequate guarantee that he will be subject to the effective control of the Court (Kali Kumari v. Bachhan Singh, noted ante). Residence at a great distance from the property which is to be subject to his management and control, while not regarded as an absolute disqualification for the office, is an important circumstance to be taken into consideration (Ibid). The Court which has the power of appointing a receiver is also invested with the power of dismissal.—A. U. John v. Agra United Mills, 134 I. C. 454; A. I. R. 1931 All 72; 29 A. L. J. 13.

A receiver who has been once appointed cannot be removed merely because he is rather old but he can be removed only for proved incapacity.—Ram Kumar v. Ashutosh, 115 I. C. 831; A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 114. In a matter of appointment of a receiver for equitable execution, the wishes of the creditors are entitled to great weight as they have virtually the right of nomination (Ibid).

The attorney of a party should not be appointed receiver as such an appointment interrupts the arrangement by the party for his defence in the suit.—Johurmull v. Kedar Nath, 55 C. 113; 31 C. W. N. 953; 104 I. C. 387; A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 714.

"Appoint a receiver of any property, whether before or after decree."—The power conferred by the Court by Or. XL, r. 1 (a) to appoint a receiver of any property whether before or after decree, refers only to the appointment of a receiver in respect of the property in regard to which the litigation is pending, that is to say as long as the suit before the Court remains lis pendens, the function of the receiver will continue until he is discharged by the Court.—Chandreswar Prasad v. Bisheswar Pratap, 5 P. L. J. 513 : 1 P. L. T. 642.

Whether issue of notice to the opposite party before appointment of receiver is necessary.—Order XL, r. 1, C. P. Code, does not lay down that notice to the opposite party should be issued before appointing a receiver and it is obvious that in many cases the object of the appointment might be nullified if notice were issued.—Ishri v. Shibram, 71 I. C. 743 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 239 (22 C. 459, 21 M. L. J. 821, 107 P. R. 1908 distd.).

Courts empowered to appoint receivers.—Another most important change in this order is the omission of S. 505, C. P. Code, 1882, under which only the High Courts and the District Judges were empowered to exercise the powers conferred by Chap. XXXVI of the C. P. Code, 1882. The Subordinate Courts could only nominate a person and the District Judge could authorize the Subordinate Courts to appoint the person so nominated or he could pass such other order as he might think fit.

"Having regard to the standard of efficiency, the Committee see no reason to withhold from Subordinate Judges, the power to appoint receivers. They therefore propose that S. 505 of the Code should no longer be retained, for its effect in practice is often to defeat the purpose for which an application is made"—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Power of Court to appoint receivers and grounds for appointment.—The powers conferred by this rule are not to be exercised as a matter of course, and it is not a reason for allowing an application for the appointment of a receiver that it can do no harm to appoint one. The discretion is one that should be exercised with the greatest care and caution. Because a plaintiff in his plaint makes violent and wholesale charges of waste and malversation against a defendant in possession of property as executor under a will or as the tenant for life, and upon this basis applies for a receiver to be appointed, it is not a necessary consequence that such appointment should be made.—Prosonomoyi v. Beni Madhob, 5 A 556; Kumar Satya Narain v. Srimati Rani Keshabaty, 18 C. W. N. 537; Kunhan v. Kannan, 79 I. C. 561 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad 482 : 46 M. L. J. 133.

In an application for the appointment of a receiver, one has got to see the nature of the charges made, and if one finds that they are somewhat vague in character, it is a ground for declining to interfere on an interlocutory application for the appointment of a receiver.—Satish Chandra v. Benoy Krishna, 96 I. C. 30 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1092.

In all cases where a property is in the hands of one co-sharer and the share of the profits is withheld from the other, there is sufficient reason for appointing a receiver.—Basantram v. Dasondhi Mal, 117 I. C. 375 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 497.

When an application is made to the Court to take the property into its hands by appointing a receiver, the plaintiff must prove that prima facie he has a very excellent chance of succeeding in establishing the case made out in his plaint, and in the next place he must satisfy the Court that the property in possession of the opposite party is in danger of being wasted. The mere fact that there is a dispute is no reason whatever for appointing a receiver.—Govind Narayan v. Vallabhrao, 22 Bom. L. R. 217: 55 I. O. 827; Banwari Lal v. Moti Lal, 3 P. L. T. 466: 63 I. C. 656: A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 493; The Firm Raghbir Singh v. Narijan Singh, 72 I. C. 569: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 48; Mahomed Qasim v. Nagaraja, 106 I. C. 167: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 818.

On an interim application for a receivership, the Court has to consider whether special interference with the possession of a defendant is required, there being a well-founded fear that the property in question will be dissipated, or that other irreparable mischief may be done unless the Court gives its protection.—Benoy Krishna v. Satish Chandra Giri, 55 I. A. 131: 55 C. 720 (P. C.): 32 C. W. N. 691: 47 C. L. J. 424: 103 I. C. 348: A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 49: 54 M. L. J. 423: 30 Bom. L. R. 815: 5 O. W. N. 272: 26 A. L. J. 481. See also the judgment of the Calcutta High Court in Satish Chandra Giri v. Benoy Krishna, 96 I. C. 30: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1092.

Waste or misappropriation of property i:
receiver—The fact that the acts complained of rather than waste makes no difference for the mayya v. Venkata Subbaya, 18 M. 23.

The mere fact that a Mahomedan widow is entitled to a lien for dower on her husband's estate is no ground for refusing the appointment of a receiver summarily without enquiry into the merits of the application. There is nothing in Or. XL, r. 1, to prevent the appointment of a receiver in such a case.—Zahros Syed Ali v. Ahmad Syed, 68 I. C. 502: A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 21.

Where both the claimants are mendicants and have no worldly property of their own, and the property in dispute is of considerable value and acts of waste have been found to have been committed by the defendant who is in possession, held, that the appointment of a receiver is the proper order.—Ram Sunder v. Kamal Jha, 32 C. 741.

which might be decreed, are not adequate reasons for the appointment of a receiver.—Muhammad Askari v. Nisar Husain, 43 A. 311: 19 A. L. J. 50.

The removal of a large amount of property by the defendant and under circumstances which might fairly give rise to suspicion during the pendency of the suit in which the question of title to that property would be determined, is a sufficiently strong ground for the appointment of a receiver.—Sia Ram Das v. Mohabir Das, 27 C. 279: 5 C. W. N. 362 (15 C. 818 and 22 C. 459 referred to). See also Sham Chand Giri v. Bhaya Ram Pandey, 5 C. W. N. 365.

Where the subject of dispute between the parties to a litigation was a large impartible zemindari with valuable forests, mines and minerals and the zemindari had long been under the management of the Court of Wards, held, that the case was a fit one for the appointment of a receiver pending the appeal and for stay of execution of the decree by the successful claimant.—Sri Pratap Chandra v. Sri Raja Jagdish Chandra, 37 C. L. J. 417: 75 I. O. 417.

Order XL, r. 1 of the Code prevents the Court from ejecting a person not a party to the suit unless one or other of the parties to the suit has such a right. But the Court has always the power to appoint a receiver to take possession of the properties from the parties to the suit itself and this has nothing to do with the fact that the plaintiff, even if he succeeds, can only get possession and does not seek to eject the defendants.—Kumaraswami v. Pasupathia, 12 L. W. 254.

When a suit is brought under the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885) for arrears of rent and for ejectment of the defendant. Held, that a receiver of the rents and profits of the tenure might properly be appointed under the provisions of this rule.—Kartic Nath v. Padmarund, 11 C. 496.

But where in a suit for recovery of arrears of rent and cess based on an Ijara potta with a prayer for ejectment under S. 66 (2) of the B. T. Act, the prayer for Khas possession as made in the plaint was given up and the plaintiff does not claim as specific appointee of any part of the defendant's separate estate, he is, merely in the nature of general creditors, seeking to obtain payment by a sort of equitable action or assumpsit or debt and has no right to be paid out of a specified fund; and so, he cannot, in general, ask for the appointment of a receiver.—Dharendra v. Surendra, 34 C. W. N. 440: 129 I. C. 609: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 610.

Where disputes arose between two persons as to who was entitled to be a mahant and there was something to be said regarding the claim of each and under the circumstances putting one of them into possession would give him a greater advantage over the other, a proper case was made out for appointing a receiver.—Manohar Das v. Kalyan Das, 69 I. C. 361.

No receiver can be appointed under the Religious Endowments Act. (XX of 1863) except under S. 5 of that Act. A Civil Court has power under that section to appoint a manager only where there is a dispute as to the right of succession.—Gyananand v. Kristo Chandra, 8 C. W. N. 404; Veeraragava v. Krishnasami, 4 M. L. T. 88, where it has been held that a receiver can be appointed in a suit under S. 539, C. P. Code (S. 92). The property of a temple is a subject of the suit within the meaning of this rule and the Court has jurisdiction to appoint a receiver.

A strong case must be made out to induce a Court to dispossess a trustee or executor who is willing to act, and appoint a receiver. (Per Woods, J. in the case of Haines v. Carpenter, quoted at length in the footnote of para. 707 of High on Receivers.) If there is no danger to the trust property and interference is unnecessary by appointing a receiver the Court will not appoint one.—Syed Asad Reza v. Wahidunnissa, 30 C. L. J. 231.

There is no jurisdiction in a Court to appoint a receiver at the instance of a simple creditor, unless the creditor establishes a special equity in his favour for such appointment. The appointment of a receiver is an equitable relief and will be granted only on equitable grounds. The first essential condition for the appointment of a receiver is that the applicant must satisfy the Court that he has an "interest" in the property to be affected by the order.—Pirthi Chand Lal v. Kalikanand Singh, 61 I. C. 849: 6: P. L. J. 366.

Where the executor was to act in consultation with other heirs and the fulfilment of that condition had become impossible that was held to be a sufficient circumstance to justify the appointment of a receiver.—Surendra v. Sushil, 55 C. 249: 109 I. C. 759: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 256.

Where a money-decree against the assets of a deceased debtor was sought to be executed against the property in possession of only one of the heirs holding the deceased's assets, the appointment of a receiver in respect of the whole of the property of such heir so as not to leave anything for the maintenance of his family would not be just or convenient, if the heir was willing to place some property in the hands of the receiver and allow the appropriation of its profits towards payment of the decree.—Sharaf Jahan Begum v. Mohammad Sadiq Ali Khan, A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 40.

In a suit brought by the reversioners of a Hindu widow during her lifetime for a declaration that a certain alienation made by the widow was void, the Court should not appoint a receiver.—Shankarbhai v. Bai Shiv, 54 B. 837: 127 I. C. 897: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 545.

Receiver in partnership suit.—The appointment of a receiver to manage a partnership business where all the partners are not parties to the suit is ultra vires.—Miskanbai v. Dassimal, 45 I. C. 224.

In a suit brought by the widow of a deceased partner to wind up a partnership, the surviving partner was prohibited by the Court, at the instance of the plaintiff, from collecting debts due to the firm; but leave was given to apply for the recovery of debts which might become barred by limitation. After decree, on the application of the plaintiff, a receiver was appointed to collect outstanding debts for the purpose of executing the decree. Held, that the appointment of the receiver was valid.—Shunmugam v. Moidin, 8 M. 229.

Receiver of a Company.—The Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver of a company. If it is necessary to protect the assets, recourse must be had to the provisions of the Companies Acts.—Kailash v. Sadar Munsif, Silchar, 52 C. 513: 88 I. C. 826: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 817.

Receiver in matters referred to arbitration.—When a dispute has been referred to arbitration in accordance with the prayer of all parties, the duty of the Court is to act upon the agreement entered into by the parties themselves and in order to determine whether the Court's power to appoint a receiver has been ousted or not by such reference to arbitration, it will have to be ascertained in each individual case as to what was actually referred. If the Court finds that the question of management interim was also referred, it may defer the consideration of the question of appointment of a receiver in the view that the parties by agreement between themselves have disentitled themselves to the auxiliary relief which otherwise they could have from the Court. If in the petition for reference the words used are "to do all works in connexion with the subject-matter of the suit and to decide the suit" they do not include the passing of orders for interim protection and the Court has jurisdiction to appoint a receiver in such cases.—Surendra v. Sushil, 55 C. 249: 109 I. C. 759: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 256 (referring to Zalinoff v. Hammond, (1898) 2 Ch. 92: 67 L. J. Ch. 370: 78 L. T. 456; and also referring to Law v. Garret, (1878) 8 Ch. 26: 38 L. T. 3; Compagnie du execution of whose decree he is appointed; nor can it be said that the moneys realised by the receiver become ipso facto moneys belonging to the judgment-creditor, and, as moneys paid to the credit of the judgment-creditor's suit the moment the receiver comes into possession of the same.—Natesa Pillai v. Gorindasami, A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 4.

It is within the discretion of a Court appointing a receiver in a suit to order that the office should continue permanently after the decree, when such continuance is necessary or for so long as it may be so. A decree of the High Court directing the permanent receivership was held not in variation of the judgment which it purported to follow; and that the Court had a discretion to make such an order when necessary for the preservation of the estate.—Mathusri Umamba v. Mathusri Dipamba, 23 I. A. 28· 19 M. 120 (P. C.).

For other cases on the appointment of Receiver by way of execution, see notes to S. 51 (d), ante.

Receiver of property in hand of common manager.—A receiver can be appointed in respect of property in the hands of a common manager appointed under S. 95 of the B. T. Act.—Madaneswar v. Mahamaya Prosad, 15 C. W. N. 672; 13 C. L. J. 487; and the fact that an application for the appointment of a common manager is pending before the District Judge does not preclude the Sub-Judge before whom the suit is pending from appointing a receiver in a proper case.—Jibanessa v. Majidunnessa, 17 C. W. N. 581.

The District Judge has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver of properties which are the subject of a suit or attachment in other Courts, even though such Courts may have been subordinate to his Court.—Latafat Hossain v. Anunt Chowdhry, 23 C. 517.

Receiver in joint family partition suit.—The words "the owner" in Or. XL, Cl. (1) (d), mean the whole body of owners to whom the joint estate belongs. In a suit for partition of a joint estate, the Court has jurisdiction to place the whole of a joint estate out of which a plaintiff seeks to have his share partitioned in the hands of a receiver, and to order that the receiver shall be at liberty to raise money on the security of the whole joint estate.—Paresh v. Omerio, 17 C. 614.

The Court will not appoint a receiver in a partition suit between members of a joint family except by consent and specially where the family property consists of land. Thus in order that a receiver should be appointed of joint family property in a partition suit special circumstances will have to be proved before the Court will be entitled to appoint a receiver.—Gorind Narayan v. Vallabh Rao, 22 Bom. L. R. 217; 55 I. C. 827.

Receiver in mortgage suit.—A receiver may be appointed at the suit of a first mortgagee when there is reason to apprehend that the property was insufficient to pay the incumbrances thereon. Whether the mortgagee is or is not entitled to possession, he may invite the Court to appoint a receiver, if the demands of justice require that the mortgagor should be deprived of possession. A receiver can be appointed at the instance of a mortgagee who holds a simple mortgage.—Rameswar Singh v. Chuni Lal, 31 C. L. J. 385; Gobind Ram v. Jwala Pershad, 43 I. C. 533; Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Moosaji, 102 I. C. 353; A. I. R. 1927 Sind 230; 23 S. L. R. 49. See Dhian Singh v. Har Narain, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 780.

A hard and fast rule cannot be laid down as to under what circumstances a receiver should be appointed at the instance of a simple mortgagee, but in order to justify the appointment of a receiver there should ordinarily be some loss or detriment not foreseen by the mortgagee at the time he took a simple mortgage, which loss could not be compensated except by appointing a receiver.—Ethirajulu v. Rajaopalachari, 115 I. C. 244; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 138; 56 M. L. J. 115.

The Court may appoint a receiver at the instance of a mortgagee where the action is either for foreclosure or sale, if there is reason to suspect that the security is insufficient or if the interest is in arrear (7 C. W. N. 452 and 16 C. W. N. 997 referred to); and the right of the mortgagee to ask for a receiver is not affected by the fact that a decree for sale has been passed, because the suit cannot be said to terminate till the property is sold or the mortgage-money paid.—Manindra v. Suniti Bala, 95 I. C. 632; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1006. The High Court of Rangoon has also held that where a mortgage decree-holder after obtaining a preliminary decree for sale of the mortgaged premises asked for the appointment of a receiver to collect the rents of the mortgaged premises, a receiver may be appointed and such appointment would be binding not only on the parties to the suit but also on any purchaser of the interest of the mortgagor in the premises, and so long as interest on the mortgage was in arrear the application for the appointment of a receiver by the opposite party cannot be successfully opposed; Khoo Joo Tin v. Ma Sein, 6 R. 261; 110 I. C. 620; A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 176 (following Ahmed Cassim v. Solappa, 4 I. C. 1031; 5 L. B. R. 135). In Kshitish v. Raja Janakinath, 35 C. W. N. 1141, it has been held that a receiver can be appointed in a mortgage suit even after the passing of the decree for sale, but the Court should, before making the appointment, come to the conclusion that it is just and necessary; and where subsequent to the order appointing a receiver but before the actual appointment, certain sales had been effected, the Court should consider whether an appointment is still necessary.

When the properties contained in the mortgages are part of an undertaking for the supply of electric energy to which the prohibition in S. 9 (2), Electricity Act (IX of 1910) applies, the mortgage is void ab initio and it cannot give such mortgagee, who has got only a simple money-decree a right to the appointment of a receiver.—Meyappa Chettyar v. Ma Zu, 127 I. C. 176; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 271.

Where in a mortgage suit an interim receiver was appointed and the properties were sold in execution and the sale was made absolute and a certificate granted to the purchaser, it is the purchaser and not the receiver who is entitled subsequently to sue for possession of the property.—Abdulla v. B. K. Chatterjee, 9 R. 565.

A receiver can be appointed under this rule, in a suit to enforce a mortgage.—Ghanashyam Misser v. Gobinda Moni, 7 C. W. N. 452 (3 C. 335; 1 C. L. R. 295 declared obsolete). As regards the Court's power to appoint a receiver of mortgaged property, see also Latafat Hossein v. Anunt Chowdhry, 23 C. 517; Jaikisson Das v. Zenabai, 14 B. 431; Weatherall v. Eastern Mortgage Agency Co., 13 C. L. J. 495.

31 C. L. J. 385; Gobind Ram v. Jwala Pershad, 43 I. C. 533; Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Moosaji, 102 I. C. 353; A. I. R. 1927 Sind 230; 23 S. L. R. 49. See Dhian Singh v. Har Narain, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 780.

Where in a mortgage suit an interim receiver was appointed and the properties were sold in execution and the sale was made absolute and a certificate granted to the purchaser, it is the purchaser and not the receiver who is entitled subsequently to sue for possession of the property.—Abdulla v. B. K. Chatterjee, 9 R. 565.

A receiver can be appointed under this rule, in a suit to enforce a mortgage.—Ghanashyam Misser v. Gobinda Moni, 7 C. W. N. 452 (3 C. 335; 1 C. L. R. 295 declared obsolete). As regards the Court's power to appoint a receiver of mortgaged property, see also Latafut Hossain v. Anunt Chowdhry, 23 C. 517; Jaikisson Das v. Zenabai, 14 B. 431; Weatherall v. Eastern Mortgage Agency Co., 13 C. L. J. 495.

An equitable mortgagee, though not entitled to possession of mortgaged properties, has the right to ask for the appointment of a receiver in his mortgage suit; Maharaja of Pittapuram v. Gokuldoss, 54 M. 565: 133 I. C. 504: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 626: 61 M. L. J. 111; Jaswant Singh v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 133 I. C. 433.

Where a receiver is appointed, the delay of the Court in adjudicating upon the mortgagee's right to the profits does not prejudice him, nor does the order of the Court permitting the mortgagor a certain time, not exceeding 6 months to pay off the mortgage amount enable the mortgagor not only to withhold payment of the interest which accrues due during that period but to claim that the rents of the mortgaged property recovered by the receiver during that period be applied to purposes other than the payment of interest due on the mortgage.—In re Moolji Murarji, 115 I. C. 306: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 114: 23 S. L. R. 200.

Receiver of future earnings of judgment-debtor.—The Court has no jurisdiction to enforce satisfaction of a judgment-debt by appointing a receiver of the future earnings of the judgment-debtor.—Asad Ali v. Haidar Ali, 38 C. 13; Ranee Annapurni v. Swaminatha, 34 M. 7 at p. 9. Likewise, no receiver can be appointed in respect of future allowances of maintenance payable to a judgment-debtor.—Pali Kandy v. Krishnan, 40 M. 302.

"Remove any person."—The word "person" in r. 1 (1) (b) refers to a person other than the receiver.—Ramaswami v. Ayyalu, 46 M. L. J. 196: 78 I. C. 625: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 614; Sripati v. Bibhuti, 53 C. 319: 92 I. C. 940: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 593. It refers to persons interested in the property and in possession or custody of it prior to the passing of an order appointing a receiver.—Sripati v. Bhupati, 53 C. 319: 92 I. C. 940: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 593.

The Court on an objection being made by persons, who are not parties to the suit, claiming the properties to be theirs and in their possession, is bound by Or. XL, r. 1 (2), C. P. Code to come to a definite finding as to the truth of these allegations before it can take possession of the property.—E 34 C. L. J. 123.

A Civil Court has no power to appoint a receiver in supersession of a receiver appointed by a Magistrate under S. 146, Cl. (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure.—Bidyaprasad v. Ashrafi, 40 C. 862; similarly when a Civil Court appoints a receiver, a Magistrate has no jurisdiction under S. 145, Cr. P. Code, to interfere with him in respect of his possession of the property without the sanction of the Civil Court.—Dunne v. Kumar Chandra Kisore, 30 C. 593. One subordinate Court has no power to restrain the action of another subordinate Court with co-ordinate powers. Therefore, where a subordinate Judge had appointed a receiver; held, that it was not competent to another subordinate Judge to issue a rubkari to the first Court requesting it to restrain the receiver from taking possession of a part of the property in respect of which the receiver had been appointed.—Chaudhry Kidar Nath v. Mahmood Ali Khan, 2 P. L. T. 716: 6 P. L. J. 268.

The powers of a receiver are regulated by Or. XL of the C. P. Code, and the only ground upon which his possession can be resisted is under sub-clause (2) of r. 1 of Or. XL of the Code. Where a person who refuses to deliver possession to a receiver is ordered by the Court to do so, his remedy is by appeal under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (s) of the C. P. Code.—Mussamat Dulhin Sona Kuer v. Jamil Ahmad, 48 I. C. 779.

Order XL, r. 1 (2) deals with cases in which the property is in the possession of a third party and the parties to the suit have no present right to disturb him; but as between parties to the suit, a receiver can be appointed if it is just and convenient for enforcing or carrying out the directions of the decree though one of the parties is in possession and is not liable to be removed.—Vythilinga Pandara Sannadhi v. The Board of Control, Sri Thiagaraja Swami Devasthanam, 61 M. L. J. 904. Where a creditor, who had purchased the rights of a person in execution of a decree, is made a party to a suit brought by the person's wife and son for partition and declaration that certain decrees, mortgages and attachments were not binding on them, a Court can on a creditor's application appoint a receiver although such creditor being a purchaser of an undivided share has no present right of possession of the property without enforcing partition of the whole estate.—Babarao v. Narayanrao, 119 I. C. 687; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 283.

Where a creditor is put into possession of property for the purpose of enabling him to realise the proceeds and appropriate the same towards the repayment of his debt, his possession or custody is not protected by Or. XL, r. 1 (2) of the C. P. Code.—Hilendra Singh v. Rameshwar Singh, 6 P. L. J. 37; 2 P. L. T. 593; 61 I. C. 67; on appeal to Privy Council, 29 C. W. N. 413; 40 C. L. J. 431; 47 M. L. J. 286; 22 A. L. J. 968; A. I. R. 1924 P. C. 202, 206; 81 I. C. 576; 82 I. C. 794.

Power as to the execution of documents.—A receiver has power to execute a conveyance, under this rule, including the share of a minor defendant.—Basir Ali v. Hafiz Nazir Ali, 43 C. 124; 19 C. W. N. 817; 30 I. C. 406.

"Realization of property."—Where a receiver has been appointed, the Court, after the dismissal of a suit, has no power to give the receiver any fresh power as for instance liberty to sell.—Rabeholme v. Smith, 34 C. 336.

"All such powers as to bringing and defending suits etc., as the owner himself has"—Where a receiver is appointed with full powers under Or. XL, Cl. (1) (d) that is, with such powers as to bringing suits as the owner himself has, the receiver is entitled to sue in his own name though not expressly authorized to do so.—Fink v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh, 25 C. 642; Jagat Tarini Das v. Naba Gopal, 34 C. 305; 5 C. L. J. 270. The words "all such powers, etc.," are wide enough to empower the Court to authorise a receiver to sue in his own name; where, therefore, a receiver is so authorised he may sue in his own name.—Oriental Bank v. Gobin Lall, 10 C. 713.

A receiver appointed under this rule, with such powers as to bringing suits as the owner himself has, is entitled to institute a suit for possession, though as regards suits for possession of property the ordinary rule is that the person, in whom the present title to the property is, should sue.—Haji Cassim v. K. B. Dutt, 19 C. W. N. 45. As a receiver takes such title as the owner himself had, he cannot sue for possession of the property in a case where the owner himself could not.—Mahamad Kasim Sahib v. Panchapakea, 35 M. 578.

A receiver empowered to collect outstandings and do all things necessary for the realization and preservation of the assets of a firm, has no power to mortgage the property of the firm.—Subramonian v. Lutchman, 60 I. A. 77: 1 R. 66 (P. C.): 50 C. 338: 28 C. W. N. 1: 38 C. L. J. 41: 71 I. C. 650: A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 50: 44 M. L. J. 602: 25 Bom. L. R. 582. But a receiver of mortgaged properties, on whom has been conferred "the same powers of realization, management and protection as the owners themselves have," has a discretionary power of sale.—Rameshwar v. Hitendra, 29 C. W. N. 43 (P. C.): 40 C. L. J. 431: 81 I. C. 576: 82 I. C. 794: A. I. R. 1924 P. C. 202, 206: 47 M. L. J. 286: 26 Bom. L. R. 1153.

"Collection of the rents and profits thereof."—Where the receiver was given power to collect outstandings and do all things necessary for the realization and preservation of the assets of a firm; held, the receiver had no authority to mortgage the property of the firm.—Subramonian v. Lutchman, 50 I. A. 77: 1 R. 66 (P. C.): 50 C. 338: 28 C. W. N. 1: 38 C. L. J. 41: 71 I. C. 650: A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 50: 44 M. L. J. 602: 25 Bom. L. R. 582.

Position and powers of a receiver and whether he is an officer of the Court.—The preservation of the subject-matter of the litigation pending a judicial determination of the rights of the parties thereto, is the object and

The receiver is appointed for the tentative of the Court and of all n he is appointed.—Jagat Tarini J. 270.

The receiver in a suit is nothing more than the hand of the Court for the purpose of holding the property of the litigants, whenever it is necessary that it should be kept in the grasp of the Court in order to preserve the subject-matter of the suit, pendente lite, and the possession of the receiver is simply the possession of the Court. He has no personal rights in the property, nor can he take any steps with regard to it, without the sanction of the Court.—Wilkinson v. Gangadhar, 6 B. L. R. 486. See also Orr v. Muthia, 17 M. 501, 503; Administrator-General v. Prem Lal, 22 C. 1011, 1015.

Where a receiver has been appointed by a Court of one place to collect rents and profits and distribute the same to some persons and subsequently with the leave of that Court another suit was instituted in another Court against the receiver and certain other persons, the latter Court has no jurisdiction to grant an injunction against the said receiver restraining him from making the distributions directed by the former Court, and the receiver also is not competent to consent to such an injunction being granted; and the giving of leave by the former Court to institute a suit against the receiver does not amount to a relinquishment of possession of the property or to a direction that the receiver should act according to the direction of the Court in which he is sued.—Jugal Kishore v. Deva Prasanna, 7 P. 684: 110 I. C. 722: A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 321: 9 P. L. T. 279. See also Sridhar v. Mugniram, 3 P. 357: 78 I. C. 620: A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 491.

A receiver is a servant of the Court, and has only such power and authority as the Court may choose to give him.—Manick Lal v. Surrut Coomaree, 22 C. 648. He is a public officer.—Jagadish v. Debendra, 58 C. 850: 35 C. W. N. 161: 132 I. C. 634: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 503. But he is merely a custodian of the properties by order of the Court, and not a judicial officer; and in that capacity it may be his duty to institute a suit on behalf of the estate, but it cannot be that any such officer can act as a Judge in the Court in which the suits are instituted.—Kershaji v. Kaikhusru, A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 478 : 31 Bom. L. R. 1081.

The receiver does not represent the estate for which he is receiver, but is merely an officer of the Court, and, as such, cannot sue and be sued except with the permission of the Court—Miller v. Ram Ranjan, 10 C. 1014; Secunder v. J. A. M. Kasiyar & Co., 1 R. 138 : A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 209. The receiver can neither sue nor be sued without the leave of the Court—Dunne v. Kumar Chandra Kisore, 30 C. 593. See also Pramatha Nath v. Khetra Nath, 32 C. 270 : 9 C. W. N. 247, where it has been further held that a subsequent application for permission to continue the action brought without leave of Court cannot cure the defect. But see Rustomjee Dhanjibhai v. Fredrick Gaebele, 46 C. 352 : 23 C. W. N. 496 · 51 I C. 486, in which it has been held (dissenting from 10 C. 1014, 32 C. 270, 30 C. 593) that it is competent for the Court to grant leave to continue a suit instituted by or against a receiver of the Court without such leave, provided a proper case is made out.

This rule authorizes the Court to grant to the receiver all such powers as to bringing and defending suits as the owner himself has. It is competent to a Court to authorize a receiver to sue in his own name and a receiver who is authorized to sue, though not expressly in his own name, may do so by virtue of his appointment with full powers under this rule. See also the cases referred to in this connection.—Jagat Tarini v. Naba Gopal, 34 C. 305 : 5 C. L. J. 270; Satya Kirpal v. Satya Bhupal, 18 C. W. N. 546 : 19 C. L. J. 191. Clause (d) of Or. XL, r. 1, gives the Court complete discretion as to the powers to be conferred on a receiver.—Secretary of State v. Komaragiri, 30 M. L. J. 456.

Where a Court has granted permission to the receiver under Or. XL, r. 1 (1) (d) to file a suit for the enforcement of a pattah under the provisions of the Madras Estates Land Act and dismissed the application subsequently filed by the ryots to cancel the order granting the said permission for the institution of such a suit, the receiver is a "person entitled to the rent" within the meaning of S. 26 (3) of the Madras Estates Land Act.—Muthuvira Relli v. Venkatesa Mutali, 57 M. L. J. 669 : (1923) M. W. N. 739 (distinguished Swaminatha v. Sundaram, 44 M. 274, in which it has been held, that although a receiver stands in the shoes of the owner and exercises all or most of the powers of the owner with reference to the management of the property, there is, according to the wording of S. 46 (5) of the Madras Estates Land Act I of 1918, a distinction between persons who are owners of the estate and persons who may be entitled to collect rents of the estate and do other acts contemplated by the Act as land-holder, and therefore an application by a non-occupancy ryot under S. 46 of the said Act to a receiver of the estate, for confirming occupancy right is not valid, because the statute provides that such application should be made to the owner of the estate himself).

After the termination of the litigation in which a receiver had been appointed and before a formal order discharging him could be obtained from the Court which appointed him, on account of the closing of that

Court, the receiver has locus standi to prefer an appeal against an adverse decision in a suit previously started by him in the interest of the estate against a tenant, and such an appeal is competent even though the litigation in which the receiver was appointed had terminated.—Muthuvira Reddi v. Venkatesa Mudali, noted ante

A receiver has no power to lease a debutter property without the sanction of the Court; and any misrepresentation or concealment of material facts from the Court in connection with the proposed lease at the time of obtaining sanction would vitiate the authority of the receiver to grant the lease; and in the lease, an additional clause cannot be introduced which was not contained in the terms proposed in the application for sanction; and if the lease be disadvantageous and not for the benefit of the debutter estate it is liable to be cancelled.—Srish v. Debendra, 50 C. L. J. 333 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 823.

A receiver appointed to take charge of the property of a firm pending proceedings for a dissolution, with power to do all things necessary for the realization and preservation of the assets, has no power to mortgage the property without the sanction of the Court.—Subramonian v. Lutchan, 50 I. A. 77 : 1 R. 66 (P. C.) : 50 C. 338 : 23 C. W. N. 1 : 38 C. L. J. 41 : 71 I. C. 650 : A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 50 : 44 M. L. J. 602 : 25 Bom. L. R. 582.

A receiver appointed by the High Court, without special leave of the Court, served a notice to quit, on certain tenants of the estate, who claimed to hold a permanent lease, and afterwards instituted a suit to eject them. Held, that as the order appointing him did not give him power to serve such notice or to institute such suit without special leave of the Court, and as he was not vested with the general powers referred to in this rule, but only with a limited power referred to in the order appointing him, and as a receiver is not otherwise authorized to institute such suits, the suit must be dismissed.—Drobnanyi v. Davis, 14 C. 323. But see Meer Mahomed v. J. Homasjee, 39 I. C. 92. But where under the terms of the order appointing the receiver he was authorized to sue to eject, without obtaining the permission of the Court, it was held that the receiver had a right to sue without permission of Court.—Huri Dass v. Macgregor, 18 C. 477. The Court has authority, under this rule, to confer on a receiver the power to sue in his own name; and if the order appointing the receiver gives him liberty, he may do so.—Fink v. Moharaj Bahadur, 25 C. 642. See also Oriental Bank v. Gobin Lall, 10 C. 713.

Where a receiver is validly appointed on the ground that the property was the subject of the suit and it afterwards turns out in appeal that the decree only operates against the defendant personally, the appellate Court has jurisdiction to maintain the receiver as a means of realizing the amount from the judgment-debtor personally, and the property must be considered under attachment, although not attached under S. 217, C. P. Code 1892 (Or. XXI, r. 54).—Ramasami Naik v. Ramasami Chetti, 30 M. 255 : 17 M. L. J. 201.

Although the dismissal of a suit may in some cases mean the discharge of the receiver, still the Court has jurisdiction over the receiver who is an officer of the Court and the Court may require him to furnish accounts, to allow parties to examine accounts, and to deal with all the matters connected with the management by the receiver.—Chandershwar Prasad v. Bisheshwar Pratap, 5 P. L. J. 513 : 1 P. L. T. 643.

A zemindari having been attached by a creditor, a receiver was appointed with full powers under this rule, and he sued to recover rent at the rate reserved in the lease granted by the zemindar before his appointment. Held, that the receiver was entitled to recover the rent claimed. The provisions of S. 503 of the Code, 1882 (this rule), were intended to declare that the receiver, in respect of all property which was or could be attached, had the powers of the owner as they existed at the time the property was brought under the orders of the Court by attachment, provided that they have not ceased by operation of law.—Gopala Sami v. Sankara, 8 M. 418.

A zemindari was attached in execution, and the plaintiff was appointed receiver with full powers under this rule. Before the appointment of the receiver the zemindar had expended certain sums at the defendant's request to repair a tank for the irrigation of lands held by them in common with him. The receiver sued to recover the sums expended. It was objected that the receiver could not sue as the sum sued for was neither the subject of a suit against the zemindar nor properly attached in execution against him. Held, that the receiver could maintain the suit.—Sundaram v. Sankara, 9 M 334.

A receiver or any other person (such as manager) appointed by the Court as an officer of the Court to manage the property in dispute, has no power to pledge the credit of any individual party as an agent of the party.—Binjraj Marwari v. Das Mookerjee & Co., A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 659. But the Court may authorize the receiver to borrow money as a first charge on the property in his possession for the purpose of preserving it from loss or injury, and where a mortgage is executed by the receiver under such authority from the Court, it takes priority over any charge of earlier date.—Giridhari Lal v. Dharendra Krista, 11 C. W. N. 1 : 34 C. 427 (Rampini, J. holding a contrary view). When however a suit, dismissed, the Court has no power as for instance, liberty

When a receiver has been appointed at the instance of the decree-holder after attachment of the rents and profits of the judgment-debtor's share therein, and the judgment-debtor did not attack the order in appeal, a third party has no locus standi to make a subsequent application to appoint himself receiver of the same property on the basis of an agreement executed in his favour by the judgment-debtor to the effect that the decretal amount was payable by him and that the judgment-debtor agreed to sell the property to him.—Jai Indar v. Baldeo Singh, 110 I. G. 410 : A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 295 : 5 C. W. N. 463.

Where a receiver is given full powers under the provisions of Or. XL, r. 1 (d) of the C. P. Code, no special leave of the Court is necessary for giving notice to quit or for a suit for compensation for use and occupation.—Meer Mahomed v. J. Hormasjee, 38 I. C. 92.

Possession of receiver enures for the benefit of the true owner.—Where the Court has appointed a receiver and the receiver is in possession his possession is the possession of the Court and the possession of the Court by the receiver is the possession of all parties to the action according to their titles. The property passes into legal custody as the receiver is in the position of a stake-holder and such custody is for the benefit of the true owner.—Dnyendra Narayan v. Jages Chandra, 39 C. L. J. 40 (22 C. L. J. 283, 30 M. 12; 17 C. 814, 5 C. L. J. 270 refd. to); In re K. O. Bonnerjee, 107 I. C. 739. A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 402.

Duties and liabilities of receivers and of the estate.—Persons contracting with a receiver and manager who is carrying on the business of a company, and are cognizant of his appointment must be taken to know that he is contracting as principal and not as agent for the company whose powers are paralysed: and the receivers and managers appointed by the Court are personally liable to persons dealing with them in respect of liabilities incurred or contracts entered into by them in carrying on the business unless the express terms of the contract exclude, as they may do, any personal liability; and any questions to which the want of sanction may give rise are matters as between the receiver and the Court which appointed him, which, it may be, will indemnify the receiver if he has acted bona fide.—Ramnarayan v. Carey, 58 C. 174. 134 I. C. 1266; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 491 (relying on Burt Boulton v. Bull, (1895) 1 Q. B. 276; In re Glasdir Copper Mines Ltd., (1906) 1 Ch. 365; Parsons v. Sovereign Bank of Canada, (1913) A. C. 160).

A creditor is entitled to proceed against the representative of an estate for a recovery of debt incurred by the receiver during his management: the right to maintain such suit against the representative is founded on the just and of the Court do not and cannot under ordinary circumstances create obligations binding on the estate in favour of creditors.—Mohari Bibi v. Shyama Bibi, 30 C. 937; 7 C. W. N. 799.

N obtained a money-decree against P in 1918 and mortgaged the decree to M and subsequently assigned it to the latter in 1920 and thereafter M sued upon the mortgage and obtained a preliminary decree and was appointed receiver of the decree against P and thereafter a final decree was passed in 1922, in which there was no reference to M's receivership. P then filed a suit against N and attached the said decree before judgment and a consent-decree was passed in 1923 by which N agreed to redeem M and to effect a second mortgage to P and the attachment was allowed to continue. But N at his right to the consent-

d that M was entitled to appeal against P from the order dismissing his application in as much as he was a representative of N.—Nadirshaw v. Purshottamdas, 118 I. C. 694: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 279: 31 Bom. L. R. 320.

In execution of a decree, a receiver was appointed to collect certain rents due to the judgment-debtor. Some of the judgment-debtor's tenants paid the rents due by them into the hands of the receiver, but the receiver did not pay the monies collected by him into Court, but misappropriated them. Held, that the payment by the tenants to the receiver did not, pro tanto, discharge the judgment-debtor from liability under the decree.—Orr v. Muthia Chetty, 17 M. 501 (on appeal 20 M. 224).

A receiver appointed under this rule to collect the rents of an estate, is bound to make good a loss caused to it by a breach of his duties. A receiver is not justified in delegating or entrusting to another a duty entrusted to him by the Court. He should in all important matters apply for and obtain the direction of the Judge who appoints him. A receiver is entitled to his costs, charges and expenses properly incurred in the discharge of his duties.—Balaji Narayan v. Ram Chandra Govind, 19 B. 660.

The provisions of r. 3 make it clear that a receiver has certain duties and that he is responsible to the Court for those duties, and he cannot say that he is appointed to look after the interests of the parties and is only responsible to them. Part of his ordinary duties is to pay into Court or to some one else, as the Court may direct, amounts which he has in his hands or has collected; and such payment would include periodical payments which he is directed to make or amounts which on investigation of his accounts he is directed to pay. Amounts which he is directed to pay in connection with his accounts may include amounts which those accounts show should have been in his hands and amounts which his account, if properly kept, would have shown he ought to have in his hands. The payment of those amounts into Court or into a Bank or otherwise, as the Court directs, is all part of the ordinary duties of the receiver as laid down in r. 3, and he has to pay those amounts under the ordinary control of the Court, which can direct the general conduct and administration of the estate.—Gurumurthi v. Ramaswami, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 760: (1931) M. W. N. 830.

A Court has jurisdiction in special cases and on special conditions, to order a receiver to pay the pressing claims of creditors against the estate or part-owners thereof, out of the money in his hand.—Motivahu v. Premvahu, 16 B. 511. But the Court has no power to order that the receiver should, out of the estate, satisfy the claims of persons other than the decree-holders.—Thakoor Chunder v. Chowdhry Chotee Singh, Marsh, 261: 2 Hay. 112.

The receiver suing or being sued is in the same position as an ordinary litigant and therefore he is personally bound to pay the costs decreed against him and get himself re-imbursed out of the estate.—Moti Lal v. Sonu Singh, 194 I. C. 272: A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 143.

Sale of property by receiver.—A sale of properties, the subject of a suit, by the receiver under the order of the Court, cannot, in the absence of fraud, be attacked collaterally by persons who were parties thereto or their representatives.—Gorachand v. Makhan Lal, 11 O. W. N. 489: 6 C. L. J. 401 (6 B. L. R. 486 referred to).

A sale of properties, the subject of a suit, by the receiver is not a sale by the Court. The fact that such person is the Court's receiver does not place him in a different position. When the receiver sells under such an order, it is necessary that he, being in possession of the property, should be a party to the conveyance.—Chandra Nath v Biswa Nath, 6 B. L. R. 492-note.

Purchase by receiver at auction-sale.—When a receiver does not obtain special leave to bid at an execution-sale a sale in his favour is void. An application to have the sale set aside on that ground fails under S. 47 and a second appeal lies from the order disposing of the application.—Jiteswari v Sudha Krishna, 59 C. 956; 36 C. W. N. 125; 55 C. L. J. 85.

Receiver's liability to account.—A Court, having appointed a receiver in a suit, has authority, incidental to its jurisdiction, to order him to account, although the suit may be no longer pending. The estate is in its hands, and the receiver is its officer, and the dismissal of the suit by an appellate Court does not alter that state of things. The Original Court in such a case may permit parties interested to intervene on questions as to the accounts, and may deal with costs and other matters.—Administrator-General of Bengal v. Prem Lal Mullick, 22 I. A. 203; 22 C. 1011 (P. C.). See Ganeshlal v. Satya Narayan, 54 I. C. 207; 4 P. L. J. 636; 1920 P. 35.

A receiver is responsible for all properties which come to his custody or management, and he is responsible not only for actual sums received by him, but for those which might have been received by him, but for his wilful neglect and default. The mode of examining and passing receiver's accounts pointed out.—Coomar Suttia Sankar v. Rane Golap Monee, 5 C. W. N. 223 (19 B 660 referred to). See also Mohini Mohan v. Ram Narain and Barada Kanta, 14 C. L. J. 415; 12 I. C. 780, in which the duties of receiver and his liability to account, and the Court's power to enquire even when he has passed his accounts, and all parties have expressed themselves satisfied, have been fully stated.

An application to take accounts against a receiver on a footing of wilful default and neglect must be made by suit and cannot be entertained when the receiver is passing his accounts.—Subal Chandra v. Jatindra, 53 C. 881; 99 I. C. 761; A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 175.

A receiver is not liable to account for any period other than that for which he is appointed.—Samhanta v. Bhagwati, 5 P. L. J. 97; 55 I. C. 15; 1920 P. 121.

In all applications for payment of money by a receiver, the receiver must state to the Court about funds in his hands and about claims on the same.—Chaitan, 103.

The accounts submitted by the receiver should be supported by vouchers which will be admitted as evidence of payment unless reasonable ground for impeaching them is shown.—Teller v. Golam, 40 C. L. J. 23; 82 I. C. 419; A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 1063.

For enforcement of receiver's duties, see Or. XL, r. 4 and notes thereunder.

Remuneration of receivers and security to be furnished by them.—Under this rule, the Court is to determine what fee or commission a receiver is entitled to by way of remuneration. The receiver is an officer of the Court, and the parties cannot by any act of theirs add to or derogate from the functions of the Court without its authority. An agreement between a receiver and a party regarding his remuneration without the knowledge of the Court is a gross contempt of Court and is void.—Prokash Chandra v. Adlam, 30 C. 696 (22 C. 648 referred to).

A receiver is generally remunerated by the method of a percentage or commission, but there is no absolute rule that he should be so remunerated. The Court has a discretion, if it thinks fit, to allow him a remuneration at a fixed rate.—Srepat Singh v. Ram Sarup Surya Prasad, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 516.

Where the order of Court appointing receivers in a certain business provided for their commission at a certain percentage on "gross sale proceeds," they are not entitled to commission at that percentage on the sum shown as "trade discount" in as much as "proceeds" mean produce, outcome or profit, and an amount which is never received, viz., the so-called "trade discount" cannot be a part of proceeds, but they might be allowed to retain such commission on freight and packing charges.—Kabalamurthi v. Subramania, 131 I. C. 655 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 500 : 60 M. L. J. 332.

A receiver appointed in insolvency proceedings under the C. P. Code is entitled to a lien for the amount of his commission on the net assets remaining after payment of the charges specified in S. 356, Cls. (b), (c) and (d) of the C. P. Code, 1882.—Mahadeva v. Kuppusami, 15 M. 233.

A receiver who is divested by an erroneous order, has a lien on the estate for his claims and allowances.—Prem Lall v. Sumbhoo Nath, 22 C. 960.

The Court has inherent jurisdiction to order a plaintiff to refund to a party, whom he has wrongly impleaded in a suit, the commission and charges incurred by a receiver of the property of that party, when the suit as against him is dismissed and the receivership cancelled.—Naikwara v. Ma Aye Byu, 1 R. 770 : A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 181 : 79 I. C. 721.

Though under the Civil Procedure Code the Court has discretion to appoint a receiver without security it should obviously be done only in the most exceptional cases. Where most of the parties to the suit were females or minors, the receiver should generally not be allowed unfettered control of monies and securities without adequate security being furnished ; Brij Indar Kuar v. Jai Indar Bahadur, 59 I. A. 311 : 36 C. W. N. 882 : 56 C. L. J. 48 : 9 O. W. N. 571 : 137 I. A. 900 : A. I. R. 1932 P. C. 191.

Suit by or against receiver—Leave of Court.—A receiver cannot sue or be sued except with the leave of the Court by which he was appointed receiver.—Miller v. Ram Ranjan, 10 C. 1014 ; Dunne v. Kumar Chandra Kisore, 30 C. 593 ; Fink v. Corporation of Calcutta, 30 C. 721 ; U On Maung v. Ebrahim, 6 R. 269 : 110 I. C. 622 : A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 175.

The rule is firmly established that, as against a stranger to the action who is in actual possession, the appointment of a receiver is of no effect. But it is equally well-settled that you cannot sue a receiver except with the leave of the Court. The latter rule is founded upon the doctrine that a suit against the receiver is in substance a suit against the Court that appointed the receiver and that a suit against the receiver should not be permitted except upon leave duly obtained from the Court which appointed the receiver.—Amulya v. Kashinath, 103 I. C. 797 : A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 297.

Where a receiver appointed in a suit interferes with the possession of third parties, it is open to the latter to apply to the Court for redress and for an injunction restraining the receiver from such trespass. It is not necessary for them to file a separate suit.—Thavasimuthu v. Balaguruswami, 17 L. W. 64 : 70 I. C. 673 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 304.

When a party feels aggrieved at the conduct of a Receiver, he should seek redress against him in the proceeding in which he was appointed. If separate proceedings be taken against him, either in that Court or elsewhere, they should be with the leave of the Court, under whose authority the receiver was acting.—Kamatchi v. Sundaram Ayyar, 26 M. 492. The Court will dispose of the matter summarily in simple cases.—K. K. Secunder v. J. A. N. Kasiyar, 1 R. 138 : 76 I. C. 441 : A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 208; and if the applicant has shown diligence.—Sreedhar v. Nilmoni, 41 C. L. J. 197 : 86 I. C. 677 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 681. But if questions of title are involved, the Court will authorise a suit to be brought against the receiver.—(Ibid). There is no statutory provision which requires a party to take the leave of the Court to sue a receiver. It is a rule based upon public policy and has come down to us as a part of the rules of equity binding upon all Courts of Justice in this country.—Braja Bhushan v. Sris, 4 P. L. J. 20 : 47 I. C. 719 : (1918) P. 337. In Pramathanath v. Khetranath, 32 C. 270, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that the leave of the Court to sue a receiver was a condition precedent to the right to sue and that if the leave was not obtained before suit, it could not be granted subsequent to the institution of the suit and the suit should be dismissed. This decision was dissented from in Banku Behari v. Harendra, 15 C. W. N. 54; Sarat v. Apurba, 15 C. W. N. 925; Maharaja of Burdwan v. Apurba, 15 C. W. N. 872, where it was held that the leave may be granted even after the institution of the suit. The Bombay High Court, in Jamsedji v. Husseinbhai, 44 B. 903, also held that failure to obtain leave prior to the institution of the suit was cured by subsequent leave. As regards suits by a receiver, the Calcutta and Madras High Courts have held that if the suit is instituted without the leave of the Court, the Court may grant leave, after the institution of the suit, to continue the suit.—Rustomjee v. Frederic Gaebels, 46 C. 359 : 23 C. W. N. 496 : 51 I. C. 486; Karooh Parakoti v. Manavikraman, 43 M. 793 : 59 I. C. 568.

The omission to obtain the previous sanction of the Court appointing a receiver, for bringing a suit against the receiver, does not affect the jurisdiction of the Court trying the suit. It is a mere irregularity which can be effectively cured by the plaintiff obtaining the requisite sanction during the course of the litigation.—Karooh Parakoti v. Manavikraman, noted ante,

The strictness of the rule as to the necessity of the leave of the Court to bring or defend the suit applies more appositely in the case of appointment of a person who is not a party to the suit or who is not interested in it; and therefore, where a receiver, who is also a party to the proceeding made certain application under S. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act without obtaining the sanction of the Court, the proceedings were not rendered invalid, and at any rate the proceedings under S. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act could be viewed as being started by the plaintiff in his capacity as a party and owner.—Jabbar Ali v. Maumohan, 55 C. 1216 : 49 C. L. J. 70 : 114 I. C. 485 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 110.

An application for rateable distribution of the proceeds of sale in the hands of a receiver appointed by the Court does not require the leave of the Court.—Jamnadas v. Bai Soonabai, 34 Bom. L. R. 1405.

No summary order can be passed to set aside a lease executed and granted by a receiver. The proper course is to institute a regular suit against the receiver and lessees. Claims against a receiver cannot be decided in a summary proceeding, the aggrieved party must bring a regular suit.—Krista Chandra v. Krista Sakha, 12 C. W. N. 1023.

A receiver appointed by the High Court, who has under its order taken possession of property, cannot be prosecuted for criminal breach of trust in respect thereof without first obtaining the leave of the Court.—Santok Chand v. Emperor, 46 C. 432.

A receiver in a suit even though he may have been appointed with the consent of parties could be discharged before the termination of the proceedings if it appears that it could be done without injury to the estate.—Venkatalingama v. Venkatarama, 61 I. C. 562 : 13 L. W. 367 : 29 M. L. T. 175.

A suit for accounts is not maintainable by the owner of an estate against a Tahsildar appointed by a receiver in charge of the estate under an order of Court.—Harihar Mukerjee v. Jaharaddin, 62 I. C. 768.

For other cases, see notes under heading "Position and powers of a Receiver," above.

As to receiver's liability of costs of the suits by or against him, see under heading "Duties and liabilities of Receivers and of the Estate," above.

Leave of the Court to be obtained before attachment of property in the hands of receiver.—Where the lower Court appointed one person as receiver but the High Court removed him and appointed another person as receiver, the proper Court to grant sanction for attachment of properties in the hands of the receiver is the lower Court and not the High Court.—Beharilal v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 111 I. C. 739 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 147

Receiver if necessary party to a suit.—The receiver is not a necessary party to a suit for possession of immoveable property or for declaration of title, when the beneficial owner has been made a party.—Rodger v. Ashutosh, 6 C. W. N. 829 ; Suttia Ghosal v. Rani Golap Moni, 5 C. W. N. 27 ; Maharani Janki Koer v. Sham Sivendra, 10 C. L. J. 23 ; Meos v. Abdul Husain, 90 I. C. 600 : 27 Bom. L. R. 1147 : A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 523.

Where a receiver appointed under this rule, institutes civil proceedings and is then replaced by another receiver, it is necessary that the new receiver should be made a party to those proceedings.—Akula Paradise v. Dhelli Jagannadha, 28 M. 157

Appointment of receiver by two Courts in respect of the same property.—A receiver is merely the officer of the Court through whom the Court takes possession of property, the subject of a litigation. Consequently where a receiver of certain properties had been appointed by a Court, it is inexpedient that another Court of independent jurisdiction should appoint another receiver for the same property.—Sridhar v. Mugniram, 1924 P. 54.

Appeal from orders under Or. XLI.—An order granting or refusing an application to appoint a receiver is appealable.—See Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (s) and Venkatsami v. Stridevamma, 10 M. 179 (6 M. 355 overruled). See also Khagendra Narain v. Shasadhar, 31 C. 495; 8 C. W. N. 608; Anonymous case, 10 M. 180 note; Gossein Dulmir Puri v. Tekait Het Narain, 6 C. L. R. 467; Abdul Rahiman v. Ganapathi Bhatta, 23 M. 517; Sangappa v. Shiebasawa, 24 B. 38; Baidya Nath v. Malhan Lal, 17 C. 680; Lachmi v. Ram Charan, 35 A. 425.

But the selection and appointment of a particular person as a receiver is a matter of judicial discretion to be determined by the Court according to the circumstances of the case and the exercise of this, like other matters of judicial discretion, will rarely be interfered with by an appellate tribunal; and to induce the appellate Court to interfere it is necessary to show some overwhelming objection in point of propriety or some fatal objection in principle to the person named.—Kali Kumar v. Bachhan Singh, 17 C. W. N. 974; 19 I. C. 873; Sripati v. Bibhuti, 53 C. 319; 92 I. C. 940; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 593.

An order appointing a receiver, but without specifying anybody by name and adjourning the application to a future date for so appointing somebody, is not an order within the meaning of Or. XL, r. 1 and is therefore not appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (s).—Upenndranath v. Bhupendra Nath, 13 C. L. J. 157; Narbadashankar v. Kevaldas, 17 Bom. L. R. 510; Ramji v. Koman, 13 A. L. J. 79; Teomal v. Gyanomal, A. I. R. 1927 Sind 202. But see Palaniappa v. Palaniappa, 40 M. 18 (F. B.); and Firm Raghbir Singh v. Narifan Singh, 72 I. C. 569; 1923 Lah. 48, where a contrary view has been taken.

When a receiver has been appointed conditional on his furnishing security, the appointment is not complete till the security is furnished, and therefore the order is not appealable before the security is furnished.—Raja Shyam Lal v. Raj Kumar, 31 C. W. N. 235; 45 C. L. J. 63; A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 253 (14 C. L. J. 489, 17 Bom. L. R. 510, 13 A. L. J. 79, 42 A. 227 fold.). But such an order is appealable as a judgment under the Letters Patent.—Arumugam v. Kannappa, 5 R. 99; 101 I. C. 791; A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 139.

Where the Court appoints a receiver of the defendant's property in a suit, and a third person not a party to the suit but who claims to be in possession of the property objects to such appointment, but the objection is dismissed, the order dismissing the objection is appealable.—Hudson v. Morgan, 36 C. 713; Agabag v. Sundari, 48 I. C. 133: 3 P. L. J. 573. See also Ramaswami v. Janaki Ammal, 16 L. W. 833: (1922) M. W. N. 725 (36 C. 713, and 3 P. L. J. 573 relied on).

An appeal lies from an order appointing a receiver pending an application for the appointment of a common manager under S. 93, B. T. Act, 1855, as falling under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (s).—Isadali v. Mahomed, 43 C. 956.

No second appeal lies against an order appointing or refusing to appoint a receiver in proceedings in execution of a decree, in as much the order comes within Or. XL, r. 1 of the Code.—Cheria Kunhi v. Valla Narayan, 114 I. C. 839.

The orders which are appealable under S. 503 of the Code of 1853 (Or. XL, rr. 1 to 3) are of four classes: first, orders appointing a receiver; secondly, orders removing a person, in whose possession or custody the property may be, from the possession or custody thereof; thirdly, orders committing property to the custody or management of a receiver; and fourthly, orders granting to such receiver such fees or commission on the rents and profits of the property by way of commission as the Court thinks fit.—Keshobati v. Mac Gregor, 35 C. 568: 12 C. W. N. 648. Directions given by a Court in passing receiver's accounts are not appealable, as such directions come under S. 503 (f) which corresponds to Or. XL, r. 3 (b) and not Or. XL, r. 1 of the present Code.—(Ibid).

The Code has provided no appeal against any of the ordinary directions which a Judge may give a receiver in the course of his administration and no appeal against an order that such amounts as he has or are found due from him on investigation of his accounts should be paid into Court or elsewhere.—Gurumurthi v. Ramaswami, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 760: (1931) M. W. N. 830 (referring to Palaniappa v. Palaniappa, 65 I. C. 403; A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 234; Ganesh Lal v. Satyanarayan, 54 I. C. 207: 4 P. L. J. 636, Arunachallam v. U. Po Lu, 3 R. 318: 92 I. C. 631: A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 265). In this case the duties of the receiver and the Court's power to give directions have also been discussed. See notes under heading "Duties and Liabilities of Receivers &c.," ante.

An order construing an order of appointment of a receiver, when the appointment itself is not objected to, does not fall under Or. XL, r. 1 and is not appealable.—Samhantta v. Bhagwati, 55 I. C. 15: 1920 P. 131: 5 P. L. J. 97. (In this case after the termination of the suit in which a receiver was appointed, the receiver asked for his discharge whereupon the Munsif held that the receiver must submit accounts for a certain year and the Subordinate Judge, on appeal, after construing the order of appointment, directed that accounts of some other years also should be taken. The High Court, while holding that no appeal lay to the Subordinate Judge, also held, that it was not right for a Court, when considering the accounts submitted by the receiver to go into the question of his liability to account for periods other than that covered by the account itself).

No appeal lies against an order passed under Or. XL, r. 3 but the High Court may in a proper case revise it. However, in an appeal under Or. XL,

r. 4 against an order levying the amount due from a receiver out of the property in the hands of his representatives, the order under r. 3 is not to be taken as conclusive and the whole matter, including the proceedings under Or. XL, r. 3 is laid open for decision on the merits—Khan Chand v. Abdul Majid, 76 I. C. 203.

An order for the appointment of a receiver in proceedings under S. 12 of the Guardians and Wards Act is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (s).—Godoobai v. Janabai, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 119 : 116 I. C. 642.

For other cases, see notes under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (s), post.

Appeal against order removing or refusing to remove a receiver.—An appeal lies against an order removing a receiver even though another receiver is not appointed in his place.—Sripati v. Bibhuti, 53 C. 319 : 92 I. C. 940 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 593 (where it has also been held that after the order of removal of the old receiver is passed, the mere fact that the selection of the new receiver is postponed does not make the order of removal interlocutory so as to bar an appeal against the said order because so far as the Court which passed the order is concerned, the order is final (distinguishing Upendra v. Bhupendra, 13 C. L. J. 157)). This view has been dissented from in A. U. John v. Agra United Mills, 134 I. C. 454 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 72 : 29 A. L. J. 13 ; where it has been held that in such a case no appeal lies under Or. XLIII, as Or. XL, r. 1 (1) (a) refers only to appointment of receiver, but is silent as to his removal, and when a right of appeal has to be expressly conferred by the statute, it cannot be presumed to exist by recourse to a rule of analogy or a rule of logic.

An order refusing to remove a receiver is appealable, being an order made in respect of a question arising between the parties to a suit relating to the execution of the decree.—Mithibai v. Limji Nowroji, 5 B. 45. But see, Ramaswami v. Ayyalu, 46 M. L. J. 196 : 78 I. C. 625 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 614 where a contrary view has been taken.

When the appellate Court may interfere with the lower Court's order.—The order for the appointment of a receiver is discretionary, and the discretion, is in the first instance, that of the Court in which the suit itself is pending ; and so where the first Court has acted after considering all the circumstances, the appellate Court will not as a rule interfere with the exercise of that discretion.—Kadir Bakhsh v. Ghulam Mahomed, 55 I. C. 50 ; Amar Nath v. Mt. Tahal Kuer, 67 I. C. 383 : 4 U. P. L. R. 73 ; Dhumi v. Nawab Muhammad Sajjad, 73 I. C. 600 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 623, but where the primary Court has not used proper discretion, in accordance with the principles on which judicial discretion must be exercised, the appellate Court is at liberty to exercise its own discretion in the matter.—Benoy Krishna v. Satish Chandra Giri, 55 I. A. 131 : 55 C. 720 (P. C.) : 32 C. W. N. 681 : 47 C. L. J. 424 : 108 I. C. 348 : A. I. R. 1928 P. C. 49 : 54 M. L. J. 423 : 30 Bom. L. R. 815 : 5 O. W. N. 273 : 26 A. L. J. 481 (on appeal from Satish Chandra Giri v. Benoy Krishna, 96 I. C. 30 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1092). See Kali Kumari v. Bachhan Singh, 17 C. W. N. 974 : 19 I. C. 873, in which it has been held that the selection and appointment of a particular person as a receiver is a matter of judicial discretion to be determined by the Court according to the circumstances of the case, and the exercise of that discretion like other matters of judicial discretion will rarely be interfered with by an appellate tribunal ; and to induce the appellate Court to interfere it is dismissed, the order dismissing the objection is appealable.—Hudson v. Morgan, 36 C. 713; Agabag v. Sundari, 48 I. C. 133: 3 P. L. J. 573. See also Ramaswami v. Janaki Ammal, 16 L. W. 833: (1922) M. W. N. 725 (36 C. 713, and 3 P. L. J. 573 relied on).

An appeal lies from an order appointing a receiver pending an application for the appointment of a common manager under S. 93, B. T. Act, 1885, as falling under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (s).—Asadali v. Mahomed, 43 C. 986.

An order appointing or refusing to appoint a receiver in execution of a decree, in as much the order comes within Cl. XL, r. 1 of the Code.—Cheria Kunhi v. Valla Narayan, 114 I. C. 839.

The orders which are appealable under S. 503 of the Code of 1882 (Or. XL, rr. 1 to 3) are of four classes: first, orders appointing a receiver; secondly, orders removing a person, in whose possession or custody the property may be, from the possession or custody thereof; thirdly, orders committing property to the custody or management of a receiver; and fourthly, orders granting to such receiver such fees or commission on the rents and profits of the property by way of commission as the Court thinks fit.—Keshobati v. Mac Gregor, 35 C. 568: 12 C. W. N. 648. Directions given by a Court in passing receiver's accounts are not appealable, as such directions come under S. 503 (f) which corresponds to Or. XL, r. 3 (b) and not Or. XL, r. 1 of the present Code.—(Ibid).

The Code has provided no appeal against any of the ordinary directions which a Judge may give a receiver in the course of his administration and no appeal against an order that such amounts as he has or are found due from him on investigation of his accounts should be paid into Court or elsewhere.—Gurumurthi v. Ramaswami, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 760: (1931) M. W. N. 830 (referring to Palaniappa v. Palaniappa, 65 I. C. 403; A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 234; Ganesh Lal v. Satyanarayan, 54 I. C. 207: 4 P. L. J. 636, Arunachallam v. U. Po Lu, 3 R. 318: 92 I. C. 631: A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 265). In this case the duties of the receiver and the Court's power to give directions have also been discussed. See notes under heading "Duties and Liabilities of Receivers &c," ante.

An order construing an order of appointment of a receiver, when the appointment itself is not objected to, does not fall under Or. XL, r. 1 or r. 4 and is not appealable.—Samhantta v. Bhagwati, 55 I. C. 15: 1920 P. L. J. 97. (In this case after the termination of the suit in which a receiver was appointed, the receiver asked for his discharge whereupon the Munsif held that the receiver must submit accounts for a certain year and the Subordinate Judge, on appeal, after construing the order of appointment, directed that accounts of some other years also should be taken. The High Court, while holding that no appeal lay to the Subordinate Judge, also held, that it was not right for a Court, when considering the accounts submitted by the receiver to go into the question of his liability to account for periods other than that covered by the account itself).

No appeal lies against an order passed under Or. XL, r. 3 but the High Court may in a proper case revise it. However, in an appeal under Or. XL,

r. 4 against an order levying the amount due from a receiver out of the property in the hands of his representatives, the order under r. 3 is not to be taken as conclusive and the whole matter, including the proceedings under Or. XL, r. 3 is laid open for decision on the merits—Khan Chand v. Abdul Majid, 76 I. C. 203.

An order for the appointment of a receiver in proceedings under S. 12 of the Guardians and Wards Act is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (s).—Godobai v. Janabai, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 119; 116 I. C. 612.

For other cases, see notes under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (s), post.

Appeal against order removing or refusing to remove a receiver.—An appeal lies against an order removing a receiver even though another receiver is not appointed in his place.—Sripati v. Bibhuti, 53 C. 319; 92 I. C. 940; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 593 (where it has also been held that after the order of removal of the old receiver is passed, the mere fact that the selection of the new receiver is postponed does not make the order of removal interlocutory so as to bar an appeal against the said order because so far as the Court which passed the order is concerned, the order is final (distinguishing Upendra v. Bhupendra, 13 C. L. J. 157)). This view has been dissented from in A. U. John v. Agra United Mills, 134 I. C. 454; A. I. R. 1931 All. 72; 29 A. L. J. 13; where it has been held that in such a case no appeal lies under Or. XLIII, as Or. XL, r. 1 (1) (a) refers only to appointment of receiver, but is silent as to his removal, and when a right of appeal has to be expressly conferred by the statute, it cannot be presumed to exist by recourse to a rule of analogy or a rule of logic.

An order refusing to remove a receiver is appealable, being an order made in respect of a question arising between the parties to a suit relating to the execution of the decree.—Mithibai v. Limji Nowroji, 5 B. 45. But see, Ramaswami v. Ayyalu, 46 M. L. J. 196; 78 I. C. 625; A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 614 where a contrary view has been taken.

When the appellate Court may interfere with the lower Court's order.—The order for the appointment of a receiver is discretionary, and the discretion, is in the first instance, that of the Court in which the suit itself is pending; and so where the first Court has acted after considering all the circumstances, the appellate Court will not as a rule interfere with the exercise of that discretion.—Kadir Bakhsh v. Ghulam Mahomed, 55 I. C. 50; Amar Nath v. Mt. Tahal Kuer, 67 I. C. 383; 4 U. P. L. R. 73; Dhumi v. Nawab Muhammad Sajjad, 73 I. C. 600; A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 623, but where the primary Court has not used proper discretion, in accordance with the principles on which judicial discretion must be exercised, the appellate Court is at liberty to exercise its own discretion in the matter.—Benoy Krishna v. Satish Chandra Giri, 55 I. A. 131; 55 C. 720 (P. C.); 32 C. W. N. 681; 47 C. L. J. 424; 108 I. C. 348; A. I. R. 1928 P. C. 49; 54 M. L. J. 423; 30 Bom. L. R. 815; 5 O. W. N. 272; 26 A. L. J. 481 (on appeal from Satish Chandra Giri v. Benoy Krishna, 96 I. C. 30; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1092). See Kali Kumari v. Bachhan Singh, 17 C. W. N. 974; 19 I. C. 873, in which it has been held that the selection and appointment of a particular person as a receiver is a matter of judicial discretion to be determined by the Court according to the circumstances of the case, and the exercise of that discretion like other matters of judicial discretion will rarely be interfered with by an appellate tribunal; and to induce the appellate Court to interfere it is necessary to show some overwhelming objection in point of propriety or some fatal objection in principle to the person named. In Ram Kumar v. Ashutosh, 115 I. C. 881: A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 114 it has been held that this rule is applicable to cases of original appointment, but not to the appointment of a new receiver in place of another receiver.

Letters Patent appeal.—An order directing a receiver in a suit to advance money to a guardian ad litem to enable him to conduct the defence on behalf of a defendant, is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, and no appeal lies therefrom.—Kuppuswami v. Rathnavelu, 24 M. 511.

Appeal to Privy Council.—In Chundi Dutt v. Pudmanand, 22 C. 928, the High Court refused to grant leave to appeal to England against an order refusing the appointment of a receiver in a suit as it was neither a "final" order within the meaning of S. 595, Cls. (a) and (b) of the Code of 1882 and S. 39 of the Letters Patent nor one falling within the meaning of S. 595, Cl. (c) of the said Code of 1882 or S. 40 of the Letters Patent. And in a case relating to a Muth in which the same High Court having regard to its public importance granted leave to appeal against an order setting aside the appointment of a receiver passed by the lower Court in respect of some alleged personal properties of the Mohunt the Privy Council refused to interfere and laid down that as a general rule and in the absence of special circumstances or some unusual occasion for its exercise, the power of making interlocutory orders is one which is not a suitable subject for an appeal to the Privy Council.—Benoy Krishna v. Satish Chandra Giri, noted under heading "When the appellate Court may interfere etc.," ante.

Revision.—Where a Court appoints a receiver in a case in which it has no jurisdiction to do so (as where a receiver is appointed in a proceeding under the Succession Certificate Act, 1889), the Court acts without jurisdiction, and the High Court may interfere in revision.—Kanhaiya v. Kanhaiya, 46 A. 372: 79 I. C. 363: A. I. R. 1924 All. 376: 22 A. L. J. 345.

Bond.—For Form of bond to be given by receiver, see App. F, Form No. 10, and for Form of appointment of receiver, see App. F, Form No. 9.

Miscellaneous cases.—Practice of the Original Side of the Court followed in recognising the right of a purchaser at a receiver's sale to obtain the assistance of the Court in obtaining possession under the provisions of the Code relating to sale in a suit.—Minatoonnessa v. Khatoonnessa, 31 C. 479.

Property in the hands of a receiver of the High Court cannot be proceeded against by attachment in the mofussil.—Hem Chunder v. Pran Kristo, 1 C. 403. This case has been distinguished in Jogendra Nath v. Devendra Nath, 26 C. 127: 3 C. W. N. 90, where it has been held that a judgment-creditor can sell properties in the hands of the receiver of the Court in execution of a mortgage-decree without the leave or sanction of the Court, although he cannot execute a decree against such properties by way of attachment and sale.

The possession of a receiver should be regarded as possession for the party who might ultimately turn out to be the true owner and entitled to possession as such. The effect of such possession by the receiver is to destroy the adverse possession, if any, of either of the parties.—Sarala Sundari v. Sarada, 2 C. L. J. 602 (11 C. 496, 17 M. 501, and 20 A. 341 applied).

A servant of a firm, the business of which is being managed by a receiver appointed under this rule, has no preferential claim over the attaching creditor on the assets of the firm for wages due before the appointment of the receiver.—Short v. Pickering, 6 M. 138.

An attachment of money in the hands of the receiver made without previous permission or sanction of the Court is improper and irregular, for such an attachment is an interference with the Court's possession through its official receiver, and the Court will refuse to recognize it.—Mohammed Zohuruddeen v. Mahomed Noorooddeen, 21 C. 86. See also Kahu v. Ali Mahomed, 16 B. 577; Perygag v. Bhudhar Mal, 130 I. C. 836: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 204. 12 P. L. T. 318.

Under the Code of Civil Procedure, once a suit has been dismissed, the Court dismissing it is functus officio, save that it may stay execution of its own decree or order for costs. An application, therefore, made to a Court of first instance after dismissal of the suit, but before appeal filed, asking that the receiver may be restrained from parting with funds in his hands pending an appeal, cannot be granted.—Yaminuddowallah v. Ahmed Ali Khan, 21 C. 561.

Attachment by a judgment-creditor of a debt due to the judgment-debtor by a third party. Where the existence of the debt is denied, there is no other course open to the judgment-creditor than to have it sold, or to have a receiver appointed under this rule.—Toolsa Goolal v. Antons, 11 B. 448.

An application for the appointment of a receiver on the retirement of another receiver should be made in Court and not in Chambers.—Stalkart v. Stalkart, 28 C. 250.

Where a Court executing a decree made an order directing the payment of the rents of certain property which had been attached as they became due from the tenant to the judgment-debtors; and subsequently default having been made by the tenant in the payment of the rents of certain years, the decree-holder applied for an order directing the payment of the rents which were in arrears to be made by the tenant in accordance with the previous order. Held, that the effect of the order in the execution proceedings was virtually to appoint the decree-holder receiver under the provisions of this rule.—Radha Kissors v. Aftab Chundra, 7 C. 61.

The fact that there exists in respect of immoveable property an order of a Magistrate passed under S. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is no bar to the exercise by a Civil Court of the power conferred on it by S. 505, C. P. Code, 1882, of appointing a receiver in respect of the same property.—Barkatunnissa v. Abdul Aziz, 22 A. 214.

A receiver appointed in an administration suit, instituted by a creditor of a deceased, against his executor is not an agent of the executor, and an acknowledgment by the receiver is not an acknowledgment within the meaning of S. 19 of the Limitation Act. He is an agent and officer of the Court.—

Baij Nath v. Hem Chunder, 10 C. W. N. 959. As to the effect of a payment or acknowledgment by receiver on the question of limitation, see also Periasami v. Seetharama, 27 M. 243 (F. B.) : 14 M. L. J. 84.

4. When a receiver—

Enforcement of receiver's duties. (a) fails to submit his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court directs, or

(b) fails to pay the amount due from him as the Court directs, or

(c) occasions loss to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence, the Court may direct his property to be attached, and may sell such property, and may apply the proceeds to make good any amount found to be due from him or any loss occasioned by him, and shall pay the balance (if any) to the receiver. [NEW.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—"We have redrafted this rule on the lines of S. 18 (4) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907. We think that the power to imprison receivers is too wide and should be omitted."—See the Report of the Select Committee.

"Occasions loss to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence."—"Property" includes also the income derived from it.—Raman v. Gopala, 39 M. 584. Where owing to the wilful default or gross negligence of the receiver any loss is caused to the property, the loss is to be made good out of the estate in the first instance and not by the party on whose application the receiver was appointed, failing which the party damaged by the loss may proceed against the receiver.—Orr v. Muthia, 17 M. 501 (on appeal Muthia v. Orr, 20 M. 224). The income from a property entrusted to the charge of a receiver is covered by the word "property" and one cannot say that a man who uses for his own benefit the money entrusted to him does not occasion loss by his wilful default.—Raman v. Gopala, 39 M. 584 (585).

Where the accounts filed by the receiver, who was appointed to collect the rents of the suit lands for one year, have been passed unchallenged but afterwards the Commissioner appointed to find out the amount of mesne profits gave a different figure, the proper course to pursue is to hold an enquiry as to whether the receiver has occasioned any loss by his wilful default or gross negligence and to pass an order under Or. XL, r. 4, or, if desired, to proceed against the sureties under S. 145 of the Code.—P. L. T. L. Chettyar Firm v. Maung Tha Lu, A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 334 (referring to Maung Po Than v. Ma Waing, 59 I. C. 844 : 13 Bur. L. T. 91 : 10 L. B. R. 236, in which it has been held that S. 145, C. P. Code applies where any person has become liable as surety for a receiver and such surety can be ordered to pay the sum which he has bound himself to pay.

Appeal.—An order under r. 1 or r. 4 of this Order is appealable.—See Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (s). Order XL, r. 4 specifically deals with attachment of property in the hands of the receiver and for its realisation; and an order holding the receiver of an estate liable to estate for a certain sum of money is not appeal unless it is accompanied by an order under Or. XL, r. 4 directing the attachment of his property.—Ganeshlal v. Satyanarayan, 54 F. 222 (1902).
unachallam v. U Po Lu, which it has been held high enables the Court to attach and sell the receiver's property; Cls. (a), (b) and (c) of the Rule give only the grounds on which such an order is made; therefore, unless an order is made under the operative part of the rule no appeal would lie under

Or. XLIII, r. 1 (s). So also an order requiring a receiver to deposit a certain sum of money due by him in Court, unaccompanied by any direction as to the attachment of his property, is not an order under Or. XL, r. 4 and consequently not appealable.—Palaniappa v. Palaniappa, 65 I. C. 403 : (1921) M. W. N. 806 : A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 234 ; and an order refusing an application to call upon a discharged receiver to render accounts and refund losses due to his neglect during the time he was in office, is also not appealable because it is not an order under the operative part of Or. XL, r. 4.—Gokal v. Udheram, 70 I. C. 292 : A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 224.

An order granting leave to sue a receiver for damages arising from his negligent discharge of duties is not appealable. Such an order is not one under Or. XL, r. 4.—Shrinivas v. Waz, 45 B. 99 : 59 I. C. 421 : 22 Bom. L. R. 1126.

Where the Subordinate Judge found that the receiver had caused loss to the estate by his gross negligence and made an order that the Receiver should pay into Court a certain sum on account of the loss which he had caused to the estate, and that, if he failed to do so, the party should realise the amount from property given by the receiver as security for the performance of his duties, the order was really one under Or. XL, r. 4 and the receiver had a right to appeal against such an order.—Gurumurthi v. Ramaswami, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 760 : (1931) M. W. N. 830 : 34 L. W. 538.

When after recording an order under Or. XL, r. 3 as to the indebtedness of the receiver to the estate the Court passes an order under r. 4 for attachment and sale of his property and an appeal is preferred from the last order, the previous order under r. 3 is not to be taken as conclusive and the whole matter including the proceedings under r. 3 is laid open to the appellate Court for decision on the merits.—Khan Chand v. Abdul Majid, 76 I. C. 203.

5. Where the property is land paying revenue to the Government, or land of which the revenue has been assigned or redeemed, and the Court considers that the interests of those concerned will be promoted by the management of the Collector, the Court may, with the consent of the Collector, appoint him to be receiver of such property. This rule exactly corresponds with S. 504 of the C. P. Code, 1882.

ORDER XLI.

APPEALS FROM ORIGINAL DECREES.

1. (1) Every appeal shall be preferred in the form of a memorandum signed by the appellant or his pleader and presented to the Court or to such officer as it appoints in this behalf. The memorandum shall be accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed from and (unless the Appellate Court dispenses therewith) of the judgment on which it is founded.

(2) The memorandum shall set forth, concisely and under distinct heads, the grounds of objection to the decree appealed from without any argument or narrative; and such grounds shall be numbered consecutively. [S. 541.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 541, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of the old section, with change of some words and phrases. No alteration seems to have been made in the meaning. The word "every" has been substituted for the word "the" in the beginning; the word "preferred" has been substituted for the word "made".

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of the old section, with some verbal alterations only.

The provisions of this Order are subject to the general provisions contained in Part VII of the Code.

Presentation and certification of grounds of appeal.—A vakalat-nama executed in favour of two vakils was accepted only by one who presented the appeal. The appeal was subsequently transferred to the Sub-Judge, who held that it had not been duly presented, and made an order rejecting it. Held, that the appeal had been duly presented.—Ayyanna v. Nagabhooshanam, 16 M. 295. But where a memorandum of appeal is presented by a vakil whose name does not appear in the vakalatnama through an oversight, it cannot be said to be properly presented. In such a case

Lah. 771 : 11 L. L. J. 363 : 30 P. L. R. 587. The filing of a copy of the translation of the decree is not a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this rule.—Sher Dil Khan v. Samundar Khan, 132 I. C. 3 : 32 P. L. R. 127 : 12 L. L. J. 305.

An order determining any question referred to in S. 47, is a decree under S. 2, when therefore an appeal is preferred against such an order it is sufficient to attach to the memorandum of appeal a copy of the order itself and it is not necessary to attach to the memorandum a copy of the decree even though such decree may have been drawn up. In the case, however, of a suit or proceedings which have the character of a suit (e.g., contentious probate proceedings, etc.), it is necessary to file a copy of the decree.—Khirode Sundari v. Jnanendra Nath, 6 C. W. N. 283 (distinguished in Gopal Chandra v. Preonath, 32 C. 175).

It is not left to the litigant's choice to file or not to file copy of a judgment along with the memorandum of appeal, though the Court may dispense with it.—Ramchandra v. Mayaram, 106 I. C. 57 : A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 131. Where the counsel filed the memorandum of appeal accompanied by a brief order recorded by the lower appellate Court but noted that the detailed judgment was filed in a connected appeal, held, that the error, if any, might be condoned and the copy of the detailed judgment dispensed with.—Arit v. Akbar, 130 I. C. 519 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 935.

A second appeal filed without a copy of the trial Court's judgment within time is competent in as much as Or. XLI, r. 1, C. P. Code, requires that only a copy of the lower appellate Court's judgment is to be filed and does not require the filing of the judgment of the trial Court.—Ramdeo Singh v. Makhan Singh, (1923) P. 19 : 74 I. C. 330. But where the High Court rules require that copies of judgment of both the lower Courts should be filed, an appeal cannot be said to be legally presented without those judgments, and the mere fact that such copies are already on the record of some other appeal filed by the opposite party in the same Court is not a good reason for dispensing with such copies.—Ghulam Muhammad v. Rura, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 721 : 104 I. C. 290.

Under the rules of the Allahabad High Court, a copy of the judgment appealed from is required to be presented with the memorandum of appeal under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent.—Fazal Muhammad v. Phul Kuar, 2 A. 192 (F. B.).

Where from the decree in a suit two appeals were preferred and two decrees were drawn up by the appellate Court, Or. XLI, r. 1, C. P. Code requires both decrees to be filed for the presentation of a second appeal to be valid.—Muhammad Din v. Musst. Zerunnisa, 3 L. 215.

Where the first Court passed a decree partly in favour of the plaintiff and both parties appealed against the decree and the lower appellate Court delivered a full judgment in the defendant's appeal and a formal separate judgment in the plaintiff's appeal and two separate decrees were drawn up with the result that the plaintiff's suit was dismissed, the plaintiff can file one second appeal against both the decrees accompanied by copies of both the judgments and of both the decrees of the lower appellate Court, because the "formal expression of adjudication" by the lower appellate Court was in form two contradictory decrees, but was in substance and intention a single consistent decree, substituted in place of the decree of the first Court.—Sheoram v. Hiranman, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 229 (F. B.): 25 N. L. R. 183 (referring to Ghansham v. Bhola, 45 A. 506 (F. B.); Mt. Lachmi v. Mt. Bhulli, 8 L. 384 (F. B.); Raghubans v. Mt. Asloo, 20 W. R. 294).

A Full Bench of the Lahore High Court has held that the word "judgment" in this rule means the statement of the final adjudication of the rights of the parties in the action and does not include orders whereby some preliminary issue, point or plea was determined or some step taken or other question settled in the progress of the case; and therefore a memorandum of appeal should be accompanied by a copy of the decree and (unless the appellate Court dispenses therewith) of the final judgment or order and it is not necessary to file with it a copy of the order disposing of a preliminary issue in the case.—Mt. Saban v. Shahabal, 10 L. 587 (F. B.): 115 I. C. 753: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 431. See also Khushi Mohammed v. Mahand, 30 P. L. R. 236, Dwarka v. Telu Mal, 127 I. C. 719: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 202: 12 L. L. J. 74; Ram Narain v. Gwalior Light Railway, 134 I. C. 300: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 136. Hashim v. Pir Sant, 10 L. L. T. 23.

An interlocutory order refusing a stay could not be considered as a part of the judgment on which the decree was founded and as such it could not be said that there was no proper presentation of the appeal on account of failure to file the stay order on appeal from the decree.—Ishar Das v. Buta Mal, 115 I. C. 67: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 42.

The Punjab Government Notification No. 138 G. dated 19th March, 1926 empowers the High Court to dispense with a copy of the preliminary order but the power to dispense with it should ordinarily be exercised at the first hearing.—Joti Ram v. Harbakhsh Singh, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 60: 105 I. C. 653.

An appeal, if presented in time, is validly presented for the purpose of the Limitation Act if it is accompanied by copies required by the C. P. Code. The High Court has held that an appeal presented in this manner is validly presented for the purpose of the Limitation Act. —Chumal v. Dahyabhai, 32 B. 1.

Delay in presenting appeal—Discretionary power of Court to excuse—Sufficient cause.—Section 5 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), provides that an appeal may be admitted after the period of limitation if the appellant shows "sufficient cause" for not preferring Section 5 of the Limitation Act is a mandatory section, but does not exclude the discretionary power of the Court to excuse delay in presenting an appeal.—Shrimant Sagajirao v. Smith, 20 B. 736.

The presentation of an appeal to a wrong Court under a bona fide mistake may be "sufficient cause" within the meaning of S. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Dadabhai Jamselji v. Maneksha, 21 B. 552. See also Balaram v. Sham Sunder, 33 C. 526 (5 A. 591 followed). But see Daudbhai v. Emnabai, 28 B. 235.

The time during which an appellant was prosecuting his application under S. 108, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r. 13), should not be excluded in computing the period of limitation for presenting an appeal. Section 14 of the Limitation Act does not apply to appeals but only to suits.—Ardha Chandra v. Malangini, 23 C. 325.

The words "sufficient cause" should receive a liberal construction, so as to advance substantial justice, when no negligence, nor inaction, nor want of bona fides, is imputable to the appellant. Where the appellants being themselves pleaders and well acquainted with the facts of the case preferred the appeal to a wrong Court, they had not acted in good faith, but with gross negligence and carelessness and were not entitled to extension of time under S. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Sarat Chander v. Saraswati Debi, 34 C. 216; 5 C. L. J. 380. See also Gobinda Lal v. Shiba Das, 33 C. 1323; 10 C. W. N. 986; 3 C. L. J. 545.

When the time for appealing is once passed, the Court must be fully satisfied of the justice of the grounds on which it is sought to obtain an extension of time.—Karsandas v. Gungabai, 30 B. 329; 7 Bom. L. R. 965. See also Bhimrao v. Ayyappa, 31 B. 33; 8 Bom. L. R. 858.

When owing to the mistake of the clerk of the appellant's pleader, certain persons were not added as respondents till after the period for preferring the appeal had expired, held, that as the omission was not intentional, the appeal should be heard as duly filed.—Promoda Nath v. Kinoo Mollah, 13 C. W. N. 167; 8 C. L. J. 135. See also Rup Chand v. Dasodha, 30 A. 55.

Where the original decree was signed on the 6th July, 1903, and the plaintiffs applied for amendment of the decree and the amendment was made on the 22nd August, held, that the period of limitation for presentation of an appeal should be reckoned from the 22nd August as the date when the correct decree was prepared; Amar Chandra v. Asad Ali, 32 C. 908 (referred to in Brojo Lal v. Tara Prasanna, 3 C. L. J. 188). See also Visvanathan v. Ramanathan, 24 M. 646, where the decree was amended and appeal was allowed to be preferred from the amended decree, though the appeal against the original decree was barred.

When a memorandum of appeal was filed accompanied by a copy of the judgment and by a translation of the decree in Urdu and where the attention of the counsel filing the appeal was drawn to the fact that a copy of the original decree in English should have been filed—held, that there was no sufficient cause for extending the time within the meaning of S. 5 of the Limitation Act in as much as counsel had been put on his guard and he was remiss in not making a further application for the copy of the decree in English.—Daim v. Hayat, 4 L. L. J. 381.

Section 5 of the Limitation Act gives a discretion to a Court to admit an appeal filed out of time, for sufficient cause. Poverty is "not sufficient cause" within the meaning of that section.—Manickya Moyee v. Boroda Prosad, 9 C. 355; 11 C. L. R. 430; Moshaullah v. Ahmedullah, 13 C. 78; Huro Chunder v. Surnamoyi, 13 C. 266; Husaini Begam v. Collector of Muzaffarnagar, 9 A. 11 and 655.

The discretion conferred by S. 5 of the Limitation Act, is a discretion which the Court cannot exercise loosely, but which should be exercised on a consideration of the circumstances of each case as it arises. At the same time the words "sufficient cause" should receive a liberal construction, so as to advance substantial justice when no negligence, nor inaction, nor want of bona fides is imputable to the appellant.—Kichilappa Naickar v. Ramamujam, 25 M. 166.

When the High Court refused to admit an appeal filed out of time, the Judicial Committee refused to interfere with the discretion exercised by the High Court.—Ram Narain v. Parmeswar Narain, 30 I. A. 20: 30 C. 309 (P. C.). See also Hamid Ali v. Gayadin, 26 A. 327.

When a lower appellate Court admits an appeal filed out of time, the High Court ought not to interfere with the discretion exercised by the District Court in admitting the appeal under S. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Fatima Begam v. Hansi, 9 A. 244. See Parvati v. Ganpati, 23 B. 513.

Presentation of an appeal within the period of limitation prescribed therefor to a wrong Court in ignorance of the provision of law, is not a sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 of the Limitation Act, for admitting the same appeal in the proper Court after the period of limitation prescribed therefor had expired.—Jog Lal v. Har Narain, 10 A. 524 and Ramjiwan v. Chand Mal, 10 A. 537.

Delay in filing appeal—Sufficient cause—Deduction of time spent in another litigation in respect of the same subject-matter—Mistake of law. Held, that the time spent in the actual proceedings in the suit to set aside the order in execution might be deducted in computing the delay that occurred before the appeal was filed. But the plaintiff was not entitled to a deduction of the time that intervened between the date of the order appealed against and the date of filing the suit.—*Sitram v. When an appellant by which the respondent loses cross-objections heard affords no sufficient cause for the cross-appeal which he might have presented.—Chudasama v. Ishwargar, 16 B. 249.

After admission and registration of appeal by District Judge, whether Sub-Judge can dismiss it on the ground of limitation.—See notes under rule 9.

Time requisite for obtaining copy—Exclusion of time in computing period of limitation for appeals.—See S. 12 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), by which the time requisite for obtaining copies of decree and judgment is excluded.

The time which intervenes between the putting in of stamps and obtaining a copy of the decree should be excluded from the time prescribed for the presentation of an appeal.—Lal Gopalnath v. Pudum Koonwur, 5 W. R. Mis. 44; Gopeenath v. Gopeenath, 6 W. R. Mis. 106.

Time requisite for copies of decree and judgment should be excluded from the computation of the time. The application for copy need not be made by the appellant or his authorized agent; it is not necessary to show for what purpose the copies were obtained.—Ram Kishan v. Kashi Bai, 29 A. 264; 4 A. L. J. 152.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal, the appellant is, as a matter of right entitled to deduct the number of days required for taking a copy of the decree only. The word "decree" in this rule does not include the "judgment"; Juggunnath v. Shewrutun, 24 W. R. 105 (F. B.); 15 B. L. R. 272; Horil Pattuck v. Bhowaneeram, 15 B. L. R. 273-note; 21 W. R. 308. See, however, Haji Hassum v. Nur Mahomed, 28 B. 643.

Application for copy of decree—Delay in filing the papers and fees for the copy.—The mode of computing the period of limitation for appeals.—Nobin Chunder v. Brojendro Coomar, 12 C. L. R. 541. See also Ramanuja v. Narayana, 18 M. 374.

So long as the right of appeal is subsisting, an appellant is entitled, under S. 12 of the Limitation Act, 1877, to apply for the copy of the lower Court's decree. The time requisite for obtaining such copy should be excluded in computing the period of limitation prescribed for the appeal.—Thukaram v. Pandurang, 25 B. 584 (19 A. 342 followed). See also Pandharinath v. Shankar, 25 B. 586 (19 A. 342 followed).

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the judgment appealed from cannot be deducted, such copy not being required under the rules of the High Court to be presented with the memorandum of appeal.—Fazal Muhammad v. Phul Kuar, 2 A. 192 (F. B.).

When a decree for possession of immoveable property directs an enquiry into the amount of mesne profits under S. 212, C. P. Code, 1882: (Or. XX, r. 12), and an order is finally made determining the amount, and formal decree is necessary to be drawn up; and when the final order or decree is appealed against, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree shall be excluded in computing the period of limitation prescribed for the appeal.—Gopal Chandra v. Preonath, 32 C. 175 (6 C. W. N. 283 distinguished). See also Beer Chunder v. Mohamed Asgur, W. R. (1864) 145.

Where a suitor is unable to obtain a copy of a decree from which he desires to appeal, by reason of the decree being unsigned, he is entitled, under S. 12 of the Limitation Act to deduct the time between the delivery of the judgment and that of the signing of the decree in computing the time taken in presenting his appeal.—Bani Madhub v. Matungini, 13 C. 104 (F. B.) (10 C. 652 overruled; 18 W. R. 512 referred to). But see Bechi v. Ahsanullah, 12 A. 461 (F. B.).

The "time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree" appealed against which under S. 12 of the Limitation Act, is to be excluded in computing the period of limitation for an appeal, is determined when the copy is ready for delivery.—Gopal Chunder v. Brojo Behary, 9 C. L. R. 293.

In computing the period of limitation for an appeal, a party is not entitled to deduct the period during which the lower Court was closed, when he could have made such application before the Court closed and where on the day he actually applied, the period limited for appeal had expired.—Venkata Row v. Venkata Chella, 28 M. 452 (25 B. 584 and 586 distinguished).

Where a decree was passed on the 22nd September, an application for a copy was not made until the 29th, and then with insufficient folios, and the Court was closed for the vacation from 30th September to 1st November, the deficient folios being filed on the day it re-opened, 2nd November, the copy delivered on the 6th, and the appeal filed on the 14th, held, that the appeal was out of time, the appellant not being entitled to a deduction of the time occupied in ascertaining what the requisite number of folios was.—Gunga Dass v. Ram Joy, 12 C. 30. But see Dulal Bewa v. Saroda Kinkar, 3 C. W. N. 55; Siyadatunnissa v. Muhammad, 19 A. 342; Kali Sankar v. Baskanta Nath, 7 C. W. N. 109; Nawab Syed Amir Hossain v. Tuls Dass, 8 C. W. N. 141; and Saminatha v. Venkatasubba, 27 M. 21.

On a petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council presented on the 8th April, it appeared that the period of six months from the date of the decree to be appealed against had expired on the 23rd of March, if the time occupied by the petitioner in getting a copy of the decree was to be computed in that period. Held, that the petition was barred by limitation.—Lakshmanan v. Peryasami, 10 M. 373.

Sections 5 and 12 of the Limitation Act, 1908, apply to appeals under S. 596 of the C. P. Code, 1882.—Shib Singh v. Ganu, 169 (see S. 5 of the Limitation Act, 1908, as amended).

The provisions of S. 12 of the Limitation Act do not apply to appeals under S. 69 of the Madras Rent Recovery Act (VIII of 1865).—Kumara v. Sithala, 20 M. 476.

The provisions of S. 5 of Limitation Act do not apply to the Registration Act.—Baban Sahai v. Udit Narain, 5 C. L. J. 188. But see Suraj Bali v. Thomas, 28 A. 48; 2 A. L. J. 714.

An ex parte order admitting a time-barred appeal is subject to reconsideration at the hearing of the appeal at the respondent's instance; but Indian Courts should not, as they are apt to do, leave the question of limitation open in that way but should determine it before the appeal is registered.—Krishnaswami v. Ramaswami, 41 M. 412 (P. C.); Shrimat Sundarabai v. Collector, 43 B. 376 (P. C.).

How far mistake or negligence of a legal adviser would entitle the party to the benefit of S. 5 of the Limitation Act has been elaborately discussed in Surendra Mohan v. Mohendra Nath, 36 C. W. N. 420 (all authorities discussed).

Exclusion of time occupied in seeking review of judgment.—An appellant is not entitled as of right to the exclusion of the time occupied by him in seeking a review of judgment, in the computation of the time within which his appeal is preferred.—Govinda v. Bhandari, 14 M. 81. See also Nobokissen v. Kaminee, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 349 : 2 W. R. Mis. 35; Vasudeva v. Chinnasami, 7 M. 584. But see Kuller Singh v. Jewan Singh, 22 W. R. 79; In the petition of Brojendro Coomar, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 728 : 7 W. R. 529; and Poresk Nath v. Gopal Kristo, 15 W. R. 61. Though, under certain circumstances, the presentation of an application for review may be considered as sufficient cause for delay in filing an appeal, the appellant is bound to satisfy the Court that such circumstances did exist in his case, and that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within the prescribed period.—Pundlik v. Achut, 18 B. 84. The mere presentation of an application for review, where it is not shown that the grounds therefor are reasonable and proper, is not a sufficient reason for admitting an appeal after the period of limitation prescribed for such appeal has passed.—Ashanulla v. Collector of Dacca, 15 C. 242.

The general rule for extending the time to prefer an appeal and for excluding the time taken up in prosecuting an application for review is, that the delay may be excused if the applicant can show that he had reasonable grounds for applying for review instead of preferring an appeal.—Gobinda Lal v. Shiba Das, 33 C. 1323 : 3 C. L. J. 545 : 10 C. W. N. 986. (See the cases referred to in this case).

What is or what is not sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 of the Limitation Act, depends upon the circumstances of each particular case. Bona fide application for review is a sufficient cause for not presenting an appeal within the prescribed period. An application for review made without any good reason is not made bona fide merely because it was admitted in the first instance.—Haradhan v. Frankrishna, 10 C. L. J. 39 (33 C. 1323 : 3 C. L. J. 545 : 10 C. W. N. 986 referred to).

Other sufficient cause for delay.—Two suits brought at the same time by executors raising same questions of construction in respect of the same will—Similar decisions in both suits—On appeal in one suit the decree of the lower Court was reversed—Subsequent application for leave to appeal in the second after expiry of time. Held, that there was no sufficient cause for the delay.—Thucker Vussonji v. Canji, 14 B. 365.

A mistake in law is under no circumstances a sufficient cause within the meaning of S. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Krishna v. Chathappan, 13 M. 269 (referred to in Gobinda Lal v. Shiba Das, 33 C. 1323 : 10 C. W. N. 986 : 3 C. L. J. 545).

But where the guardian of a minor neglected to appeal, leave to appeal was granted to the minor under S. 5 of the Limitation Act after attaining majority.—Cursandas v. Ladkavahoo, 20 B. 104. See, however, Thurai Rajah v. Jainilabdeen, 18 M. 484.

Stamp on memorandum of appeal.—The Court-fees which an appellant has to pay on a memorandum of appeal from a decree which gives him only partial relief are to be calculated upon the difference between the value of the relief which he claims and the relief granted by the decree appealed against.—Lukhun Chunder v. Khoda Buksh, 19 C. 272

The Deputy Registrar has no authority to return an insufficiently stamped appeal. The right course for that officer is to lay the matter before the Court. But if the appellant is ready to pay what is required, then, whether the time for filing the appeal has expired or not, the Deputy Registrar is bound to receive it if it was originally presented in time.—Ambur Ali v. Kali Chand, 24 W. R. 258.

The subject-matter of an appeal should be valued for the purpose of jurisdiction according to the law in force at the date of the appeal, and not of the suit which has led to it. For the purpose of jurisdiction, a claim under S 331, C. P. Code, 1882, is a fresh suit, and not a continuation of the suit in which the claim is made.—Muttammal v. Chinnana, 4 M. 220.

Petitions of appeals in cases to obtain an order for measurement may be written on the stamp used for miscellaneous petitions.—Smith v. Nundan Lal, 6 W. R. Act X, 13

Where a zemindar values his right to measure at a certain amount, the petition of appeal must be written on a regular stamp according to such valuation and not upon a stamp used for miscellaneous petitions.—Ooma Churn v. Shab Nath, 8 W R 14.

Court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal from an order of reference under the Land Acquisition Act is that prescribed by Art. 11 of Sch. II of the Court-fees Act.—Harrish Chandra v. Bhoba Tarani, 8 C. W. N. 321.

In an appeal in a suit for recovery of profits under S. 93 (h) of the North-Western Province Rent Act in respect of several years, the proper court-fee leviable on the memorandum of appeal is one calculated on the aggregate amount of the profits claimed and not one calculated separately on the amount of profits claimed for each year.—Muhammad Malik v. Nirhai Bibi, 7 A. 761.

An appeal to the District Court from the rejection of a claim by a forest settlement-officer, under Cl. 2 of S. 10 of the Madras Forest Act of 1882, falls under Art. 17, Cl. 6, and not under Art. 11 (a) of Sch. II of the Court-fees Act, 1870.—Kamaraja v. Secretary of State, 8 M. 22.

The court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal from an order under S. 523, C. P. Code, 1882, disallowing an application to file an agreement to refer to an arbitration, is ad valorem fee computed on the value of the subject-matter in dispute in the appeal.—Daya Nand v. Bakhtawar, 5 A. 333 (F. B.).

An appeal from the decision of a dispute under S. 332-B, C. P. Code, 1882, falls directly within the exception of Art. 11, Sch. II of the Court-fees Act, and the memorandum of appeal should therefore be presented as for a decree in a suit upon an ad valorem stamp.—Ahmad Khan v. Madho Das, 7 A. 565 (4 M. 420 dissented from).

The stamp-fee payable on appeals to the High Courts in suits asking for "partition, the separation of a share, and for khas possession of that share after separation," is that leviable under Art. 6, Cl. 17, Sch. II of the Court-fees Act. For the purposes of jurisdiction, the Court should be guided by the value of the property in suit, but the amount of the stamp-fee should be governed by a different principle.—Kirty Churn v. Aunath Nath, 8 C. 757 : 11 C. L. R. 95.

A memorandum of appeal from a decree directing ejectment and awarding mesne-profits is chargeable with court-fees calculated both on the land and on the mesne-profits.—Brahmayya v. Lakshminarasimham, 16 M. 810.

For the purposes of determining the stamp-fee payable on an appeal, a suit for possession and mesne-profits is to be taken as one entire claim and not two distinct subjects.—Kishori Lal v. Sharut Chunder, 8 C. 593 (F. B.): 10 C. L. R. 359. See also Reference under the Court-fees Act, 1870, 16 A. 401 and Bunwari Lal v. Daya Sunker, 13 C. W. N. 815.

In a suit in the Court of a Sub-Judge to redeem certain land on payment of Rs. 1,625, being a quarter of a debt for which it had been mortgaged together with other land, a decree was passed for redemption of part of the land, but the Court held the plaintiff had not established his right to the rest. The plaintiff appealed to the High Court, paying ad valorem court-fees computed on the value of the land exonerated only. Held, that the ad valorem court-fee should be computed on one-fourth of the mortgage-debt, and that the appeal lay to the District Court.—Vasudeva v. Madhava, 16 M. 326.

Memorandum of appeal to lower appellate Court was insufficiently stamped—Up to the date of hearing the special appeal, the deficit court-fee was not paid. Held, that the proper procedure was not to dismiss the appeal in the lower appellate Court but to stay issuing of the decree until the deficit court-fee was paid.—Mohan Lal v. Nand Kishore, 28 A. 270 (F. B.) (20 A. 362 followed).

Refund where memorandum of appeal is overstamped.—Where in an appeal to the High Court the memorandum of appeal is overstamped that Court has no power to direct a refund of the amount paid in excess. Such a refund can only be granted by the Collector of the district on an application to him made in this behalf.—In re Latta Prasad v. Sheoraj Singh, 57 I. C. 26.

Form of memorandum of appeal.—For Form of Memorandum of Appeal, see App. G, Form No. 1.

2. The appellant shall not, except by leave of the Court, urge or be heard in support of any ground of objection not set forth in the memorandum of appeal; but the Appellate Court, in deciding the appeal, shall not be confined to the grounds of objection set forth in the memorandum of appeal or taken by leave of the Court under this rule:

Grounds which may be taken in appeal.

Provided that the Court shall not rest its decision on any other ground unless the party who may be affected thereby has had a sufficient opportunity of contesting the case on that ground. [S. 542.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 542, C. P. Code with some alterations. Some of the words and phrases of the old section have been changed, but no change seems to have been made in the meaning. The language of the present rule has been made more clear by substitution of some appropriate words and phrases.

The words "except by" have been substituted for the word "without"; the words "any ground of objection not set forth in the memorandum of appeal" have been substituted for the words "any other ground of objection"; the words "grounds of objection set forth in the memorandum of appeal or taken by leave of the Court under this rule" have been substituted for the words "grounds set forth by the appellants."

In the proviso the words "unless the party who may be affected thereby" have been substituted for the word "respondent." The other changes are merely verbal.

Grounds of objection.—The grounds of objection must be such as are necessary for the decision of the case and arise from the pleadings and evidence.—Nawab Sidhee Nuzur Ally v. Ojoodhyaram, 10 M. I. A. 540, 558.

In an appeal the applicant must not be permitted to make out a new case or a case different from and inconsistent with the case set up by him in the lower Court.—Indur Chunder v. Radhakishore, 19 I. A. 90 : 19 C. 507 (P. C.); Gajapati v. Vasudeva, 19 I. A. 179 : 15 M. 503 (P. C.); Ilahi Khan v. Sher Ali, 26 A. 331; Puran Mal v. Krant Singh, 20 A. 8, 10; Ram Chand v. Ramanand, 3 L. L. J. 392 : 68 I. C. 227; Basant Ram v. Muhammad, 4 L. L. J. 293; Dyal v. Hirde Ram, 29 I. C. 895 : 80 P. W. R. (1915). A litigating party can only succeed secundum allegata et probata and the Courts should check the tendency of defeated litigants to evade their defeat by devising a new case which was never set up when it should have been set up.—Nathu v. Umedmal, 33 B. 35 : 1 I. C. 456. A litigant who has all along maintained a position in support of one branch of his suit cannot be permitted, when he fails upon this branch, to withdraw from the position and assert the contrary before the appellate Court, more especially when he thereby places his opponent at a great disadvantage; in such a case the doctrine of estoppel owing to the conduct of the litigant applies.—Maharaja of Vizianagaram v. Secretary of State, 53 I. A. 64 : 49 M. 249 (P. C.) : 94 I. C. 501 : A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 18 : 43 C. L. J. 378 : 28 Bom. L. R. 865.

Grounds not set forth in the memorandum of appeal.—Although, as a rule, the Court will not permit grounds of appeal to be taken in argument which have not been taken in the memorandum of appeal, yet, where a decree comes before it which is upon its very face illegal, the Court is bound to take up the point itself and rectify the mistake.—Poran Sookh v. Parbutty, 3 C. 612 : 1 C. L. R. 404. See also Vemi Reddi v. Nallappa Reddi, 11 L. W. 611.

It has been held that, in disposing of a second appeal, the High Court is competent under this rule to consider the question whether the plaintiff has any cause of action or not although such question has not been raised by the plaintiff in the memorandum of second appeal.—Lachman

Where on the pleadings the basic question is what is the relationship between the parties, the appellate Court can consider an extra ground of appeal to the effect that the relationship between the parties being that of partnership the suit does not lie.—A. Minck v. Roshan Lal, 130 I. C. 644: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 390; 32 P. L. R. 235. See also Ramdas v. Panna Devi, 5 L. L. J. 117; 84 I. C. 1039: A. I. R. 1921 Lah. 201.

It has been held that not only may the plea of res judicata, though not taken in the memorandum of appeal, be entertained in second appeal under this rule but that even when such plea has not been urged in either of the lower Courts, or in the memorandum of appeal, if raised in the second appeal, it must be considered and determined either upon the record as it stands or after a remand for findings of facts.—Muhammad Ismail v. Chatter Singh, 4 A. 69 (F. B.). See also Koylashnauth v. Monmoheeny, Marsh Rep. 276 : 2 Hay 154; Mugno Moe v. Hur Chunder, 3 W. R. Act X, 146.

The principle that an appellate Court should not go beyond the subject-matter of the appeal applies to an objection, called a cross-appeal, which enables the respondent to take any objection to the decision of the lower Court which he might have taken if he had preferred a separate appeal. An appellate Court was held to have acted without authority, and to have contravened the Court-fees Act, in having voluntarily suggested what it thought to be an error of the Court below, and allowed the respondent to take it as an objection, giving effect to the objection subject to the payment of the court-fee stamp.—Sharoda Sconduree Debee v. Gobind Monee, 24 W. R. 179.

This rule was intended to confer upon the Court a power exercisable by it alone; it was not intended to enable an appellant to take the respondent by surprise by urging a matter of which he had no notice.—Bansidhar v. Sita Ram, 13 A. 381.

An additional ground of appeal, filed after the time for filing the appeal, of which the respondent had had sufficient notice can be argued with the leave of the Court express or implied; and where the Court under a mistaken impression that leave had already been obtained for filing of the additional ground, allows the argument on that ground without objection being taken, it can be assumed that permission to argue is impliedly given.—Maung Ba v. Maung Tha Yin, A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 314 : 135 I. C. 328.

Where during the pendency of the appeal in the High Court, one of two defendants dies, the surviving defendant cannot come forward to rely on grounds on which he actually resisted the appeal, but may rely on grounds actually resisted by the surviving defendant himself.—Kalachand v. Jatindra, 56 C. 487: 33 C. W. N. 150.

Where the parties to the insolvency petition agreed to be bound by the findings of the Court and in the memorandum of appeal there was no suggestion that there was no such agreement, the appellant cannot be heard to challenge the agreement.—Somasundaram v. Kannoo, 118 I. C. 494: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 573 : (1929) M. W. N. 262.

Unless such objection is taken in his memorandum of appeal, it is not open to an appellant at the hearing of an appeal from the decree to question the validity of an order of remand previously made in the case under S. 562 of the C. P. Code, 1883.—Tilak Raj Singh v. Chakardhar Singh, 15 A. 119.

Where non-joinder of parties in a mortgage suit is brought to the notice of the Court, the Court will give effect to the objection and dismiss the suit even though such objection be raised for the first time in appeal.—Ghulam Kadir v. Mustakin Khan, 18 A. 109.

A question relating to the validity of the lease which was not raised in the lower Court or set forth in the memorandum of appeal, which is a pure question of law, is not allowed to be raised in appeal.—A. I. R. 1931 Bom.

An objection to jurisdiction under S. 21 of the Code may be taken under this rule although it was not specifically set forth in the memorandum of appeal.—Manon Ram v. Jagar Nath, 131 I. C. 603. A. I. R. 1931 All. 556.

Where the finding of the lower appellate Court against the factum of adoption was not questioned in the grounds of second appeal, held the validity of the adoption could not be allowed to be urged at the further proceedings; Rajambal Ammal v. Shanmugha Mudaliar, 70 I. C. 653.

An objection to the jurisdiction of the Court was allowed to be taken for the first time in appeal.—Ranchod Morar v. Bezantji Edulji, 20 B. 86. See also Ramayya v. Subbarayudu, 13 M. 25 and Ajodhya Nath v. Keshub Chandra, 11 C. W. N. 1127.

Where a document was admitted in evidence by the first Court without any objection by the parties, but the appellate Court rejected it on the ground that it was insufficiently stamped, although no objection was made to it in the memorandum of appeal. Held, that the appellate Court ought not to have rejected it.—Kastur Bhavani v. Appa, 5 B. 621.

An objection to the form of the notice of sale under S. 8 of Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819 was allowed to be taken for the first time in the appellate Court.—Ashanulla Khan v. Hari Charan, 19 I. A. 191: 20 C. 96 (P. C.)

Objection upon the question of limitation—Though an objection upon the question of limitation was not raised in the memorandum of appeal, leave should yet be given to argue it when the point arose on the face of the plaint, and no question of fact had to be enquired into to enable the Court to dispose of it and when the point was thus taken, the Court was bound to give effect to it, the provisions of S. 3 of the Limitation Act being mandatory.—Balaram v. Manqta Dass, 34 C. 941 (S. B.): 11 C. W. N. 959: 6 C. L. J. 237 (13 A. 580, 15 A. 123, and several other cases referred to in the order of reference). But where the decision on the question of limitation depends upon an enquiry into facts and the question has not been raised in the written statement, it cannot be taken up in appeal.—A. I. R. 1929 Lah.

An appellant in a second appeal raised orally at the hearing a plea not taken in his memorandum of appeal to the effect that the respondents' appeal to the lower Court (where they had been appellants) had been barred by limitation when it was presented. Held that, even though the plea proposed to be raised was one involving a question of limitation, the appellant was not entitled as of right to be heard in support of it without the leave of the Court granted under this rule.—Ahmad Ali v. Waris Husam, 15 A. 123 (8 B. 535 followed). See also Ram Kishen v. Dipa, 13 A 580; Deo Narain v Webb, 23 C. 86; Venkata v. Bhashyakarlu, 29 I. A. 76; 25 M. 367 (P. C.); 6 C. W. N. 641; 4 Bom. L. R. 543; Bhadai v. Shaikh Manowar, 4 P. L. J. 645, 649-59.

An appellant in regular appeal may not, at one hearing raise a contention of law expressly abandoned by him in the Court below, and not contained in the memorandum of appeal.—Pabitra Dasi v. Damodar, 7 B. L. R. 697; 24 W. R. 397-note. But see Abdulullah v. Asraf Ali, 7 C. L. J. 152, where it has been held that the question of limitation, raised in the written statement but abandoned in the Court of the first instance, can be raised in the Court of Appeal, as it is a clear question of law.

Court competent to raise question of limitation not raised by the parties—Time requisite for obtaining copy of decree—Exclusion of time between delivery of judgment and signing of decree—Exclusion of time between furnishing of estimate of costs of copy and compliance with estimate.—Bechi v. Ahsanullah, 12 A. 461 (7 W. R. 337, 13 C. 104 dissented from).

Effect of not raising or waiving an objection in the lower Court.—As a general rule, objections not taken in the lower Court ought not to be allowed to be set up in the appellate Court; but where the Judge in appeal had allowed such an objection to be taken, and had overruled it, the High Court allowed it to be raised in special appeal, and being of opinion that it was a valid objection, reversed the decision of the Court below.—Dindyal v. Surendranath, 3 B. L. R. A. C. 78-note; 10 W. R. 77.

The errors of procedure of the Court of first instance are not to be remedied when they have not been made a ground of complaint before the lower appellate Court.—Anurup Chandra v. Hiramani, 3 B. L. R. Ap. 38; 11 W. R. 418

An objection which if taken might have been cured and which has not been taken in the Court below, cannot be taken in the Court of appeal.—Dhurm Das v. Shama Soondri, 6 W. R. P. O. 43; 3 M. I. A. 229. See also Nurul Hossein v. Sheosahai, 19 I. A. 221; 20 C. 1 (P. C.).

A plaintiff will not be allowed to raise any objection as to the defendant's setting up alternative defences at the appellate stage of the suit, where no such objection was raised in the first Court.—Purnendu Narain v. Dwijendra Narain, 8 C. L. J. 289.

An objection as to the plaintiff having no cause of action may be taken at any stage of the suit.—Parbati Charan v. Kali Nath, 6 B. L. R. Ap. 73. See also Lachman v. Bahadur Singh, 2 A. 884. But see Kalicoomar v. Birmomaye, 1 W. R. 23; and Soodukhina v. Raj Mohun, 11 W. R. 350.

An objection as to non-joinder and defect of parties cannot be allowed to be raised in appeal. Such objection should be taken at the first hearing.—Paramasiva v. Krishna, 14 M. 498. But see Ghulam Kadir v. Mustakim Khan, 18 A. 109 (13 A. 432, 16 A. 478, and 17 A. 537, referred to). An objection as to misjoinder of causes of action cannot be taken for the first time in appeal.—Maula v. Gulzar, 16 A. 130 (5 B. 554 followed).

An objection to the jurisdiction of the Court may be taken for the first time in appeal.—Ranchod Morar v. Bezani Edulji, 20 B. 86. But the objection cannot be taken in appeal, where the question is not a pure question of law, but depends upon facts.—Biru Mahata v. Shyama Churn, 22 C. 483.

An objection not raised in the lower Court cannot be raised for the first time in appeal.—Magantal v. Govindlal, 15 B. 697.

Question of permanent tenancy cannot be raised for the first time in the appeal.—Mahabir Persad v. Fox, 9 C. L. J. 467.

An objection not taken in cross-appeal before the lower appellate Court cannot be taken in special appeal; but, if the case be remanded for new trial, such objection may then be taken before the Court of first instance.—Durgaram v. Narsing Deb, 2 B. L. R. A. C. 254; 11 W. R. 134.

An objection that an attachment under S. 240 of Act VIII of 1859 was invalid, because the formalities required by S. 239 had not been complied with, was not allowed to be taken on appeal, it not having been raised in the Courts below.—Ramkrishna v. Surfunnissa, 7 I. A. 157; 6 C. 129 (P. C.).

Where objection to the validity of the award, on the ground that it was made beyond the time allowed, was not taken by the defendant in the first Court, held, that he was not thereby estopped from raising the objection for the first time in appeal, inasmuch as it was not shown that, in the first Court, he was aware of the defect or had done anything to imply consent to extension of the time.—Chuha Mal v. Hari Ram, 8 A. 548.

If no objection is taken in the Court of first instance to the reception of a document in evidence, it is not within the province of the appellate Court to raise or recognize it in appeal.—Chimnaji Govind v. Dinkar Dhonde, 11 B. 320. No objection should be allowed to be taken in the appellate Court as to the admissibility of a copy of a document which was admitted in evidence in the Court below without any objection.—Kishori Lal v. Rakhal Das, 31 C. 155 (26 C. 53 dissented from); Hriday Krishna v. Prasanna Kumari, 28 C. 142 (23 I. A. 106; 19 A. 76 (P. C.) distinguished). See also Shahzadi Begum v. Secretary of State, 34 C. 1059 (P. C.); 34 I. A. 194; 6 C. L. J. 678; 9 Bom. L. R. 1192; and Ram Prasad v. Sham Narain, 6 C. L. J. 22.

It has been held that the Court is bound in regular appeal to entertain an objection that a document is invalid for want of registration, even though no objection may have been raised to its admissibility in the Court below.—Basawa v. Kalkapa, 2 B. 489; Oomatool Fatima v. Ghunnoo, 19 W. R. 22. But see Girish Chandra v. Amina Khatun, 3 B. L. R. Ap. 125.

Where a point is taken on appeal, the appellate Court should consider and decide it, although the vakil may omit to argue it.—Dada Valad v. Bavasha Valad, 6 B. H. C. R. 9.

Where a judgment of the appellate Court contained a statement that a particular point had been abandoned, which statement was challenged, the Judicial Committee considering the surrounding circumstances, held that the point was not abandoned.—Kalka Parshad v. Mathura Parshad, 35 I. A. 166: 13 C. W. N. 1 (P. C.): 8 C. L. J. 447: 30 A. 510: 10 Bom. L. R. 1086: 18 M. L. J. 424: 1 I. C. 175.

Appellate Court shall not rest its decision on any ground not set forth in the memorandum of appeal.—The appellate Court is not precluded from basing its decision upon a ground not set forth in the memorandum of appeal nor taken by leave of this Court under this rule.—Thakuri v. Kundan, 17 A. 280. This power is however to be exercised by the Court alone and neither party can claim it as of right.—Bansidhar v. Sita Ram, 13 A. 381.

The appellate Court has no power to rest its decision on a ground not set forth in the memorandum of appeal if a particular point taken in the pleading has been deliberately abandoned by a party at the trial of the suit before the lower Court.—Govindrao v. Balu, 16 B. 586.

A Judge is not permitted to make, on appeal, a different case for the appellant from that which he alleged for himself in the Court of first instance.—Kachubhai v. Krishnabai, 2 B. 635, Irangowda v. Seshapa, 17 B. 772; Nathu v. Umedmal, 33 B. 35.

An appellate Court should not ordinarily travel beyond the record or take up points which are not the subject of appeal before it.—Kashinath v. Roy Dwarkanath, 7 W. R. 61. See also Gourmoni v. Jagat Chandra, 17 C. 57 (64).

A lower appellate Court is not justified in determining an appeal on an issue which was not raised between the parties in the Court of first instance.—Ustoorun v. Mohun Lall, 21 W. R. 333. See also Pran Kishore v. Mahomed Ameer, 21 W. R. 338; Bukmini v. Foodun Koomaree, 23 W. R. 408; Sookhanundamoyee v. Baney Madhub, 1. W. R. 73; Ramrav Khanderav v. Govind Pandshet, 6 B. H. C. R. 63.

A finding of the first Court not appealed against cannot be interfered with by the appellate Court.—Kalee Das v. Khiroda, 16 W. R. 300; Wadhawa Singh v. Sundar Singh, 59 I. C. 689: 21 P. W. R. 1921.

In a suit for ejectment in which neither party set up a tenancy, the lower appellate Court found that the defendant was a yearly tenant and hence dismissed the suit for want of notice to quit. Held, that the lower appellate Court could not make for the defendant a case which was different from and inconsistent with that set up by him.—Sujjad Ahamed v. Ganga Charan, 9 C. W. N. 450: 8 C. L. J. 116 (13 C. 248, 17 M. 218, 15 B. 407, distinguished).

Where a plaintiff has rested his case upon fraud, and the case of fraud has failed, he cannot be permitted to support it upon an entirely different and inconsistent ground.—Ghurphekar v. Purneshwar, 6 C. L. J. 653 (8 C. 631, 6 B. 110, 7 C. 381, referred to).

An appellate Court can suo moto raise the question of limitation for the first time, where it appears on the face of the plaint that the suit is barred.—Mozaffur Ally v. Girish Chandra, 1 B. L. R. 25: 10 W. R. 71.

Power of appellate Court to take cognizance of facts which have happened since the date of judgment of the lower Court.—Ratan v. Bishun, 11 C. W. N. 732 6 C. L. J. 74. Hari Singh v. State of Punjab, 6 C. L. J. 92; Ramchand v. Bindra, 6 C. L. J. 174. Chobey v. Rashika, 6 C. L. J. 662.

3. (1) Where the memorandum of appeal is not amended or up in the manner hereinbefore prescribed, a amendment of may be rejected, or be returned to the appellant memorandum. for the purpose of being amended within a time to be fixed by the Court or be amended then and there.

(2) Where the Court rejects any memorandum, it shall record the reasons for such rejection.

(3) Where a memorandum of appeal is amended, the Judge, or such officer as he appoints in this behalf, shall sign or initial the amendment. [S. 543.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 543, C. P. Code of 1882, with some alterations of verbal character.

The word “where” has been substituted for the words “if” and “when”; and the words “shall sign or initial” have been substituted for the words “shall attest by his signature,” which occurred in the old section. No change seems to have been made in the meaning.

Other grounds of rejection.—Under S. 107, sub-rule (2), read with S. 108, a memorandum of appeal if it is not amended within the time specified, shall be rejected. VII, r. 11.

Under S. 3 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), an appellate Court can reject a memorandum of appeal if it is filed after the prescribed period of limitation. As to the discretionary power of the appellate Court to excuse delay, see the cases noted under r. 1 of this order.

Returned for Amendment.—A memorandum of appeal containing language disrespectful to the Court of the first instance and containing allegations of bias and partiality against that Court should be returned for amendment.—Zamindar of Tuni v. Benaya, 22 M. 155.

Where a memorandum of appeal is returned for the purpose of being corrected, the appellate Court should specify a time for such correction.—Jagannath v. Dalman, 1 A. 260. When an appellate Court returns an order in order that it may be corrected, the deficiency is to be (1 A. 260 referred to).

“May be rejected.”—Whenever a memorandum of appeal is rejected under the discretionary power vested in the Court, a judicial order to that effect, and the reasons for the same, ought to be recorded.—Lalla Jugesh v. Kassenauth, 1 Ind. Jur. O. S. 121.

An appellate Court should state its reasons for rejecting an appeal as barred by limitation.—Raghunath v. Nilu, 9 B. 452 (454).:

When a memorandum of appeal is summarily rejected, under this rule, the reason for such rejection should be recorded.—Rudr Prasad v. Baijnath, 15 A. 367.

The time for rejecting an appeal is when it is presented, and not after it has once been admitted.—Gopee Bullub v. Goluck Proshad, W. R. 1864, (135). But the registration of an appeal is a ministerial act, so it can be rejected after registration.—Jafer Hossein v. Mahomed Amir, 4 B L. R. App. 103: 13 W. R. 351.

There is no limitation as to the time when a memorandum of appeal may be rejected or returned for amendment.—Damodar Das v. Gokal Chand, 7 A. 79 (85) (F. B.).

Appeal.—A decision rejecting a memorandum of appeal on the ground that it is barred by limitation has the force of a decree and is therefore appealable.—Gulap Rai v. Mangli Lal, 7 A. 42; Raghunath v. Nilu, 9 B. 452; Gunga Dass v. Ramjoy, 12 C. 30. For the same reason, a decision that a memorandum of appeal is insufficiently stamped or that it was not duly presented, is appealable as a decree.—Rup Singh v. Mukhraj, 7 A. 887; Ayyanna v. Nagabhooshanam, 16 M. 285.

An order rejecting a memorandum of appeal for deficient court-fee is not a decree or final order and does not preclude the appellant from presenting a fresh memorandum on proper court-fee.—Jnanadasundari v. Madhab Chandra, 59 C. 388.

4. Where there are more plaintiffs or more defendants than one in a suit, and the decree appealed from proceeds on any ground common to all the plaintiffs or to all the defendants, any one of the plaintiffs or of the defendants may appeal from the whole decree, and thereupon the Appellate Court may reverse or vary the decree in favour of all the plaintiffs or defendants, as the case may be. [S. 544.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 544, C. P. Code, with the substitution of the words “appealed from” for the words “appealed against,” and of the word “vary” for the word “modify,” which occurred in the old section. No other alteration has been made in this rule.

This rule is to be read with r. 33 of the Order which has been taken from English Or. LVIII, r. 4, and which has been inserted with the object that the appellate Court should have the fullest power to do complete justice between the parties.

Any one of the plaintiffs or defendants may appeal.—This rule relates only to cases where one or more of the parties arrayed on the same side appealed against a decree passed on a ground common to all, and not to cases where either of two opposite parties appealed from a part of the decree upon a point, the other party may appeal from the whole.—Cheda Lal v. Badullah, 11 M. I. A. 157, 10, and 12 M. I. A. 157 referred to).

Where one of the plaintiffs, whose suit is dismissed, appeals, the appellate Court can decree the appeal in favour of all, especially when the non-appealing plaintiffs are joined as respondents.—Madhorao v. Mt. Laxmi Bai, A. I. R. 1927 Nag. 406; 99 I. C. 1041; Saru Khan v. Jan Muhammad, 106 I. C. 313; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 43; Fazal Hussain v. Ghulan Rasul, 110 I. C. 250.

Where a preliminary decree was passed in favour of two appellants jointly, in ignorance of the fact that one was dead, the Court allowed the heirs of the deceased appellant to be substituted as parties in the final decree.—Gantuku Appanna v. Jellepalli Gavarappadu, 48 M. L. J. 601; 87 I. C. 748; A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 910.

One of several defendants who appeals in respect only of the sum decreed against her is not entitled to take advantage of this rule and question the full amount claimed.—Sheero Comares v. Mahatab Chund, W. R. 1864, (380).

One of two defendants may appeal as respects the whole, and not only half, of the property in dispute, in the absence of proof that they owned the property in two equal shares.—Katyanee v. Madhub, 4 W. R. 68.

Where one of several plaintiffs prefers an appeal in which the other plaintiffs are also interested, Or. XLI, r. 4 does not authorize him to proceed with the appeal without making the other plaintiffs parties thereto.—Ambika Prasad v. Jhinak Singh, 45 A. 236; 21 A. L. J. 91; 71 I. C. 321; A. I. R. 1923 All. 211.

In a suit for arrears of rent, an intervenor who alleged that he was in receipt of the rents from the ryots was made a party. The first Court passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff, but the decree was reversed on appeal and the suit dismissed. On appeal to the High Court, held, that the intervenor was properly made a defendant to the suit, and that he could prefer an appeal from the decree of the Court of first instance, and that the Court of appeal could, on his appeal, set aside the whole decree.—Dayal Chand v. Nabin Chandra, 8 B. L. R. 180; 16 W. R. 235.

By consent of parties the High Court allowed an appeal by one plaintiff against another plaintiff, and adjudicated upon their rights.—Bhagirathibai v. Baya, 5 B. 264.

In a suit in which the defence of two defendants was a common one to the extent of denying that the plaintiff was entitled to the property, the Court allowed the appeal of one defendant from the decree against him, and set aside the decree against him.—Mahomed Saefoollah v. Anwar Ali, 21 W. R. 112.

Reversal or modification of decree on ground common to all.—This rule applies as well to ex parte decrees as to other decrees, the only question being whether the decision of the lower Court proceeded on a ground common to all the defendants.—Sreenath v. Grey, 13 W. R. 114; Ram Tahal v. Sukeswar, 1 P. L. J. 143.

A decree against several defendants, one of whom alone appeals, can be reversed as against the rest when it proceeds on any ground common to all.—Ram Kamal v. Ahmad Ali, 30 C. 429 (17 M. 265, dissented from); Annamalay Chettiar v. Pitchu Ayyar, 28 M. 122; 15 M. L. J. 28; Dhuttaloor v. Paidigantam, 30 M. 470 (F. B.); 17 M. L. J. 119; Kali Pada v. Mati Lal, 9 C. L. J. 461 (20 A. 8, 28 A. 95, and 30 M. 470 followed); Asibunnessa v. Wali Ahamed, 1 C. L. J. 144; Somasundaram v. Vaithilinga, 40 M. 846 (867); Ambika Prosad v. Pardip Singh, 19 C. W. N. 233; Salaludin v. Afzal Begum, 39 C. L. J. 590; 28 C. W. N. 963; 84 I. C. 68; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 23; Durga Kunwar v. Balwant Singh, 23 A. 478 (481); Nagamma v. Subba, 11 M. 197; Seshadri v. Krishnan, 8 M. 192; Ram Sundar Das v. Shajidur Rahman, 60 I. C. 460. If however, the appealing defendant values the appeal at a sum which represents the amount decreed against him alone, the appeal cannot be regarded as being against the entire decree so as to bring the case within Or. XLI, r. 4.—Jogendra Nath v. Rajendra Nath, 63 I. C. 95.

Suit decreed both against mortgagor and the purchaser of the equity of redemption, overruling the plea of valid tender. The purchaser appealed against the decree, impleading the mortgagor as a respondent. The appellate Court on setting aside the decree can set it aside as against the mortgagor also.—Venkatrama v. Gopalakrishna, 52 M. 322; 116 I. C. 844; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 230; 56 M. L. J. 255.

Suit for redemption based on a mortgage was dismissed by the trial Court on the ground that the mortgage was not proved. The lower appellate Court decreed the suit. The High Court, in second appeal by an alienee of some of the items comprised in the mortgage from the mortgagee, reversed the decree of the lower appellate Court and held that the trial Court's decision that the mortgage was not proved was correct and should be confirmed. It was open to the High Court under this rule to reverse the decree for redemption not only against the alienee who had actually preferred the appeal but also as against the alienees of other items who had not preferred the appeal.—Ahmad Haji v. Mayan, 57 M. L. J. 789; 124 I. C. 301; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 65.

The word "may" in this rule shows that the appellate Court is given a discretion in the matter. It may, therefore, reverse the decree in favour of some only of the plaintiffs or defendants. It is not bound to do so in favour of all of them.—Narain v. Binaik, 36 A. 510; Kaka v. Kartara, 133 I. C. 556; 32 P. L. R. 787; A. I. R. 1933 Lah. 71. An appellate Court can reverse or alter a decree on appeal by one party only when it finds that the lower Court had no jurisdiction to try suit.—Nagamma v. Subba, 11 M. 197.

A decree was passed for the plaintiff in a suit to redeem a kanom brought against various persons most of whom disclaimed all interest. An appeal was preferred by one of the defendants who claimed to be the jennm of the premises comprised in the kanom from him. The first-mentioned appellant withdrew from the appeal, which, however, was prosecuted by the others and the appellate Court reversed the decree. Held, that since the appellants were the only substantial defendants, the appellate Court was right in allowing the appeal to proceed.—Sri Manavikraman v. Rayan, 16 M. 293.

In 1880, Z leased certain property to defendant; in 1892 the successor of Z leased the same property to plaintiff, who sued the defendant and Z's successor and obtained a decree for possession. The defendant gave up possession. The successor of Z appealed making defendant a party. The High Court reversed the decree and dismissed the plaintiff's suit, holding that defendant's lease was valid. Held that, under this rule, the decree of the High Court enured for the benefit of the defendant also and that he was entitled to restitution.—Erat Madhavan v. Venganat, 18 M. L. J. 39.

Where parties who have been made co-defendants do not appear, and the Court deals with the case under S. 116, C. P. Code, 1859, the decree is in favour of the absent defendant in favour of defendants not before the appellate Court.—Doorga Churn v. Shamanund, 12 W. R. 376.

Two suits brought by different parties claiming different interests in a certain share to set aside the sale of that share having been dismissed, one of the plaintiffs appealed, and the sale was set aside. Held, that the decision must be considered as setting the sale aside as to the whole of that share, although the other parties did not appeal.—Nagar v. Shuriutoolah, 20 W. R. 77.

Under Or. XLI, r. 4, C. P. Code, an appellate Court has power to reverse a judgment in favour of a deceased defendant as regards the whole of the plaintiff's claim and not only as regards that part of it in which the surviving defendant or defendants were particularly interested.—Subbaraya Mudaliar v. Kandasami, 16 L. W. 330: (1922) M. W. N. 674.

Where certain tenants appealed, making only some of the co-sharer landlords respondents, held, that as the respondents alone could not have sued for rent, the appeal impleading them without joining the other landlords as respondents, was unsustainable. Under Or. I, r. 9, C. P. Code, a person who is a necessary party to the suit is a necessary party to the appeal.—Jatindranath v. Jhaku Mandar, 66 I. C. 780: 3 P. L. T. 456.

Decree against some of the defendants—Alteration of decree by appellate Court.—When a decree has been given against one defendant only, an appellate Court can alter the decree so as to render liable another defendant against whom the plaintiff has preferred no appeal.—Rup Jaun v. Abdul Kadir, 31 C. 643 (F. B.): 8 C. W. N. 496 (25 C. 565 approved; 26 C. 109, and 18 B. 520 referred to; 7 W. R. 49 and 366 impliedly overruled). Dissented from in Farzand Ali v. Bismillah Begam, 27 A. 23 (following 2 A. 487, and 5 A. 266), and also in Kulai Kada v. Viswanatha, 28 M. 220: 15 M. L. J. 212 (7 M. 215, 18 B. 520, 26 C. 109, 31 C. 643, distinguished). In these latter cases it has been held that an appellate Court is precluded from modifying the decree of the lower Court in favour of a party who filed neither an appeal nor a memorandum of objection under r. 22 Order. These cases seem to have been overruled by the new provisions in r. 33 of this Order. See notes under that Rule, post.

Where it is necessary for a proper decision of an appeal, it is competent to an appellate Court to take into filed under S. 561, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 22), by one of the respondents, not only as against the appellant, but, it may be, as against the co-respondents with the objector also, and to modify the decree as against them accordingly.—Abdul Ghani v. Muhammad Fasih, 28 A. 95 : 2 A. L. J. 667 (26 C. 114 followed ; 21 W. R. 338 referred to ; 23 A. 93 distinguished).

If, in a mortgage suit, in which the plaintiffs ask for relief against two sets of defendants in the alternative, the first Court gives a decree against one set of defendants and dismisses the suit as against the other, the appellate Court has, on appeal by one set of defendants in which the other set of defendants is made a party respondent, power to alter the decree, so as to make the latter liable, the real contest in the case being between the defendants.—Iswardhari Singh v. Sahebzadi, 35 C. 538 : 12 C. W. N. 720 (25 C. 565, 26 C. 109, 31 C. 643 followed ; 26 C. 114 does not lay down any different principle). In this connection, see r. 33 of this Order, which virtually supersedes 27 A. 23, 28 M. 229, and other cases, in which a similar view has been taken.

In a suit against A and B for recovery of possession of property, the Court gave a decree against A and in favour of B. The plaintiff appealed from that part of the decision which was in B's favour. Held, that the Judge on appeal had no jurisdiction to reverse the decision of the Court below against A, he being no party to the appeal.—Huroochunder v. Lalchand, Marsh Rep. 256 : 2 Hay. 48. See also Lalla Ram Surun v. Lokebas Kooer, 18 W. R. 39.

A and B were sued on a joint liability to pay rent. A did not defend. B did ; and a decree was passed against both. B appealed. Held, that it was competent to the Judge on appeal to reverse the decree on the ground that there was no joint liability, but that B occupied a separate estate at a separate rent.—Lukhee Kant v. Ram Dayal, Marsh 281 : 2 Hay. 288.

Appeal by one of several plaintiffs claiming under a joint right—Decree in such appeal binds other co-plaintiffs although not parties to the appeal—Procedure.—Babaji Dhondshet v. Collector of Salt Revenue, 11 B. 596.

Altering decree against defendant on co-defendant's appeal. It was considered, under the circumstances of this case, not consistent with the principles of equity and good conscience to refuse a clearly proved right on the technical ground that on one co-defendant's appeal no decision adverse to another co-defendant can be come to.—Oodoy Singh v. Paluck Singh, 16 W. R. 271.

The Court of Appeal has power, under S. 544, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), to draw up what would be a fair decree as regards all the parties to a suit although some of them may not have appealed.—Joykisto v. Nittyanund, 3 C. 738 : 2 O. L. R. 440.

Where the decree does not proceed on any ground common to all.—A decree against several defendants, one of whom alone appeals, cannot be reversed as against the rest when it did not proceed on a ground common to all.—Doyamoyee v. Eshur Chunder, 1 W. R. 203 ; Woomesh Chunder v. Matumginee, 2 W. R. 170 ; Abdool Ali v. Banoo, 2 W. R. 287 ; Boydonth v. Ojan Bibee, 11 W. R. 238 ; Koolada Pershad v. Goura Chand, 17 W. R. 353 ; Chunder Monce v. Modhoo, 23 W. R. 166 ; Amir Chand v. Kahan Das, 106 I. C. 876 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 279.

A suit by a sister and sister's daughter of a deceased Hindu against an alliance from the widow of the deceased on the footing that they were the heirs of the deceased was dismissed and on appeal by the sister's daughter daughter were not identical and the judgment of the lower appellate Court not having proceeded upon a common ground the provisions of this rule were inapplicable and therefore the decree of the lower appellate Court was unsustainable.—Jang Bir v. Mt. Jamna, 12 L. 534; 32 P. L. R. 798.

Section 544, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), does not enable an appellate Court to decide, upon a ground which it considers to be common to all the defendants, an appeal preferred by one only of such defendants, and to reverse or modify the decree of the Court below in favour of all the defendants, unless the lower Court has proceeded upon a ground common to all the defendants.—Puran Mal v. Krant Singh, 20 A. 8 (14 W. R. 130 referred to). See also Chajju v. Umrao Singh, 22 A. 386; and Protab Chunder v. Koorbanissa, 14 W. R. 130.

Where one of several defendants appeals not against the whole decree but only against that portion of it which affects him, and his defence in the lower Court is not a defence common to the other defendants, the decree of the lower Court cannot be reversed in favour of those defendants who have not appealed.—Ram Chunder v. Omora Churn, 18 W. R. 26. See also Nakur Chunder v. Judoo Nath, 24 W. R. 389.

Appeal by pro forma defendants, by making the real defendants, who did not appear, respondents as between themselves, cannot open out that portion of the case which, as between the plaintiff and the non-appealing defendant, has not been appealed against.—Gudadhur v. Mun Mohunee, 7 W. R. 366. See also Kharmukuree v. Nilambur, 2 W. R. 227. But see Soiru v. Narayanrao, 18 B. 520 (7 W. R. 366 and 5 A. 266 distinguished).

Appeal—Joint appellants—Presentation of appeal beyond time—Affidavit excusing delay in appealing made by only one of the appellants stating reasons personal to himself—Appeal admitted—Variation of the decree on a point affecting other appellants, but not the appellant who made the affidavit—Variation not allowed —Vishwanath v. Vasudev, 25 B. 699 (27 C. 57, 22 B. 849 cited).

Persons not parties to proceedings in appeal not bound by the result of those proceedings. Where there are several respondents before the Court of first appeal, though one of them may represent his fellows in a further appeal, he cannot represent a person who was not his co-respondent, and against whom therefore no decree could have been made on a point common to the two, or any point at all.—Dev Gopal v. Vasudev, 12 B. 371.

Death of one of several joint appellants or respondents does not cause the appeal as a whole to abate.—See the cases noted under Or. XXII, rr. 1–4 and 11.

When one of several plaintiffs appealing against a decree which proceeded on grounds common to them all, died pending the appeal and substitution was not made in time, the other appellants were not entitled to the benefit of this rule.—Protap Chandra v. Durga Charan, 9 C. W. N. 1061.

Where one of the parties to a decree is dead, and the decree is on the record, the deceased defendant could have resisted and did actually resist the plaintiffs' claim, although these grounds were not taken by the surviving defendant himself.—Kalachand v. Jotindra, 56 C. 487: 33 C. W. N. 150.

This rule enables one of several plaintiffs or defendants to appeal from a decree which proceeds on a ground common to them all; and it does not provide that the plaintiffs or defendants who do join with the appellant should be considered to be appellants for any purpose. Therefore when one of several defendants having a common interest appeals making the others pro forma respondents and his legal representatives are not brought on the record within time, the pro forma respondents are not entitled to continue the appeal; and Or. XXII, r. 2 which applies only to a case of several appellants can have no application to such a case.—Gobind v. Anar Kunwar, 53 A. 521: 131 I. C. 877: A. I. R. 1931 All. 349.

Where a preliminary decree had been passed in favour of two appellants jointly, in ignorance of the fact that one was dead, the Court allowed the heirs of the deceased appellant to be substituted as parties in the final decree.—Apanna v. Gavarappadu, 48 M. L. J. 601: 87 I. C. 748: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 910.

Application for execution by non-appealing parties and the time from which limitation runs.—A suit brought against several defendants was dismissed with costs. The plaintiffs appealed, and the case was remanded under S. 526, C. P. Code, 1882. One of the defendants appealed to the High Court against the order of remand, and the High Court set aside the remand order and restored the decree of the first Court. Held, that the defendants who had not appealed were entitled to take out execution of that decree for the costs awarded to them, by the first Court, notwithstanding that they were not parties to the decree of the High Court.—Mul Chand v. Ram Ratan, 20 A. 493.

Where only some of several persons affected by a decree have appealed against it, the date of the appellate decree forms the basis from which the period of limitation should be computed, even in the case of those who have not appealed against the original decree.—Shivram v. Sakharam, 33 B. 39: 10 Bom. L. R. 939. But where a decree for possession was passed, not jointly but severally, as against all the defendants individually, and specifically stated the portions of which they were severally in possession, as also the costs separately payable by each of them; and where two only of the defendants appealed on pleas which did not assail the decree in respect of any right or ground common to the appellants and all or any of the non-appealing defendants, but referred merely to the specific property alleged to be in the appellants' hands. Held, by the Full Bench, that a first application for execution of the original decree against those defendants who had not appealed from it, and which was made five years after the date of the decree was barred by limitation.—Mashiatunnissa v. Rani, 13 A. 1 (10 W. R. 30, 6 C. 191; 6 C. L. R. 573 and 8 A. 573 approved and followed).

A suit having been dismissed by the first Court, which ordered that the costs of all contending defendants were to be borne by the plaintiff, the plaintiff appealed to the High Court which reversed the decree. One of the defendants appealed to the Privy Council, which reversing the decree of the High Court restored that of the first Court. Held, that the decree of the first Court by being restored was re-affirmed in its integrity, and the defendants generally were entitled to execute it, though only one had appealed to the Privy Council.—Luchmeeput Singh v. Khoobunnissa, 14 W. R. 280.

A District Court gave the plaintiff a decree against all the defendants. All the defendants except one, B, appealed to the High Court, which reversed the decree. The plaintiff appealed to the Privy Council, all the defendants except B being respondents. Her Majesty in Council reversed the decree of the High Court, and restored that of the District Court. Held that, notwithstanding that B was not a party to the appeals to the High Court and to the Privy Council, the decree was a valid decree, and could be executed against B.—Kishen Sahai v. Collector of Allahabad, 4 A. 137.

Where a decree for possession of certain property is made against three persons jointly, one of whom appeals against the decree only so far as it affects himself and not against the whole decree, and the decree does not relate to property in respect of which the defendants have a common interest and a common defence, so that an appeal by one would imperil the whole decree, then the fact of one defendant having appealed will not prevent limitation running in favour of the others against the execution of the decree.—Hur Proshaud v. Enayet Hossein, 2 C. L. R. 471.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS AND OF EXECUTION.

5. (1) An appeal shall not operate as a stay of proceedings under a decree or order appealed from except so far as the Appellate Court may order, nor shall execution of a decree be stayed by reason only of an appeal having been preferred from the decree; but the Appellate Court may for sufficient cause order stay of execution of such decree.

Stay by appellate Court.

(2) Where an application is made for stay of execution of an appealable decree before the expiration of the time allowed for appealing therefrom, the Court which passed the decree may on sufficient cause being shown order the execution to be stayed.

Stay by Court which passed the decree.

(3) No order for stay of execution shall be made under sub-rule (1) or sub-rule (2) unless the Court making it is satisfied—

(a) that substantial loss may result to the party applying for stay of execution unless the order is made;

(b) that the application has been made without unreasonable delay; and

(c) that security has been given by the applicant for the due performance of such decree or order as may ultimately be binding upon him.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rule (3), the Court may make an ex parte order for stay of execution pending the hearing of the application. [S. 515.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 545, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (1) the words "an appeal shall not operate as a stay of proceedings under a decree or order appealed from except so far as the appellate Court may order," have been added, adopting the law as laid down in the Full Bench case; Balkishen v. Khugnu, 31 C. 722 : 8 C. W. N. 572. Before the Full Bench case was decided there was a diversity of judicial opinion as to whether an appellate Court has power to stay proceedings under a decree or order. In Basunto v. Bhut Nath, 1 C. W. N. 264, it was held that there is no provision in the C. P. Code which authorizes a Court to which an appeal is preferred against a preliminary decree, to stay proceedings pending the hearing of the appeal; S. 545 of the old Code (this rule), only authorizes the appellate Court to stay execution of decrees, but there is no provision in it to stay interlocutory order in a proceeding in the suit, previous to the passing of the final decree. In Brij Coomaree v. Ramrick Dass, 5 C. W. N. 781 a contrary view was taken. Then the question was referred to a Full Bench, which (overruling 1 C. W. N. 264) held that apart from S. 545 (this rule), the appellate Court has inherent power to stay such proceedings. Thus the above addition has been made adopting the law as laid down in the Full Bench case quoted above empowering the appellate Court to stay proceedings after an appeal is preferred against a preliminary decree. The object of the amendment will be clearly understood from the following report of the Special Committee:—

"The Committee have added words to S. 545 in order to make it clear that proceedings under a decree as well as execution can be stayed by an appellate Court; the recognition of preliminary decrees makes it the more necessary to have an express power to this effect instead of resting on an inherent power.—Balkishen Sahu v. Khugnu, 31 C. 722 (F. B.). The Committee have introduced express words authorizing an ex parte stay, as the need for such order constantly arises in practice."

Sub-rule (4) is new and the object of its introduction has been explained in the above report of the Special Committee.—It has been inserted to meet the case of Multan Chand v. Khan Saheb Kharsedji, 15 B. 536, where it was held that a final order staying execution should not be made without giving notice to the decree-holder. But the application should be supported by an affidavit as pointed out in the Bombay case above referred to.

The other changes introduced in this rule are merely verbal changes.

"Shall not operate as a stay of proceedings."—Rule 5 (1) of Or. XLI provides that an appeal shall not operate as a stay of execution; so that where a decree is under appeal, a Court may proceed with its execution and may, in the course of execution, do all such things as may be legal and just as it might do if no appeal had been preferred.—Balkrishna Chettiar v. Krishnamurthi Aiyar, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 416: 100 I. C. 841.

The proceedings relating to the passing of a final decree in a mortgage suit must be held to be included in the words "proceedings under a decree", and therefore the jurisdiction of the trial Court to pass a final decree is not ousted as soon as an appeal is filed against a preliminary decree.—Sat Prakash v. Bahal Rai, 53 A. 283 (F. B.) A. I. R. 1931 All. 386: 29 A. L. J. 508. When a preliminary decree passed in a mortgage suit is the subject-matter of an appeal the proper procedure is to stay the passing of a final decree.—Diran Chand v. Nank Chand, 136 I. C. 729 33 P. L. R. 123: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 271. But though the Court before which an appeal from the preliminary decree is pending has not the power to stay execution of a final decree under Or. XLI, the powers of the High Court as regards stay of proceedings pending in the Court below are not exhaustively defined by Or. XLI. If having regard to the ends of justice, it is expedient that the execution of the final decree should be stayed pending the appeal from the preliminary decree, the High Court has got ample power to stay it under S. 151.—Jankidas v. Sheo Prasad, 136 I. C. 75: 30 A. L. J. 43: A. I. R. 1932 All. 238. It is generally expedient that proceedings for the preparation of the final decree should not be stayed pending an appeal from the preliminary decree because the mere passing of the final decree will not in any way affect the rights of the parties to the appeal from the preliminary decree.—Ibid.

did not apply the Court could order stay under S. 151.—Hirambho v. Sarojini, 30 A. L. J. 582: A. I. R. 1932 All. 655: 141 I. C. 612.

Stay of execution by appellate Court.—When an appeal is pending in the High Court against a preliminary order made in a Subordinate Court in an account or partition suit, the High Court can make an order staying proceedings pending its hearing.—Balkishen Sahu v. Khugnu, 31 C. 722 (F. B.): 8 C. W. N. 572 (1 C. W. N. 264 overruled; 5 C. W. N. 781 approved). See also Panchanan v. Dwarka Nath, 3 C. L. J. 29; Chhote Lal v. Sultan Singh, 111 I. C. 383; 29 P. L. R. 262; Rup Narain v. Shibbu Mal, 107 I. C. 486; Karam Elahi v. Amirunnisa, 119 I. C. 489: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 108.

Order XLI, r. 5 provides in express terms under what conditions the proceedings under a decree can be stayed. The Privy Council which has seisin of the appeal and not the High Court which passed the decree, has power to stay proceedings in a partition suit after a preliminary decree. Under Or. XLV, r. 13, the High Court which passed the decree may stay execution of the final decree on special cause being shown.—Laliteswar v. Bhableswar, 9 C. L. J. 561: 13 C. W. N. 690.

Sections 545 and 546, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, rr. 5 and 6), clearly imply that an appeal incapacitates the inferior Court from dealing with the litigation since even the power of staying execution is, once an appeal is made, taken away from the Court and is exercisable by the appellate Court only.—Ramanadhan v. Narayanan, 27 M. 602, (606). See, however, Sarat Chandra v. Damodar, 12 C. W. N. 885 (on appeal, 13 C. W. N. 846); Firm Gobindram Ramchandrar v. Firm Rularam Naurtaram, 76 I. O. 174.

Section 545, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 5), has no application where no appeal has been preferred against the decree in the original suit. An appellate Court cannot stay proceedings in execution of a decree of a subordinate Court, merely by reason of an appeal having been preferred against an order of refusal of the Court below to set aside the decree under S. 103, C. P. Code (Or. IX, r. 13).—Bhagwat Rajkoer v. Sheo Golam, 31 C. 1081: 9 C. W. N. 123 (28 C. 734, 8 C. W. N. 572, and 5 C. W. N. 781, distinguished).

An appellate Court has no jurisdiction under Or. XLI, r. 5, to grant a stay of execution of a decree of a Subordinate Court unless it has seisin of an appeal against such decree. Where no appeal has been preferred, the Court which passed the decree alone has power to grant a stay, on sufficient cause being shown during the time provided by law for presenting an appeal.—Purshottam Saran v. Hargu Lal, 43 A. 198: 18 A. L. J. 1121.

Where the defendants in an original suit applied to the appellate Court for stay of execution of the decree pending the appeal held, that the applicant who asked for the indulgence must pay the costs of the application.—Ohuni Lal v. Anantram, 25 C. 893.

An order of an appellate Court under S. 545, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 5), to stay execution of a decree pending appeal, is in the nature of a prohibitory order, and, as such, would only take effect when communicated. If a property is sold before such an order is communicated to the Court holding the sale, such sale is not void and cannot be treated as a nullity.—Bessesswari v. Horro Sundar, 1 C. W. N. 226 (4 N. W. P. H. C. R. 398, 6 N. W. P. H. C. R. 354, and 3 A. 686, distinguished).

An appellate Court has authority under this rule to take security from a decree-holder even after execution of the decree under appeal has been completed.—Hukum Chand v. Kamalanand, 33 C. 927: 3 C. L. J. 67.

Where an application on behalf of the appellant for stay of delivery of possession was dismissed by the High Court as premature on the respondent's representing that he had taken no steps for delivery of possession, and immediately thereafter he applied to the executing Court and obtained delivery of possession through that Court, the High Court held that it was in the nature of overreaching of the Court on the part of the respondent and so the High Court recon- nd directed that the delivery of y.

An application for restitution can be made as soon as a decree is varied or reversed and the execution ought not to be stayed under this rule because an appeal has been filed.—Mulchand v. Tarachand, 117 I. C. 288 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 138.

A stay of execution cannot be directed where there is no application for execution pending before the executing Court.—Nawab v. Hukam Din, 63 I. C. 337.

Stay of execution in appeal against order refusing to set aside an award—The High Court has inherent jurisdiction to grant a stay of execution under an award where the application to set aside the award has been refused and there is an appeal Or. XLI, r. 5 and see that the conditions laid with.—Mahomedalli v. Dharamsey, 55 B. 801 : 133 I. C. 864 . A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 384 : 33 Bom. L. R. 702.

Stay of execution by revisional Court.—This rule is confined in its application to appeals and does not apply to applications for revision.—Shree Darbar Sahib v. Central Bank of India, 117 I. C. 815 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 167.

Effect of uncommunicated order staying execution.—Where an order is made by an appellate Court staying execution of a decree, but before the order is communicated to the Court executing the decree, the property of the judgment-debtor is sold in execution, the sale is invalid and cannot stand, the reason being that when an unconditional order for stay of execution is made, the order becomes operative the moment it is made and suspends the power of the lower Court to continue the proceedings in execution.—Hukum Chand v. Kamalanand, 33 C. 927 : 3 C. L. J. 67 ; Sati Nath v. Ratanmami, 15 C. L. J. 335 ; Sahu v. Shadi Ram, 24 A. L. J. 519 : 96 I. C. 137 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 457. It has, however, been held by the Madras High Court in Muthukumarasami v. Kuppusami, 33 M. 74 ; Venkata-chalapati v. Kameswaramma, 41 M. 151 (F. B.) : 43 I. C. 214 : 33 M. L. J. 515, that such sale is valid. See also Parsotam v. Barhmanand, 50 A. 41 (F. B.) : 102 I. C. 665 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 401 : 25 A. L. J. 530 ; Lakshmi-chand v. Phulchand, 125 I. C. 53 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 17 : 11 L. L. J. 457. The Bombay High Court has held that it is difficult to lay down a principle as to the moment of operativeness or otherwise of the order of an appellate Court for stay of sale, and whether the operativeness of the order dates from the time it is signed or from the time it is communicated, a great deal depends upon the nature of the order, the question of good faith and other facts.—Rudrappa v. Bashettappa, 52 B. 290 : 110 I. C. 710 : A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 189 : 30 Bom. L. R. 465.

All proceedings by executing Court after communication of stay order by appellate Court, void.—When an appellate Court orders stay of execution pending an appeal, the Court before which the execution proceedings are pending has no power to proceed with the execution after the receipt of the order. It would be opposed to all principles to hold that, because the stay order was not perused by the Court executing the decree or that it had no time to pay any attention to it, the attachment and other proceedings subsequent to the receipt of the order are good. Anything done during the trial when the stay order is in force is not only irregular, but is altogether void, as the Court has no jurisdiction to do anything after it is prohibited from doing it.—Venkatappayya v. Venkatachalapathi Rao, 99 I. C. 989 : A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 450.

Rule 5, Cl. (a)—substantial loss.—In order to obtain a stay of execution of a decree directing payment of money, the applicant must satisfy the Court by affidavit that substantial loss may result to him unless execution is stayed.—H. H. The Gaikwar Sirkar v. Ghandi, 25 B. 243. See Nazar Ali v. Ojoodharam, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 185; Dhera Mal v. Haidar Shah, 2 L. 61: 61 I. C. 77; Harihar Prasad v. Keshva Prasad, 61 I. C. 9; Rajendra Singh v. Umrao Singh, 61 I. C. 827; Ajramand Khan v. Shankar Lal, A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 364. What amounts to sufficient cause depends upon the facts of each particular case.—Mahomed Hossein v. Lutf Ali, 20 W. R. 393; In re Ahmed Reza, 13 W. R. 281.

That the decree-holder is a woman possessed of no property is no ground for stay of execution as the appellant's interests can be amply safeguarded by taking security for restitution from the respondent.—Johnstone v. Jan Bibi, A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 329 : 107 I. C. 780.

Where arrest of the judgment-debtor was applied for pending his appeal and he applied for stay of execution, the loss would be irreparable if the appeal succeeded ; and therefore execution should be stayed regarding arrest only.—Mahomed Ishaq v. Wahiduddin, 31 P. L. R. 216.

When the judgment-debtor has sold his properties, the transferees and not the judgment-debtor can apply for stay of execution.—Har Narain v. Govind, 138 I. C. 847 : 30 A. L. J. 603 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 551.

In cases relating to immoveable property where the decree is under appeal, the disturbance of the status quo ante does result in substantial loss to the party in possession. In a suit for pre-emption, the defendant-vendee is in possession of the property under a perfectly valid title obtained for consideration from the original owner. Such possession should not be disturbed till the plaintiff has finally established his title and the vendee has exhausted all his remedies for retaining such possession.—Fateh Khan v. Daim, 9 L. L. J. 130 : A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 169 : 99 I. C. 767.

The Court declined to stay the execution of a decree : (1) because the applicant has not shown, as he was bound to show, something beyond the mere fact of an appeal having been preferred against it ; and (2) because there seemed to have been great delay on his part.—Leslie v. Land Mortgage Bank of India, 17 W. R. 160.

It is not open to the Court to refuse to execute a decree against which no appeal has been preferred, and the time for appealing against which has expired.—Ishan Chunder v. Ashanoollah, 10 C. 817.

If the proceedings are so protracted and the expense involved to be great, the appellate Court will refuse to stay the proceedings.—Nena Ojha v. Sarbhoj

Section 647, C. P. Code, 1892 (S. 141), provides for the procedure to be followed in miscellaneous matters other than suits and appeals, and its provisions, read with Ss. 545 and 546, give no power to the Court after the passing of final unappealable decree and before the granting of an application for review of judgment, to order a stay of execution of the decree.—Amir Hasan v. Ahmad Ali, 9 A. 36.

A decree directing the issue of a probate to the propounder of a Will is one that is capable of execution and stay of execution of such decree can be granted under S. 545, C. P. Code, 1892 (this rule).—Brij Coomaree v. Ramrick Dass, 5 O. W. N. 781.

The Court should not accept a security the validity of which is not free from reasonable doubt and the enforcement of which may lead to protracted litigation.—Srinibash Prasad v. Kesho Prasad, 38 C. 754 (775).

"That the application was made without unreasonable delay."—Applications for stay of execution in the original side of the High Court pending an intended appeal must ordinarily be made to the Judge who tried the case and be made without unreasonable delay.—

Where decree has been executed.—Execution completed by appointment of manager. Held that, under this rule, the Court had power only to stay execution, and that the words "stay execution" could not be extended to a case in which execution was completed, as in the case before it.—Dharram Singh v. Kishen Singh, 12 C. L. R. 532.

Notice to decree-holder.—A final order for staying the execution of a decree should not be made without giving the decree-holder notice of the judgment-debtor's application. The application should be supported by an affidavit.—Multanchand v. Kharsedji, 15 B. 536. But see Mulchand v. Tarni Prasad, 4 P. L. J. 642, in which a different view has been taken.

Security for due performance of decree or order.—A sum of money deposited by a co-respondent in a divorce suit is a security given for the due performance of the decree or order of the Court and so it is within the competence of the Court to direct that the money so deposited should be awarded towards the payment of costs, and a third party who attaches in execution of his decree against the co-respondent the said money in Court has no right to prevent payment of the cost to
Horst Guderian, 68 C. 1

Order accepting or rejecting security not appealable.—An order for accepting security to stay execution is not an order determining the rights of the parties. It is neither an order under S. 47 nor is it a decree within the meaning of S. 2 (2) and therefore not appealable.—Saraswati v. Golap, 41 O. 160; 17 C. W. N. 1240; Sri Krishan v. Satnarain, 32 P. L. R. 806. An order rejecting a security bond for stay of execution is also not appealable.—Firm of Dittu Ram v. Firm of Dalchand, 102 I. C. 621; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 527.

Obligation of surety and his right of appeal.—The nature and extent of the liability of a surety under this rule depends on the words of the surety bond.—Ameer Ali v. Kassim Ali, 13 W. R. 403.

On the reversal of the decree, the liability of the surety ceases, and the surety bond becomes a dead letter.—Ameer Ali v. Kassim Ali, 13 W. R. 403.

Where a judgment-debtor asks for stay of execution-proceedings pending appeal, and his request is granted on condition of his giving security, he is entitled to have a reasonable opportunity for showing that the sum demanded as security is considerably more than the amount awarded by the decree.—Bahooria Dookma v. Lalla Jumahur Lall, 20 W. R. 52.

When immoveable property is given by a judgment-debtor as security for the due performance of a decree under Or. XLI, r. 5 (3) (c), it can be realised in execution without attachment. The provisions of Or. XXXIV, r. 14, do not apply to such a case, and, further, the matter being one relating to execution within S. 47, a separate suit does not lie.—Subramaniam v. Raja of Ramnad, 41 M. 327; Shyam Sundar v. Bajpai, 30 C. 1060; Mukta Prasad v. Mahadeo, 38 A. 327.

The liability of a surety is co-extensive with that of the judgment-debtor and the surety is liable with the judgment-debtor jointly and severally for the satisfaction of the decree unless a contrary intention appears from the security bond; and where the decree is affirmed in appeal the decree-holder is not bound to make a demand from the judgment-debtor or exhaust his remedies against him before proceeding against the surety.—Har Narain v. Dhana Mal, 117 I. C. 65.

The sureties who would be considered parties to the suit with reference to it, are sureties who have rendered themselves liable for the amount of the decree whether during the course of the suit or an application under this rule for stay of execution.—Banna Mal v. Jamna Das, 15 A. 183 (184).

When the bond was to perform all orders and decrees passed in appeal, it was held that the obligation of the sureties to fulfil the decree of the appellate Court was not confined to the first decree of that Court, but extended to the final decree which it passed upon the case being remanded by the High Court in special appeal.—Shivlal v. Apaji, 2 B. 654 (on appeal, 3 B. 204).

A security bond executed in consideration of temporary stay is binding on the surety for the period during which it is allowed to operate for the benefit of the principal. It is binding pending the discharge of the rule and its operation during the period cannot be cancelled by the Court.—Pandu Laxman v. Balu Mahadu, 8 Bom. L. R. 557.

The holder of a decree affirmed on appeal by the District Court took out execution to recover costs awarded. Costs were deposited by the judgment-debtor and paid to the decree-holder, and a surety gave a bond by which he undertook to refund the amount to the judgment-debtor in the event of the latter succeeding in appeal to the High Court and of the decree-holder failing to repay him. The judgment-debtor subsequently filed an appeal to the High Court, and was successful, and he went to recover the amount from the surety. The High Court's decree had no jurisdiction.—Hardeo Das v. Zaman Khan, 8 A. 639.

Mode of enforcement of security-bond.—See notes under S. 145 and Or. IV, r. 6.

A bond executed by a surety for judgment-debtor hypothecating property as security for loss which the decree-holder may sustain for the judgment-debtor's default is chargeable under Art. 40 and not Art. 57 of the Stamp Act.—Stamp Reference by the Board of Revenue, 52 A. 844 (S. B.) : 131 I. C. 675: A. I. R. 1931 All. 189: 29 A. L. J. 41. A security-bond given under this rule does not require registration.—Jayappa v. Shivangouda, 52 B. 72: 107 I. C. 710: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 42. But see Nagaruru v. Tangatur, 31 M. 330: 3 M. L. T. 317.

Costs.—The costs of the application to stay execution should as a rule, be paid by the applicant who prays for such stay even if the application is successful.—Chuni Lal v. Anantram, 25 C 893.

In the absence of special circumstances, the general rule is that costs of an application for stay of execution pending an appeal should be costs in the appeal.—Yeshwant v. Genajee, 56 B. 276 (F. B.): 137 I. C. 375: 34 Bom. L. R. 230: A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 127.

Appeal from orders staying or refusing to stay execution.—An order refusing to stay execution of a decree under this rule is not appealable, as such an order is not "a decree," within the meaning of S. 2, Cl. (2).—Ram Chandra v. Balmukund, 29 B. 71; Malamal v. Kevalappara, 27 M. L. J. 171. The Calcutta, Madras and Patna High Courts have held that such an order is a "judgment" within the meaning of S. 2, Cl. (2) and is therefore appealable as such.—Patent and Appeal, 5 C. W. N. 781; Sonachalam v. Kumaravelu, 47 M. 316: 79 I. C. 109: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 597; Tuljaram v. Alagappa, 35 M. 1 (F. B.); Pedda Jeeyanaravararu v. Krishnamacharlu, 50 M. 380: 109 I. C. 157: A. I. R. 1927 Mad 398; Gokalchand v. Sanwal, 1 L. 348: 55 I. C. 933. Contra: Mooljee v. Moolla, 3 R. 255: 88 I. C. 740: A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 225.

Where the amount of security demanded under this rule is excessive, an appeal lies from the order.—Udeyadeta Deb v. Gregson, 12 C. 624.

Where an order for stay of execution is made on security being furnished by the judgment-debtor and such security is furnished, no appeal lies from the order at the instance of the decree-holder, as such an order does not come within S. 47 and S. 2, Cl. (2).—Saraswati v. Golap Das, 41 C. 160: 17 C. W. N. 1240.

Review.—An order under this rule may be cancelled or varied at any time by the Court making such order.—Amir Hasan v. Ahmad Ali, 9 A. 36.

6. (1) Where an order is made for the execution of a decree from which an appeal is pending, the Court which passed the decree shall, on sufficient cause being shown by the appellant, require security to be taken for the restitution of any property which may be or has been taken in execution of the decree or for the payment of the value of such property and for the due performance of the decree or order of the Appellate Court, or the Appellate Court may for like cause direct the Court which passed the decree to take such security.

Security in case of order for execution of decree appealed from.

(2) Where an order has been made for the sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree, and an appeal is pending from such decree, the sale shall, on the application of the judgment-debtor to the Court which made the order, be stayed on such terms as to giving security or otherwise as the Court thinks fit until the appeal is disposed of. [S. 546.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 546, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to paras. 1 and 2 of the old Code with the following modifications. The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" in the beginning; the word "from" has been substituted for the word "against"; and the words "or has been taken" have been added after the words "may be," to give effect to the case of Hukum Chand v. Kamalanand, 33 C. 927: 3 C. L. J. 67, where it has been held that the Court has inherent power, notwithstanding that the decree has been executed and the property has been taken in execution, to call upon the respondent to furnish security for the due performance of any decree which may be made on such appeal. By the above addition, Mansukhlram v. Janardnohu, 7 B. H. C. R. 122, and Joynarain v. Russeek Mohun, 8 W. R. 144, have been overridden. In Hukum Chand v. Kamalanand, 33 C. 927: 3 C. L. J. 67, all the cases on the point have been referred to and fully discussed.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to the last para. of S. 546, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The words "for money," which stood after the word "decree" in the old section, have been omitted, and the effect of the omission is that the provisions of this sub-rule are no longer confined to money-decrees only. The words "to the Court which made the order" have been added after the word "judgment-debtor," in order to make it clear that the application under this sub-rule is to be made to the Court which made the order for the sale of immoveable property. It would appear from the Full Bench case of Tribeni v. Bhagwat reported in 34 C. 1037: 6 C. L. J. 298: 11 C. W. N. 1030, that there was a difference of opinion with regard to the terms of S. 546, para. 3 of the Code, as to whether the power for staying the sale of immoveable property was exercisable by the Court which passed the decree, or whether the appellate Court had similar power, as the words of that clause were not very explicit and were somewhat vague. In the third clause no Court was specified as the Court which is empowered to pass the order under that clause. Hence the words "to the Court which made the order" have been added, and by the above addition, an ambiguity which hitherto existed has been removed. The object of the addition will clearly appear from the Full Bench case above referred to.

"The Committee have modified this rule in order to make it clear that security may be required, though the property has previously been taken in execution (Hukum Chand v. Kamalanand, 33 C. 927: 3 C. L. J. 67).—See the Report of the Special Committee.

The whole of r. 6 must be held to be complementary to r. 5. Hence r. 6 (2) does not impose upon the Court which ordered the sale an obligation to stay the sale merely because the property to be sold is immoveable property.—Har Narain v. Govind, 133 I. C. 847: 30 A. L. J. 603: A. I. R. 1932 All. 551.

Security in case of execution of decree appealed from.—The appellate Court having seisin of the appeal, has an inherent power over the subject of litigation, and can, in the exercise of the power and notwithstanding that the decree has been executed, call upon the respondent to furnish security for the due performance of any decree which may be made on such appeal (7 B. H. C. R. 122; 8 W. R. 141 disented from). An order for stay is made on the day that it is pronounced, and not on the day on which it is drawn up or communicated.—Hukum Chand v. Kamalanand, 33 C. 927: 3 C. L. J. 67

Before staying execution of a decree and preventing the decree-holder from receiving the fruits of his decree, or before requiring him to give security for its restitution, probable cause must be shown of the judgment-debtor's liability to recover the money if the decree be reversed.—Sukhee Monee v. Brojoraj, 17 W. R. 69.

An appellate Court cannot pass an order under this rule, for a stay of execution of a decree under appeal until an order has been made for the execution of the decree.—Janardan v. Nilkanth, 25 B. 583.

It is only the decree, against which an appeal is pending, of which execution may be stayed. A Court has no power to restrain a decree-holder from executing his decree merely on the possibility of the appellate Court reversing its decision.—Gossain Money Puree v. Guru Pershad, 11 C. 146.

An application, under this rule, to stay the sale of immoveable property, in execution of a decree for money against which an appeal has been filed, must be made to the Court which passed the decree, and not to the appellate Court.—In the matter of Muradunnissa, 15 A. 196 (11 C. 146 referred to). Followed in Kunj Lal v. Bahitram, 8 C. W. N. 381. But see Tribeni Sahu v. Bhagwat Bux, 34 C. 1037 (F. B.): 11 C. W. N. 1030: 6 C. L. J. 298, where it has been held that where an appeal has been preferred against a decree for money, the appellate Court has jurisdiction, appeal to pass an order staying the sale of judgment-debtor in execution of the decree (8 C. W. N. 381 overruled). See also Lakshmanan v. Palaniappa, 41 M. 813: 34 M. L. J. 470, where the same view has been taken.

A party appealing against a decree, which directs him to pay money may obtain stay of execution of the decree, so far as it directs payment, on his lodging the amount in Court, unless the other party gives security for the repayment of the money in the event of the decree being reversed. If such security be given by the successful party, then stay of execution should not be granted.—Dhunjibhoy Cowasji v. Lisboa, 13 B. 241.

Section 326, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 72), does not apply to a decree which directs the sale of land or of a share in land in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same. The Court, therefore, cannot authorize the Collector to stay the sale in such a case under that section.—Bhagwan Prasad v. Sheo Sahai, 2 A. 856.

A decree for arrears of rent is a "decree for money" within the meaning of this rule.—Banku Behary v. Syama Churn, 25 C. 322. By the omission of the words "decree for money," this ruling has been rendered obsolete.

Under sub-rule (2) the Court is bound to stay the sale on such terms as to giving security or otherwise as it thinks fit.—Har Karan v. Anant Ram, 108 I. C. 272; Gian Chand v. Manohar Lal, 108 I. C. 605; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 68 (in which it has also been held that this rule applies to a case where the sale has been held but the sale has not been confirmed).

Proceedings taken in pursuance of an order for sale of immoveable property by virtue of a decree under Or. XXXIV of the Code are to be deemed proceedings relating to execution of a decree within the meaning of this rule and a sale of property in execution of such a decree can be stayed under this rule.—Rup Narain v. Gokal Chand, 117 I. C. 88; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 552; 30 P. L. R. 371.

See notes under rule 5.

Effect of stay of sale.—An order under this rule, directing stay of sale of immoveable property, does not bar the decree-holder from proceeding against the moveables of the judgment-debtor.—Firm Sukhdayal Gopichand v. Jawahir Singh, 93 I. C. 897; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 463.

Mode of enforcement of security-bond.—The mode of enforcing payment against a surety is by summary process in execution and not by separate suit.—Jamsedji v. Bawabhai, 25 B. 409; Kusaji v. Vinayak, 23 B. 478; Janki Kuar v. Sarup Rani, 17 A. 99; Thirumalai v. Ramayyar, 13 M. 1; Venhapa v. Baslingapa, 12 B. 411. But see Radha Pershad v. Phuljuri Koer, 12 C. 402, Kali Charan v. Balgobind, 15 C. 497; Tokhan Singh v. Udwant Singh, 22 C. 25; Subjoo Das v. Balmakund, 23 C. 212; and Arunachellam v. Arunachellam, 15 M. 203, where it has been held that a surety bond cannot be enforced in execution, but a separate suit must be brought against the surety. But where the surety waives his right then the surety bond may be enforced in execution.—Kazimuddi v. Fauzdar Khan, 10 C. W. N. 830 (8 C. W. N. 672 relied on). These latter cases have been overriden by S. 145.

The relationship between a decree-holder and a judgment-debtor who has executed a security-bond under S. 545, Cl. (c), C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 5), mortgaging certain properties for the due performance of the decree or order that may ultimately be passed by the appellate Court, is not that of a mortgagee or mortgagor; and in the event of the appeal being dismissed the decree-holder is entitled to realize his decretal money by sale of the properties given in security without instituting a suit under S. 67 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882).—Shyam Sundar v. Bajpai Jainarayan, 30 C. 1060; 7 C. W. N. 914, and Janki Kuar v. Sarup Rani, 17 A. 99 (101).

See also the cases noted under S. 145.

Registration and attestation of security-bond.—A security-bond accepted by a Court does not dispense with the necessity for registration.—

Nagaruru v. Tanjatur, 31 M. 330; 3 M L. T. 317 (32 C. 494 followed).
See the cases noted under S. 145.

Appeal.—It has been held by the Lahore High Court that an appeal lies against an order under this rule.—Mahammad Fazal v. Mutsadi Mal, 102 I. C. 25; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 915 (relying on A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 631; 75 I. C. 615, where it has been held that “an order relating to execution of a decree” under S. 47 is comprehensive enough to include an order relating to stay of execution thereof as was held in Srinivas Prosad v. Kesho Prosad, 14 C. L. J. 489; 12 I. C. 745). See also Shankar v. Kasturi Lal, 75 I. C. 789; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 69; Musst. Zohra Jan v. Haveli Shah, 32 P. L. R. 756. The Calcutta High Court has held that where the lower Court refuses to stay a sale, the High Court may on the judgment-debtor’s application under Or. XLI, r. 5 stay execution provided that the conditions (a), (b) and (c) of that rule are fulfilled; or may deal with an order of refusal under S. 115 of the Code and direct the execution to be stayed on the judgment-debtor’s furnishing security in terms of Or. XLI, r. 6 (2).—Ram Nath v. Kambeshwar, 15 C. W. N. 432.

- 7. No such security as is mentioned in rules 5 and 6 shall be required from the Secretary of State for India in Council or, where the Government has undertaken the defence of the suit, from any public officer sued in respect of an act alleged to be done by him in his official capacity. [S. 547.]

No security to be required from the Government or a public officer in certain cases.

Alterations.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 547, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word “rules” for “sections,” which occurred in the old Code.

- Exercise of powers in appeal from order made in execution of decree. 8. The powers conferred by rules 5 and 6 shall be exercisable where an appeal may be or has been preferred not from the decree but from an order made in execution of such decree. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope and object of the rule.—This rule is new. It has been framed to give effect to the cases noted below.

“The Committee have added this clause to meet particularly the case where the litigant does not quarrel with the decree, but appeals from an order passed in execution of that decree.”—See the Report of the Special Committee. In such a case this rule gives the appellant the power to apply for a stay of execution of the decree under r. 5 or for security for restitution under r. 6.

Pending the determination of the 'appeal against an order passed in execution of decree, the appellate Court has power to stay execution.—In the matter of Harshankar Parshad, 1 A. 178 (F. B.); Pasupati Nath v. Nanda Lall, 28 C. 734

The Registrar of the Patna High Court has no power under the High Court Rules, to hear an application under this rule.—Narlu v. Kamakhya, 13 P. L. T. 254.

PROCEDURE ON ADMISSION OF APPEAL.

- 9. (1) Where a memorandum of appeal is admitted, the Appellate Court or the proper officer of that Court shall endorse thereon the date of presentation, and shall register the appeal in a book to be kept for the purpose.
- Registry of memorandum of appeal
- (2) Such books shall be called the Register of Appeals. [S. 548.]
- Register of Appeals.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations —This rule exactly corresponds to S. 548, C. P. Code, 1882. with the substitution of the word "where" for "if" in the beginning.

Registry of appeal.—The registration of a petition of appeal is a proceeding of a purely ministerial character.—Jafer Hossein v. Mahomed Amir, 4 B. L. R. Ap. 103; 13 W. R. 351.

An appeal filed out of time should not be registered without the Court deciding the question as to whether the appellant was entitled to the extension of time under S. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Jnanadasundari v. Madhab Chandra, 59. C. 386. See cases noted under rule 1, ante.

Admission of appeal by District Judge ex-parte—Power of Sub-Judge to dismiss it on the ground of limitation.—Where a District Judge by an ex parte order admitted an appeal filed after time and transferred it to the Sub-Judge for disposal. Held, that the Sub-Judge had power to dismiss the appeal on the ground of its presentation after time.—Manick Dukandar v. Naibulla Sircar, 2 C. W. N. 461 (5 C. 1 not followed; 8 C. 251 and 14 B. 594 approved). See also Krishna Bhatta v. Subraya, 21 M. 228, and Sarat Chandra v. Saraswati, 5 C. L. J. 380; 34 C. 216 (9 A. 11 and 13 W. R. 245 referred to).

An order, made ex parte under S. 5 of the Limitation Act, permitting an appeal to be registered although filed beyond time, may, on proper cause being shown, be set aside by the Court which made it; but such an order made by a District Judge cannot be afterwards cancelled by a Sub-Judge upon the appeal coming on for hearing before him.—Jhotee Sahoo v. Omesh Chunder, 5 C. 1. See also Dubey Sahai v. Ganesh Lal, 1 A. 34 (F. B.); Venkatrayudu v. Nagadu, 9 M. 450; Moshaullah v. Ahmedullah, 13 C. 78; Bishendut v. Nandan Pershad, 12 C. W. N. 25. But see Mulna Amad v. Krishnaji, 14 B. 594.

10. (1) The Appellate Court may in its discretion, either before the respondent is called upon to appear and answer or afterwards on the application of the respondent, demand from the appellant security for the costs of the appeal, or of the original suit, or of both :

Where appellant resides out of British India. Provided that the Court shall demand such security in all cases in which the appellant is residing out of British India, and is not possessed of any sufficient immoveable property within British India other than the property (if any) to which the appeal relates.

(2) Where such security is not furnished within such time as the Court orders, the Court shall reject the appeal. [S. 549.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 549, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only. The last para. of the old section which contained provisions regarding enforcement of the security-bond, has been omitted in view of S. 145 of the Code, as that section, as amended, prescribes the mode of enforcing all surety-bonds.

Application of the rule.—The application of the rule is not confined only to appeals from substantive decrees, but also to appeals from interlocutory orders under S. 101 and to appeals from orders in execution under S. 47.—Dagdu v. Chandrabhan, 24 B. 314. In Sesha Ayyar v. Nagarathna, 27 M. 121, it was held that this rule does not apply to appeals preferred to the High Court under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent from the judgment of one of its own Judges. In Debendra Nath v. Bibudhendra, 43 C. 90, it was held that neither this rule nor any other rule of this order has any application to a decree passed by a single Judge of a Chartered High Court in the exercise of Ordinary Original Civil jurisdiction, because "the Code makes no provision for an appeal from a single Judge of the High Court. This right of appeal depends on Cl. 15 of the Charter."—Per Jenkins, C. J. The Privy Council have, however, recently decided that it applies also to appeals under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.—Sabitri v. Savi, 48 I. A. 76 : 48 C. 481 (P. C.) : 60 I. C. 274 : 19 A. L. J. 231 : 23 Bom. L. R. 681 : 40 M. L. J. 308.

The mere fact that a plaintiff is a poor man and has parted with a portion of his interest in the subject-matter of the suit for the purpose of obtaining funds to carry on the suit, is no sufficient ground to ask that security for the costs of the suit may be required of him, it is otherwise, where he is not the real litigant but a mere puppet in the hands of others.—Khajak Assenoolajoo v. Solomon, 14 C. 533 ; Lakshmi Chand v. Gatto Bai, 7 A. 512 (3 B. 241 followed ; and 3 M. 66 and 18 W. R. 102, referred to). See also Jiwan Ali v. Basa Mal, 8 A. 203 (F. B.) ; *Hewetson v. The Privy Council have, however, recently decided that it applies also to appeals under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.—Sabitri v. Savi, 48 I. A. 76 : 48 C. 481 (P. C.) : 60 I. C. 274 : 19 A. L. J. 231 : 23 Bom. L. R. 681 : 40 M. L. J. 308.

The mere fact that a plaintiff is a poor man and has parted with a portion of his interest in the subject-matter of the suit for the purpose of obtaining funds to carry on the suit, is no sufficient ground to ask that security for the costs of the suit may be required of him, it is otherwise, where he is not the real litigant but a mere puppet in the hands of others.—Khajah Assenoollajoo v. Solomon, 14 C. 533 ; Lakhmi Chand v. Gatto Bai, 7 A. 542 (3 B. 241 followed ; and 3 M. 66 and 18 W. R. 102, referred to). See also Jiwan Ali v. Basa Mal, 8 A 203 (F. B.) ; Hewelson v. Deas, 21 C. 526 ; Mahant

Raghunath Das v. Sheo Kumar, (1921) P. 359; Konammal v. Annadana Jadaa, (1922) M. W. N. 801.

Where in a suit by a wife for a declaration that certain properties mortgaged by her husband were her own properties and the mortgage was invalid, the trial Court found that the properties were her husband's and the suit had been brought in collusion with him and it appeared that the lady had no properties besides those in suit and the defendants were unable to recover from her the costs awarded against her by the trial Court: held, that it was a proper case for an order for security for the amount of the costs in the trial Court together with a further sum as the estimated cost of the appeal.—Birendranath v. Sultan Muwayyid Zada, 58 C. 117: 34 C. W. N. 495: 127 I. C. 669: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 40.

The discretion under r. 10 (1) is confined to demanding security for costs only and not for an order to deposit the whole of the decretal amount.—Afzal v. Kanhayya Lal, 139 I. C. 866 (F. B.): 30 A. L. J. 722: A. I. R. 1932 All. 511.

Where a Court, acting under this rule, orders an appellant to give security for costs, it is not necessary that any specific sum for which security is required should be named in the order for security.—Lekha v. Bhauna, 18 A. 101 (F. B.) (9 A 164 overruled on this point).

The taxing officer's decision as to the amount of the security is subject to revision by the High Court.—Rajrajeshwarashram v. Svarupanandtirtha, 29 Bom. L. R. 1031: 103 I. C. 637: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 499.

As a general rule a Court is loth to prevent an appellant from pursuing the remedy allowed to him by law merely on the ground of poverty. But each case must stand on its own facts and there may be cases in which a party should be directed to give security, at any rate for the costs of the appeal, before he is allowed to go further.—Gulab Rao v. Vinayak, 25 Bom. L. R. 195: 72 I. C. 285: A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 264. See also Bhagwan Devi v. Bhagwan Devi, 114 I. C. 708: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 384: 31 P. L. R. 602; Atri v. Harnani, 129 I. C. 121: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 629; Sat Bharai v. Barkhurda, 120 I. C. 538: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 382: 31 P. L. R. 601.

An appellant (residing within the jurisdiction), who has been ordered to pay the costs of the original hearing, and has not done so, cannot be required to furnish security for such costs before he is allowed to prosecute his appeal, unless his conduct be shown to be vexatious, that is, such as indicates a wilful determination on his part not to obey the order of the Court. His not paying, if it be caused by inability to pay, is not vexatious.—Ahmed v. Essa, 13 B. 458; Bamsing v. Bahubhai, 5 Bom. L. R. 661. See also Hari Ram v. Jowala Mal, 130 I. C. 771: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 70: 31 P. L. R. 950.

The Court is not bound as a matter of law, to order security to be furnished, as it is a matter absolutely in the judicial discretion of the Court. In special circumstances the Court may direct the furnishing of security but where highly penal consequences will be entailed upon the appellant by the order, the Court would not be bound to make the order for security.—Chhugantul v. Govind Ram, 121 I. C. 61: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 23.

When appellant resides out of British India—A plaintiff, who resided out of India, paid a sum of money into Court as security for costs. He subsequently obtained a decree against the defendant, and the defendant appealed against that decree. Held, that the defendant was not entitled to an order detaining in Court, pending the appeal, the money which had been paid in.—Fleming v. Shearman, 1 B. L. R. O. C. 99; In re Ditta Harakman, 3 B. L. R. 45 (F. B.) · 12 W. R. 16 (F. B.).

Quere—Whether in a case in which the appellant is not residing out of the British territories in India, the High Court has authority to demand security for costs from the appellant after the issue of notice of the appeal.—Hufaznoollah v. Humeedhur Rohman, 6 W. R. Mis. 193.

Power of Court to extend time fixed for furnishing security.—The Court cannot lay down a hard and fast rule that in no case after the time for giving security has expired can an appellant be allowed further time. In exceptional circumstances, the Court can extend the time for furnishing security.—Junnabai v. Vissondas, 21 B. 576.

Once an appeal has been dismissed for failure of the appellant to give security for costs within the time fixed, it is not thereafter open to the Court to extend the time for giving security.—Srimati Hari Bhabini v. Narendra Nath, 67 I. C. 883.

Where the appellate Court demands from an appellant security for costs, the Court may extend the time for furnishing such security; but if no application is made for extension of time, and such security is not furnished within the time ordered, it is imperative on the Court to reject the appeal.—Haidri Bai v. E. I. Ry. Co., 1 A. 687. See also Budri Narain v. Sheo Koer, 11 C. 716, and Shrajudin v. Krishna, 11 M. 190.

Where the High Court under this rule has demanded security from an appellant, it has power to extend the time for complying with this order on application made, as well after as before the time first fixed has expired; and may nevertheless reject the appeal if the security is not in the end furnished.—Budri Narain v. Sheo Koer, 17 I. A. 1: 17 C. 513 (P. C.) (1 A. 687 overruled).

An original Court rejected, as insufficient, security offered for the purpose of conforming to an order of the High Court under this rule; and refused to receive other security offered, in lieu, after the time fixed by the order had expired. This was affirmed by the High Court. Held, that as the High Court had a discretion to enlarge the time allowed for finding security, and to accept other security in lieu of that rejected, or to refuse to do either, it had, under the circumstances, judicially exercised that discretion in refusing.—Rajab Ali v. Amir Hossein, 17 C. 1 (P. C.) (1 A. 687; 8 A. 315 cited).

The security for the respondent's costs which the High Court had demanded under this rule not having been furnished within the time fixed and the Court, in the exercise of its discretion, having refused to extend the time, the appeal was rejected. Held, that this was not a case for interference.—Modhusudan v. Krishna Prapanna, 17 I. A. 9: 17 C. 516 (P. C.).

See S. 148 of the Code, which expressly empowers Courts to extend time.

Applicability of this rule to appeals in forma pauperis.—The provisions of this rule, which make it discretionary for the appellate Court to demand security for costs, are not applicable to appeals in forma pauperis.—Nusseerooddeen v. Ujjul Biswas, 17 W. R. 68; Nazim v. Abdul Hamid, 3 L. 30: 67 I. C. 256.

The provision in Or. XLI, r. 10, to reject an appeal where the security is not furnished, is mandatory, the Court could not after that stage grant permission to withdraw the appeal in forma pauperis.—Sabitri Thakurain v. Sari, 48 C. 481 (P. C.) : 19 A. L. J. 281 : 48 I. A. 76 : 60 I. C. 274 : 23 Bom. L. R. 681 : 40 M. L. J. 308.

A suitor in forma pauperis may be called on to give security for costs under this rule but every special ground must be shown to support such an application.—Seshayyengar v. Jainulavadin, 3 M. 66; Maneckji v. Goolbai, 3 B. 241. See also Seldanna v. Hart, (1920) M. W. N. 534; Srinivasa v. Subramania, 17 M. L. J. 583; Chagan Lal v. Govind Ram, 121 I. C. 61 : A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 28, in which it has been held that in the absence of special circumstances showing that the pauper is a mere creature in the hands of persons well able to furnish security, an order directing the pauper to furnish security would be improper and inconsistent with the order granting him leave to appeal in forma pauperis; Subbiah v. Balasubramania, (1931) M. W. N. 1157. The High Court of Calcutta, in Nusseeroodeen v. Ujjul, 17 W. B. 68, and Mussamat Hafizan v. Abdul Karim, 12 C. W. N. 163, and the Bombay High Court, in Khemraj v. Kisanlala, 42 B. 5, have held that this rule does not apply to appeals in forma pauperis.

Applicability of this rule to appeals from insolvency orders—In an appeal against a judgment passed by the High Court in its insolvency jurisdiction, the appellate Court has power under S. 117 and Or. XLI, r. 10 of the Code read with S. 8 (2) (b) of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act to entertain and adjudicate an application by the respondent demanding security for costs.—Lakhipriya v. Rai Kishori, 43 C. 243 : 20 C. W. N. 140 : 23 C. L. J. 24 : 32 I. C. 3 (Sesha Ayyar v. Nagarathna, 27 M. 121 : 18 M. L. J. 362).

Mode of enforcement of security-bond.—See the cases noted under S. 145, where the overridden rulings have also been noted.

Appeal from orders under this rule.—An order rejecting an appeal under this rule is not appealable either as an order or as a decree.—Lekha v. Bhauna, 18 A. 101 (P. B.) (5 A. 380 overruled); Ramesh v. Sarada, 49 C. 355 : A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 246 : 35 C. L. J. 131.

No appeal lies against an order refusing to re-admit an appeal on the ground of the failure of the appellant to furnish security for the costs of the respondent under this rule.—Firoz Begam v. Abdul Latif, 30 A. 143 : 5 A. L. J. 109 (18 A. 101 (F. B.) followed); Sundar v. Habib, 42 A. 626 : 18 A. L. J. 838.

As there is no provision in this rule similar to that contained in S. 381, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXV, r. 2), permitting an appellant whose appeal has been rejected under this rule to apply for an order setting the dismissal aside, application for restoration of the appeal does not lie.—Sankaralinga v. Annama Lal, 4 M. L. T. 416 (30 A. 143 followed; 18 A. 315 considered).

Although no appeal has been given by Or. XLIII against an order under this rule, yet S. 145 gives an appeal from any order passed against a surety, who shall be deemed a party within the meaning of S. 47.

Form.—For Form of security for costs of Appeal, see App. G, Form No. 4.

11. (1) The Appellate Court, after sending for the record if it thinks fit so to do, and after fixing a day for hearing the appellant or his pleader and hearing him accordingly if he appears on that day, may dismiss the appeal without sending notice to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred and without serving notice on the respondent or his pleader.

(2) If on the day fixed or any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned the appellant does not appear when the appeal is called on for hearing, the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed.

(3) The dismissal of an appeal under this rule shall be notified to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred. [S. 551.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 551, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (1), the words "after sending for the record" and the words "so to do" have been added.

In sub-rule (2), the words "does not appear when the appeal is called on for hearing, the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed" have been substituted for the words "does not attend in person or by his pleader, the appeal shall be dismissed for default," which occurred in the old section. The substitution of the word "may" for the words "shall" is material. The other changes are mere change of words and phrases.

In sub-rule (3), the alterations are merely verbal.

This rule applies to appeals which have been admitted and registered.—Rudr Prasad v. Baynath, 15 A. 367.

"May dismiss the appeal."—If a memorandum of appeal is drawn up in proper form, it cannot be rejected under Or. XLI, r. 3 of the C. P. Code, but if the appeal is barred by limitation, it has to be dismissed under Or. XLI, r. 11. The rejection of an appeal on the ground of limitation, therefore, amounts to a dismissal thereof, and such order of rejection is appealable.—Farzand Ali v. Abdul Hamid, 60 I. C. 493.

Where the case is a fairly arguable one and there is a reasonable prospect of success the Court has to order notice to issue and not to impose conditions on the appellant. The order for notice conditional on the appellant depositing the entire decretal amount was bad in law.—Afzali Begum v. Kanhayya Lal, 139 I. C. 866 (F. B.) 30 A. L. J. 722; A. I. R. 1932 All 511.

It is imperative to hear the appellant before passing the final order on appeal.—Faqir Mahomed v. Mahomed Sarwar, 11 L. L. J. 32.

Whether Court should write judgment on dismissal of appeal.—Under sub-rule 1, by a Court whose decision may or may not be reversed, does not relieve the Court from the necessity of writing a judgment, according to Or. XLI, r. 31, should show the points raised, and the reasons for deciding them.—Rani Deka v. Broje Nath, 25 C. 97; Mag Saw v. Ma Bin Byu, 4 R. 18; 95 I. C. 521; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 129; Hari Dasi v. Gadadhar, 43 C. L. J. 499; 96 I. C. 136; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 992; Surendranath v. Raghu Nath, 27 C. W. N. 501; Hanmant v. Annaji, 37 B. 610 (F. B.); Pachi Dass v. Bala Das, 13 C. W. N. 1037. See, however, Samin Hasan v. Piran, 30 A. 319; 5 A. L. J. 300 (dissenting from 25 C. 97) where it has been held that the provisions of S. 574, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 31), are not applicable in their entirety to the case of an appeal dismissed under this rule. But in Dharam Dass v. Shankar Ahir, 53 A. 528; 132 I. C. 200; A. I. R. 1931 All. 589, it has been held that an order under this rule is governed by r. 31, and therefore where the judgment of the appellate Court was in these words, viz., "The facts are laid out in the judgment of the lower Court. The decision is a reasonable one and as a Court of appeal I am not justified in going against it.—Rejected summarily", it should be set aside because it contained no reason.

The order of adjudication made under this rule is a decree, and the procedure authorized under that rule does not dispense with the necessity of drawing up a judgment.—Royal Reddi v. Langa Reddi, 3 M. 1. See also Puttappa v. Yellappa, 5 Bom. L. R. 233; Rakhal Chunder v. Satindra Deb, 5 C. L. J. 348; Altap Ali v. Jamsur Ali, 30 C. W. N. 334; 93 I. C. 909; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 638.

In some cases it may be desirable to give full reasons for an order of dismissal under this rule, e.g., when the order is likely to be attacked in second appeal but it is not obligatory on a Judge to write a judgment when the appeal is dismissed under this rule.—Mt. Gawarejabai v. Hariram, 115 I. C. 168; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 68; 25 N. L. R. 55.

Dismissal of appeal under this rule is a decree—The dismissal of an appeal under this rule is a decree within the meaning of S. 2 (2), and the expression of opinion dismissing the appeal is a judgment.—Altap Ali v. Jamsur Ali, 30 C. W. N. 334; 93 I. C. 909; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 638; Umasundari v. Bindu Bashini, 24 C. 759; Munisami v. Munisami, 22 M. 293; Chandra Kanta v. Lakshman, 21 C. W. N. 430; 24 C. L. J. 517.

Amendment of the decree on dismissal of appeal.—The dismissal of an appeal under this rule leaves the decree of the lower Court untouched, and it remains the decree of the lower Court, which can amend it under S. 206, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 152).—Bapu v. Vajir, 21 B. 548; Batuk Prasad v. Ambica, 11 P. 409 (not following 24 C. 759). But see Umasundari v. Bindu Bashini, 24 C. 759, where it has been held that the High Court can amend such a decree. See also Munisami Naidu v. Munisami Reddi, 22 M. 293 (18 M. 214 followed). Followed in Asma Bibi v. Ahmad Husain, 30 A. 290; 5 A. L. J. 584, where it has been held that the dismissal of an appeal under this rule is a decree and supersedes the decree of the Court below; and the Court which has taken action under this rule is the only Court which has jurisdiction to amend the decree (21 B. 548 dissented from).

Summary dismissal of appeal—Effect on mortgage decree.—Where an appeal from a mortgage decree is summarily dismissed under Or. XLI, r. 11, the time for payment of the mortgage money is not extended, as the decree appealed from cannot be taken to have been confirmed under Or. XLI, r. 32.—Dattatraya Vithal v. Wasudeo, 47 B. 956: 25 Bom. L. R. 990.

Where the High Court dismissed a second appeal under this rule but re-framed one of the issues for decision by the trial Court, it was held that the irregularity as to the absence of notice to the other party when the judgment of remand was first noticed did not render it ineffectual.—Shariful Hasan v. Lachhmi Narain, 29 A. L. J. 858.

Reference.—The proceeding under this rule is a trial of an appeal, and any question arising in the course of such trial may be properly referred to the High Court.—Thakur of Masuda v. The Widows, 2 A. 819 (F. B.).

Applicability of this rule to S. 476-B. of the Criminal Procedure Code.—Order XLI, r. 11 has no application to an appeal under S. 476-B, Cr. P. Code, preferred before the District Judge against an order passed by Munsif, under S. 476 of the Code, and therefore the District Judge cannot summarily dismiss such an appeal, but he should comply with the provisions of S. 476-B and after sending for the record he should examine the case himself and come to an independent finding of his own view.—Saratchandra v. Haricharan, 51 C. L. J. 45: 127 I. C. 265: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 282.

Sub-rule 2.—Dismissal of appeal for default.—When an appeal is dismissed for default, it is only the decree of the lower Court which can be enforced in execution.—Shyam Mandal v. Satinath, 44 C. 954.

Review.—Dismissal of an appeal under this rule bars a review of the judgment appealed against. See notes under Or. XLVII, r. 1. The order under this rule dismissing the appeal, is itself subject to review, and the practice of the Calcutta High Court is to grant a review and order the rehearing of the appeal ex parte.—Official Trustee v. Benode, 51 C. 943: 84 I. C. 147: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 114. When a second appeal is dismissed under this rule, the High Court has no power to review its judgment on the ground of the discovery of new and important matter.—Rajani v. Kali, 41 C. 809: 26 I. C. 281. Sailabala v. Gadadhar, 36 C. L. J. 76: 70 I. C. 408: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 165.

Re-admission of appeal dismissed for default under sub-rule (2).—An appeal dismissed under sub-rule (2) may be re-admitted under r. 19.

Dismissal after issue of notice whether legal.—After issue of notice on respondent, an appeal cannot be dismissed under this rule. This rule empowers an appellate Court to dismiss an appeal without and before, but not after, sending notice of the appeal to the Court against whose decree the appeal has been made, and without service of notice on the respondent.—Hamid Husain v. Bholanath, (1906) A. W. N. 186.

Day for hearing appeal.

12. (1) Unless the Appellate Court dismisses the appeal under rule 11, it shall fix a day for hearing the appeal.

(2) Such day shall be fixed with reference to the current business of the Court, the place of residence of the respondent, and the time necessary for the service of the notice of appeal, so as to allow the respondent sufficient time to appear and answer the appeal on such day. [S. 552.]

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 552, C. P. Code, 1882.

13. (1) Where the appeal is not dismissed under rule 11, the Appellate Court shall send notice of the appeal to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred.

Transmission of

(2) Where the appeal is from the decree of a Court; the records of which are not deposited in the Appellate Court, the Court receiving such notice shall send with all practicable despatch all material papers in the suit, or such papers as may be specially called for by the Appellate Court.

in Court whose decree

(3) Either party may apply in writing to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, specifying any of the papers in such Court of which he requires copies to be made; and copies of such papers shall be made at the expense of, and given to, the applicant. [S. 550.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 550, C. P. Code, 1882, with the change of some words and phrases. No alteration seems to have been made in the meaning.

Sub-rule (3).—If the appellant desires to bring before the appellate Court any part of the record not sent up, it is his duty to ask the Court to send for it before the date fixed for trial.—Buksh Ali v. Joyanut Khan, 11 W. R. 248.

Form.—See Appendix G, Form No. 5, for Form of intimation to lower Court of admission of appeal.

14. (1) Notice of the day fixed under rule 12 shall be affixed in the Appellate Court-house, and a like notice shall be sent by the Appellate Court to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, and shall be served on the respondent or on his pleader in the Appellate Court in the manner provided for the service on a defendant of a summons to appear and answer; and all the provisions applicable to such summons, and to proceedings with reference to the service thereof, shall apply to the service of such notice.

(2) Instead of sending the notice to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, the Appellate Court may itself cause the notice to be served on the respondent or his pleader under the provisions above referred to. [S. 553.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to S. 553, C. P. Code, 1892, with some alterations of a verbal character. Only some words have been changed and replaced by more appropriate words.

Service of notice.—When a notice of appeal is transmitted by the High Court to a Court below with instruction to make a return within a specified time, the appellant is entitled to the whole of the time allowed, and may deposit his lulubana, and cause service of the notice any time within the period limited—Runjo Debee v. Hurce Narain, 11 W. R. 138.

Service upon a respondent's pleader is good service upon himself, so far as notice of the appeal is concerned.—Ishur Dutt v. Shib Pershad, 15 W. R. 290.

In a case where there has been a guardian ad-litem appointed by the Court on behalf of the minor, service of notice on the guardian ad-litem is sufficient. The language of the Code does not admit that there should be service on both these persons, and therefore, notice to the minor need not be given.—Rasik Moral v. Kumar Jyotish Kantha, 30 C. W. N. 949. See 97 I. C. 614. A I R 1926 Cal. 1106

Where a respondent resides in Chandernagore, i.e., out of British territory, the summons or notice of appeal should be forwarded to him by post, under a registered cover; and if he does not appear, a verified statement should be put in to show that he is at present, or has recently been, residing there.—Sonatun Bukshee v. Gopal Chunder, 15 W. R. 31.

Where an appellant to the High Court was unable to serve notice on the plaintiff (respondent), because of inability to trace the plaintiff in the place given as his place of residence, when he (plaintiff) commenced the suit, the case under

Where an appellant failed for twelve months to serve notice of appeal upon his respondent, the Court refused to allow him the opportunity to have a fresh summons issued and served. Where the party serving a notice of appeal finds the respondent absent from home, and is told where he is, and yet affixes the notice to the door of his house, such service is void and of no effect.—Doolee Okund v. Nirban Singh, 20 W. R. 62.

PROCEDURE ON HEARING.

16. (1) On the day fixed, or on any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the appellant shall be heard in support of the appeal.
 Right to begin

(2) The Court shall then, if it does not dismiss the appeal at once, hear the respondent against the appeal, and in such case the appellant shall be entitled to reply. [S. 555.]

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 555, C. P. Code, 1882.

Right to begin—The respondent has no right to begin simply because he disputes the right of the appellant to appeal.—Rustomji v. Kessowji, 8 B. 287.

It is the duty of the appellant to satisfy the Court of appeal that the decision of the trial Court is erroneous.—Secretary of State v. Bejoy Kumar, 40 C. L. J. 303: 84 I. C. 732: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 224. In every appeal it is incumbent upon the appellant to show some reason why the judgment appealed from should be disturbed. There must be some balance in his favour to justify the alteration of the judgment as it stands.—Musst. Fakrunissa v. Moulvi Izarus, 25 C. W. N. 866: 63 I. C. 898 (P. C.).

Hear the respondent against the appeal.—Though a respondent has not appeared on the date specified in the notice to him, he can appear on the date on which the appeal is notified for hearing on the Court's board.—Hanmantihal v. Basappa, 28 Bom. L. R. 738: 96 I. C. 326: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 424.

The Court is bound, under this rule, to hear the argument, if any, addressed and not to permit written argument.—Trimbak v. Krishna Rao, 115 I. C. 173: A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 89.

Procedure—Whether counsel for one party can be heard in the absence of counsel for the other party.—A Court heard counsel for one of the parties after the case had been closed and in the absence of the counsel for the other party. Held, that the Court acted illegally, and its judgment was not valid.—Kesho Das v. Ram Narain, 63 I. C. 945.

For the procedure to be adopted in hearing appeal of a case in which the records of the original Court had been almost wholly destroyed, see Hara Kumar v. Sheikh Asiatullah, 3 O. W. N. xxiii (Notes).

17. (1) Where on the day fixed, or on any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the appellant does not appear when the appeal is called on for hearing, the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed.

(2) Where the appellant appears and the respondent does not appear, the appeal shall be heard ex parte. [S. 556.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 556, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations. The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if"; the words "appellant does not appear" have been substituted in sub-rule (1) for the words "if the appellant does not attend in person or by his pleader"; the word "appear" has been substituted for the word "attend"; and the words "in his absence," which stood after the word "ex parte" in the second para. of the old section, have been omitted. The words "the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed" have been substituted for the words "the appeal shall be dismissed for default."

The words "appear" and "appearance" have been substituted for the words "attend in person or by pleader" in view of Or. III, r. 1, which provides that appearance may be in person, by recognized agent, or by pleader.

Dismissal of appeal for default.—Where neither the appellant nor his pleader was present, but the appeal for default, disposed of, held, that the dismissal was, was to apply under S. 558, C. P. Code, 1882, the appeal.—Kanahi Lal v. Naubat Rai, 3 A. 519; Zainab Begam v. Manawar Husain, 8 A. 277. This rule authorises the Court to dismiss the appeal for the appellant's default or to adjourn it to some other date or pass other order, but it does not authorise the Court to decide the appeal on the merits in the absence of the appellant.—Taher Sheikh v. Otaruddi, 56 C. 412; 119 I. C. 129; A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 475. a decision on the merits under such circumstances is illegal.—Basudev v. Bideshi, 6 R. 612. Contra: Daulat Singh v. Srinivas, 57 I. C. 75, which has held that the appellate Court can decide the case on the merits.

As in appeals it is not absolutely necessary that the parties should be present in person when there are constituted agents in the shape of pleaders the ordinary practice of sending for the pleaders when the appeal is called on for hearing should not be discontinued as it is conducive to good work, although the peon's calling at the door very often proves sufficient.—Ajay-verma v. Baldeo Prasad, 52 A. 536; 127 I. C. 523; A. I. R. 1930 All. 217; 28 A. L. J. 632.

Where, when an appeal is called on, the pleader is not absent, but is unprepared to go on with the case, the dismissal is a dismissal for default within the meaning of this rule, and the appeal can therefore be re-admitted under S. 558, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 19).—Shibendra Narain v. Kinsoo Ram, 12 C. 605 (15 W. R. 143 followed). But see Ramchandra v. Mathav, 16 B. 23; Chiranjee Lal v. Kundan Lal, 20 A. 294; and Robert Watson & Co. v. Ambica Dan, 37 C. 529; 4 C. W. N. 237; Trimbak v. Krishna Rao, 115 I. C. 173; A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 89, where it has been held that the mere unpreparedness of the appellant's counsel to argue the appeal is no ground for the Court to dismiss the appeal for default.

An application by a counsel or pleader, who is instructed only to apply for an adjournment, which is refused, is not an appearance within the meaning of the C. P. Code. When an appeal is dismissed, the dismissal is one for want of appearance. An appellant to apply for re-admission (Or. XLI, r. 19).—Satish Chandra v. Ahara Prasad, 34 C. 403 (F. B.): 11 C. W. N. 329; 5 C. L. J. 247 (27 C. 529; 4 C. W. N. 237 overruled; 8 C. W. N. 621 approved); Nagendra Kumar v. Nabin, 36 C. 189, Mensee Devjee & Co. v. Maung Than, 62 I. C. 57; Musalirakath v. Manavikrama, 43 M. L. J. 317; 16 L. W. 434, Firm of Jainaram Ramjash v. Sitaram Marwari, (1923) P. 175, Pazhaniandi v. Naku, 51 M. L. J. 634. In the above Full Bench case, all the rulings regarding the meaning of the word "appearance," have been referred to, discussed and explained.

Appellant's pleader appeared and asked for an adjournment. He did not withdraw from the case but merely urged that, as the records were in possession of his leader (counsel) who was absent, he was unable to argue the appeal. The appellate Court refused to grant the adjournment and dismissed the appeal. Held, that although it was open to the Judge to refuse the adjournment, he was bound to write a judgment and dispose of the appeal. He could not dismiss the appeal for default.—Patinhare Tarkatt v. Vellur Krishnan, 26 M. 267 (16 B. 27 followed).

Where a Judge on the non-appearance of the appellant in person or by pleader, instead of observing the direction of the law, goes into the merits and gives a judgment against the appellant, the appeal must be considered as dismissed for default of the appellant in appearing; and an application for re-admission and re-hearing cannot be treated as one for review, but must be entertained under this rule.—Mohesh Chunder v. Thakoor Dass, 20 W. R. 425.

On the day of hearing the Court and states that the appellant is not an appearance within the meaning of Or. XLI, r. 17.—Ramdhan v. Bishun Prakash, 5 P. L. J. 17; 1 P. L. T. 156 (30 M. 274 followed).

The dismissal of an appeal for want of appearance does not apply to a case in which the appellant had any notice that his appeal would be heard on the day to which the case was adjourned, and on which the Judge disposed of it.—Shib Chunder v. Allad Monee, 5 W. R. Mjs. 22.

One of the pleaders for the appellant opened the case, and then he went to another Court. The other pleader for the appellant refused to address the Court, and the Court dismissed the appeal under this rule. Held, that the Court below had acted illegally in dismissing the appeal for default.—Jawahir Singh v. Debi Singh, 18 A. 119.

An appellate Court has power in an appeal in which the appellant has failed to appear, to enter into the merits of the case and to decide the appeal upon the merits.—Daulat Singh v. Sirinivas, 57 I. C. 75: 2 P. L. T. 36.

Where both parties make default in appearance at the hearing of an appeal, the Court must dismiss the appeal, and not go into the merits and reverse the decree.—Muncka Ram v. Roopnarain, Marsh, 5: 1 Ind. Jur. O. S. 36.

Dismissal of appeal for default—Compromise thereafter.—Where an appeal has been dismissed for default of appearance of both the parties and both the appellant and the respondent within a month of the dismissal file a petition of compromise settling their disputes, with an additional application for restoration of the appeal. Held, that in the circumstances of the case, the Court ought to have restored the appeal and passed a decree in terms of the compromise.—Aswini Kumar v. Sukhoda Sundari, 68 I. C. 448.

Non-appearance of respondent.—The absence of the respondent on the day of hearing is no justification by itself for decreeing the appeal.—Mussammatt Raj Rani v. Ram Kishore, 56 I. C. 386.

For the meaning of the word "appearance," see the cases noted under Or. IX, r. 13.

Appeal from order of dismissal for default.—No appeal lies from an order of dismissal for default.—Rukminimayi v. Paran Chandra, 39 C. 341.

Where no date was fixed for the hearing of an appeal and the Court purported to dismiss the appeal for default, held, that the dismissal was without jurisdiction and that an application to set aside the dismissal was not governed by Art. 168 of the Limitation Act.—Ata Muhammad v. Shankar Das, 69 I. C. 618.

See notes under r. 19 of the Order.

18. Where on the day fixed, or any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, it is found that the notice to the respondent has not been served in consequence of the failure of the appellant to deposit, within the period fixed, the sum required to defray the cost of serving the notice, the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed :

Dismissal of appeal where notice not served in consequence of appellant's failure to deposit costs.

Provided that no such order shall be made although the notice has not been served upon the respondent, if on any such day the respondent appears when the appeal is called on for hearing. [S. 557].

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 557, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations.

In sub-rule (2) the words "the respondent appears when the appeal is called on for hearing" have been substituted for the words "respondent appears in person, or by pleader, or by duly authorized agent." The alteration seems to have been made in view of the provisions of r. 1, Or. III, in which the meaning of the word "appearance" is given.

Dismissal for non-service of notice.—The order of dismissal should not, as indicated by the language of the rule, be made before the day fixed for the hearing of the appeal.—Chandra Nath v. Kaliprasanna, 35 C. 535.

Before dismissing a case under this rule the Court should fix a time within which process fees should be paid into Court.—Purshadee Lal v. Umbika Pershad, 11 W. R. 290: 3 B L. R. App. 25.

Where an appeal is dismissed against one of three respondents for non-service of notice on him, the appellant cannot proceed with the appeal as against the two respondents, if the decree appealed against was a decree for joint possession.—Baser v. Fazle, 19 C. W. N. 290: 28 I. C. 703.

An appeal is liable to be dismissed for default in depositing costs for notice to the respondent. The fact of its having been committed by an ignorant karpardaz is no excuse.—Pran Chunder v. Juggessur, 11 W. R. 417.

An appeal cannot be dismissed under Or. XLI, r. 18, C. P. Code on account of the omission of the appellant to provide a person to identify the respondent.—Nagendra Nath v. Shambhu Nath, 3 P. L. T. 498: 65 I. C. 49. See Ramlal v. Kaliprosad, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 609: 10 P. L. T. 589: 120 I. C. 304.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order under this rule. The proper remedy is by an application for re-admission under r. 19.—Attar Singh v. Karm Chand, P. R. (1919) p. 448; but it does not take away any other remedy that might be available.—Surajdeo v. Partap, 2 P. L. T. 405.

19. Where an appeal is dismissed under rule 11, sub-rule (2), or rule 17 or rule 18, the appellant may apply to the Appellate Court for the re-admission of the appeal; and, where it is proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the appeal was called on for hearing or from depositing the sum so required, the Court shall re-admit the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

Re-admission of
for default.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 558, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character. The words "to impose upon him," which stood after the words "thinks fit" in the old section, have been omitted, and the words "shall re-admit the appeal" have been substituted for the words "may re-admit the appeal" in the old section.

Prevented by sufficient cause.—For the meaning of the words "prevented by any sufficient cause," see notes under Or. IX, rr. 9 and 13, as the principles laid down in the rulings under those rules will also apply to the rule where the similar expression, "prevented by any sufficient cause," occurs.

Re-admission of appeal dismissed for default.—The affirmative provisions in this rule, that an appellant may prove that he was "prevented by any sufficient cause" from attending when his appeal was called on and dismissed, do not imply the negative, namely, that an application for restoration cannot be granted unless sufficient cause is shown. The effect of the enactments is that, if sufficient cause is shown, restoration is made obligatory on the Courts, there being no discretion in the matter; whereas, in other cases the merits of the appellant's case will form an important element for consideration when the Court is asked to exercise its discretion.—Somayya v. Subbamma, 26 M. 599.

Absence of knowledge of the date fixed for the hearing of the appeal. due to non-service of notice on the appellants, is a sufficient cause for failure to appear when the appeal is called on for hearing within r. 19.—Muhammad Sharif v. Din Muhammad, 101 I. C. 203: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 365. Where the appellant did not know the date of hearing of the appeal and the Vakil with whom he had entrusted the case had died, and in these circumstances the Subordinate Judge held, that in the absence of the appellant, Ananthalakshmi v. ...

Appeal dismissed for default—Prevented by sufficient cause from attending when appeal was called on for hearing—Judge's discretion to restore appeal.—Dakshinamoorthy v. Municipal Council of Trichinopoly, 31 M. 157: 3 M. L. T. 336.

Revenue Courts should exercise some degree of leniency regarding non-appearance of counsel at the exact time. A delay of half-an-hour should be excused.—Dhunda v. Mahomed Din, 11 L. L. J. 26.

Where the case which was the last in the list was called earlier in order and time and the time given to call the counsel who was absent in another Court was too short, held, that the appeal should have been restored.—Bhagwan Das v. Mt. Dakhan, 33 P. L. R. 420.

Where almost immediately after an appeal was dismissed for default under r. 17, the counsel for the appellant came and represented that his absence was not intentional but that he did not expect his case to be called so soon and was therefore busy in another part of the Court, and urged that his client was a pardanashin lady whose interests would suffer if the appeal was not restored, it was held that under those circumstances the appeal should be restored.—Lachhman v. Murari Lal, 134 I. C. 120: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 65.

An appeal dismissed on account of failure to pay printing charges cannot be restored under Or. XLI, r. 19.—Chennarayappa v. Muniappa, 1 Mys. L. J. 44. But the Court can in the exercise of its inherent power restore the appeal.—Dhayani v. Ishak, 134 I. C. 1169: A. I. R. 1931 Sind. 163.

A decree of a Division Bench of the High Court, dismissing an appeal for default in depositing the estimated costs of preparing paper-book, can only be set aside by an order under S. 626, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLVII, r. 4) and not by an order under this rule.—Fatimunnissa v. Deoki Pershad, 24 C. 350 (F. B.): 1 C. W. N. 21 (23 C. 339 partly overruled); Anant Potdar v. Mangal, 4 P. 704: 91 I. C. 483: A. I. R. 1926 Pat 27. But this is no longer the view taken under the present Code, under which it has been held that the court-fee payable on an application to the High Court for the restoration of an appeal dismissed for the non-payment of printing costs is Rs. 2 under Art 1, Cl. (d) of Sch. II to the Court-fees Act—Nalini Sundari v. Narendra, 36 C. W. N. 248; Hari Dasi v. Sajani Mohan, 36 C. W. N. 564 (in which various cases have been discussed).

Where an appeal is dismissed on account of unpreparedness of the pleader, the dismissal is a dismissal for default under S. 556, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 17) and the appeal can therefore be re-admitted under this rule.—Shibendra Narain v. Kinno Ram, 12 C. 605 (15 W. R. 143 followed). See, however, Ramchandra v. Madhav, 16 B. 23; Chiranjilal v. Kundan, 20 A. 294; Robert Watson & Co. v. Ambica Dasi, 27 C. 529: 4 C. W. N. 237; and Jawahur Singh, v. Debi Singh, 18 A. 119. The Full Bench case of Satish Chandra v. Ahara Prasad, 34 C. 403: 11 C. W. N. 329: 5 C. L. J. 247, noted under r. 17, has set at rest all the conflicting rulings on the point, and all rulings have been referred to, discussed, and explained there (overruling 27 C. 529: 4 C. W. N. 237, and following 8 C. W. N. 621). See notes under r. 17.

Where when an appeal was called on in the lower appellate Court, the pleader for the appellants was not present and the appeal was consequently dismissed for default, and subsequently the appellants put in a petition for restoration on the ground that the pleader was, at the time when the appeal was called on, engaged in another Court arguing another appeal, and the application was rejected, held, in second appeal, that under these circumstances, the lower Court ought to have re-admitted the appeal as a matter of course, because there was no wilful default or real carelessness, such as would justify the order refusing to restore the appeal, and that the High Court has ample powers to restore an appeal for sufficient cause.—Mrigendra v. Dubakar, 44 C. L. J. 165: 97 I. C. 573: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1231.

The fact that the counsel was engaged in another Court when the appeal was called on and had sent word to the Reader of the Court for a short pass-over, is not sufficient to set aside the dismissal for default and re-admitting the appeal.—Saif Ali v. Chiragh Ali, 68 I. C. 785. But where the appellant's pleader appeared soon after the appeal was dismissed, it was restored on the ground that the failure to appear was unintentional.—Balmokand v. Wazir, 5 L. L. J. 47: 79 I. C. 279.

On an application under this rule for the re-admission of an appeal which had been decided ex parte against the applicant, it appeared that he had been misled by reason of the appeal having been transferred from the file of one Court to another, no notice of the transfer having been given to him by the pleaders in the case. Held that, under the circumstances, the applicant was entitled to have the appeal re-admitted.—Narain Singh v. Bheerab Churn, 8 C. L. R. 350.

An application for re-admission of an appeal dismissed under this rule should be made to the Sub-Judge or to the Assistant Judge who disposed of it and not to the District Judge.—Sakharam Lakshman v. Govind Joti, 15 B. 107.

The carelessness of an advocate's clerk does not constitute "sufficient cause."—Maung Than v. Zainat Bibi, 3 R. 488; 92 I. C. 208; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 50.

The excuse that it was raining and hence the appellant's pleader was a little late in coming to Court, is not a sufficient reason within this rule for restoration of appeal dismissed for default; Kumar Satya Kam v. Mhd. Hamedulla, 96 I. C. 377; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1152.

Where a memorandum of appeal was insufficiently stamped and the deficiency not having been made up within the time allowed, the appeal was wrongly dismissed for default instead of being rejected; held, that it could not be restored under Or. XLI, r. 19, which has no application to such a case; Surajpal v. Utim Pandey, 63 I. C. 99; 6 P. L. J. 625; Anant Potdar v. Mangal, 4 P. 704; 91 I. C. 483; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 27.

Where at the time of the hearing of a case low down in the list by the trying Judge transferred without notice to the appellant, the appellant's counsel was not present in Court and the appeal was consequently dismissed for default, held, that there was no cause for restoration of the appeal; Nanak Chand v. Sajjad Hussain, 71 I. C. 813.

"Shall re-admit the appeal."—The word "shall" has been substituted for the word "may," which occurred in the old Code.

An application for restoration under this rule should not be dismissed without giving the appellant an opportunity of being heard.—Bir Singh v. Humphrey, 120 I. C. 791; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 112; 31 P. L. R. 906; Gopal v. Kanshi Ram, 132 I. C. 5; 30 P. L. R. 969; Hemanta Kumar v. Panchanan, 57 I. C. 762; Jahindra v. Suradhani, 105 I. C. 851; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 102.

Other remedy.—The applicant, if he is still within the period of limitation, may file another appeal and is not bound to confine himself to the remedy of restoration.—Suraideo v. Partap Rai, 2 P. 739; 75 I. C. 284; A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 514. (1923) P. 213.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order of refusal to re-admit an appeal under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl (t), but an order under this rule re-admitting an appeal is not appealable.—Gulab Kunwar v. Thakur Das, 24 A. 464 (22 C. 981 followed).

20. Where it appears to the Court at the hearing that any person who was a party to the suit in the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, but who has not been made a party to the appeal, is interested in the result of the appeal, the Court may adjourn the hearing to a future day to be fixed by the Court and direct that such person be made a respondent.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 559, O. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations only.

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" in the beginning, and the word "preferred" has been substituted for the word "made," which occurred in the old section.

Applicability of the rule.—Two conditions are necessary to enable the appellate Court to exercise the power conferred by this rule: (1) that the person was a party to the suit in the original Court; and (2) that he is interested in the result of the appeal. This rule does not only apply to cases where there is any doubt as to a party being a necessary party but also applies to persons who are admittedly necessary parties; so also it not only applies to cases where the Court itself discovers the defect as to the non-joinder of parties but also the cases where the appellant applies for the addition of a party.—Chiraj Din v. Samanda, 8 L. L. J. 473; 97 I. C. 223; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 689.

The provisions of rr. 20 and 33 of Or. XLI should be used sparingly and only in cases where full justice cannot be done or where the appeal anyhow re-opens the whole of the question decided.—Feroze A. Cooper v. Secretary of State, 111 I. C. 692; A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 947.

Adding of parties under this rule.—It is a question for the Court in its discretion to determine in each case whether or not it will make an order for the addition of a party as contemplated by this rule.—Amlook Chand v. Sarat Chunder, 38 C. 913 (919); Midnapur Zemindary Co. v. Amulya, 53 C. 752; 95 I. C. 649; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 893.

A respondent is entitled to attack an adverse finding of the lower Court in support of the decree and the appellate Court must consider the correctness of the finding and for that purpose has power to add a party respondent whose interests are affected by the finding. The powers of the appellate Court to add parties in appeal are not confined to Or. XLI, r. 20, but are also governed by Or. XLI, r. 22.—Baluswami Alya v. Lakshmana Aiyar, 44 M. 605 (F. B.); 41 M. L. J. 129; 29 M. L. T. 386.

Where a defendant has acquired a valuable right under the decree, he cannot be made a party to the appeal after an appeal against him has become barred by limitation.—Ma Than May v. Mohamed Eusoof, 9 R. 624; 135 I. C. 645; A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 16; Munir Uddin v. Raisul-Nisa, 9 O. W. N. 687.

The Court will not under this rule add representatives of a deceased party to save an appeal that has abated.—Kali Dayal v. Nagendra, 24 O. W. N. 44; 54 I. C. 822; Manindra v. Bhagabati, 30 C. W. N. 45; 90 I. C. 986; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 335.

"Is interested in the result of the appeal."—These words must be given their natural meaning and cannot altogether be disregarded in construing the rule. A defendant against whom a suit has been dismissed and who has not been impleaded as a respondent within the prescribed time in an appeal is not a person who "is interested in the result of the appeal" within the meaning of this rule, and in any case, the onus probandi rests on the appellant, who moves the appellate Court to exercise its powers under this rule to show what is the nature of the interest of the defendant so sought to be made a respondent to the appeal.—V. P. R. V. Chokalingam v. Seethai Ache, 55 I. A. 7: 6 R. 29 (P. C.): 33 C. W. N. 281: 47 C. L. J. 136: 107 I. C. 237: A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 252: (1923) M. W. N. 20: 27 L. W. 1: 4 O. W. N. 1231: 30 Bom. L. R. 220: 26 A. L. J. 371 (on appeal from V. P. R. V. Chokalingam v. Seethai Ache, 2 R. 541: A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 108); Saktiprasanna v. Naliniranjan, 58 C. 923: 133 I. C. 177: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 738. See also Dipan v. Kapil, 29 A. L. J. 1004: A. I. R. 1932 All. 120: 135 I. C. 553. A person against whom a suit has been dismissed and who is not a party to the appeal is not "interested in the appeal" for the purposes of Or. XLI, r. 20. That rule contemplates a person being made a party to the appeal at the time of the hearing of the appeal, because it contemplates that the Court must be in full possession of the facts so that it may be in a position to say whether or not any person is interested in the result of the appeal. The rule does not contemplate that a person should be made a party to the appeal simply in order to enable one of the respondents to prefer a cross-objection against him.—Rajendra v. Mahes Lata, 53 C. 270: 91 I. C. 649: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 533.

It is not competent to an appellate Court to implead, under Or. XLI, r. 20, a person who had not been made a party to the decree though he had been a party to a suit, as the person is not "interested in the result of the appeal." To hold that an appellate Court can implead a person who has acquired an absolute right by the lapse of time or by the omission of the name from the decree, would amount to denying all finality to litigation.—Maharaja of Faridkot v. Anant Ram, 97 I. C. 338: 8 L. L. J. 333: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 499.

Where neither the appellant nor the respondent derives their claim in respect of the dispute in appeal from a party to a suit but not joined in appeal and from the nature of the appeal itself it is evident that either the success or the failure of the appeal will in no way injure the interest acquired by the party under the decree appealed against such a party is not a necessary party to the appeal—Ma On Thin v. Ma Ngwe Yin, 7 R. 398: A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 265 (distinguishing 6 R. 29 (P. C.), ante).

Joinder of respondents in appeal.—It is quite open to the appellate Court, with reference to the terms of this rule to add a party as respondent to an appeal, when no appeal had been made against him.—Hudson v. Basdeo Bajpye, 26 C. 109: 3 C. W. N. 76; Bishun Churn v. Jogendra Nath, 26 C. 114. See also Upendra Lal v. Girindra Nath, 25 C. 565: 2 C. W. N. 425 (approved in Rup Jaun v. Abdul Kadir, 31 C. 643 (F. B.): 8 C. W. N. 496; Soiru Padmanabh v. Narayanrao, 18 B. 520; and Kanagappa v. Sokkalunga, 15 M. 362). But see Attha Ram v. Balkishen, 5 A. 266; followed in Subramanian v. Veerabadran, 31 M. 442: 18 M. L. J. 452, noted below. This Madras case has been commented on in 13 C. W. N. at p. lxxviii (78).

Where through a mistake on the part of an appellant's legal adviser, the names of certain defendants who are interested in the result of the appeal are omitted from the memorandum of appeal, the Court has power to add them as parties under Or. XLI, r. 20.—Deokaran v. Nathu, 63 I. C. 352.

An appellate Court has power to implead only such persons as parties to the appeal as were parties in the trial Court and were not made parties to the appeal but not those who are complete strangers to the suit.—Musst. Haliman v. Nur Muhammad Khan, 73 I. C. 136 (18 A 332 relied on); Monjiram v. Maneklal, 53 B. 598: 119 I. C. 654: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 353: 31 Bom. L. R. 672.

A Receiver is not a necessary party to an appeal in which the very order of adjudication (as a consequence of which the Receiver was appointed) is in question.—Moti Ram v. Kewal Ram, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 202: 9 L. L. J. 550: 105 I. C. 569.

Where the pleader for plaintiff-appellant did not implead co-plaintiffs in the appeal under a mistaken view of Or. XLI, r. 4, the Court allowed them to be joined as respondents at the hearing.—Saru Khan v. Jan Mahomed, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 43: 106 I. C. 313.

Where owing to the bona fide mistake caused by a similarity of names of two persons who were parties to a second appeal, the name of one of these persons was left out in the Letters Patent Appeal filed against a decision in the second appeal, the High Court had power to correct the mistake and allow the memorandum of appeal to be amended by inserting the proper name and bringing on the proper party.—Kunhauna v. Manakke, 117 I. C. 796. A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 343 56 M. L. J. 315: (1929) M. W. N. 374: 29 L. W. 546.

Looking at the language of this rule apart from authority, it would appear to have been inserted to protect parties to the suit who had not been made respondents in the appeal, from being prejudiced by modifications made behind their back in the decree under appeal. The party whom it is sought to bring on should have had an interest in the result of the appeal, that is to say, he must be shown to be interested in the result of the appeal before he is brought on: for once he is brought on he may be said to acquire an interest as a result of being brought on. When a defendant has been exonerated and there is no appeal against so much of the decree as exonerates him, no decree can be passed against him in an appeal by any of the parties to a suit as he is no party to such appeal and he cannot be said to be interested in the result of such appeal by another party unless the decree sought to be obtained against the respondents in the appeal would have the effect of prejudicing him in some way or other. A decree having been made against a wrong party, it is not competent for the appellate Court, in appeal by that party in which the decree-holder alone is made respondent, to bring on the record those persons against whom the Court of first instance should have made the decree.—Subramanian v. Veerabadran, 31 M. 442: 18 M. L. J. 452: 4 M. L. T. 104 (5 A. 266 followed; 25 C. 565 not followed; 31 C. 643 referred to).

In a rent suit one of the tenants had not been joined as a party, but he had received a copy of the summons and had been represented by a pleader after he had filed a written statement. In the appeal also the said defendant was not made a party but the District Judge after he had delivered judgment issued notice to him informing him that his name had been added as a party defendant. Held, that no useful purpose could be served by adding in the appellate stage, a party defendant if he had not been made a party to the appeal and after judgment in the appeal had been delivered, he could not be bound by the insertion of his name on the record as a defendant.—Burendra Nath v. Aghore Nath, 25 C. W. N. 525.

Where a mortgagor after obtaining a decree against two out of three mortgagors, appealed against the third mortgagor alone, and the appellate Court held that the appeal was not properly constituted, he cannot thereafter be allowed to implead the other mortgagors as parties.—Tulsidas v. Ahmed, 115 I. C. 305: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 120.

Where a party to a suit was not impleaded in the appeal but it appeared that the omission was due to an oversight and that the party whose name was omitted was not a contesting party in the suit, the proper procedure for the Court was not to dismiss the suit on a technical ground but to exercise the powers vested in it under Or. XLI, r. 20.—Jalal Din v. Karim Bakhsh, 124 I. C. 692: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 295: 11 L. L. J. 523.

Joinder of co-respondent.—The appellate Court has jurisdiction under Or. XLI, r. 20 to add a defendant as co-respondent when the plaintiff, the sole respondent in the appeal, preferred a memo. of cross-objections against him.—Ponnuswami v. Palanandi, 11 L. W. 602.

Order XLI, r. 20 and Or. XXII.—Order XLI, r. 20 is not intended to override the provisions of Or. XXII; the right obtained by a respondent when the appeal abates as against him, is a valuable right and should not be lightly treated. Order XLI, r. 20 will only apply where there is an appeal pending in the Court on which a decision may be given by the Court, and there is no power in a Court to revive a dead appeal or to give power to an appellant to present an appeal where there is none at all in the file of the Court.—Badri Narayan v. E. I. Ry. Co., 5 P. 755: A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 23.

Adding of parties in second appeal.—The Court in second appeal is competent to bring on the record per the suit, but were not joined in the 1
v. Kovamel, 19 M. 151; Durga Charan joined in
v. Hitan Singh, 82 I. C. 600. But the Allahabad High Court has taken a Power of appellate Court to add respondent—Limitation.—The power of the appellate Court to make a person respondent under this rule is not affected by the Limitation Act.—Sohna v. Khalak Singh, 13 A. 78; Bindschri Naik v. Ganga Saran, 14 A. 154 (F. B.); Manickya Moyee v. Boroda Prosad, 9 C. 355; 11 C. L. R. 430; Upendra Lal v. Girindra Nath, 25 C. 565; 2 C. W. N. 425 (approved in Rup Jaun v. Abdul Kadir, 31 C. 643 (F. B.)); 8 C. W. N. 496; not followed in Subramanian v. Veerabadran, 31 M. 442; 18 M. L. J. 462). See also Maung An Gale v. Ma Min Dun, 66 I. C. 365; Municipal Committee, Bhera v. Shivram, 75 I. C. 80; Amar Singh v. Kanshi, 76 I. C. 285; Wazir Singh v. Janki Das, 97 I. C. 174: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 679; Girish v. Sashi Sekhaheswar, 33 C. 329; Amlook Chand v. Sarat Chunder, 38 C. 913 (918-919); Shahab Din v. Miran Bakhsh, 35 I. C. 549; 79 P. R. 1914; Deo Karan v. Nathu, A. I. R. 1921 Nag. 12; Mt. Sawami v. Jiwan, A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 120; 103 I. C. 233; Moti Ram v. Kewal Ram, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 202: 9 L. L. J. 550; 105 I. C. 569.

The Limitation Act does not contract the power of the Court under this rule to allow persons, who were parties to the proceedings in the Court below but were not made respondents at the time when the appeal was brought, to be added as respondents. It makes no difference whether to bring in those persons as respondents is necessary for the ends of justice that they should be added as respondents.—Girish Chander v. Sasi Sekhaheswar, 33 C. 329 (9 C. 355 : 12 C. 642 referred to).

Where in an administration suit the District Court awarded one-fourth share to the second defendant, he has acquired a valuable right, namely, to have the estate distributed on the basis of that decree and he cannot be made a party to the appeal after an appeal as against him has become barred by limitation. The test of the competency of the appeal as against the other parties is whether the effect of the appeal would be to bring into existence two inconsistent decrees, one of the High Court and the other of the District Court, with respect to the subject-matter of the suit; where the result of allowing the appeal would be to vary the decree passed by the District Court which as between the parties to the appeal and the second defendant has become conclusive, the appeal is incompetent even as against the other respondents.—Ma Than May v. Mohamed Eusoof, 9 R. 624 : 135 I. C. 645 : A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 16.

Inherent power of Court to add parties.—Powers of a Court to implead parties under S. 151, C. P. Code, are circumscribed by Or. XLI, r. 20, and it is only in exceptional circumstances that the inherent powers under S. 151 could be invoked.—Haliman v. Nur Muhommed Khan, 73 I. C. 136 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 490.

Form.—For Form of notice to a party to a suit not made a party to the appeal, see Appendix G, Form No. 7.

21. Where an appeal is heard ex parte and judgment is pronounced against the respondent, he may apply to the Appellate Court to re-hear the appeal; and, if he satisfies the Court that the notice was not duly served or that he was prevented by sufficient cause from appearing when the appeal was called on for hearing, the Court shall re-hear the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit to impose upon him. [S. 560.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 560, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations.

The words "in the absence of the respondent" which stood after the word "ex parte" in the old section, have been omitted; and the word "pronounced" has been substituted for the words "is given," after the word "judgment." The other changes are merely verbal.

"Sufficient cause."—For the meaning of the words "he was prevented by sufficient cause," see notes under Or. IX, rr. 9 and 13, as the principles laid down in the rulings under those rules, are equally applicable to this rule, in which the similar expression, "prevented by sufficient cause" occurs.

Appeal heard ex parte—Application for re-hearing—Sufficient cause.—Where a respondent had received no intimation of the date of hearing of an appeal from his pleader's clerk who owing to his illness had been compelled to go home, the papers of the case being with him, and who did not give information to the clients of the day fixed for hearing, and the appeal was heard ex parte on the date of hearing, held, that it was a sufficient cause within the meaning of this rule for the re-hearing of the appeal.—Kailash Chunder v Rama Nath, 2 O. W. N. 414.

Where after some infructuous attempts to serve the respondent, substituted service was ordered and the appeal was heard ex parte, it is still open to the respondent to show if he can, that he was never duly served in the sense that knowledge of his opponent's claim has been brought to him, even though the formalities of substituted service have been carried through.—Gyanammal v. Abdul Hussain, 55 M. 223; 134 I. O 1232; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 813; 61 M. L. J. 920; (1931) M. W. N. 1069; 34 L. W. 496.

Notice was given to the respondent's pleader of the day fixed for hearing, but he refused to accept service and did not inform his client that such notice was given. The appeal was heard ex parte no one appearing for the respondent; held, that the laches of the pleader is not a sufficient ground for restoration of the appeal.—Har Prosad v. Abdul Rahman, (1905) A. W. N. 44.

An applicant presenting a petition for the re-hearing of an appeal, decided ex parte, must, at the time of making such application, be prepared to satisfy the Court that the notice of appeal was not duly served upon him, or that he was prevented by sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on for hearing.—Anunda Shaha v. Kema Beba, 6 O. 548.

Where an appeal has been heard ex parte, a re-hearing cannot be granted by the Court on an application under S 563, O. P. Code, 1932, except upon legal evidence produced by the respondent of the facts necessary to entitle him to such re-hearing.—Mahomed Kalun v. Dinomoyee, 8 C. L. R. 112.

A respondent engaged two pleaders on the day of hearing; the senior pleader being ill transferred his brief to another pleader, whom the Judge declined to hear as his name did not appear in the vakalatnama. The junior not being instructed to argue applied for a day's postponement to get himself ready. This was refused and the appeal decreed ex parte. Held, that the Judge ought either to have allowed the pleader who appeared to argue the case or allowed an adjournment, making if necessary an order for costs in favour of the appellant.—Hari Krishna v. Bishnu Chandra, 35 O. 799; 12 O. W. N. 838; 7 C. L. J. 426.

Where counsel for respondent was unable to appear at the hearing because the respondent's agent had taken away the papers, it was held that this was not a "sufficient cause" for re-hearing the appeal.—Baji Lal v. Nawal Singh, 39 A. 388.

This rule applies to a case in which the respondent has been prevented by sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on, whether appearance has been entered for him or not.—Esab v. Krishna Narayan, 11 C. L. R. 164.

Where pleaders were engaged on behalf of the respondent, but they were unavoidably prevented from appearing, held that although vakalatnamas had been filed by the defendant's pleaders, the defendant could not be said to have appeared in person or by pleader and the order made under this rule was correct.—Shco Churn v. Heera Lall, 11 C. L. R. 537 (7 W. R. 81 followed).

Held by the Full Bench, that a respondent in whose absence the appeal has been heard ex parte, and against whom judgment has been given, may prefer a second appeal from the decree under the provisions of S. 584, C. P. Code, 1882, and his remedy is not limited to an application under this rule to the Court which passed the decree to re-hear the appeal.—Ajudhia Prasad v. Balmukand, 8 A. 354 (F. B.) (4 A. 387, and 6 B. H. C. R. 161 referred to).

An appeal was heard ex parte in the absence of the respondent; he then applied for re-hearing, but his application was refused. Held that he was not debarred, by reason that he had not appealed from the order refusing to re-hear the appeal, from appealing from the decree of the appellate Court.—Ramjas v. Baijnath, 2 A. 567.

A defendant who obtains a judgment in his favour in the Court of first instance and who, on appeal by the plaintiff, does not appear at the hearing of the appeal or present a petition for a re-hearing, may present a second appeal against the decree of the lower appellate Court.—Ex parte Modallatha, 2 M. 75.

An application for re-hearing of an appeal presented originally within the period of limitation but returned for amendment, and presented after amendment, after the period of limitation, cannot be rejected as long out of time.—Shama Prasad v. Taki Mullik, 5 C. W. N. 816.

This rule applies to a case where the respondent is absent and not dead at the time of hearing.—Sowdamini v. Ganga Kumar, 3 C. L. J. 35-n.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order of refusal to re-hear an appeal under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (i).

22. (1) Any respondent, though he may not have appealed from any part of the decree, may not only support the decree on any of the grounds decided against him in the Court below, but take any cross-objection to the decree which he could have taken by way of appeal, provided, he has filed such objection in the appellate Court within one month from the date of service on him or his pleader of notice of the day fixed for hearing the appeal, or within such further time as the Appellate Court may see fit to allow.

Upon hearing, respondent may object to decrees as if he had preferred separate appeal.

(2) Such cross-objection shall be in the form of a memorandum, and the provisions of rule 1, so far as they relate to the form and contents of the memorandum of appeal, shall apply thereto.

Form of objection and provisions applicable thereto.

(3) Unless the respondent files with the objection a written acknowledgment from the party who may be affected by such objection or his pleader of having received a copy thereof, the Appellate Court shall cause a copy to be served, as soon as may be after the filing of the objection on such party or his pleader at the expense of the respondent.

(4) Where, in any case in which any respondent has under this rule filed a memorandum of objection the original appeal is withdrawn or is dismissed for default, the objection so filed may nevertheless be heard and determined after such notice to the other parties as the Court thinks fit.

(5) The provisions relating to pauper appeals shall, so far as they can be made applicable, apply to an objection under this rule. [S. 561.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 561 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The alterations made in sub-rules (1) and (2) are merely verbal, viz., the word "from" has been substituted for the word "against," and the word "cross-objection" has been substituted for the word "objection."

In sub-rule (3) the words "from the party who may be affected by such objection or his pleader," have been substituted for the words "from the appellant or pleader," which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (4) is new. It has been inserted to set at rest the several conflicting rulings on the point.

Sub-rule (5) corresponds to the last para. of S. 561, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

Support the decree.—Though a person who has not appealed from a decree cannot question its correctness he can support the decree on reasons not given by the lower Court under this rule.—Raj Kumar Jagannath Prasad v. Mirza Ekbal, 5 P. L. J. 239: 55 I. C. 214. A respondent, although he may not have appealed against any part of the decree, may support the decree on any of the grounds decided against him in the Court below; and it is only when he takes exception to the decree that he is bound to prefer an appeal or take cross-objection. Therefore where the plaintiff sued for money under a mortgage giving credit for Rs. 245 which he declared to be the value of certain grain and cattle delivered to him by the mortgagor and the defendants alleged that the value was Rs. 350 and not Rs. 245 and also alleged a further payment of Rs. 320, and the trial Court was of opinion that the value was Rs. 245, but it was also of opinion that the plaintiff was not entitled to compound interest claimed by him, and the plaintiff appealed against that decision, the defendants, who did not dispute the correctness of the amount decreed against them, were competent to show to the appellate Court without preferring a separate appeal themselves, that the amount for which credit had been given by the trial Court had been wrongly calculated so far as the value of the grain and cattle was concerned—Shankar Lal v. Madari Singh, 7 I. C. 484.

A party who is competent to accept the lower Court's decision can resist the appeal from that decision on the ground that the decree errs in favour of the appellant. In such a case the respondent not having appealed nor filed cross-objections, cannot ask that the decree should be altered in his favour, but he is entitled to urge that if he can show that the decree errs in favour of the appellant, it should not be disturbed.—Muhammad Ali v. Parma Nand, 45 I. C. 232: 48 P. W. R. 1918. The two last mentioned cases have been distinguished by the Madras High Court in Sri Ranga v. Srinivasa, 50 M. 866: 104 I. C. 472, in which it has been said that in the former case what was really held was that even though an item in an account may be found by the Court of appeal against the respondent, and on that footing the amount for which a decree has been granted by the lower Court may have to be increased, still the decree might be supported by showing that in respect of some other item the Court below made a mistake; but when the relief granted depends upon the adjudication by the lower Court with respect to rights or causes of action, it is inconceivable that such a decision or adjudication shall be sought to be attacked in the appellate Court without any notice whatever. Though the word "decree" has been used in this rule, what the rule contemplates really is the decision by the Court below, and merely enables the decision arrived at to be supported on grounds other than those on which the lower Court proceeded. The same view has been taken in Kishan Kishore v. Din Mahomed, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 684 and Gangama v. Veerappa, 131 I. C. 833: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 513. The High Court of Patna has taken a contrary view and held that the words "support the decree" do not merely mean "support the decision" and it is open to the respondent who has not filed any cross appeal or objection against the decree awarding compensation in land acquisition proceedings to urge in bar of further enhancement a ground which has been decided against him in the lower Court and which if accepted in entirety would have resulted in the dismissal of the plaintiff's suit.—Gokul v. Secretary of State, 12 P. 659.

The Privy Council has laid down that where a particular issue is decided against the defendants but the decree is entirely in their favour, it is not necessary for them (in an appeal preferred by the plaintiff) to file a notice of objection; and they can support the decree on the ground that the said issue ought to have been decided in their favour.—Lala Gauri Sanker v. Janki Pershad, 17 I. A. 57: 17 C. 809 (813-814) (P. C.). See Bhagoji v. Bapuji, 13 B. 75, in which it has been held that where a decree is in favour of the respondent, the appellate Court is not entitled to accept facts found by the Court of first instance as incontestably proved merely because the respondent has not filed any cross-objections to the decree (followed in Sheocharan v. Ram-ratan, 108 I. C. 801 : A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 181). See also Shrish v. Munpri, 9 C. W. N. 14, in which it has been held that it is not necessary to entitle a respondent to support a decree upon a particular ground that the ground should have been in express terms decided against him, and if it has not been decided in his favour it must be taken to have been "decided against him" within the meaning of S. 561 of the old Code (i. e. the present rule). It has also been held that this rule in no way prevents an appellate Court from upholding the decree of the lower Court on any ground which in law warrants such upholding, even though that ground may not have been referred to, or disallowed in the lower Court.—Receiver of Nidadavole Estate v. Vegasena, 28 M. 427 (435).

An application to file a cross-appeal orally was rejected, (1) because a written memorandum of its grounds had not been filed previously; (2) because the objection, when taken, was not filed on the regulated stamp; and, lastly, (3) because the ground now urged had not been advanced as an objection in a regular appeal previously filed.—Hoolas Kooeree v. Sufeehun, 8 W. R. 379.

If no cross-objections are filed at all by a respondent, the appellate Court has no power to grant any relief to him in a case where the granting of such relief is not necessarily incidental to the relief granted to the appellant.—Kulaikada v. Viswanatha, 28 M. 229; Caspersz v. Kishori Lal, 23 C. 922 (929) (P. C.) : 1 C. W. N. 12 : "the appellate Court the power, in the absence of cross-objections, decree as is favourable to the appellant worse position"—Cheda Lal v. Badullah, 1 C. 996; Shailesh v. Bechai, 40 C. L. J. 67 : 84 I. C. 124 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 94. In any case, the Court cannot record a finding which does not affect the point at issue.—Sir Prodyat Kumar v. Bal Gobinda, 41 C. L. J. 31 : 86 I. C. 6 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 518.

A respondent, in taking advantage of the provisions of S. 348 of Act VIII of 1859 (this rule), can only take such objections as have reference to the party appealing. If he wishes to raise objections against parties who do not appeal, he must do so by independent appeal.—Ganesh Pandurang v. Gangadhar, 6 B. H. C. R. 244.

If a decree is passed partly in favour of, and partly against, a plaintiff, and one of the defendants alone appeals as against the decree in favour of the plaintiff, making a co-defendant a respondent, there is no reason why the latter should appear or interest himself in the result, nor why the plaintiff should be allowed at the hearing to raise objections to his suit having been dismissed against the other defendant.—Goonomonee v. Parbutty, 10 W. R. 326.

Both parties appealed from the decree of the first Court, and both the appeals were dismissed. The plaintiff preferred a second appeal against the decree dismissing his appeal, whereupon the defendant took objections to the decree of the lower appellate Court dismissing his appeal. Held, that such objections could not be entertained.—Ganga Prasad v. Gajadha Prasad 2 A. 651.

Where a plaintiff's suit is dismissed, and a defendant appeals, seeking no relief whatever, but acting in the same interest with the plaintiff, the latter is not entitled by way of cross-appeal, to argue that his suit was wrongly dismissed.—Saletoollah v. Rohim Dewan, 9 W. R. 273.

Objections under this rule can only be filed by a party who might have appealed from the decree of the Court below but has not done so. It is not open to a party who has appealed, and where appeal has been dismissed, subsequently to such dismissal, to prefer objections under this rule to the appeal preferred by the opposite party.—Ramji Das v. Ajudhia Prasad, 25 A. 628; Sourindra v. Nirmal, 32 C. W. N. 863; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 882. But a person who has filed an appeal from a decree which is still pending, and especially when it has not yet been admitted to a hearing, is not precluded from filing cross-objections on the same grounds when the other party has appealed from the decree.—Abdul Rahim v. Raghubir Chand, 112 I. C. 689; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 161. Where in a suit for accounts a certain sum was decree against the defendant had become final by the defendant's failure to appeal from the dismissal of his first appeal and that the defendant is not entitled to claim by way of cross-objections what he had claimed in his first appeal.—Sant Ram v. Ram Manoreth, 111 I. C. 843; A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 41. Where in the lower appellate Court the defendant filed an appeal and the plaintiff filed a memorandum of cross-objections and the lower appellate Court dismissed both of them, it is not competent, in the appeal filed by plaintiff against the dismissal of cross-objections, for the defendant by way of objections to attack the rejection by the lower Court of his appeal; the proper course for him is to file an independent appeal against the dismissal or rejection of his appeal.—Ayilu Reddi v. Venkata Reddi, 130 I. C. 657; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 133; (1930) M. W. N. 1236.

In an appeal against an award under the Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), the respondent is entitled to file cross-objections under this rule.—Raghunathdas v. Secretary of State, 29 B. 514; 7 Bom. L. R. 569.

Cross-objections against co-respondents.—As a general rule the respondent, the exception holding good, among other cases, in those in which the appeal of some of the parties opens out questions, which cannot be disposed of completely without matters being allowed to be opened up as between co-respondents.—Bishun Churn v. Joendra Nath, 26 C. 114 (7 W. R. 39, and 15 W. R. 26 referred to); Shabiuddin v. Deomoorat, 30 C. 655; Abdul Ghani v. Muhammad Abdul Majid, 28 A. 95; 2 A. L. J. 667; Jagannath v. Hanuman Singh, 54 I. C. 332; Nurse v. Harrison, 37 B. 511; Jadunandan v. Deo Narain, 16 C. W. N. 612, 614; Mathura v. Ram Kumar, 43 C. 790 (828); Musleha v. Ram Narain, 40 A. 536; Official Trustee of Bengal v. Smith, 5 P. L. J. 328; 56 I. C. 262; Bhuban v. Co-operative Hindusthan Bank, 29 C. W. N. 784; 88 I. C. 866; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 973; Lakshman v. Bhikchand, 31 Bom. L. R. 1179; Babu Singh v. Godawari, 118 I. C. 867:

A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 361; Bankey-Lal v. Natharam, 107 I. C. 569; A. I. R. 1929 All. 195. It is the settled practice of the Calcutta High Court not to permit a cross-objection raising a question as between two respondents inter se in which the appellant is not concerned or interested. Such a question can only be raised in a substantive appeal by the respondent.—Co-operative Hindusthan Bank v. Surendranath, 36 C. W. N. 263. According to the Madras and Lahore High Courts, a respondent may urge cross-objections against a co-respondent in any and every case.—Kulaikada v. Viswanatha, 28 M. 229, Munisamy v. Abbu, 38 M. 705 (F. B.); Alagappa v. Chockalingam, 41 M. 904 (F. B.); 48 I. C. 203; Chhajju v. Qutab Din, 5 L. L. J. 92; 69 I. C. 330; A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 39.

As a general rule cross-objections can be urged only against the appellant and not against a co-respondent. No cross-objections can be filed against a defendant who has not filed any appeal from the decree passed against him.—Sant Ram v. Kidar Nath, 56 I. C. 469; Qara Mohammad Shaban v. Bazm Ara Begam, 70 I. C. 79.

The objections allowed to be urged by a respondent under this rule are limited to the person who has appealed against him, and his (respondent's) rights are not enlarged by the mere addition to the list of such persons of other persons who should not have been put on the list at all.—Kallu v. Mannu, 23 A. 93. See, however, Timmaya Mada v. Lakshmana, 7 M. 215, where it has been held that a party who has been improperly made a respondent in appeal is entitled to take objections to the decree under this rule.

In suit for dissolution of partnership and for accounts, it is open to any respondent to prefer cross-objections against a co-respondent on any item in dispute between them.—Balgobind v. Ram Sarup, 36 A. 505.

Cross-objections against absent co-respondents.—An objection by way of cross-appeal cannot be taken against a co-respondent who is not present in Court and so unable to answer the objection of the cross-appellant.—Lall Chand v. Kudmoo Koonwar, 7 W. R. 532. See also Motazzunnissa v. Mooraree, 22 W. R. 314.

An objection by way of cross-appeal cannot be taken against a party who is not present in Court. But if it be considered necessary to have the absent party present, the Court should direct that he should be made a respondent.—Pran Kishore v. Mahomed Ameer, 21 W. R. 338.

Cross-objections against findings embodied in the judgment but not in the decree.—The findings in a judgment upon matters which subsequently turn out to be immaterial to the grounds upon which a suit is finally disposed of as to the plaintiff's right to any portion of the relief sought by him as declared by the decree, amount to no more than obiter dicta, and do not constitute a final decision against a party so as to enable him to appeal or to prefer a cross-appeal against it. Parties have no right to cross-appeal against findings embodied in the judgment but not in the decree.—Jamaitunnissa v. Lutfunnissa, 7 A. 606 (F. B.); Balak Tewari v. Kausil Misr, 4 A. 491.

Cross-objections by pauper respondent—The decisions in Rashomonee v. Junmojoy, 9 W. R. 356; Babaji v. Rajaram, 1 B. 75; Narain v.

Krishna, 8 M. 214; Brojeswari v. Guroo Churn, 11 C. 735, are no longer good law in view of the provisions made in Or. XLI, r. 22 (5). Under this rule the Court may receive a memorandum of cross-objections at any time and it is not prevented from receiving it by the fact that an application to file it in forma pauperis was filed in time while the memorandum was filed out of time.—Gorind Rani v. Radha Ballabh, 15 C. W. N. 205: 12 C. L. J. 173: 7 I. C. 118. The limitation of 30 days prescribed for applications for leave to appeal in forma pauperis is not applicable to applications for leave to file cross-objections in forma pauperis.—Mt. Chander Kala v. Mt. Dulhin Raja Kuer, 7 P. 827: 119 I. C. 900: A. I. R. 1929 Pat 31 10 P. L. J. 387.

Applicability of this rule to Letters Patent appeals.—Order XLI, r. 22 is not applicable to an appeal under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, and a memorandum of cross-objection cannot be entertained in these appeals.—Brojendra Chandra v. Prosanna Kumar, 24 C. W. N. 1016: 32 C. L. J. 48; Purna Kuar v. Mangat Rai, 70 I. C. 488: A. I. R. 1922 All 55 (Kusalia v. Golab Koer, 31 A. 297 folld.). See also In the matter of Mirza Himmat, (1866) B. L. R. (F. B.) 429 But see Venkataram Chetty v. Motichand, 49 M. 291 (F. B.): 50 M. L. J. 190: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 316, in which it has been held (following 48 I. A. 76: 48 C. 481) that the provisions of Or. XLI, apply to Original Side appeals under the Letters Patent, and r. 22 of that Order expressly provides for cross-objections being raised by respondents.

Applicability of this rule to revisions.—This rule does not extend to Civil Revision petitions; but the High Courts' power of revision may be exercised even without any application by an aggrieved party; and when a case is already before the Court and the necessary parties are also before it, it has ample powers to entertain questions which may be raised by the respondent and deal with these questions also if it thinks fit.—Pattammal v. Krishnasawmy, 112 I. C. 231: A. I. R. 1923 Mad 794.

Court-fees on cross-objections.—The effect of S. 16 of Court-fees Act (VII of 1970) is to place the respondent in the position of a cross-appellant, in so far that he must, before the hearing, specify his matter of objection, and must pay into Court the court-fee attaching thereto. A Court cannot give effect to the cross-objection of a respondent subject to his payment of the court-fee stamp.—Sharoda Soonduree v. Gobind Monee, 24 W. R. 179. But see Reference under Court-fees Act, S. 5, 25 M. 24, where it has been held that stamp duty on a memorandum of objections filed under this rule need not, under S. 16 of the Court-fees Act, be paid till the time for hearing.

Where the memorandum of cross-appeal was not stamped before by mistake and it was acted upon, the subsequent filing of the stamp makes the memorandum of the appeal as valid as if it were stamped at the first instance.—Jagabandhu v. Chowdhry Shyama Charan, 2 C. L. J. 68-n.: 6 C. W. N. cclxxx (280).

The Court has jurisdiction over a memorandum of objections presented under this rule although not stamped or moved by the respondent at the hearing of the appeal, and where it is not so stamped or moved the proper order is to dismiss it with or without costs.—Palani v. Udayar, 32 M. 170.

Where the respondent in an appeal from a decree which totally dismissed the plaintiff's suit put in a petition stating the reasons on which they supported the decree, the respondent need not pay court-fee on the petition.—Ram Prasad v. Musst. Ajanasia, 44 A. 577 : 68 I. C. 861.

A cross-objection which relates to costs only should bear ad valorem court-fee on the amount claimed.—Kamakhyia v. Ramraj, 8 P. 543 : 117 I. C. 166 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 286 : 10 P. L. T. 224.

Time for filing cross-objections.—The cross-objections referred to in this rule must be filed by the respondent within one month from the date of the service of notice of the appeal. But the time may be extended if sufficient cause is shown.—Sulleman v. Joosub, 14 B. 111; Kuksa v. Dajiba Bhau, 5 N. L. J. 192 : 66 I. C. 217.

Where the time for filing objection under this rule expired on a day when the Court was closed, the objections were allowed to be filed on the day when the Court re-opened.—Baghelin v. Mathura, 4 A. 430.

The withdrawal of the appeal by which the respondent loses his opportunity of having his cross-objections heard, affords no sufficient reasons for enlarging the time for the cross-appeal which he might have presented.—Chudasama v. Ishwargar, 16 B. 249. See also Surbhai Dayalji v. Raghunakji, 10 B. H. C. R. 397 (2 B. L. R. A. C. 184 : 10 W. R. 178 followed). But see Hurgovindas v. Jadavahoo, 23 B. 692, where the withdrawal of the appeal was considered "sufficient cause" within the meaning of S. 5 of the Limitation Act.

An appeal cannot definitely be posted until the Court has ascertained that notice has been served upon the respondent, and a date must then be fixed not less than one month from the date of service and a respondent can file a cross objection within a month from the date of service of notice.—Sundaram v. Annangar, 13 M. 492.

Power of appellate Court to deal with the whole case after return of findings on remand.—The first Court dismissed the suit as barred by limitation, but the decision was reversed in appeal, and the case was remanded for trial on the merits.—The first Court then gave a decree, but on appeal the appellate Court dismissed the suit on the merits. The plaintiff preferred a special appeal. Held, that the defendant was competent on such appeal to raise cross-objections that the suit was barred by limitation.—In the matter of Himmat Bahadur, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 429 : 5 W. R. 91. See also Raye Kishore v. Bonomally, 10 W. R. 209; and Kishen Chunder v. Sreeshtee Dhur, 8 W. R. 208.

In a second appeal by the defendant, the plaintiff filed cross-objections under this rule and the High Court remitted an issue under S. 566, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 25), with reference to plaintiff's objections expressing their views thereon. Held, that, upon the return of the findings on remand, the Court could not treat the appeal as already decided and the objections as the sole matter for the consideration, but must consider both appeal and cross-objections and decide the whole case.—Lachman Prasad v. Jamna Prasad, 10 A. 169

H sued B for arrears of rent at the rate of Rs. 212-1-0 per annum, and obtained a decree at the rate of Rs. 94. He appealed, and the appellate Court gave him a decree at the rate of Rs. 128-12-0. B appealed to the High Court. H neither appealed nor filed any cross-appeal. The High Court remanded the case. The lower appellate Court then found that the annual rent payable by B was Rs. 212-10-0. Held, that the second finding of the lower appellate Court should be accepted, and H was entitled to the benefit of the finding in his favour, notwithstanding that he had not appealed or preferred objections under this rule.—Bikrmajit v. Husaini Begam, 3 A. 643 (distinguished in Ajilul v. Dino Nath, 34 C. 996).

Insertion of sub-rule (4).—It would appear from the rulings prior to the insertion of this sub-rule that in some of the cases it was held that where cross-objections are filed by the respondent, the appellant, if he wishes to withdraw his appeal must do so before the hearing of the appeal has commenced. In others it was held that where the appeal is withdrawn by the appellant, the cross-objections cannot be heard. By insertion of sub-rule (4), it has now been definitely laid down that even if the appellant withdraws his appeal after receiving notice of cross-objection or if the appeal is dismissed for default, the cross-objection so filed may nevertheless be heard and determined, although the appeal may be withdrawn by the appellant or dismissed for his default. This rule is advantageous to the respondent, as he will have the advantage of his cross-objections being heard, as if he has filed a separate appeal.

Under the old section cross-objections were entirely dependent upon the hearing of the appeal; but by insertion of sub-rule (4) it has been made clear that cross-objections are to be treated as independent and separate appeals; and the difference of opinion which hitherto existed with regard to the meaning of the term “hearing” has been set at rest.

Under the present rule, the withdrawal of an appeal is no bar to the hearing of cross-objections filed by a respondent, whether the appeal is withdrawn before or after the hearing. This pre-supposes a valid filing of an appeal. If the appeal itself is not validly filed, then the memorandum of objection should not be heard.—Venkatasubamma v. Ramanadhayya, 139 I. C. 457 : (1932) M. W. N. 949. In the same way, the dismissal of an appeal for default is no bar to the hearing of cross-objections. The dismissal of an appeal upon the appellants’ failure to give security for costs is a dismissal for default within the meaning of Or. XLI, r. 22, sub-rule (4).—Mowar Sheobaksh v. Mowar Thakur Dayal, 4 P. L. J. 164.

The word ‘default’ in this sub-rule has been differently interpreted. The Madras High Court has held that the word means default which would amount to non-prosecution of the appeal, and the dismissal of an appeal for non-payment of deficit court-fee is a dismissal for default.—Ayilu Reddi v. Venkata Reddi, 130 I. C. 657 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 133 : (1930) M. W. N. 1236. The Rangoon High Court on the other hand has held that the provisions of this sub-rule must be interpreted strictly and not extended beyond their obvious meaning, and apart from the two instances excepted, viz., “withdrawal or dismissal for default”, cross-objections cannot be entertained if the appeal is dismissed without a hearing on the ground of non-payment of the deficit court-fee, because the Judges’ order in such a case that the appeal has abated does not amount to dismissal for default.—U Shin v. Maung Tha Gywe, 8 R. 538 : 129 I. C. 500 : A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 38. See also Ajmer Singh v. Ram Singh, 28 N. L. R. 25 : 137 I. C. 1156 : A. I. R. 1932 Nag. 41.

Abatement of appeal owing to death of appellant—Effect upon cross-objections.—Where owing to the death of the appellant, an appeal abates and is dismissed, the memorandum of cross-objection preferred by the respondent cannot also be heard.—S. T. M. R. Murugappa Cheltiar v. Ponnusami, 44 M. 828 : 41 M. L. J. 304 : 13 L. W. 705 : A. I. R. 1921 Mad. 405 ; Mulchand v. R. M. Downie, 10 L. 208 : 110 I. C. 910 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 596.

Application of the rule to Second Appeals and Miscellaneous Appeals.—Under Or. XLII, cross-objections may also be filed in second appeals. They may also be filed in appeals from orders as laid down in Or. XLIII, r. 2.

A memorandum of cross-objections as to costs in the Courts below is not a matter which can be considered on second appeal.—Madho Prasad v. Firm of Ashan Ilahi, 5 L. L. J. 108.

Second appeal.—A second appeal will lie from a decree of the first appellate Court disallowing the cross-objections of a respondent.—Ganapati v. Sitharama, 10 M. 292.

23. Where the Court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point and the decree is reversed in appeal, the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case, and may further direct what issue or issues shall be tried in the case so remanded, and shall send a copy of its judgment and order to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register of civil suits, and proceed to determine the suit; and the evidence (if any) recorded during the original trial shall, subject to all just exceptions, be evidence during the trial after remand.

Remand of case
by Appellate Court

[S. 562.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations and their effects.—This rule corresponds to S 562, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The old section is reproduced below for comparison and for observing the changes introduced :
“ If the Court against whose decree the appeal is made has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point and the decree upon such preliminary point is reversed in appeal, the appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case, together with a copy of the order in appeal to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register, and proceed to “determine” the suit on the merits.”

“ The Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, direct that issue or issues shall be tried in any case so remanded.”

of remand in cases similar to those above referred to, where for the ends of justice, a remand would be necessary. In the absence of any express provision for remand where the case is not disposed of upon a preliminary point, but where there are errors, omissions or irregularities in the trial, by which the party complaining has been materially prejudiced, the appellate Court may for the ends of justice remand the case under this rule, as the absolute prohibition contained in S. 564 has now been removed.

When the Legislature has declined to insert any express provision for remand in the cases above referred to on the ground that the power is liable to be abused, the proper course for the lower appellate Courts would be strictly to follow the principles laid down in 23 M. 445, 30 M. 54 (F. B.), 17 A. 29 and 23 A. 167, and in other cases which may hereafter be decided by the High Courts.

Scope of this rule.—This rule authorises a remand only where the entire suit and not only a portion of it has been disposed of by the Court below on a preliminary point.—Gaindo v. Radhe Mohan, 136 I. C. 559: 33 P. L. R. 54: A. I. R. 1932 Lab. 219.

Preliminary point—Grounds for remand.—The expression "preliminary point" is not confined to such legal points only as may be pleaded in bar of suit but comprehends all such points as may have prevented the Court disposing of the case on the merits, whether such points are pure questions of law or pure questions of fact. There are many instances of such points such as—that a suit is barred by limitation; that the Court has no jurisdiction under some Act, that evidence tendered was not admissible; that on the plaintiff's evidence there is no evidence for the defendant to answer, in a libel suit that there is no proof of publication; Malayath Veetil v. Krishnan Nambudripad, 45 M. 900 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 505: 43 M. L. J. 354: 31 M. L. T. 208: (1922) M. W. N. 588 (F. B.); Muhammad Allahdad v. Muhammad Ismail, 10 A. 289; Ramachandra v. Hazi Kassim, 16 M. 207.

A preliminary point is one which, when determined in favour of the plaintiff, permits the progress of the suit, but when determined against him concludes the suit—Gobind v. Baliram, 128 I. C. 407: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 295; Devorampoodi v. Gopa Raju, 112 I. C. 1: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 991: (1928) M. W. N. 164.

Where the suit was brought by the plaintiff for maintenance and the first issue was "Is the plaintiff entitled to maintenance", which was found against the plaintiff by the trial Court, and the lower Court reversed that decision, finding that the plaintiff was entitled to maintenance and sent the case back to the trial Court to decide the other points in issue: held that the order of remand was on a preliminary point and an appeal lay from such order—Seenayya v. Mangamma, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1159: 99 I. C. 974.

Where the plaintiff sued on a promissory note executed by the defendant in favour of his step-mother alleging that he was her heir, and on the defendant's objecting he sought to amend the plaint by alleging that his step-mother managed his estate and advanced the money to get the promissory note executed in her name for his benefit, and the trial Court rejected the application and dismissed the suit, but the lower appellate Court held that the plaintiff's application ought to have been allowed and remanded the case, it was held that the remand order was, under this rule, on a preliminary point and therefore appealable.—Gobind v. Baliram, 128 I. C. 407: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 296.

Where in a suit for possession an issue was raised whether the plaintiff was entitled to an unconditional decree for possession or whether the defendants were entitled to redeem and the trial Court held that the defendants were not entitled to redeem and gave the plaintiff an unconditional decree for possession, and on appeal the appellate Court held that the defendants were entitled to redeem and remanded the case for determining the amount payable on redemption and for disposal of the suit according to law, it was held that the decision was on a preliminary point and the order of remand being one under this rule was appealable—Alagammal v. Sadasiva, 129 I. C. 47: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 1017: 60 M. L. J. 72: (1930) M. W. N. 1021: 32 L. W. 843.

"Preliminary point" in this rule means a matter preliminary to the general determination of the suit which the parties bring before the Court for decision. In this case the preliminary point which the District Munsif had to decide was whether there was a valid award which decided the matter in dispute. He found that there was such award, and that he could not, therefore, go into the merits of the dispute. That finding by the District Munsif was a decision on a preliminary point within the meaning of this rule.—Krishnan Chetty v. Muthu Palandi, 22 M. 172.

The only connotation of a preliminary point in this rule is, that it should suffice for the disposal of the suit. Any point the decision of which does not enable the Court to decide the suit is excluded from the category of a preliminary point.—Abdul Gafar v. Muhammad Ziauddin, 2 P. R. 1909 (F. B.): 12 P. W. R. 1908: 96 P. C. R. 1908.

An appellate Court has no power to remand a case except when the lower Court has disposed of it on a preliminary point, and thereby excluded essential evidence.—Mudun Mohun v. Bhoggomanto, 8 C. 923. See also Deokishen v. Bansi, 8 A. 172 (F. B.), Abraham Khan v. Faizunnessa Bibi, 17 C. 168, Lalla Chunilal v. Mohiji Singh, 1 C. W. N. 340, Ram Dao Mondal v. Indromoni Das, 3 C. W. N. 325, Subba Sastri v. Balachandra Sastri, 18 M. 421; Kelu Mulacheri v. Chendu, 19 M. 157, Seshan Pattar v. Seshan Pattar, 23 M. 447 (23 M. 445 distinguished); Hafiz Abdul Rahim v. Raja Hari Raj, 22 A. 405; Rameshwar Singh v. Sheodin, 12 A. 510 (F. B.); Mohesh Chandra v. Jamiruddin, 28 C. 324: 5 C. W. N. 509, Muchar Hossein v. Mussamat Bodha Bibi, 22 I. A. 1: 17 A. 112 (P. C.): 5 M. L. J. 20, Bai Shri Majirajba v. Magan Lal, 19 B. 303; and Mana Vikrama v. Gopalan, 30 M. 203; Brijmohun v. Deobhanjan, 5 P. L. J. 146: 55 I. C. 484; Rahimuddin v. Mannu Lal, A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 639. But where the main point in a suit is decided by the appellate Court it has no power to remand the case under this rule for disposal on the remaining issues as its decision is not on a preliminary point.—Ponangi v. Sri Rajah Lakshmi, 12 L. W. 667: 60 I. C. 609.

Where evidence has been duly placed before the trial Court and that Court has decided the several points involved, the Court of appeal if it cannot agree with the decisions, must come to proper findings of its own; but it is a shirking of duty and entirely wrong to send the case back for a de novo trial by delivering a lecture on the points of law to the trial Court where there is no reason to think that either party had not an opportunity of producing all the evidence that it desired to produce.—Promotha v. Nagendra, 33 C. W. N. 1211. But if a Court of appeal finds difficulty in determining the question involved on the materials on record, it will be open to it to remand the case to the trial Court for a decision with directions as to taking further evidence and issue of commission for a correct appreciation of the points in controversy; Kartie v. Banomali, 124 I. C. 385; A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 7: 11 P. L. T. 639. See also Krishna Sahoo v. Maung Po Than, 127 I. C. 598; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 188. The mere fact that the appellate Court remanded the case for taking additional evidence will not however deprive that Court of its jurisdiction to dismiss the appeal at a later stage if it was found to be incompetent—Manmohan v. Shib Chandra, 34 C. W. N. 839.

Even if an appellate Court be deemed competent to remit a case for re-hearing on an issue not raised in the pleadings nor even suggested in the trial Court, this ought only to be done in exceptional cases, for good cause shown and on payment of all costs thrown away.—Gopal Krishna v. Abdul Samad, 34 C. L. J. 319 (43 C. 1104 (P. C.) referred to).

The award of arbitrators in a suit was set aside by the Court on the ground that it seemed so unreasonable and in appeal it was reversed and a remand ordered under Or. XLI, r. 23. Held, it was not a decision on a preliminary point and they should have acted under Or. XLI, r. 25.—Chandan v. Mt. Bibi, 75 I. C. 198.

On an appeal from the decision of a Munsif in favour of the plaintiff in a suit for rent, the appellate Court set aside the decree of the lower Court, ordered a new trial, and directed the amendment of the plaint by inserting the exact boundaries of the land on which the plaintiffs claimed the rent. Held that, the order for amendment of the plaint was bad under this rule, since the original Court had not "disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point."—Krishnaya Navada v. Panchu, 17 M. 187.

In a suit for partition where the Munsif passed a preliminary decree in favour of the plaintiff for a 5/12th share in the property in suit, and on appeal the appellate Court set aside the decree of the Munsif and finally made an order of remand for re-trial by the Munsif, it was held that in as much as the decree of the Munsif was not founded upon a preliminary point the proper order would have been a remand under r. 25 instead of r. 23.—Din Dayal v. Ram Dewak, A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 591: 101 I. C. 89.

Where the trial Court decided all the issues raised in a case except one which related to the amount of compensation to which the plaintiff was entitled and the appellate Court decided the issues which were decided against the plaintiff in his favour, and remanded the case for determining the amount of compensation to which the plaintiff was entitled allowing the parties to adduce fresh evidence, the proper order of the appellate Court should have been an order under r. 25 keeping the appeal on its own file and not an order under r. 23.—Bepin Behary v. Midnapur Zemindary Co., 110 I. C. 444.

Where the trial Court framed seven issues but decided only the first two which went to the very root of the case and dismissed the suit and the appellate Court remanded the case without deciding any of the issues and it could not be said that it was essential to the right decision of the suit upon the merits that the other issues should be decided, it was held that the order of remand was wrong as neither r. 23 nor r. 25 applied.—Umar Din v. Umar Hayat, A. I. R. 1927 Lab. 886: 103 I. C. 119.

Where the Court has disposed of the whole suit as it stood before it, to say that it has disposed of the suit on a preliminary point merely because it has not dealt with the further issues which might have arisen if the suit had been framed otherwise originally or if an amendment of the pleadings had been allowed later in the history of the suit, appears to be almost an abuse of language.—Vaithilingam v. Kandaswami, 132 I. C. 311: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 1: 60 M. L. J. 713: 33 L. W. 210.

Where the first Court has framed an issue and tried it, the Court of appeal must then decide it for itself, either on such evidence as is on the record or on additional evidence, if such be considered necessary; but it cannot set aside the first Court's judgment and send the matter back for re-trial.—Mujibar Rahman v. Isul Surati, 56 O. 15: 32 C. W. N. 867: 49 C. L. J. 1: 114 I. C. 409: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 546. See also Firm of Rochiram v. Firm of Kalachand, 116 I. C. 586: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 159.

Where a Court of first instance decided a suit, not upon a preliminary point so as to exclude evidence of facts, but upon the merits, and upon all the evidence tendered and issues framed, the appellate Court cannot remand the case under this rule.—Ramesh Singh v. Sheodin Singh, 12 A. 510 (F. B.) (2 B. L. R. S. N. 13, 12 C. 45, 7 A. 345, 8 A. 519, 9 A. 447, 10 A. 97, 11 A. 35, 333 and 488, relied on); Hafiz Abdul Rahim v. Raja Hari Raj, 22 A. 405; Muzhar Hossein v. Bodha Bibi, 22 I. A. 1: 17 A. 112 (P. C.); Mallikarjuna v. Pathaneni, 19 M. 479; Peri Chirila Suryanarayana v. Ganapathy, 30 M. L. T. 314; Nurul Guni v. Kazamaini, 66 I. C. 922; Radha v. Kamal, 35 C. L. J. 345: 70 I. C. 547: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 456; Injad Ali v. Mohini, 27 C. W. N. 1025: 80 I. C. 623: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 148; Lakhan Singh v. Babu Ram, 23 A. L. J. 880: 88 I. C. 1021: A. I. R. 1926 All. 65; Ganpat v. Raj Kumar, 1 P. 639: 67 I. C. 494: A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 575; Maya Ram v. Tulsi Ram, 91 I. C. 351: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 184; Banka Behari v. Birendra, 55 C. 219: 47 C. L. J. 69; Sahibji v. Mohammad Sarwar Khan, 106 I. C. 842: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 116: 9 L. L. J. 543; Kalu v. Narayan, 29 Bom. L. R. 56: 100 I. C. 578: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 111; Chaudhary Chandrika v. Mithu Rai, 6 P. 380: 103 I. C. 722: A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 296.

In a suit by a tenant for ejectment and damages against a trespasser, the first Court dismissed the suit on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to establish his tenancy right, without deciding the issue as to damages. The lower appellate Court found in his favour as regards his title, and remanded the case under this rule. Held, that the order of remand was wrong, as there was no occasion for remanding the whole case, in as much as it had not been decided upon a preliminary point. It ought to have referred an issue as to damages under S. 566, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 25).—Hukam Singh v. Raghubir, 27 A. 700: (1905) A. W. N. 157.

Where a suit against a Railway Company for compensation for non-delivery of a consignment was dismissed on a preliminary point that there was no "wilful neglect" on the part of the Railway Company and the issue as to the question of damages was left undecided, and on appeal the lower appellate Court held that the "wilful neglect" was proved and remanded the case, it was held that the remand was under this rule and not under

S. 151.—E. I. Railway Company v. Piyare Lal, 10 L. 360: 112 I. C. 736: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 774: 30 P. L. R. 541.

Where a remand order is accompanied by an order for refund of court-fee, the remand should be considered to be under Or. XLI, r. 23.—Sahibji v. Mohammad Sarwar Khan, 106 I. C. 842: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 116: 9 L. L. J. 543. Where a remand is ostensibly under Or. XLI, r. 23, the mere omission of the Judge to mention while ordering refund of court-fee does not make it a remand under any other provision of the Code.—Gokal v. Lila Ram, 118 I. C. 393: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 175.

Where a subordinate Court has not decided a case on a preliminary point, but has dealt with questions arising on the merits of the case, no order of remand can be made by the appellate Court under this rule; but if the appellate Court is of opinion that there should be a finding upon any particular issue, or further evidence should be taken on any such issue, it may make an order of remand under Or. XLI, r. 25.—Rakhit Mahanta v. Puddo Bauri, 9 C. W. N. 54. See also Ambica Churn v. Kala Chandra, 10 C. W. N. 422.

Where a District Munsif without entering into the merits of the case, dismissed a suit on the ground that the plaintiffs had no cause of action and on appeal the appellate Court reversed his decree and remanded the case, held, that the suit had been disposed of upon a preliminary point within the meaning of this rule and that the remand was right.—Kanalammal v. Rangachariar, 20 M. 25.

Where several issues are raised in a suit one of which is that of undue influence, and the Court dismisses the suit on a finding that there was undue influence without a finding on the other issues, the decision amounts to a disposal of the suit upon a preliminary point within the meaning of this rule.—Mahant Rachu v. Mahant Raghunath, 2 P. L. J. 398.

Where the trial Court disposed of a suit on three preliminary points, the decision on a ended in the dismissal of t g that all the three points d the suit without reversing the findings but reversing only the decree, it was held that the order of the lower appellate Court was under Or. XLI, r. 23 but in as much as there was no further evidence required in the case, the decree of the trial Court must not have been reversed, but if necessary, fresh evidence might have been admitted under r. 27.—Srinivasa v. Srinivasa, 110 I. C. 692: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1200

The defendant in a suit on the day fixed for hearing applied for an application was refused and the case reversed the decree and remanded On appeal to the High Court—having been tried on the he case under this rule, 569, C. P. Code, 1882 17 B. 733.

The C. P. Code does not make any provision for an order of remand where all the issues have been settled and tried.—Injad Ali v. Mohini, 27

C. W. N. 1025; 80 I. C. 623; A. I. R. 1924 Cal 148; Sheoji v. Bamanachari, 119 I. C. 2; Sultani v. Munna Lal, 123 I. C. 542; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 181. A remand order in such a case should be taken to be under r. 25 of Or. XLI or S. 151 and not under this rule.—Ram Payara v. Sant Ram, 33 P. L. R. 487.

Where the first Court had framed all the necessary issues and decided all those issues, and the lower appellate Court reversing the decision on one of the issues remanded the case for trial: held, that order of remand was not only irregular but illegal.—Manager of the Court of Wards v. Ramasami Reddi, 28 M. 437; 15 M. L. J. 236 (19 M. 479, referred to). See also Sadak Ali v. Safar Ali, 56 I. C. 984; Malayandi v. Bomman, 17 L. W. 159; 71 I. C. 204; A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 331; and Munisami Naiker v. Munisami Naiker, (1923) M. W. N. 11.

Where a District Court reversed the District Munsif's decree, and remanded the case for revised finding on the merits: held, that this procedure was ultra vires and illegal.—Mallikarjuna v. Pathaneni, 19 M. 479.

Where the question whether the plaintiff's alleged right was extinguished by an user for more than 12 years before suit was tried and decided by the trial Court, but the Subordinate Judge was of opinion that the mode in which the question was decided by the trial Court was erroneous and he accordingly remanded the case for a re-trial of the question having regard to the observations made by him in his judgment: held that the order of remand was wrong, the Subordinate Judge should have decided the question himself and if he thought further evidence was necessary he might have acted under the provisions of rr. 27 and 28.—Sashi Mukhi v. Abinash, A. I. R. 1922 Cal 279.

An order remanding a case is not legal where all the questions raised between the parties and on which they went to trial were decided and the questions so raised were purely questions of law.—Arumugam Chetti v. Raja Jagaveera Rama, 28 M. 444

If from the plaintiff's own case or from his pleadings or from the admitted and proved facts it could be seen that the plaintiff's suit was time-barred, it would be the duty of the Court of second appeal to entertain even for the first time the question of limitation; but it would be in ordinary circumstances entirely wrong upon a suggestion that further investigation would disclose facts which would show that the plaintiff is time-barred, to grant a remand upon this ground in second appeal.—Baikuntha v. Sheikh Azdulla, 33 C. W. N. 778; A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 870.

An appellate Court cannot remand a case for making a person defendant in the suit, and to try the question of title between him and the plaintiff. The right of framing new issues arises where the issues framed are insufficient to dispose of the matters raised in the plaint.—Bhoobun Dass v. Bilash Mony, 1 C. L. R. 415 (9 B. L. R. 107; 12 W. R. 404 distinguished).

Where a lower Court rejected an application of an intervenor, the appellate Court cannot remand the case with directions to make the intervenor a party.—Khondkar Kefaeoolah v. Mahomed Kabel, 9 W. R. 345. See also Bulaki Singh v. Jaikishen, 7 N. W. P. 203.

An appellate Court cannot remand a case under this rule for addition of necessary parties. In such case the proper course for the appellate Court is to join the parties, and, if necessary, to refer issues to the Court of the first instance for trial under S. 566, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 25).—Ganesh Bhikaji v. Bhikaji Krishna, 10 B. 398. But see Mihin Lal v. Imtiaz Ali, 18 A. 332.

It is competent for an appellate Court to remand a case when the Court of first instance records evidence on all the issues, and at the final hearing decides the suit erroneously on some particular point without expressing any opinion on the other issues.—Ramachandra Joishi v. Hazi Kassim, 16 M. 207 (followed in Mata Din v. Jamna Das, 27 A. 691: 2 A. L. J. 635; Meghan Dube v. Pran Singh, 30 A. 63: 5 A. L. J. 14; Salim Sheikh v. Nazir Khan, 8 C. L. J. 159: 12 C. W. N. 167-n.). See also Kamta v. Parbhu, 39 A. 165, Perumbra Nayar v. Subrahmanian, 23 M. 445; Habib Bakhsh v. Baldeo Prasad, 23 A. 167; Radha Kishen v. The Collector of Jaunpur, 28 I. A. 28: 23 A. 220 (P. C.): 5 C. W. N. 153: 11 M. L. J. 65: 3 Bom. L. R. 78 (affirming 20 A. 195).

Where the first Court heard the entire suit, and found all issues in favour of the plaintiff except one, namely, whether the suit was maintainable having regard to the provisions of Or. XXI, r. 22, and dismissed the suit on the finding that the suit was not maintainable. Held, that the suit was disposed of on a preliminary point within the meaning of this rule.—Bhadai v. Shaikh Manowar, 4 P. L. J. 645.

Where the first Court dismissed a suit on the issue of title without deciding the issue of limitation and the lower appellate Court decreed the suit reversing the finding on the issue of title, without recording any finding on the issue of limitation. Held, that the case must be remanded to the lower appellate Court for findings on the remaining issues.—Kailash Chandra v. Kunja Behari, 4 C. L. J. 86.

Where no preliminary point has been wrongly decided by the Court of first instance, and no evidence has been excluded, and the appellate Court considers the issues nevertheless, to have been defective or insufficient, it is the duty of the latter not to remand the case, but to resettle the issues and to determine the case itself.—Futtehollah v. Oomdanissa, 14 W. R. 69. But see Guru Prashad v. Ras Mohun, 1 C. L. R. 431. See also Habibullah v. Lalta Prasad, 34 A. 612.

An application under S. 103, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r. 13), was rejected on the ground that there was neither fraud nor suppression of summons. The District Judge remanded the case for trial on the merits. Held, that the case having been tried on the merits, the District Judge had no jurisdiction to remand the case.—Sonaulla v. Beakul, 7 C. L. J. 379.

Where the finding of the lower appellate Court on the existence of a custom or usage was mainly based upon irrelevant matters, the High Court in special appeal remanded the case for re-trial, holding that the appeal was not properly tried.—Palakdhari Rai v. Manners, 23 C. 179. See also Womes Chunder v. Ohundee Ohurn, 7 C. 293.

The lower appellate Court not having decided material issues and having based its decree on a document not recorded in the case, the decree was reversed and the case remanded for a fresh decision on the merits.—Nichhabhai Pragji v. Isse Khan, 2 B. H. C. R. 297; Dalpatsingh v. Nanabhai, 2 B. H. C. R. 306; Bai Vijkor v. Fakirbhai, 2 B. H. C. R. 317; Chandrabhagabai v. Kasinath, 2 B. H. C. R. 323; Balaji Vishvanath v. Dharma, 2 B. H. C. R. 363; Luchmee Ram v. Mahani Ram, 1 Agra 10; Gooljehar v. Bunno, 1 Agra 252; Sajan v. Roopram, 2 Agra 61; Shiam Lall v. Narain Dass, 2 Agra 106; Shadee Ram v. Surma, 2 Agra 110; Lutchman v. Jogal Kishore, 3 Agra 99; Muhammad Valad v. Ibrahim Valad, 3 B. H. C. R. 160; Pravati v. Bhiku, 4 B. H. C. R. A. C. 25; Ajuram Maniram v. Kusaji, 4 Bom. H. C. R. 43; Goluck Chunder v. Anunt Kishore, 25 W. R. 38.

The lower appellate Court has no power to remand a case, which has come before it on appeal, to the Court of first instance for a second trial, except where the first Court has decided the case upon a preliminary issue in such a way as to cause an absence of material evidence bearing upon issues on the merits between the parties.—Lala Shooobh Narain v. Nursingh Narain, 20 W. R. 148.

An appellate Court is not justified in remanding a case, merely because the lower Court has disposed of it on a preliminary point, unless such point has been so disposed of as to exclude evidence of fact which appears to the appellate Court essential to the rights of the parties.—Joog Maya v. Ram Chunder, 10 W. R. 378. See also Muniappah v. Iyasamy, 5 M. H. C. R. 313.

Under an application under S. 476 of the C. P. Code asking the Munsif to find that the application was not within his jurisdiction under Or. XLI of the C. P. Code to remand the case, because such applications originating in Civil Courts must be dealt with according to the provisions of the C. P. Code.—Surendra v. Sushil, 59 C. 68; 35 C. W. N. 775; 134 I. C. 1063; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 604.

The Judge, after disposing of the case on the only point on which the Munsif had decided it, viz., whether there was a cause of action, and having satisfied himself that there was not sufficient evidence on the record to enable him to pass a proper decision on the merits was held clearly right in remanding the case to the Munsif.—Brommo Moyee v. Koomodinee Kant, 17 W. R. 466.

When the decision of a lower Court is not on a preliminary point, the lower appellate Court cannot remand a suit to that Court, with directions to take further evidence and to re-try the case, but the appeal must be kept pending on the file, and the record must be sent to the lower Court, with orders to take the necessary evidence.—Kallee Sunkur v. Kishto Doolal, W. R. (1864) 296.

Where a suit instituted in the Revenue Court is dismissed by the Court of first instance, on the ground that it should have been instituted in the Civil Court, and the appellate Court affirms the decisions of the first Court, the appellate Court should, under S. 208 of the N. W. P. Rent Act, 1881, remand the case to the Civil Court competent to entertain it for disposal on the merits.—Ahmaduddin v. Majlis Rai, 5 A. 438 (F. B.). But see Girwar Singh v. Sita Ram, 11 A. 31.

Held, that an appellate Court is not empowered by the Civil Procedure Code to order or allow a plaint to be amended, or to remand a case under this rule for the purpose of such amendment.—Farzand Ali v. Yusuf Ali, 2 A. 669. But see Lingammal v. Chinna, 6 M. 239, where it has been held that when a plea of misjoinder has been allowed and the suit decided and an appeal brought, the appellate Court should dispose of the suit in the mode in which the lower Court ought to have disposed of it, by returning the plaint for amendment.

Where the evidence is accepted by an appellate Court as sufficient to warrant a decree, and the case is only remanded for a defect of parties, it is justified, when the case is returned by the first Court, in respecting the former judgment and looking upon the evidence as prima facie good and sufficient.—Wise v. Ishan Chunder, 14 W. R. 380.

This rule authorizes a remand only where the entire suit, and not merely a portion of it, has been disposed of by the Court below upon a preliminary point.—Banwari Lal v. Samman Lal, 11 A. 488 (followed in Makesh Prasad v. Ranjor Singh, 27 A. 163 (165)). See also Vemi v. Nallappa, 11 L. W. 611; Jawahir v. Fateh Mahton, 97 I. C. 1: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 514.

A case ought not, as a rule, to be remanded upon a point which has been framed as an issue by the Court below, and brought to the attention of the parties, and where they have failed at the trial to give any evidence upon it.—Ram Prasad v. Abdul Karim, 9 A. 513.

A Sub-Judge decided a case on the grounds of res judicata and limitation. On appeal the Judge upheld the decision on the point of res judicata without deciding the point of limitation. On second appeal, the High Court reversed the Judge's decision on the point of res judicata, and remanded the case for trial on the merits. On receipt of the order of the High Court the Judge reversed the decision of the Sub-Judge without giving any decision on the point of limitation, and remanded the case. On appeal to the High Court, held that the Judge's order of remand was unauthorized under this rule.—Raisingji v. Balvantrao, 11 B. 663.

Where the lower Court had decided a case on the merits, and the appellate Court did not find that there had been any omission to try any issue or determine any question essential to the decision of the case on the merits, or that further evidence was necessary to enable it to determine any such issue or question: Held, the appellate Court was in error in remanding the case for a fresh trial.—Makesh Chandra v. Madhab Chandra, 2 B. L. R. S. N. xiii: 10 W. R. 388.

Inherent power of remand—Remand on the grounds of error, defect or irregularity.—Under Or. XLI, r. 23 no order of remand can be made except when the suit has been disposed of on a preliminary point. But it sometimes happens that a remand is necessary in cases where the lower Court has committed any error, omission or irregularity, by reason of which there has not been a proper trial or an effectual or complete adjudication of the suit and the party complaining of such error, omission or irregularity has been materially prejudiced thereby. Section 564 of the old Code, which prohibited the appellate Court from remanding a case except as provided by S. 563 (Or. XLI, r. 23), having now been omitted as unduly restrictive in its provisions, the appellate Court is free under S. 151 to make an order of remand though the case may not fall either under this rule or r. 25.—Narottam v. Mohanlal, 37 B. 289, 293, Jambulayya v. Rajamma, 36 M. 492; Zohra Bibi v. Zobeda, 12 C. L. J. 369; Ghuznavi v. The Allahabad Bank, 44 C. 929 (F. B.); 21 C. W. N. 877; 26 C. L. J. 49; 41 I. R. 1923 Mad. 112; Umri v. Shah Mohammad, 5 L. L. J. 269; 74 I. C. 497; A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 36; Bhup Singh v. Prem Singh, 5 L. L. J. 384; 76 I. C. 496; A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 362; Sashi Mukhi v. Abinash, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 279; Atul Chandra v. Sheikh Kobadali, 64 I. C. 436; Bisai Nath v. Tara Nath, 72 I. C. 598; A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 385; Misri Sahu v. Bishu, 29 C. L. J. 419; 52 I. C. 985; Gnanendra v. Prafullananda, 32 C. W. N. 101; 105 I. C. 542; A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 812; Sobharam v. Ram Prasad, 117 I. C. 290; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 63; Parma Nand v. Bashir Ahmed, 122 I. C. 473; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 224; 11 L. L. J. 507; 31 P. L. R. 50. But the power of remanding a case when Or. XLI, r. 23 does not apply, should be most sparingly used by the Court of first appeal.—Ghuznavi v. The Allahabad Bank, 44 C. 929 (F. B.); 21 C. W. N. 877; 26 C. L. J. 49; 41 I. C. 598; Mani v. Ramtaran, 43 C. 148, Banka Behari v. Birendra, 55 C. 219; 47 C. L. J. 69; Sobharam v. Ram Prasad, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 63; 117 I. C. 290. And this inherent power should not be exercised where the ends of justice would be sufficiently served by taking additional evidence under Or. XLI, r. 27.—Bansi Lal v. Jhamman Shah, 122 I. C. 495; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 441. See Mallappa v. Alagiri, 133 I. C. 205; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 791; 60 M. L. J. 475. (1931) M. W. N. 710. The Allahabad High Court treats the question as unsettled but puts a wide construction on r. 23.—Gokul Prasad v. Ram Kumar, 44 A. 176; 64 I. C. 878; A. I. R. 1922 All. 251.

Ex parte decision in Court of first instance after hearing plaintiff's

Court has inherent power, in such a case, not only to reverse the decree passed on evidence given by the plaintiff only, the defendant being ex parte, but also to direct a re-trial of the case.—Perumbra Nayar v. Subrahmanian, 23 M. 445.

When a suit is decided ex parte, an appellate Court to which an appeal is preferred under S. 540, C. P. Code, 1892 (S. 96), has jurisdiction to reverse the decree of the lower Court on the ground that such Court was wrong in proceeding to decide the suit ex parte and remand the suit for re-hearing.—Sadhu Krishna v. Kuppan, 30 M. 54 (F. B.); 16 M. L. J. 479 (23 M. 445 followed; 23 C. 738, 17 B. 733, and 23 M. 260 dissented from); K. V. Sundara Rama v. Sathianathan, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1190.

It is competent to the appellate Court on an appeal to reverse a decree and remand the suit to the trial Court quite apart from the provisions of Or. XLI, r. 23, if there has been a defective trial, e. g., a refusal to grant an adjournment.—Jethalal v. Varjlal, 63 I. C. 478 : 23 Bom. L. R. 769 (30 M. 54 followed); a refusal to admit a document.—Deroram Pondi v. Goparaju, 112 I. C. 1 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 991.

It is competent to an appellate Court to remand a case under this rule where the Court of first instance having framed issues and recorded all the evidence, has decided the suit with reference to its finding upon one or more of the issues framed by it, leaving other issues undecided.—Mata Din v. Jamna Das, 27 A. 691 : 2 A. L. J. 685 (16 M. 207 followed; followed in Meghan v. Pran, 30 A. 63 : 5 A. L. J. 14). See also Salim v. Nazir, 8 C. L. J. 159.

Where the trial Court has disposed of all the issues before it, the appellate Court may frame additional issues and remand the case.—Suppiah v. Muthia, 112 I. C. 710 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 984 (following 48 M. 713 and (1926) M. W. N. 48; and dissenting from A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 227 and A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 331).

Section 564, C. P. Code, 1882, must be read subject to the other provisions of the Code, for example, those contained in Ss. 27, 32 and 53 of the C. P. Code, 1882. An appellate Court has power to make an order under any of those sections and in order to give effect to the provisions of the section which is applicable, it is necessary that it should in certain cases send back the case to the Court of the first instance. Under such circumstances S. 564, C. P. Code, 1882, will not preclude an appellate Court from remitting a case to the Court of first instance.—Habib Bakhsh v. Baldeo Prasad, 23 A. 167 (12 A. 510; 17 A. 29; 18 A. 131, 332 and 396; 10 B. 398; and 19 M. 157 referred to).

The plaintiffs in a suit produced both oral and documentary evidence in support of their claim, but the Court being satisfied with the documentary evidence and without recording the evidence of the witnesses tendered by them passed a decree in their favour. On appeal by the defendants, the appellate Court, without taking any fresh evidence, reversed the decree. On appeal by the plaintiffs to the High Court, it was held that though there was no section of the Code of Civil Procedure strictly applicable to the circumstances of the case, the Court was, notwithstanding S. 564, C. P. Code, 1882, warranted ex debito justitiæ in setting aside all proceedings of both Courts below, and in directing the Court of first instance to re-try the case admitting all admissible evidence which had been previously tendered to the first Court.—Durga Dihal v. Anoraji, 17 A. 29.

Held, that S. 562 of the C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), applied not only to cases where the first Court had expressly excluded evidence, but also to cases where the parties were or might have been misled by the act of the Court as to the issues or the evidence necessary, and where, in consequence of the Court erroneously considering one issue only, the parties did not tender or bring forward their evidence; and that, as in the present case evidence had been excluded in this broad sense, S. 562 (the operation of which in such cases should be rather expanded than limited) was applicable, and the case should be remanded for trial of the remaining issues.—Muhammad Allahdad v. Muhammad Ismail, 10 A. 289.

When, in second appeal, it appears that the lower appellate Court does not substantially comply with the provisions of S. 574, C. P. Code, 1882 :

(r. 31 of Or. XLI), the decree and remanding the case disposed of according to law.—Santishwar v. Lakhikanta, 13 C. W. N. 177. (F. B.): 18 M. L. J. 34 (22 M. 12 not followed and 20 M. 496, 25 C. 97, 17 B. 423, 19 B. 551, referred to). See also Santishwar v. Lakhikanta, 13 C. W. N. 177.

An appellate Court can remand a case a second time on account of error, defect, or irregularity of procedure in passing a decree or order, provided the error, defect or irregularity be such as to affect the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court. When a suit has been regularly heard and determined, and on appeal the decree is reversed, the appellate Court has the discretionary power to remand the case only if the decree should have been upon a preliminary point, and have the effect of excluding the consideration of evidence essential to the rights of the parties.—Muniappah Naidu v. Iyasamy, 5 M. H. C. R. 313.

When an appellate Court is of opinion that a person, not a party to the suit, should be a party to the record, its proper course is to remand the case to the first Court with directions to bring on the particular person as a defendant or as a plaintiff, if he consents, and give him opportunity to file his written statement and to produce his evidence.—Mihin Lal v. Imtiaz Ali, 18 A. 332. But see Ganesh Bhikaji v. Bhikaji Krishna, 10 B. 398.

Where a case had been decided under the provisions of Ss. 10 and 11 of the Oaths Act (X of 1873) with reference to the depositions of a person appointed by agreement of parties as referee, and where, on appeal, it was found that the said depositions did not fully cover the questions in issue between the parties. Held, that the case should be remanded to the lower Court for disposal according to the usual procedure.—Mahabir Prasad v. Mahadeo Dat, 13 A. 386.

Improper or erroneous order of remand.—A decree in a suit having been passed on the merits by the Court of first instance, the Court of Appeal, being of opinion that an issue not tried by the former Court ought to have been tried, reversed the decree, and under this rule remanded the case for trial upon the issue. Held, that the order reversing the decree and remanding the case for trial of the issue was improper, and that the proper course for the appellate Court should have been to follow the procedure as laid down by Ss. 566 and 567 of the Code, 1832 (Or. XLI, rr. 25 and 26). If a remand was ordered in a case in which it ought not to have so ordered, both the order of remand and all the proceedings subsequent thereto are void and illegal.—Rameshwar v. Sheodan, 12 A. 510 (F. B.); Mokund Lal v. Hurbullubh, 12 C. L. R. 136.

Where a lower appellate Court instead of remanding a suit under S. 566, C. P. Code, 1832 (Or. XLI, r. 25), as it ought to have done, remanded it under this rule after setting aside the decree of the first Court, and where no appeal was preferred against this erroneous remand order, held, that having regard to the provisions of S. 99, the remand order and the subsequent proceedings were not null and void, as by the remand there was no error affecting the jurisdiction of the Court or the merits of the case.—Mohesh Chandra v. ..., 11 C. W. N. 509 (12 A. 510 dissented from).

380 and in Durga Kinkar v. Konchai Ronsa, 5 C. L. J. 71. See also Debendra Nath v. Prasanna Kumar, 5 C. L. J. 328. But see Palani v. Rangiadoss, 32 M. 83, where it has been held that an erroneous order of remand is not merely irregular but illegal and cannot be validated by S. 578, C. P. Code, 1892: (S. 99). See also Baikuntha Nath v. Nawab Salimulla, 12 C. W. N. 590: 6 C. L. J. 547, where it has been further held that proceedings subsequent to an illegal order of remand might be valid under certain circumstances.

Whether upon a remand order being wrongly made, the decree and all the proceedings taken under that order, are null and void, depends upon the circumstances in each case and on the nature of the invalidity of the remand order. If the remand order is finally set aside and is such an order as ought not to have been passed at all in any case, it may be that the proceedings in the Court below fall with it. It would be turning the law into absurdity and would amount to a denial of justice if a proper trial, which has taken place under a remand order made by the appellate Court and in obedience to such remand order, be now held to be invalid, whereas as the result of the High Courts' own decision that remand order turned out to have been perfectly justified.—Rajkahi v. Gopi Nath, 44 A. 211: 20 A. L. J. 44.

Where the order of remand was found to be invalid as made without jurisdiction, held, that all proceedings taken by the Court of first instance, after the remand and pending the hearing of the appeal against the remand order, were null and void, inasmuch as the jurisdiction of that Court to hear the case upon remand depended upon the validity of the remand order. An appeal, therefore, lay from the order of remand notwithstanding that the Court of first instance had subsequently made what purported to be a final decree in the case.—Jatinga Valley Tea Co. v. Chera Tea Co., 12 C. 45. But see Madhu Sudan v. Kamini Kanta, 9 C. W. N. 895: 2 C. L. J. 35-n.: 32 C. 1023, dissented from in Woman Kunwari v. Jarbandhan, 30 A. 479 (F. B.) (29 A. 659 overruled).

Where an order of remand is illegal no consent of parties can make it valid.—The Manager of the Court of Wards v. Ramasami Reddi, 28 M. 437: 15 M. L. J. 236 (19 M. 479). See also Baikuntha Nath v. Nawab Salimulla, 12 C. W. N. 590: 6 C. L. J. 547. M. 83: 4 M. L. J. 479, it has been held that an order of remand cannot be validated by consent or waiver, neither the omission of the plaintiff to appeal nor his acquiescing in the trial on remand amounts to such consent or waiver.

Power of High Court to remand.—Where an issue has been raised and determined by the first Court and the appellate Court on the evidence adduced, it is not within the competence of the High Court in second appeal to remand the case for re-hearing upon that very issue.—Gunpat Rao v. Raj Kumar, 67 I. C. 494.

Where the plaintiff has not come into Court with a definite statement of facts necessary for him to succeed and with all his evidence, he cannot in second appeal ask for a remand so as to give him an opportunity to supplement his case in the Court below.—Jatindra Mohan v. Bijoy Chand Mahatab, 71 I. C. 294.

Where the lower appellate Court did not treat certain documents exactly in accordance with the principles of law, and also wrongly cast the onus of proof but it appeared that the conclusion arrived at could be supported on evidence, the High Court in second appeal did not think it desirable or necessary to remand the case for adjudication on the question of fact but decided it itself.—Rajani v. Bashiram, 49 C. L. J. 532 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 636 : 121 I. C. 409.

If from the plaintiff's own case or from his pleadings or from the admitted or proved facts it could be seen that the plaintiff's suit was time-barred, it would be the duty of the Court at second appeal to entertain even for the first time the question of limitation; but it would be in ordinary circumstances entirely wrong upon a suggestion that further investigation would disclose facts which would show that the plaintiff is time-barred, to grant a remand upon this ground in second appeal.—Baikuntha v. Sheikh Azidulla, 32 C. W. N. 778 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 870.

Power of the High Court to go into the merits on appeal from a remand order.—The Court of first instance dismissed a suit as barred by limitation. In appeal that decision was reversed, and the case was remanded under this rule. Against the order of remand the defendant appealed to the High Court under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (u). It was contended by the plaintiff that the High Court had no power to decide the point of limitation but could only consider whether the order of remand satisfied the requirements of this rule. Held by the Full Bench, that in an appeal against such an order of remand, the power of the High Court is not confined to the question whether that order satisfies the requirements of this rule, but may also determine the correctness of the lower appellate Court's decision on the preliminary point on which the Court of first instance disposed of the case.—Badam v. Imrat, 3 A. 675 (F. B.), Bhanu Bala v. Bapaji Bapuji, 14 B. 14 (F. B.) (12 B. 589 referred to; 3 A. 675 followed). See also Chinnasami v. Karuppa, 21 M. 234; Abraham Khan v. Fairunnessa Bibi, 17 C. 168; Loki Mahto v. Aghoree Ajai Lal, 5 C. 144 : 4 C. L. R. 465; Hasan Ali v. Siraj Husain, 16 A. 252; Sankaran v. Raman Kutti, 20 M. 152. But see Sohan Lal v. Azizunnissa, 7 A. 136; Noimollah Pramanik v. Grish Narain, 8 C. 674.

Decision on question of law already decided by order of remand whether can be re-opened.—Where an appellate Court remands to the Court below, it is not open to the appellate Court to re-open a question of law already decided by the order of remand when the case again comes on appeal from the final decree after the remand.—Vastad Mushkir Saib v. Karnam Chowdappa, 40 M. L. J. 528; 14 L. W. 236. See also Gopalrao v. Nemichand, 61 I. C. 575; Janki Shah v. Mohammad Abbas, 70 I. C. 983.

Where the High Court in second appeal differs from the lower Court on an issue of law and remands the case to the Court below, the order of the High Court is binding upon that Court and cannot be questioned in an appeal from the final decree passed after remand.—Rai Brij Raj Krishna v. Chathu Singh, 4 P. L. T. 35.

Powers and duties of succeeding Judge with regard to remand case.—Disposal of suit by lower Court on preliminary point.—Reversal by appellate Court of such decree on such point and irregular remand of case under this rule for trial of certain issue. Held, that the succeeding Judge or the appellate Court cannot re-try and decide such preliminary point.—Suraj Din v. Chatter, 3 A. 755.

Where a case is remanded to a particular Judge merely to record the reasons for his finding, his successor, if the deciding Judge has left the Court, has no jurisdiction when he rehears the whole appeal de novo.—W. R. 124; Lalla Bhojro Lal v. Lalla

When a case is remanded by the High Court for re-trial by the Sub-Court, the Sub-Judge can form his own conclusions irrespective of any finding arrived at by his predecessor at the original trial, in respect of matters which were not touched by the High Court.—Laks
7 Luck. 454; 137 I. C. 102; 9 O. W. N. 60:

Where a case is remanded to the lower Court to record the reasons for its judgment, if the Judge who passed the decree is absent, the superior Court should be informed of it by his successor. Under such circumstances his successor has no jurisdiction. Application should be made to the Bench which granted the order of remand for an order for the present Judge to re-try the case de novo.—Manik Selt v. Khetter Mohan, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 101.

If the Judge of the Court to which the case is remanded for not complying with the requirements of S. 574, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 31), is the Judge who heard the appeal in the first instance, he is not bound to re-hear the appeal if he considers that the case might be properly disposed of without so doing. In such a case, his writing of judgment satisfying the requirements of that rule will be a sufficient compliance with the order to dispose of the case according to law. But when the Judge of the Court to which the case is remanded is not the Judge who heard the appeal in the first instance, as also in cases where the Judge, though the same, considers such a course necessary for a proper disposal of the case, a rehearing is necessary for a disposal of the case according to law.—Saravana Pillai v. Sessa Reddi, 31 M. 469 (F. B.); 18 M. L. J. 34.

Dismissal of suit by Munsif on preliminary point.—Remand by Sub-Judge on appeal.—Fresh appeal before second Sub-Judge, who disagrees with the finding of the former Subordinate Judge. Where there are two Sub-Judges in the same place, one of such Judges is not competent to overrule the decision of the other. The Court is one, though there are separate presiding officers.—Kharag Prasad v. Durdhari Rai, 24 A. 348 (3 A. 755 and 6 A. 269 referred to).

Where a single Judge of the Court remands a case, he may remand it for fresh decision to the lower Court, or he may remand it for fresh decision to the lower Court, or he may remand it for fresh decision to the lower Court, or he may remand it for fresh decision to the lower Court. High Court to question its own earlier judgment remanding the case to the lower Court.—Munshi Lal v. Ramasis, 3 P. L. T. 343; 65 I. C. 175.

An order of remand by a Subordinate Judge is final so far as the purpose of the remand goes, and cannot be set aside by his successor.—Lulcet Pandey v. Bijnath, 14 W. R. 285.

A Sub-Judge on appeal, having framed an issue, remanded the case under this rule to the first Court for trial thereof, but instead of directing that the finding should be returned to his own Court, he directed the order of remand.—Bishanath v.

Procedure after remand.—When a case is remanded, the date should be fixed for the re-hearing, giving the parties time to appear and take measures to carry on the suit.—Haradkumbh, 14 W. R. 401.

After a case is remanded on appeal, reasonable time should be given the parties to appear and conduct their case; and if they fail to do so before the lower Court, the case should be dismissed for default.—Mohun, 17 W. R. 70.

Where a District Judge, after transferring a case from the High Court, decided it himself, and on appeal the High Court remanded the suit under this rule to the District Court. Held, that after the remand order, the District Judge had no power to transfer the case to the Sub-Judge, but was bound to try it himself. Section 25 of the C. P. Code, 1882, has no application to a case remanded under this rule—Sita Ram v. Nauni Dulaiya, 21 A. 230. But see the amended S. 24 of the present Code.

Effect of order of remand.—An order of remand to a lower appellate Court implies a reversal of the first judgment of that Court.—Kebul Kishen v. Ambala, 7 W. R. 326. But it is not conclusive as to the remarks made by the appellate Court regarding a matter about which there is no evidence and which the lower Court is asked specifically to consider.—Lungo Raoji v. Secretary of State, 111 I. C. 278; A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 201; 30 Bom. L. R. 570.

The effect of an order of remand for a new trial is entirely to nullify the first decision, and, to re-open the whole case.—Tarinee Kant v. Koonji Beharee, 12 W. R. 112. See also Gudadhur v. Shushee Monce, 21 W. R. 7.

A finding arrived at by an appellate Court in an appeal whereby the suit is remanded under this rule becomes conclusive if the remand order is not challenged by an appeal.—Raghunath v. Ganesh, 30 A. L. J. 615 : 138 I. C. 406 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 603.

When a decree is set aside in appeal and the case is remanded under this rule, the appellant is entitled to restitution of the property taken possession of in execution of the decree so set aside, although an appeal has been preferred against the order of remand.—Saroda Prasad v. Saudamini, 3 C. L. J. 181 (14 C. 484, 21 C. 989, followed to).

Where a case is sent back for trial on its merits, the order of remand shuts out objections regarding limitation or res judicata.—Sheo Sahoy v. Ram Pershad, 24 W. R. 333.

Where a case was remanded for reconsideration of the whole evidence with the exception of one specified point, and the Judge after consideration came to the conclusion that his finding on that point had been erroneous, it was held that he could not, without a miscarriage of justice, allow that finding to remain unchanged.—Huree Nath v. Issur Chunder, 24 W. R. 316.

When a case is remanded to the lower appellate Court for decision of a question, e.g., one of title, that Court has no authority to go beyond the order of remand, and re-open a matter already adjudicated upon between the parties.—Saheb Tewaree v. Kishoree Sahoy, 24 W. R. 330.

Under an order of remand in a boundary suit in which the Privy Council had made an order in a former appeal, held that the High Court had no power to go behind the order of the Privy Council, and that so much of the High Court's decision as re-opened on fresh evidence what had previously been decided, must be set aside, but that the evidence that had thus been brought to bear on the case was entitled to consideration only so far as it bore on those portions of the suit in respect of which the former decision of the Privy Council was not conclusive.—Court of Wards v. Leelanund, 25 W. R. 157.

Rights of parties after remand.—Where a case is remanded for the trial of an issue which had not been laid down by the Court which tried the case, the parties are entitled to have the opportunity of giving evidence upon it although the order of remand contains no express direction to that effect.—Kisto Churn v. Muggun Chuckerbutty, 10 W. R. 491.

When a suit has been dismissed upon a preliminary point, and the decision on that point has been reversed by the appellate Court, and the case goes down with a view to trial on its merits, evidence may properly be received even from defendants who had appeared and a fortiori from a defendant who had not appeared.—Koonj Beharee v. Tarinee Kant, 8 W. R. 235.

Where a case has been remanded by an appellate Court in an appeal against the decision given after the remand, fresh points which might and ought to have been urged before the remand, cannot be allowed to be taken.—Ansar Ali v. C. E. Grey, 2 C. L. J. 403.

A defence of limitation cannot be raised for the first time after there has been a remand on special appeal from the decree of the Court which has heard the cause on remand.—Moru v. Gopal, 2 B. 120 (6 W. R. 178 followed; 9 B. H. C. R. 282, 11 B. H. C. R. 283 distinguished; 2 B. H. C. R. 162, 2 B. H. C. R. 197 referred to). See also Dattu v. Kasai, 8 B. 535.

Unless such objection is taken in the memorandum of appeal, it is not open to an appellant at the hearing of the appeal to question the validity of an order of remand previously made in the case under this rule.—Tilak Raj Singh v. Chakardhari Singh, 15 A. 119.

Court-fee.—Held that, in an appeal under S. 10 of the Letters Patent from an order of a single Judge of the Court remanding a case under this section, the proper court-fee is Rs. 2.—Ballai Rai v. Mahabir Rai, 21 A. 178.

Revision.—No revision lies against an order of remand.—Bishanath v. Mt. Ramsin, A. I. R. 1923 All. 464.

Appeal from an order of remand under this rule.—Under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (u), an appeal lies from an order remanding a case, where an appeal would lie from the decree of the appellate Court. The period of limitation for an appeal from an order of remand is 90 days from the date of the order, under Art. 156 of the Limitation Act. But where a party submits to an order of remand and does not appeal against the order he cannot dispute its correctness at a later stage of the appeal.—Musst. Mashi-un-nissa v. Musst. Kamib Sughra, 60 I. C. 975 : 19 A. L. J. 139.

An appeal lies from an order of remand under this rule, even though before the filing of the appeal, the suit has been decided by the first Court in compliance with the order of remand.—Jatinga Valley Tea Co. v. Ohera Tea Co., 12 C. 45. Followed in Uman Kunwar v. Jarbandhan, 30 A. 479 (F. B.) : 5 A. L. J. 447 (29 A. 659 overruled; 32 C. 1023 : 9 C. W. N. 895 dissented from). But see Madhu Sudan v. Kamini Kanta, 9 C. W. N. 895 : 2 C. L. J. 35-n : 32 C. 1023, where it has been held that an appeal from an order of remand passed under this rule cannot be entertained if presented after the disposal of the suit. Followed in Salig Ram v. Brij Bilas, 29 A. 659 and in Gulzari Mal v. Kabirunnissa, 30 A. 191 : 5 A. L. J. 270. But 29 A. 659 has been overruled in 30 A. 479 (F. B.). It would appear from the above rulings that there is a diversity of opinion on the above point.

No appeal lies to the High Court from a general order of remand by the lower appellate Court on the ground of the mishandling of the trial in the first Court.—Firm Ohhajju Mal Munna Lal v. Firm Pyare Lal Jumna Prasad, 63 I. C. 858.

Held, that an order under this rule is not ordinarily capable of being the subject of an appeal to His Majesty in Council, though it may possibly be so if the order in question has the effect of deciding finally the cardinal point in the suit —Habibunnissa v. Munawarunnissa, 25 A. 629 (17 A. 112, 8 B. 548 and 10 M. I. A. 340 referred to).

Though an appeal lies under Or. XLIII, r 1 (u) of the C. P. Code from an order of remand, no appeal will lie from the order when the order itself is made in an appeal preferred under any other clause of that rule.—Naubat Singh v. Baldeo Singh, 33 A. 479; Mathura v. Nobin Chandra, 24 C. 774; Jhanday Lal v. Sarman Lal, 21 A. 291.

An appeal lies from an order remanding a case under Or. XLI, r. 23, even if the suit has been decided on a preliminary point.—Sashi Mukhi v. Abinash, A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 279.

Appeal from remand order purporting to have been made, though improperly, under Or. XLI, r. 23.—No appeal lies against an order passed by an appellate Court remanding a case otherwise than under Or. XLI, r. 23 of the Civil Procedure Code.—Mahendra v. Ramtaran, 23 C. W. N. 1049 : 31 C. L. J. 357. The Court of appeal when it remands a suit to the trial Court for fresh disposal, should make it quite clear whether the order of remand is made under Or. XLI, r. 23 or independently of that provision.—Kakamma v. Chandrasekhara, 119 I. C. 705: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 205. But the question is whether an appeal lies in cases where the order purports to be an order under Or. XLI, r. 23, although the order ought not to have been made under that rule. The question was answered in the affirmative by the Calcutta High Court in Basumati v. Taritbasani, 31 C. L. J. 354: 44 I. C. 416, where Richardson and Beachcroft, JJ., observed: "It may be that regard being had to terms of Or. XLI, r. 23, this is not a case in which it was, strictly speaking, open to the learned Subordinate Judge to make an order under that rule. But whether the order was regularly made or irregularly made, it appears to me to be in form and substance an order under that rule. That being so, the order must be treated as an order under r. 23, from which an appeal lies." The same view was also taken in the following cases; Prosanno v. Baidya, 24 C. W. N. 708: 56 I. C. 516; Radha Krishna v. Kamal Kamini, 35 C. L. J. 345: 70 I. C. 547: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 456; Gokul Prasad v. Ram Kumar, 44 A. 176: 64 I. C. 878: A. I. R. 1922 All. 254; Kulsumunnissa v. Ram Prasad, 44 A. 492: A. I. R. 1922 All. 226: 67 I. C. 713; Bhairab v. Kali Kumar, 37 C. L. J. 491; Kayem Biswas v. Bahadur Khan, 30 C. W. N. 41: 42 C. L. J. 22: 89 I. C. 744: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 1258; Jagathari v. Medini, 31 C. W. N. 878: 104 I. C. 422: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 642; Harbhajan v. Mewa Singh, 110 I. C. 748: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 753. The right of appeal is determined by what the Court purports to do and not by what the Court should have done; and consequently where the Court purports to order a remand under Or. XLI, r. 23, though really the order is under S. 151, the order is appealable.—Gopal v. Mangal, 107 I. C. 284: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 341. The above view has been dissented from and it has been held that where the order of remand is ultra vires, and not a decree, it is not appealable, though it purports to be an order under this rule.—Banka Behari v. Birendra, 55 C. 219: 47 C. L. J. 69: 103 I. C. 864: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 850. The proper remedy is to challenge its validity in revision.—Ibid. But where the order of remand was neither passed nor purported to have been passed under r. 23 no appeal will lie.—Jagathari v. Medini, 31 C. W. N. 878: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 642: 104 I. C. 422.

An order of the Court of first instance rejecting a plaint was set aside by the appellate Court which directed the first Court to proceed with the trial of the suit on the merits. It is not an order under this rule and is not appealable.—Cotton Trading Syndicate v. Firm of Malawa Mal, 109 I. C. 597: 131 I. C. 750: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 497: 32 P. L. R. 409.

A suit for maintenance was valued at Rs. 3,000 for purposes of jurisdiction. The suit having been disposed of on merits there was an appeal and the correct valuation was then discovered to be Rs. 18,000. The appellate Court thereupon set the decree aside and remanded the case: held, that the order of remand was not appealable as it was not made under this rule, though it could be the subject-matter of revision.—Hamir Kaur v. Court of Wards, 138 I. C. 62: 33 P. L. R. 634: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 538.

Appeal from remand under the inherent power.—In several cases it has been held that when the order of remand is not made under Or. XLI, r. 23, but by reason of a Court's inherent jurisdiction under S. 151, the order is not appealable.—Radhakrishna v. Venkata, 48 M. 713: A. I. R.

1925 Mad. 229: 84 I. C. 965; Raghunandan v. Jadunandan, 3 P. L. J. 253: 43 I. C. 959; Wisakhi Ram v. Alawal, A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 457: 6 L. L. J. 153: 78 I. C. 408; Ma Me v. Ma Min, 3 R. 490: A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 320: 92 I. C. 368; D. Jageshar Jha v. Mahtab Singh, (1926) P. 302: 7 P. L. T. 811: 96 I. C. 440: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 516; Chaudhary Chandrika Prasad v. Mithu, 6 P. 380: 103 I. C. 722: A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 296; Sobharam v. Ram Prashad, 117 I. C. 290: A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 67; K. V. Sundara Ramaiyer v. Sathianathan, 102 I. C. 28: A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1190 (Sadhu Krishna v. Kuppan Ayyangar, 30 M. 54 (F. B.): 16 M. L. J. 479 relied on); Suppiah v. Muthiah, 112 I. C. 710: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 984; Devorampoodi v. Goparaju, 112 I. C. 1: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 991.

A remand cannot be construed to be one under S. 151 simply because the Court has failed to express that the remand is under r. 23 or r. 25; and where a remand order is accompanied by an order for refund of court-fee, the remand should be considered to be under r. 23—Sahibji v. Mohammad Sarwar Khan, 106 I. C. 842: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 116: 9 L. L. J. 543.

Appeal from order of remand when such order does not specify the provision of law under which it is made.—Where an appellate Court passes an order of remand without specifying the provision of law under which the order is made, it must be presumed to be made under Or. XLI, r. 23, C. P.

Letters Patent appeal—An order of a single Judge of High Court under this rule is a "judgment" within the meaning of S. 15 of the Letters Patent and is therefore appealable.—Gopinath v. Moheshwar, 35 C. 1096. But see Guru Prosanno v. Ambicamoyi, 13 C. W. N. colli

24. Where the evidence upon the record is sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce judgment, the Appellate Court may, after resettling the issues, if necessary, finally determine the suit, notwithstanding that the judgment of the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has proceeded wholly upon some ground other than that on which the Appellate Court proceeds. [S. 565.]

on record sufficient, Appellate Court may determine case finally.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to S. 565, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only. The word "where" has been substituted for "when"; the word "suit" has been substituted for the word "case"; the word "from" has been substituted for the word "against"; and the word "preferred" has been substituted for the word "made," which occurred in the old section. The object and meaning of this rule is clearly explained in 3 M. 96 noted below.

Where evidence on record sufficient, appellate Court may determine case finally.—Where a Court of first instance after taking evidence, dismisses a suit upon a preliminary objection without giving a decision upon the merits of the case, and the decree is reserved on appeal, the Court of Appeal, if it considers the evidence on record sufficient, may decide the case, and is not bound to remand it for trial under r. 23.—Bandi Subbayya v. Madalapalli, 3 M. 96. See also Amma v. Kunhunni, 9 M. 355.

This rule does not enable an appellate Court to declare a right in favour of one of the parties, where no issue has been fixed on the point, and the right has not been set up in the lower Court.—Official Trustee of Bengal v. Krishna Chunder, 12 I. A. 166; 12 C. 239 (P. C.).

Where a lower appellate Court has before it all the evidence which the parties wish to adduce, and decides upon a preliminary point (e.g., the genuineness of a pottah), it has no authority to remand the case, but should itself try it.—Ram Joy v. Nundo Moyee, 10 W. R. 374.

The appellate Court will not remand a case for re-trial on a point not raised in the Court below if the evidence already recorded is sufficient to enable the appellate Court itself to decide the point.—Haridas Purshotam v. Gamble, 12 B. H. C. R. 23.

Where an objection was taken to the jurisdiction, and the objection was allowed, but the Court at the same time disposed of the case on the merits and dismissed the suit, and on appeal the appellate Court affirmed the decree of the lower Court on the question of jurisdiction only; held, that there were materials before the appellate Court to dispose of the appeal on the merits.—Debi Saran v. Debi Saran, 6 A. 378; Sheo Prasad v. Anrudh Singh, 6 A. 440.

Where a Court of first appeal omits to determine a material issue of fact, the High Court as a Court of second appeal is not competent, under this rule, to determine such issue itself, but should refer it for determination to the Court of first appeal.—Sheo Ratan v. Lappu Kuar, 5 A. 14.

25. Where the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has omitted to frame or try any issue, or to determine any question of fact, which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the right decision of the suit upon the merits, the Appellate Court may, if necessary, frame issues, and refer the same for trial to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, and in such case shall direct such Court to take the additional evidence required; and such Court shall proceed to try such issues, and shall return the evidence to the Appellate Court together with its findings thereon and the reasons therefor.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 565, C. P. Code, with some alterations of a verbal character and with the addition of the words "and the reasons therefor" in the concluding part, adopting 19 B. 551.

r. 25.

Distinction between an order under Or. XLI, r. 23 and an order under Or. XLI, r. 25.—There is a distinction between an order under Or. XLI, r. 23 and an order under Or. XLI, r. 25, C. P. Code which remands specific issues for decision. An order of the former class is a final order which is subject to appeal and cannot be considered by the Court which passed it except on review, whereas an order under Or. XLI, r. 25 is an interlocutory order which it is open to the Court to consider.—Kuar Nageshar Sahai v. Kuar Mata Prasad, 25 O. C. 189 : 9 O. L. J. 235.

Framing issues and remanding the case.—The functions of the appellate Courts under Or. XLI, rr. 24, 25, and 27 discussed and pointed out. In cases where the Court, acting under r. 25 has been obliged, in the absence of evidence on the record, to supplement the defect through the agency of the Court below, its jurisdiction in respect of such evidence does not become limited thereby or by reason only of the circumstance that the evidence is accompanied by a "finding" of the inferior Court, the term "finding" being used in S. 566 (this rule) in its restricted sense of an answer to the proposition referred for enquiry, and not of an award or decision of the issue before the Court.—Bal Kishen v. Jasoda Kuar, 7 A. 765 (F. B.). (referred to in Beni Pershad Kuari v. Nand Lal, 24 C. 98).

Where a Subordinate Court has dealt with questions arising on the merits of the case, no order of remand can be made by the appellate Court under r. 23, but if the appellate Court is of opinion that there should be a finding upon any particular issue or further evidence should be taken on any such issue, it may make an order of remand under this rule.—Rakhit Mahanta v. Puddo Bauri, 9 O. W. N. 54. See also Hukam Singh v. Raghubir, 27. A. 700 : (1905) A. W. N. 157.

Where the Court of first appeal remanded a case under r. 23, for addition of necessary parties; held, that the proper course for the lower appellate Court would have been to join the necessary parties, and then to raise the proper issues and to refer the issues to the first Court for trial under this rule.—Ganesh Bhikaji v. Bhikaji Krishna, 10 B. 398. See also Kelu Mulachari v. Chendu, 19 M. 157.

If the appellate Court is of opinion that the trial Court has failed to decide any issue or has failed to draw up any necessary issue, the proper course to follow was itself to frame the issue and to send it down, if necessary, to the trial Court for taking evidence and to return the evidence, together with its finding, to the lower appellate Court. An order remanding the whole case is bad.—Krishna Das v. Manindra Chandra, 95 I. C. 123 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 954.

Where an appellate Court finds it necessary that a particular issue should be framed and tried, it should proceed under the provisions of Or. XLI, r. 25, to frame the issue and refer it for trial to the lower Court. It is not proper for the appellate Court to set aside the judgment of the trial Court and send back the case to that Court for deciding it by framing an issue which the appellate Court considers necessary for the decision of the case.—Mansurali v. Jamiran Bewa, 44 C. L. J. 101 : 95 I. C. 203 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 976.

Where the appellate Court is of opinion that certain findings of fact are necessary for the proper disposal of an appeal, and that evidence should be led on these points, the proper procedure is under r. 25 by which the appellate Court may frame issues and refer them for trial to the Court whose decree is appealed from, but it cannot act partly under r. 23 which only applies to the case of a suit which has been decided on a preliminary point and partly under r. 25 by calling for further findings; an order remanding a case for giving parties an opportunity to adduce evidence on a certain point for disposal and at the same time setting aside the trial Court's decree is technically wrong—Annaji v. Thakubai, 53 B. 335: 118 I. C. 790: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 175: 31 Bom. L. R. 208.

Under this rule an appellate Court can frame a new issue and refer it for trial although it has not been raised by the defendant's written answer.—Chandi Din v. Naraini Kuar, 14 A. 366 (P. O.). See Ahmedabad Advance Spinning etc. Co. v. Lakshmishanker, 30 B 173.

A lower appellate Court has power under this rule to send back a case for trial upon an issue not satisfactorily tried by the Court of first instance.—Umbika Churn v. Ramdhun, 11 W. R. 35.

A decree in a suit having been passed on the merits by the Court of first instance, the Court of appeal, being of opinion that an issue not tried by the former Court, ought to have been tried, reversed the decree, and under r. 23 remanded the case for trial upon that issue. Held, that the order reversing the decree and remanding the case for trial of the issue was improper, and that the proper course for the appellate Court was to have taken that laid down by rr. 25 and 26—Mokund Lal v. Hurbullubhnarain, 12 O. L. R. 136.

Where there is no sufficient evidence before the appellate Court for the disposal of an issue which is material to the determination of the suit, the proper course to be followed is to remand the case under this rule.—Ram Pershad v. Krishna, 3 Agra 146. See also Shumboo Chunder v. Russick Chunder, 15 W. R. 346.

Where the appellate Court finds that the parties failed to grasp the essential questions arising in the case and to adduce evidence adequately, the appellate Court is entitled to frame new issues and remand them for trial.—Shah Mahomed v. Ramzan, 66 I. C. 833.

The District Court, on appeal, remanded the suit to the lower Court for finding on fresh issues. After return of the findings the District Judge transferred the appeal to the Sub-Judge, who heard and determined it. Held, that the District Judge had no power to transfer to a Sub-Judge an appeal which was part-heard and pending before him.—Kumara Sami v. Subbaraya, 23 M. 314.

When a Court of first instance has tried out a suit, the appellate Court has no jurisdiction to make an order of remand under r. 23, but if a new issue has to be tried, it should proceed under r. 25.—Ram Dao Mondal v. Indromoni, 3 O. W. N. 325. See also Lalla Chuni Lal v. Mohiji Singh, 1 C. W. N. 340.

Where in a suit the plaintiff tendered three witnesses in support of his claim, but the Court having examined one of such witnesses and being satisfied with his evidence, declined to examine the others, and passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff and on appeal by the defendant, the lower appellate Court reversed the decree, without allowing the plaintiff to produce fresh evidence. Held, that under the circumstances above described, it was competent to the High Court in special appeal to set aside all proceedings in both Courts below, and to remand the case under this rule with directions to the first Court to re try the case, admitting all admissible evidence which had been previously tendered - Ganga Prasad v. Lal Bahadur, 17 A 117 (16 A. 342 referred to). See also Durga Dhal v. Anorajs, 17 A. 29.

Apart from rr. 23 and 25, no express power of remand is given by the Code to an appellate Court.—Habib Bakhsh v Baldeo, 23 A 167 (171)

On an appeal from the decision of a Munsif in favour of the plaintiffs in a suit for rent, the District Judge set aside the decree, ordered a new trial, and directed the amendment of the plaint by inserting the boundaries of the land. Held, that the order for amendment of the plaint was bad under r. 23, as the original Court had not disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point. If the information was necessary, the District Judge should send down an issue on the point for trial under this rule—Krishnaya Navada v. Panchu, 17 M. 187.

When a case should not be remanded—Where no specific issue has been framed on the question of adoption, but the matter had been tried and determined without any objection on the part of the plaintiff, who had not been taken by surprise, but was fully informed by the defendant's lists of documents, and from the cross-examination of his witnesses that the defence would be taken, held that it was undesirable that the case should be remanded for re-trial on a special issue framed as to the adoption—Chandra Kunwar v. Narpal Singh, 34 L. A. 27: 29 A 184 (P. C.): 11 C. W. N. 321: 5 C. L. J. 115 17 M. L. J. 103 9 Bom. L. R. 267 4 A. L. J. 102: 2 M. L. T. 109.

Since a declaratory decree is a matter of discretion, a claim for a declaration ought not to be remanded by an appellate Court for further enquiry which is likely to entail delay and expense.—Doorga Persad v. Doorga Konwar, 4 C. 190: 3 C. L. R. 31.

Where the lower appellate Court framed a wrong issue for decision, but it appeared from its judgment that there was a finding on the point which would have been raised if the correct issue had been framed, the High Court in second appeal refused to remand the case for a new finding on that issue.—Vishnu Ramchandra v. Ganesh, 21 B. 325.

An appellate Court is not justified in framing an issue which does not arise from the pleadings of the parties, and in remanding the case under this rule for fresh enquiry.—Ilikka Pakramar v. Kutti Kunhamed, 17 M. 69.

Where the trial Court did not come to a finding on a point as, in the view it took of the case, it became unnecessary for it to do so, the appellate Court is not bound to remand the case but is entitled in law to come to a finding of fact by itself on the point.—Rangasawmi v. Sundarapandia, 110 I. C. 648: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 635.

An appellate Court cannot affirm some of the findings of the trial Court and set aside the decree and remand the case for a fresh trial. If the lower Court thinks it necessary that a fresh local investigation should be held, it should order it itself or it should direct the lower Court to direct a local investigation to be held and to send back to the appellate Court the result of such local investigation.—Mahendra v. Narayani, 95 I. C. 170; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 912.

An inherent power of remand exists in the appellate Court even in a case where the appellate Court might have acted but did not act under r. 25.—Devorampoodi v. Goparaja, 112 I. C. 1: (1928) M. W. N. 164; A. I. R. 1928 Mad 991.

Powers and duties of the Court to which issues are remitted.—A Court of first instance to which issues have been remitted under this rule by the appellate Court, has only jurisdiction to try the issues remitted, and is functus officio in other respects and cannot make a reference of the case to arbitration which is only within the jurisdiction of the appellate Court.—Nand Ram v. Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523. See also Gossain Dowlut Geer v. Bissessur Geer, 22 W. R. 207; Habib Bakhsh v. Baldeo, 23 A. 167, 171.

When a case is remanded by the High Court to the lower appellate Court for recording further evidence and for its finding thereon, it is not open to the latter to further remand the case to the trial Court for recording evidence and submitting its findings.—Anant Ram v. Din Mohammad, 102 I. C. 273; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 769.

A Court to which a case is remanded for re-trial on a particular issue amongst others, cannot, on remand, allow that issue to be abandoned and proceed to try the case upon the other issues raised.—Shib Chund v. Joymala Dasi, 7 C. L. R. 103.

Power of lower Court to take additional evidence on remand where order of remand does not so order. Held, that the lower Court had power to take additional evidence on the issue remanded, although not specially authorized to do so by the order of remand.—Kamalakshi v. Ramasami, 19 M. 127.

It has been held that an appellate Court is not bound to accept a finding returned to it by the first Court under r. 25, if the findings are preferred, but is comp the finding is correct and is fit to be Ali, 2 A. 908 (1 Agra 50 dissented from; 1 A. 165 followed; followed in Umed Ali v. Salima Bibi, 6 A. 383); Mukhtara v. Sardara, 71 I. C. 444; A. I. R. 1923 All. 417.

Certain issues were admitted under Or. XLI, r. 25, C. P. Code for trial on additional evidence that might be tendered by the parties On the date fixed for production of evidence, the plaintiff appeared but the defendants were absent. The Court took the evidence for the plaintiff and recorded its findings ex parte. On the application by the defendants to the date that the Court had power to make and had acted properly in making the order inasmuch as a full compliance with the directions of the appellate Court under Or. XLI, r. 25, C. P. Code required the taking of evidence for both parties.—Ajodhia Prasad v. Ram Narain, 19 A. L. J. 79; 63 I. C. 447.

Where the appellate Court ordered a retrial on payment of costs by the plaintiff within two months from the date of the receipt of records in the original Court and further provided that in default the suit should stand dismissed, the failure of the Court to call the attention of the parties to the receipt of records is no excuse for failing to pay the costs in time and if the party committed default, the suit stood automatically dismissed. There is no obligation on the trial Court to notify to the parties about the receipt of records on remand of the case by the Court of appeal.—Banshi v. Majahar Uddin, 36 C. W. N. 693.

Power of appellate Court to deal with the whole appeal after return of findings—It was held that, upon the return of the finding on remand, the Court could not treat the appeal as already decided and the objections as the sole matter for consideration, but must consider both the appeal and objections, and decide the whole case.—Lachman Prasad v. Jamna Prasad, 10 A. 162; Gopi Nath v. Sat Narain, 74 I. C. 1014 A. I. R. 1923 All. 334. See also Lala Prag Lal v. Jai Narayan, 22 C. 419, where it has been held that on the hearing of the appeal, the entire case, including the order of remand, was open to consideration, and that the High Court had power to determine whether that order or the order subsequently passed was correct on the merits.

A Court of appeal framed certain issues under this rule and remanded them for findings by the original Court. On the return of these findings as neither party filed any objections, the appellate Court accepted these findings without giving any reasons for so doing, or even stating in its judgment whether it concurred in them or not, and confirmed the decree of the original Court. Held, that judgment of the appellate Court was not a judgment according to law.—Bhagvan v. Kesur, 17 B. 428.

An order of remand under this rule decides nothing, and the reasons that the Court gives for its support are given merely for its own convenience for the purpose of determination of the appeal under Or. XLI, r. 26 and for helping the lower Court to proceed rightly in carrying out the order; but the Court, either the same or differently constituted, when determining the appeal finally, has ample jurisdiction to go back on the views as expressed in the order of remand passed under this rule.—Upendra v. Jyesh, 32 C. W. N. 1233; 47 C. L. J. 112; 107 I. C. 730; A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 186.

New issue raised before High Court.—Where the lower appellate Court has omitted to determine a question of fact which appears essential to the right decision of the suit on the merits, the High Court can frame the necessary issues and refer them for trial under Or. XLI, r. 25.—Seturatnam v. Venkatachala, 47 I. A. 76; 43 M. 567 (P. C.); 38 M. L. J. 476; 18 A. L. J. 707; 22 Bom. L. R. 578; 56 I. C. 117; 25 C. W. N. 485. But the finding of the lower Court upon the issues so remanded is conclusive and cannot be challenged.—Ram Mehr v. Pals Ram, 6 L. L. J. 145.

Though the High Court is competent in second appeal to remit a case to the lower Court for re-hearing on an issue not raised in the pleadings nor even suggested in the Courts below, this ought to be done only in exceptional cases for good cause shown and on payment of costs.—Ram Chandra v. Secretary of State for India, 43 I. A. 172; 43 C. 1104, 1118 (P. C.); 20 C. W. N. 245; 14 A. L. J. 1009; 18 Bom. L. R. 838; 31 M. L. J. 745; Chandu Lal v.

Where the appellate Court ordered a retrial on payment of costs by the plaintiff within two months from the date of the receipt of records in the original Court and further provided that in default the suit should stand dismissed, the failure of the Court to call the attention of the parties to the receipt of records is no excuse for failing to pay the costs in time and if the party committed default, the suit stood automatically dismissed. There is no obligation on the trial Court to notify to the parties about the receipt of records on remand of the case by the Court of appeal.—Banshi v. Majahar Uddin, 36 C. W. N. 693.

Power of appellate Court to deal with the whole appeal after return of findings—It was held that, upon the return of the finding on remand, the Court could not treat the appeal as already decided and the objection to the finding on remand must be considered both by the trial and appellate Courts. See also Lala Prag Lal v. Jai Narayan, 22 C. 419, where it has been held that on the hearing of the appeal, the entire case, including the order of remand, was open to consideration, and that the High Court had power to determine whether that order or the order subsequently passed was correct on the merits.

A Court of appeal framed certain issues under this rule and remanded them for findings by the original Court. XLI, r. 26 and for helping the lower Court to proceed rightly in carrying out the order; but the Court, either the same or differently constituted, when determining the appeal finally, has ample jurisdiction to go back on the views as expressed in the order of remand passed under this rule.—Upendra v. Jogesh, 32 C. W. N. 1233 : 47 C. L. J. 112 : 107 I. C. 730 : A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 186.

New issue raised before High Court.—Where the lower appellate Court has omitted to determine a question of fact which appears essential to the right decision of the suit on the merits, the High Court can frame the necessary issues and refer them for trial under Or. XLI, r. 25.—Seturatnam v. Venkatachala, 47 I. A. 76 : 43 M. 567 (P. C.) : 38 M. L. J. 476 : 18 A. L. J. 707 : 22 Bom. L. R. 578 : 56 I. C. 117 : 25 C. W. N. 485. But the finding of the lower Court upon the issues so remanded is conclusive and cannot be challenged.—Ram Mehr v. Pali Ram, 6 L. L. J. 145.

Though the High Court is competent in second appeal to remit a case to the lower Court for re-hearing on an issue not raised in the pleadings nor even suggested in the Courts below, this ought to be done only in exceptional cases for good cause shown and on payment of costs.—Ram Chandra v. Secretary of State for India, 43 I. A. 172 : 43 C. 1104, 1118 (P. C.) : 20 C. W. N. 245 : 14 A. L. J. 1009 : 18 Bom. L. R. 838 : 31 M. L. J. 745 ; Chandu Lal v.

should order it itself or it should direct the lower Court to direct a local investigation to be held and to send back to the appellate Court the result of such local investigation.—Mahendra v. Narayani, 95 I. C. 170: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 912.

An inherent power of remand exists in the appellate Court even in a case where the appellate Court might have acted but did not act under r. 25.—Devorampoodi v. Goparaja, 112 I. C. 1: (1928) M. W. N. 164: A. I. R. 1928 Mad 991.

Powers and duties of the Court to which issues are remitted.—A Court of first instance to which issues have been remitted under this rule by the appellate Court, has only jurisdiction to try the issues remitted, and is functus officio in other respects and cannot make a reference of the case to arbitration which is only within the jurisdiction of the appellate Court.—Nand Ram v. Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523. See also Gossain Dowlut Geer v. Bissessur Geer, 22 W. R. 207; Habib Bakhsh v. Baldeo, 23 A. 167, 171.

When a case is remanded by the High Court to the lower appellate Court for recording further evidence and for its finding thereon, it is not open to the latter to further remand the case to the trial Court for recording evidence and submitting its findings.—Anant Ram v. Din Mohammad, 102 I. C. 273: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 769.

A Court to which a case is remanded for re-trial on a particular issue amongst others, cannot, on remand, allow that issue to be abandoned and proceed to try the case upon the other issues raised.—Shib Chund v. Joymala Dasi, 7 C. L. R. 103.

Power of lower Court to take additional evidence on remand where order of remand does not so order. Held, that the lower Court had power to take additional evidence on the issue remanded, although not specially authorized to do so by the order of remand.—Kamalakshi v. Ramasami, 19 M. 127.

It has been held that an appellate Court is not bound to accept a finding returned to it by the first Court under r. 25, merely because no objections to such findings are preferred, but is competent to examine and satisfy itself that the finding is correct and is fit to be accepted.—Akbari Begam v. Wilayat Ali, 2 A. 908 (1 Agra 50 dissented from; 1 A. 165 followed; followed in Umed Ali v. Salima Bibi, 6 A. 383); Mukhtara v. Sardara, 71 I. C. 444: A. I. R. 1923 All. 417.

Certain issues were admitted under Or. XLI, r. 25, C. P. Code for trial on additional evidence that might be tendered by the parties. On the date fixed for production of evidence, the plaintiff appeared but the defendants were absent. The Court took the evidence for the plaintiff and recorded its findings ex parte. On the application by the defendants showing sufficient cause for their non-attendance, the Court, after notice to the plaintiffs set aside the ex parte finding, restored the suit and fixed a new date for parties to produce their evidence. Held, on revision from this order, that the Court had power to make and had acted properly in making the order inasmuch as a full compliance with the directions of the appellate Court under Or. XLI, r. 25, C. P. Code required the taking of evidence for both parties.—Ajodhia Prasad v. Ram Narain, 19 A. L. J. 79: 63 I. C. 447.

Where the appellate Court ordered a retrial on payment of costs by the plaintiff within two months from the date of the receipt of records in the original Court and further provided that in default the suit should stand dismissed, the failure of the Court to call the attention of the parties to the receipt of records is no excuse for failing to pay the costs in time and if the party committed default, the suit stood automatically dismissed. There is no obligation on the trial Court to notify to the parties about the receipt of records on remand of the case by the Court of appeal.—Banshi v. Majahar Uddin, 36 C. W. N. 693.

Power of appellate Court to deal with the whole appeal after return of findings—It was held that, upon the return of the finding on remand, the Court could not treat the appeal as already decided and the objections as the sole matter for consideration, but must consider both the appeal and objections, and decide the whole case.—Lachman Prasad v. Jamna Prasad, 10 A. 162; Gopi Nath v. Sat Narain, 74 I. C. 1014; A. I. R. 1923 All. 334. See also Lala Prag Lal v. Jai Narayan, 22 C. 419, where it has been held that on the hearing of the appeal, the entire case, including the order of remand, was open to consideration, and that the High Court had power to determine whether that order or the order subsequently passed was correct on the merits.

A Court of appeal framed certain issues under this rule and remanded the appeal. On the return of these findings as the appellate Court accepted these findings without giving any reasons for so doing, or even stating in its judgment whether it concurred in them or not, and confirmed the decree of the original Court. Held, that judgment of the appellate Court was not a judgment according to law.—Bhagvan v. Kesur, 17 B. 428.

An order of remand under this rule decides nothing, and the reasons that the Court gives for its support are given merely for its own convenience for the purpose of determination of the appeal under Or. XLI, r. 26 and for helping the lower Court to proceed rightly in carrying out the order, but the Court, either the same or differently constituted, when determining the appeal finally, has ample jurisdiction to go back on the views as expressed in the order of remand passed under this rule.—Upendra v. Jogesh, 32 C. W. N. 1233; 47 C. L. J. 112; 107 I. C. 730; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 186.

New issue raised before High Court.—Where the lower appellate Court has omitted to determine a question of fact which appears essential to the right decision of the suit on the merits, the High Court can frame the necessary issues and refer them for trial under Or. XLI, r. 25.—Seturatnam v. Venkatachala, 47 I. A. 76; 43 M. 567 (P. C.); 38 M. L. J. 476; 18 A. L. J. 707; 22 Bom. L. R. 578; 56 I. C. 117; 25 C. W. N. 485. But the finding of the lower Court upon the issues so remanded is conclusive and cannot be challenged.—Ram Mehr v. Pali Ram, 6 L. L. J. 145.

Though the High Court is competent in second appeal to remit a case to the lower Court for re-hearing on an issue not raised in the pleadings nor in exceptional cases.—Chandra v. Chandu Lal, 20 C. W. N. 245; 14 A. L. J. 1009; 10 Bom. L. R. 338; 51 M. L. J. 145.

Firm of Lakshmi Chand Jowaladat, 5 L. L. J. 49; Bhikabai v. Goja Mhaku, 98 I. C. 297; 28 Bom. L. R. 1090; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 577.

Issues remitted are triable by the Court which originally tried the suit or appeal.—When issues are remitted for trial under this rule, such issues are triable only by the Court which originally tried the case.—Sabri v. Ganeshi, 14 A. 23 (followed in Ali Sher Khan v. Ahmadullah Khan, 29 A. 660; 4 A. L. J. 603). See also Lahore Bank Ltd. v. Lakhiram, 105 P. R. 1903; Uttam Chand v. Muhammad Bakhsh, 71 I. C. 896.

Appeal.—An order referring issues for trial under this rule is not appealable.—Kalikristo v. Ramchunder, 8 C. 147; 9 C. L. R. 461 (followed in Gooroo Prasanno v. Ambikamoyi, 2 I. C. 636). A suit to recover a sum of money having been decreed against one of the two defendants, he appealed. The lower appellate Court held that the decree was prima facie correct, but as it was of opinion that the issue of limitation had not been sufficiently explored, the case was remanded to the Court of first instance for re-hearing and disposal on that issue. Against that order of remand, an appeal was preferred to the High Court. Held, that in making the order, the lower appellate Court was purporting to act under Or. XLI, r. 25 and not under Or. XLI, r. 23 (although it had jurisdiction under neither), and no appeal lay.—Jagathari v. Medini Mohan, 31 C. W. N. 878. Nor does an appeal lie under the Letters Patent.—Bara Estate, Ltd. v. Anup Chandra, 2 P. L. J. 663.

A partial order of remand under Or. XLI, r. 25 is not appealable.—Maung Shweon v. N. K. R. P. Mudahar, 2 Bur. L. J. 216.

26. (1) Such evidence and findings shall form part of the record in the suit; and either party may, within a time to be fixed by the Appellate Court, present a memorandum of objections to any finding.

Determination of appeal.

(2) After the expiration of the period so fixed for presenting such memorandum the Appellate Court shall proceed to determine the appeal. [5, 567.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 567, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character. In sub-rule (1) the word "form" has been substituted for the word "become," which stood after the word "shall"; the word "any" has been substituted for the word "the" which stood after the words "objections to" and in sub-rule (2), the word "so" has been added before the word "fixed."

"Such evidence and findings shall form part of the record in the suit."—The evidence and findings become part of the record in the suit and when the Court proceeds to determine the appeal after remand under Or. XLI, r. 25, such determination must be based upon all the materials on the record; these include whatever was part of the record as it stood before the order under Or. XLI, r. 25 was made as also what has been added in the Court of Appeal, namely, the order together with the evidence taken pursuant thereto and the reasoned findings thereon.—Kamini Kumar v. Durga Charan, 37 C. L. J. 122.

Where no memorandum of objection is filed.—If no memorandum of objection is filed by either party, the Court is not thereby absolved from its duty of hearing the appeal.—Subbayya v. Rami, 22 M. 344. The appellate Court, even if no objections are filed, is bound to examine the correctness of the findings and to state in its judgment the reason for which it either accepts or rejects the findings.—Kunhi v. Kutti, 20 M. 496.

An appellate Court though not bound to entertain objections filed after the expiration of the prescribed period, should, nevertheless, upon the hearing of the remand, allow the party filing them to be heard with regard to them. Further, an appellate Court, apart from any objection by the parties to the findings when returned, should examine and test them to see whether or not they ought to be accepted.—Mumtaz Begam v. Fateh Husain, 6 A. 391 (6 A. 383, 1 A. 165, and 2 A. 908 referred to).

Where no objections have been filed under Or. XLI, r. 26, C. P. Code, the Court may in its discretion decline to hear objections at the hearing.—Partab Singh v. Achar Singh, 3 L. L. J. 230.

But the appellate Court is not bound to accept any finding blindly merely because no objections to such finding are preferred, but is competent to examine the evidence on which such finding is founded, and to satisfy itself that it is correct and fit to be accepted.—Akbari Begam v. Wilayat Ali, 2 A. 908 (1 Agra 50 dissented from, 1 A. 165 followed; followed in Umed Ali v. Salivia Bibi, 6 A. 393). See also Woomesh Chunder v. Jonardun, 15 W. R. 235; Mumtaz Begam v. Fateh Husain, 6 A. 391; Bhagvan v. Kesur, 17 B. 428; Ram Chandra v. Sono, 19 B. 551.

Time to file objections to finding.—The limitation of time in this rule is obviously meant to be a restriction upon the rights of the parties, and not upon the discretion of the Court.—Damodar Das v. Gokal Chand, 7 A. 79 (92) (F. B.).

After the expiry of the period fixed, the appellate Court may, in its discretion, receive or decline to receive a memorandum of objections to the finding on remand.—Chotay Lall v. Chunnoo Lall, 6 I. A. 15; 3 C. L. R. 465 (469) (P. C.); 4 C. 744 (751).

"Court-fee."—No Court-fee is chargeable upon the memorandum of objections filed under this rule.—Damodar v. Masudan, 105 I. C. 108; A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 85; 9 P. L. J. 19.

"Shall proceed to determine the appeal."—When an appellate Court has made an order referring issues for trial under r. 25, the return to such order must be made to the same Court, and such Court is not competent to transfer the appeal for disposal to another Court.—Udit Narain v. Thanda, 15 A. 315; Kumarasami v. Subbaraya, 23 M. 314.

Second appeal.—The provisions of this rule and of r. 25 apply, so far as may be by virtue of Or. XLII, to second appeals. The High Court may, in second appeal, therefore, refer issues of fact for trial to the lower appellate Court, but when the finding and evidence upon such issues are returned to the High Court, the finding is conclusive, and it cannot be challenged upon the evidence before the High Court as in first appeal. The reason is that a second appeal is not allowed on questions of fact.

Production of additional evidence in Appellate Court.

27. (1) The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the Appellate Court. But if—

(a) the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(b) the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, the Appellate Court may allow such evidence or document to be produced, or witness to be examined.

(2) Wherever additional evidence is allowed to be produced by an Appellate Court, the Court shall record the reason for its admission. [S. 568.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 568, C. P. Code, with some alterations of a verbal character.

Sub-rule (1) exactly corresponds to para. 1 of the old section.

Clause (a) corresponds to Cl. (a) of the old section with this modification that the word "from" has been substituted for the word "against"; the word "preferred" has been substituted for the word "made"; and the words "has refused" have been substituted for the word "refuses."

Clause (b) exactly corresponds to Cl. (b) of the old section.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to last para. of the old section with this alteration that the word "wherever" has been substituted for the word "whenever"; and the words "allowed to be produced" have been substituted for the words "is admitted," which occurred in the old section.

Scope of this rule—Powers and functions of appellate Court.—The power to admit additional evidence should be exercised by a Court of appeal with much caution, and only in suits where it is satisfied that in the interests of justice it should be exercised, and that such additional evidence when admitted, will be evidence which, if produced at the trial, would have been admissible; Mahomed Khaleel v. Les Tanneries Lyonnaises, 53 I. A. 84: 49 M. 435 (P. C.): 31 C. W. N. 1: 94 I. C. 767: A. I. R. 1926 P. O. 34: 28 Bom. L. R. 1391.

Additional evidence under this rule should not be taken until the appellate Court has examined the evidence on the record and has, after such, examination, come to the conclusion that the evidence, as it stands, is inherently defective; as, for instance, when the lower Court has omitted to take the evidence of an attesting witness to a mortgage-deed.—Bank of Bengal v. Lucas, 51 C. 185: 81 I. C. 471: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 578.

The circumstance that evidence has been improperly excluded by the trial Court does not justify a reversal of the decree made by that Court. The Code of Civil Procedure provides in Or. XLI, rr. 27 (1) (a), 28 and 29, the method to be followed in a case of this description. It is open to the Judge of the appellate Court to take the evidence himself or to direct the primary Court to take the evidence and to send it to the appellate Court for consideration.—Jyot Kumar v. Jadu Nath, 34 C. L. J. 160. To remand a case on such a ground is a course which can be characterised as exercising jurisdiction illegally and with material irregularity.—Venkamma v. Goparaju, 112 I. C. 1: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 991: (1928) M. W. N. 164.

Where the trial of a case is defective by reason of relevant evidence having been shut out or by refusal of an adjournment which should have been granted to enable a party to adduce all the evidence or for any other reason, the appellate Court can ask the lower Court to take the evidence so shut out or give the party, who had not the opportunity to adduce all his evidence, an opportunity to adduce evidence, and to record a finding on the evidence so taken; and the mere fact that the appellate Court has not set aside the decree of the lower Court does not in any way take away the jurisdiction it has to set aside the judgment and direct the lower Court to take evidence and record fresh finding—R Narayanaswami v. Vedambal, 106 I. C. 498: A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1065: 39 M. L. T. 399.

The legitimate occasion for the admission of additional evidence by the appellate Court under this rule arises only when, on examining the evidence as it stands, some inherent lacuna or defect becomes apparent. Where fresh evidence is discovered outside the Court, such evidence can be imported into the case on an application under Or. XLVII, r. 1.—Krishnama Chariar v. Narasimha, 31 M. 114: 3 M. L. T. 308 (31 B. 381 (P. C.) followed); Garden Reach Spinning and Manufacturing Co. v. Secretary of State for India, 42 C. 675, Uchant Ahir v. Basawan Ahir, 55 I. C. 226; Firm of Ram Rikhpal Sham Lal v. Firm of Bans Dhar & Sons, 66 I. C. 370 (31 B. 381 (P. C.) relied on, 31 M. 114 and 42 C. 675 followed); Parsotim Thakur v. Lal Mohar, 58 I. A. 254: 10 P. 654 (P. C.): 132 I. C. 721 A. I. R. 1931 P. C. 143: 35 C. W. N. 786: 54 C. L. J. 1: 61 M. L. J. 489: 29 A. L. J. 513. See also Bhaitonsingh v. Hindusingh, 67 I. C. 237: (1922) Nag 119; Jai Krishna v. Bibi Soghra, 4 P. L. T. 418: 71 I. C. 881; Labh Singh v. Ahmad Shah, 97 I. C. 369; Firm of Husseinbhai v. Ramdas, 125 I. C. 803 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1930 Sind 105: 24 S. L. R. 15.

Courts should refrain from sending for the records in an informal manner for the purpose of looking into documents which had never been tendered in evidence.—Harcharn v. Sarup Singh, 126 I. C. 437: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 750. It is not proper for a Court to take additional evidence without duly recording it in accordance with law.—Altum Malto v. Barka Manjhi, 118 I. C. 315. See also Ram Autar v. Baldeo, 11 P. 782: 140 I. C. 895: A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 352.

It is largely discretionary with an appellate Court to admit additional evidence on appeal and a party cannot claim it as a matter of right.—Nayajan Ali v. Midnapore Zamindary Company, 67 I. C. 770; and where the Court has exercised this discretion and refused to admit additional evidence, it cannot be said that a substantial error or defect in procedure has taken place which affords a ground for second appeal.—Thaman Singh v. Jiwan Singh, 131 I. C. 228; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 506.

The appellate Court should exercise its power of allowing additional evidence very cautiously and sparingly and only in the interests of justice.—Raja Sreenath Roy v. Secretary of State for India, 36 C. L. J. 345; Kutiyar v. Vaithilinga, 120 I. C. 746; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 343. But the Court should not take a narrow view of the rules of procedure and in order to do justice between the parties the Court should allow additional evidence to be adduced in appropriate cases, e.g., where the results of shutting out evidence would be to keep the creditor out of his money unnecessarily.—Kameshwar v. Hirday, 132 I. C. 363; A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 181; 12 P. L. J. 79. The only function of a Court of facts is to do complete justice between the parties, and the Court should not reject documents as to the genuineness of which there could possibly be no room for doubt on such technical grounds as that they were produced at a late stage.—Mt. Naraini Koer v. Gena Missir, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 324; 120 I. C. 291.

Order XLI, r. 27 does not mean that in order to enable the appellate Court to pronounce judgment in favour of a particular party additional evidence should be admitted in appeal. It only means that where there is a lacuna in the evidence which precludes the appellate Court from pronouncing judgment on the evidence which is already on the record, additional evidence should be allowed to be adduced.—Baij Nath v. Dip Lal, 57 I. C. 843.

On an appeal on the merits of the case being filed, the appellate Court without recording any reason as required by this rule allowed such further evidence to be taken, not after the appeal on the merits had been heard and the evidence as it stood had been examined by the Judges but on special and preliminary application. Held, that the appellate Court had no jurisdiction to admit the additional evidence, and that it was wrongly admitted and must be disregarded.—Kessowji Issur v. G. I. P. Railway Company, 34 I. A. 115; 31 B. 381 (P. C.); 11 C. W. N. 721; 6 C. L. J. 5; 17 M. L. J. 347; 4 A. L. J. 461.

Where additional evidence is taken by the High Court with the assent of both sides, it is not open to either party to complain of it.—Jagannath v. Hanuman, 36 I. A. 221; 36 C. 833 (P. C.); 13 C. W. N. 830; 11 Bom. L. R. 861; 19 M. L. J. 435; 3 I. C. 465.

The test as to whether additional evidence should be received in an appellate Court under this rule, depends upon the question whether or not the appellate Court requires the evidence "to enable it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause." As to this, the appellate Court is to be the sole Judge. The rejection of an application under that section cannot be said to involve any "substantial question of law" within the meaning of S. 110, C. P. Code, so as to give the right of an appeal to the Privy Council.—Upendra Mohan v. Gopal Chandra, 21 C. 484; Jhingur Jha v. Badri Sahu, 54 I. C. 666.

In cases where the Court acting under r. 25 has been obliged in the absence of evidence on the record, to supplement the defect through the agency of the Court below, its jurisdiction in respect of such evidence does not become limited thereby or by reason only of the circumstances that the evidence is accompanied by a "finding" of the inferior Court, the term "finding" being used in r. 25 in its restricted sense of an answer to the proposition referred for enquiry, and not of an award or decision of the issue before the Court. The functions of the appellate Courts under Or. XXI, rr. 24, 25 and 27, discussed and pointed out.—Balkishen v. Jasoda Kuari, 7 A. 765 (F. B.) (referred to in Beni Pershad Kuari v. Nand Lal, 24 C. 98).

In a second appeal, the High Court remanded a case to the lower appellate Court for proper decision of certain issues raised in the suit; and the lower appellate Court, taking evidence on the issues, came to findings of fact on that evidence. Held, that the lower appellate Court tried the case, not as an original case, but as an appeal.—Beni Pershad Kuari v. Nand Lal, 24 C. 98.

When additional evidence should be allowed.—Under this rule the admissibility of additional evidence is made to depend, not upon the relevancy or materiality to the issue before the Court of the evidence sought to be admitted or upon the fact whether or not the applicants had an opportunity of adducing evidence at some earlier stage, but upon whether or not the appellate Court requires the evidence to enable it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause.—In the goods of Prem Chand, 21 C. 484, 485.

The power given by this rule of taking of its own motion, additional evidence should be very sparingly exercised by the Courts and great caution should be exercised in this matter.—Sreeman Chunder v. Gopal Chunder, 11 M. I. A. 28: 7 W. R. 10 (P. C.); Hurpershad v. Sheo Dyal, 26 W. R. 55 (P. C.). 3 I. A. 259.

Where pending an appeal from a decree in a rent suit, a decree is passed in favour of the appellant in a title suit, the appellate Court should receive the decree in evidence and act upon it.—Sashi Bhuson v. Parasulla, 64 I. C. 721 (31 B 381 (P. C.)), 31 M. 114, 36 A. 93 (referred to).

When the first Court was satisfied with the evidence produced, and, therefore, did not allow the plaintiff to produce all his evidence, and the appellate Court does not think the evidence sufficient, it ought to allow the plaintiff on appeal to call the evidence excluded by the first Court.—Brij Soondur v. Kaimoonnissa, 23 W. R. 63.

Where a Court of first instance, considering it unnecessary to examine certain witnesses for the defence, dismissed the suit, and the lower appellate Court, disbelieving the evidence of those witnesses for the defence who were examined, allowed the plaintiff's appeal, held that, before doing so, the lower appellate Court should have afforded the defendants an opportunity of supplementing the evidence which they had given in the first Court by the testimony of those witnesses whom that Court had declared it unnecessary to hear, and that the case must be regarded as one in which the first Court had refused to examine the witnesses tendered by the defendants.—Khuda Bakhsh v. Imam Ali, 9 A. 339.

It is within the discretion of the lower appellate Court to allow the parties an opportunity to adduce fresh evidence if it is satisfied that the interests of justice require that course.—Damodur Dass v. Ritoo Sing, 24 W. R. 325.

Where certain documents were accepted in the trial Court without proof and objection to their reception was for the first time raised in appeal, the party adducing such evidence should be given an opportunity to give formal proof of the documents.—Gorkha v. Kahnun, 30 P. L. R. 693.

Where the evidence upon the record is not sufficient to enable the appellate Court to pronounce a judgment upon regular appeal, it may require the Court against whose decree the appeal is made to take additional evidence, defining the points to which such evidence is to be confined, in order to enable the appellate Court finally to determine the case.—Narasimaharav v. Antagi, 2 B. H. C. R. 61.

Where a lower appellate Court admitted a review with the object of taking into consideration a material issue which it had omitted to consider at the trial, held that, having admitted the review on grounds independent of fresh evidence, it was competent for the Court, under this rule, to admit fresh evidence, if required to enable it to pronounce a satisfactory judgment, or for any substantial cause.—Beharee Lall v. Troyluckho, 12 W. R. 223.

The true interpretation of this rule is that, when a Court sees that by some inadvertence or mistake, a party has not produced some evidence which he was capable of adducing, and that he is likely to be prejudiced by that omission or mistake, which was simply unintentional, undesigned, and accidental, the Court will allow such further evidence to be taken—Gowhur Ali v. Sakheena Khamun, 15 W. R. 507.

When a lower Court disposes of a case upon the merits as proved by evidence not legally admissible against the defendants, and the appellate Court considers it proper to allow the plaintiff to adduce further evidence, it may either take such further evidence itself, or send the case back to the lower Court to take such evidence.—Ramjoy Surmah v. Puran Kishen, W. R. (F. B.) 124.

Where the first Court refused the plaintiff's application to summon five of his witnesses, notwithstanding that it postponed the case for ten days, although fifteen other of the witnesses were present, the High Court held that the first Court's omission to summon the witnesses was, under the circumstances, a sufficient reason, for the lower appellate Court to send for them, and take their evidence.—Abelakh Roy v. Guggun Bhuggut, 23 W. R. 268.

When the lower Court is wrong in excluding evidence bearing on the question at issue, the appellate Court is justified in admitting the evidence. Further, when a Court has doubt as to whether a certain evidence is admissible or not, and its decision is open to appeal, it is better to admit than to exclude such doubtful evidence.—Kali Kishore v. Dhusan Chunder, 18 C. 201 (P. C.): 17 I. A. 169.

Where the District Judge admitted certain evidence which was rejected by the trial Court and that evidence consisted of a deposition in which an admission regarding the relationship was made by a woman who was dead and whose property the appellants were claiming, held that the evidence though not admissible under Or. XLI, r. 27 (1) (b) was admissible under r. 27 (1) (a).—Gokhul v. Baldeo, 7 P. 90; A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 113; 9 P. L. T. 180.

In a bond-suit the plaintiff relied in bar of limitation on endorsements of part-payments appearing on the bond. The first Court held that the endorsements were genuine. The appellate Court remanded the suit to take further evidence with regard to the endorsements; and held upon the return of the evidence that the endorsements were forgeries and dismissed the suit. Held, that the additional evidence was legally taken and admissible under this rule.—Srinivasachariar v. Rangammal, 18 M. 94.

Where in a second appeal the High Court remanded a case for return of findings on an issue previously framed but not tried, held, that the lower Court had power to take additional evidence on the issue remanded, although not specially authorised to do so by the order of remand.—Kamalakshi v. Ramasami, 19 M. 127.

Where the appellate Court finds that the trial in the first Court is misconceived, it cannot set aside the whole judgment and make an order for remand for fresh trial simply because of the unsatisfactory way in which the trial Court dealt with the matter of local investigation; and the proper procedure is to make an order of local investigation itself or direct the trial Court to appoint a Commissioner for making a local investigation and proceed under rr 27, 28 and 29 of Or. XLI, and after the local investigation is made out any evidence desired by the appellate Court to be taken is taken, the appellate Court should decide the appeal on all questions arising in the suit itself.—Haripada v. Debnath, 110 I. C. 427; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 749; Muffizuddin v. Jelaluddin, 110 I. C. 448; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 748.

A District Munsif after hearing evidence and deciding issues, passed a decree. On appeal the Sub-Judge reversed the decree, and remanded the case under Or. XLI, r. 23, on the ground that certain documentary evidence tendered by the defendant had been excluded, and the plaintiff's witnesses who had been cited in the list had not been wholly examined. Held that r. 23 was inapplicable to such a case; and that the proper course for the Sub-Judge would have been to act either under Or. XLI, r. 27 or r. 23.—Seshan Pattar v. Seshan Pattar, 23 M. 447 (23 M. 445 distinguished), Rajani v. Khatir Mahomed, 94 I. C. 393; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 897.

Where the lower Court after rejecting defendant's application for adjournment heard the case ex parte, and passed a decree in plaintiff's favour; and where on appeal by the defendant the appellate Court reversed the decree and remanded the case, held, on second appeal, that the suit having been tried on the merits, the lower appellate Court could not remand the case under S. 562, but ought to have proceeded under Ss. 563, 569, C. P. Code, 1882.—Parratishankar v. Bai Naval, 17 B. 733.

When additional evidence should not be allowed.—An appellate Court should not receive evidence, though alleged to be material and important, which has not been produced in the lower Court, without substantial reason for its non-production. The High Court refused to reverse a decision on the ground of the improper admission of evidence.—Jagadindra v. Bhabatarin, 5 B. L. R. Ap. 54.

In a case governed by the specific directions contained in rr. 27 and 28, an order of remand purporting to be passed by the Court in the exercise of its inherent power is vitiated by material irregularity.—Mallappa v. Alagiri, 133 I. C. 205 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 791 : 60 M. L. J. 475 : (1931) M. W. N. 710.

Where the lower Court admits documents contrary to the provisions of this Rule, the only thing the High Court can do in second appeal is to exclude them from consideration altogether.—Harcharan v. Sarup Singh, 126 I. C. 437 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 750. See Ram Naresh v. Chirkut, 9 O. W. N. 379.

When the appellant did not choose to call the only available attesting witness to prove the will produced by him and in consequence the lower Court held the execution of the will not proved, he cannot by adducing fresh evidence in the appellate Court be allowed to patch up the weak points in his case and fill up the omissions, a procedure not warranted by the rules of the Code.—Peda Monikyam v. Vantabathina, 34 L. W. 663.

Where the parties have closed their evidence in the trial Court, it is no province of the Appeal Court to admit additional evidence on a point which was not in issue in the trial Court and which never arose from the pleadings.—Dwarka Prasad v. Badri Lal, 127 I. C. 515 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 320.

The mere fact that a litigant was not aware of the existence of documentary evidence in the case is no ground for the admission of such evidence for the first time in appeal.—Srimati Manmohini v. Ram Kishore, 68 I. C. 334.

It is no part of the duty of the appellate Court to raise fresh issues and it cannot be contended that the evidence needed to support such issues will fall within the category of evidence which the Court may require to be admitted. Where a party has not filed documents in his possession he cannot be permitted to file them in appeal merely on the ground that he was not alive to the possibility of supporting his claim in that manner.—Raja of Kalahasti v. Venkatalingama, (1932) M. W. N. 529.

An unregistered document admitted to be all along in possession of a party, cannot be allowed in evidence in second appeal, merely because it is alleged that it is recently discovered.—Prem Singh v. Md. Khurshid, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 574 : 103 I. O. 215 ; Keswaji Issur v. G. I. P. Ry. Co., 34 I. A. 115 : 31 B. 381 (P. C.) : 6 C. L. J. 5 : 11 C. W. N. 721 : 4 A. L. J. 461 : 17 M. L. J. 347.

An appellate Court acts improperly in admitting additional evidence after the close of the arguments in the case.—Isap Ali v. Satis, 65 I. C. 504.

Where an appellant who had ample opportunity of giving evidence in the Court below elected not to do so, but to rest his case on the evidence as it stood, he ought not to be allowed at the stage of appeal to give evidence which he could have given below.—Ram Das v. Official Liquidator, 9 A. 366.

Circumstances under which an appellate Court will not allow additional evidence to be produced at the hearing of an appeal under this rule.—Nadiar Chand v. Chunder Sikhur, 15 C. 765.

The plaintiffs had applied, during the hearing of the case in the Court of first instance, for the production of certain books of account of the defendants. The defendants resisted the application, and the Court refused to order the books to be produced. The suit having been dismissed, the plaintiffs appealed; and in the Court of Appeal the defendants applied to be permitted to put in evidence the books which they had refused to produce. Held, that the evidence could not be admitted.—Manohar Ganesh v. Lakhmiram, 12 B. 247.

The appellate Court should not send for and admit fresh documentary evidence which has not been put in by either party in the lower Court.—Dwarkanath v. Ram Lochun, 10 W. R. 92; Zahrah v. Bhugwan, 16 W. R. 211; Narendra Nath v. Radha Charan, 46 C. 119, 128. Nor should it allow additional evidence to prove the genuineness of a document held by the lower Court to be a fabrication.—Nadiar Chand v. Chunder Sikhur, 15 C. 765.

Where evidence was omitted to be called in the lower Court, held, on appeal, that the plaintiffs' case could not at this stage be supplemented by examining parties whom the plaintiffs did not think fit to call, or by books which they did not produce in the Court below.—Velaet Ali v. Matadeen, 10 W. R. 402.

Where, in the first Court, the defendant's pleader deposed on oath that the defendant had no documents whatever, and that all were burnt, held, that the lower appellate Court was wrong in permitting the defendant to file a Pottah, which was alleged to have escaped the general destruction.—Serajool Huq v. Keramutoollah, 19 W. R. 88.

The High Court decided a case irrespective of certain documents brought forward by a party at the hearing of the appeal, and afterwards rejected an application for a review of that judgment. In an application to the Privy Council for special leave to bring in those documents, held, that further evidence ought not to be admitted under this rule, that there was a great danger in the Court of ultimate appeal lightly introducing evidence which had not been under the consideration of the Court below and which the parties had no means of testing.—Gobind Sundari v. Jagadamba, 3 B. L. R. P. C. 25. See also Ramchandra v. Krishnaji, 28 B. 4.

Although the plea of res judicata may be taken at any stage of a suit, including first or second appeal, an appellate Court is not bound to entertain the plea if by so doing further findings of fact will be rendered necessary, and if its consideration involves the reference of fresh issues for determination by the lower Court.—Kanahai Lal v. Suraj Kunwar, 21 A. 446.

The refusal by an appellate Court to exercise the discretion vested in it by this section, with respect to the admission of additional evidence would be an error or defect in procedure within the meaning of S. 584, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 100), because S. 568 (this rule) distinctly implies that

A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 91; Mehr Fazil v. Wali Muhammad, 132 I. C. 6: 31 P. L. R. 1012.

The negligence of pleaders in not tendering evidence at the proper time does not entitle the parties to an indulgence to have it admitted in the appellate Court.—Abdul Nabi v. Mazharali, 125 I. C. 33: A. I. R. 1930 Sind 318; Malappa v. Venkaji, 125 I. C. 423: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 279: 33 Bom. L. R. 608; Buta Singh v. Balwant Singh, 32 P. L. R. 813 (in which it has been held that in such case the remedy of the party, if any, is to file a suit for damages against the pleader); Nihal Chand v. Dal Singh, 136 I. C. 17: 32 P. L. R. 874: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 135.

Where the certified copy of the proceedings in a Small Cause Court was not filed in the primary Court as the point as to the proceedings having taken place was not seriously disputed in that Court, it should be admitted at the appellate stage as a certified copy of a public document when the question arose at that stage.—Jahar Lal v. Chandra Kanta, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 265.

The appellate Court can take in a second certified copy of the deposition of a witness when the first copy filed in the trial Court was found to be incorrect, as this is not taking additional evidence and even if it is, the incorrectness of the copy is a sufficient cause for doing so.—Nagina Singh v. Ramjanam Singh, A. I. R. 1928 Pat 64: 9 P. L. T. 215: 105 I. C. 83.

"Court shall record reasons for admission."—The power given by this rule of taking, of its own motion, original evidence anew, should be exercised very sparingly by the Courts and, when exercised, it is desirable that the reasons for exercising it should always be recorded or minuted by the Court in the proceedings.—Sreeman Chunder v. Gopal Chunder, 7 W. R. 10 (P. C.): 11 M. I. A. 28; Ambica Prosad v. Gopal Buksh, 1 C. L. J. 550; Gunga Gobind v. Collector of 24-Pergunahs, 7 W. R. 21 (P. C.): 11 M. I. A. 345; Hurpershad v. Sheo Dyal, 3 I. A. 259: 26 W. R. 55; Jugbundhoo v. Goluck Chunder, 10 W. R. 228; Joog Maya v. Ram Chunder, 10 W. R. 378; Lowa Jha v. Bisseshur, 11 W. R. 6; Banee Pershad v. Lalla Jogessur, 11 W. R. 47; Chardon v. Ajeet Singh, 12 W. R. 52; Shib Chunder v. Kasheenath, 12 W. R. 245; Juggut Indur v. Bhubo Tarinee, 14 W. R. 19; Snadden v. Todd, Finlay & Co., 7 W. R. 313. See Kessowji Issur v. G. I. P. Ry. Co., 34 I. A. 115: 31 B. 381 (P. C.): 11 C. W. N. 721: 6 C. L. J. 5: 4 A. L. J. 461: 17 M. L. J. 347; Ambica Charan v. Girish Chandra, 68 I. C. 719; Mahomed Khaleel v. Les Tanneries Lyon-naises, 53 I. A. 84: 49 M. 485 (P. C.): 34 I. C. 767: 44 C. L. J. 67: 28 Bom. L. R. 1391: A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 34: 31 C. W. N. 1. See also the Privy Council cases noted under the previous heading. See also Ram Naresh v. Chirkut, 9 O. W. N. 379. It is extremely desirable that when the Court exercises its power under this rule, it should make a direct reference to this rule, giving its reason in such a form that there is no room for doubt that the Court has realised "that it is exercising (following 61 M. L. 379: A. I. R. 1932 Bor

The provision in this rule as to an appellate Court recording its reasons for admitting additional evidence is directory merely, and not imperative.—

Gopal Singh v. Jhakri Rai, 12 C. 37 (followed in Burha Mandari v. Megh Nath, 2 C. L. J. 4-n). See also Beni Pershad Kuari v. Nand Lal, 24 C. 98; Rahimuddin Kazi v. Radha Govinda, 64 I. C. 238.

Where the evidence of a defendant has been taken by the Court of first instance so imperfectly that the lower appellate Court cannot pass a satisfactory judgment between the parties, it is competent to the Judge of that Court under the provisions of S. 355, C. P. Code, 1859, to have the defendant fully examined before himself, but not to remand the case for re-hearing and re-trial. If he examines the defendant he is bound to record his reasons for so doing, in order that the High Court may be enabled on appeal to decide whether or not the new evidence has been rightly admitted.—Mohesh Chunder v. Madhub Chunder, 13 W. R. 85.

Where a Judge sends for a map or other document, he is bound to record his reasons for doing so, according to the provisions of the C. P. Code, and the evidence so obtained must be taken and received by him in the presence of the parties in open Court, and afterwards kept on the record. It is not competent to him under S. 355, C. P. Code, 1859, merely of his own discretion to send for a document for personal inspection irrespective of the parties to the suit.—Gunput Roy v. Ram Deour Roy, 21 W. R. 416. See also Shookrah Shaikh v. Nund Coomar, 25 W. R. 246.

Where the lower appellate Court allows additional evidence to be taken though it is not satisfied that the evidence is necessary under Cl. (a) or Cl. (b) of S. 568 of the C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule) the High Court will interfere; but where this does not appear to be the case, and there is simply an omission on the part of the appellate Court to record its reasons for allowing additional evidence to be taken, the High Court will not interfere.—Hafiz Abdul Kurrim v. Sri Kissen, 11 C. 139 See, however, Juggernath v. Kanai Das, 6 C. W. N. 31.

The provision of this rule as to an appellate Court recording its reasons for admitting additional evidence is complied with if the Court records "that it considers necessary, for the proper decision of the case, to take additional evidence."—Radhanath v. Ramgobind, 3 B. L. R. 218: 12 W. R. 224. See also Hafiza v. Hossein, 13 W. R. 328.

An appellate Court is not justified in taking additional evidence after a case has been argued before it and a date fixed for judgment, without Order XLI, r. 27 has been read.

I. C. 289).

Where evidence has been taken by an appellate Court in the presence of parties or their agents, it should not be rejected on appeal merely because the Court omitted to record its reasons for admitting it.—Bhugwan Chunder v. Raj Coomar, 13 W. R. 303.

Right of opposite party to rebut additional evidence.—When the appellate Court admits additional evidence under Or. XLI, r. 27, the other side must have an opportunity of rebutting it.—Hriday Krishna v. Rajani Kanta, 68 I. C. 293: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 300 (31 B. 391 (P. C.)); 24 C. L. J.

457 referred to); Man Singh v. Naulakhati, 2 P. 607: 72 I. C. 239; Ramzan v. Nabi Bux, 6 L. L. J. 234: 80 I. C. 530: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 638; Rameshwar v. Badri Sahu, 124 I. C. 87: A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 105: 11 P. L. J. 470. Where additional evidence was recorded and no reason stated for its admission, the suit was remanded with a direction to allow the opposite party to adduce rebutting evidence.—Kebal v. Rajani, 39 C. L. J. 261: 81 I. C. 999: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 98. But it has also been held that the Court is only bound to record the reason for the admission of additional evidence but there is no provision that the Court must give an opportunity to the other party to rebut the evidence so admitted.—Mahommad Wazir v. Shaik Majid, 56 C. L. J. 246.

Where the appellate Court obtained a written opinion as to the date of stamp affixed on a handnote and using it gave judgment in favour of the appellant: held, that the opinion not having been formally proved and the plaintiff not having been given an opportunity of cross-examining the person giving the opinion thereon, ought not to have been taken in evidence and the finding of the Judge must be discarded.—Ram Autar v. Baldeo, 11 P. 782: 140 I. C. 895: A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 352.

Second appeal.—Where the C evidence under this rule, the hearin for that reason be treated as a f go into questions of fact.—Beni Thakri, 12 C. 37. The reason being that by virtue of the provisions of S. 100, the High Court is precluded from entering into questions of fact except as provided by S. 103. A refusal by the lower appellate Court to admit fresh evidence is not appealable.—In the goods of Prem Chand, 21 C. 484; Ram Piari v. Kallu, 23 A. 121; Durga Prasad v. Jai Narain, 33 A. 379. See also Vaithinatha v. Kuppu, 42 M. 737 (F. B.); Thaman Singh v. Jiwan Singh, 131 I. C. 228: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 506; Buta Singh v. Balwant Singh, 32 P. L. R. 813. The High Court in second appeal will not interfere with an order of the lower appellate Court refusing to admit fresh evidence unless it is shown that the discretion was exercised contrary to legal principles; and in such a case the plaintiff must show that even with due diligence he could not produce the evidence; and the mere fact that evidence of similar character to that adduced at the trial has come to light since the trial, which evidence, if it had been considered, might have affected the weight of the evidence before that Court is no argument.—Kalicharan v. Jaldhari, 115 I. C. 674: A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 98: 10 P. L. T. 10. The order of the Court permitting additional evidence was discretionary and it could not be set aside in revision.—Ganda Ram v. Dev Raj, 33 P. L. R. 330.

Where there is no lacuna or defect to be filled up or remedied and no substantial cause for taking additional evidence, the additional evidence admitted must be left out of consideration in disposing of the case.—Ram Naresh Singh v. Chirkut, 9 O. W. N. 379.

An appellant cannot complain in second appeal that the additional evidence taken under this rule in the first appellate Court for the purpose of giving him an opportunity of establishing by production of further evidence that the dakhilas given by the landlords were genuine, was wrongly received by that Court.—Durga Prasad v. Tarakeswar, 49 C. L. T. 478: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 493: 120 I. C. 460 (following Jagarnath v. Hanuman, 36 I. A. 331: 36 C. 833, 839 (P. C.): 13 C. W. N. 830: 10 C. L. J. 74).

Appeal to Privy Council.—Where an application is rejected under this rule, such rejection does not give a right of appeal to the Privy Council.—In the goods of Prem Chand, 31 C. 484.

Power of appellate Court to take notices of facts which have happened since the date of judgment of the lower Court.—Public documents coming into existence subsequent to the filing of second appeals may be admitted in evidence in the High Court. A Court cannot shut its eyes to the events that came into existence during the pendency of any suit or proceeding.—James Henry George Hill v. Satan Singh, (1920) P. 4 (20 C. W. N. 1099 referred to).

See 11 C. W. N. 732: 6 C. L. J. 74, and 6 C. L. J. 92, 102, 662, noted under r. 33 of this Order.

Power of second appellate Court to take additional evidence.—In second appeals decisions of fact cannot be impugned and hence it is futile to admit evidence which is tendered to impugn a question of fact and which therefore should be rejected.—Ranj Lal v. Lilawati, 119 I. C. 561: A. I. R. 1929 All. 375; Shamsuddin v. Molannessa Bibi, 95 I. C. 300: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 941; Wadgoji v. Mahadeo, A. I. R. 1927 Nag. 398: 102 I. C. 27.

28. Wherever additional evidence is allowed to be produced, the Appellate Court may either take such evidence, or direct the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, or another subordinate Court, to take such evidence and to send it when taken to the Appellate Court. [S. 569.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 569, C. P. Code, 1892, with some verbal changes only. The word "wherever" has been substituted for "when"; the word "produced" has been substituted for the word "received"; the word "from" has been substituted for the word "against" and the word "preferred" has been substituted for the word "made" which occurred in the old section.

Scope.—A lower Court in taking evidence ordered under this rule, acts in a ministerial capacity.—Ram Joy v. Prankishan, 2 W. R. 80.

If the case is remanded for the attendance and examination of the plaintiff, the lower Court may dispense with his attendance, and accept the evidence of his agent instead, if the plaintiff be ill and unable to attend.—Syud Rezza v. Enaet Hossein, 1 W. R. 330.

If a case is remanded for the examination of one of the plaintiffs, the defendants cannot insist upon, nor can the Court examine, the other plaintiffs also.—Bolakee Loll v. Radha Singh, 1 W. R. 357.

Where the additional evidence consists of documents, they should be made exhibits in the case.—Daji v. Sakharam, 39 B. 665.

29. Where additional evidence is directed or allowed to be taken, the Appellate Court shall specify the points to which the evidence is to be confined, and record on its proceedings the points so specified. [S. 570.]

Points to be defined and recorded.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 570, C. P. Code, 1882, with the omission of the words "in all cases" which occurred in the beginning of the old section.

JUDGMENT IN APPEAL.

30. The Appellate Court, after hearing the parties or their pleaders and referring to any part of the proceedings, whether on appeal or in the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, to which reference may be considered necessary, shall pronounce judgment in open Court, either at once or on some future day, of which notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders. [S. 571.]

Judgment when and where pronounced.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to S. 571, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitutions of the words "from" for the word "against," and "preferred" for the word "made," which occurred in the old section.

Pronounce judgment.—A Judge may, at the close of the hearing of a suit, state at once orally the judgment which he intends to record and deliver.—Anonymous, 5 M. H. C. R. (App. Side) 8.

"After hearing the parties or their pleaders."—This rule only authorizes the Court to pronounce judgment after hearing the parties, and judgment pronounced without hearing them is unauthorized by the Code. Thus where an appellate Court heard and decided an appeal without being aware of the death of the appellant, the decree was held to be a nullity.—Janardhan v. Ramchandra, 26 B. 317; Narain v. Kalu, 2 L. L. J. 144.

As to amendment of clerical or arithmetical mistakes in judgments, decrees or orders, see S. 162 and the notes thereunder.

Sections 572 and 573 of the old Code, which contained provisions relating to the recording of the judgment, have been omitted. The sub-rule (3) of S. 137 of the present Code requires or allows anything other than the recording of evidence, to be done in writing in any such Court, such writing may be in English." In r. 31, the words "shall be in writing" have been added, hence S. 572 of the old Code has been omitted as unnecessary.

Section 573 of the old Code has also been omitted because S. 137 (3) makes provision for supplying translation.

Effect of delivery of judgment after death of respondent.—Where argument in an appeal was heard before but judgment was delivered after the death of the respondent. Held, that the judgment should be treated as operating as if it had been delivered on the day when the argument was heard.—Narna v. Anant, 19 B. 807 and Chetan Charan v. Balbhadra Das, 21 A. 314. See, however, Janardhan v. Ramchandra, 26 B. 317 : 4 Bom. L. R. 23, where it was held that the decree is a nullity when the appeal is heard and decided by the appellate Court without being aware of the death of the appellant.

See now Or. XXII, r. 6 and the cases noted thereunder.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 574, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The words "shall be in writing" have been added before the words "shall state." The other changes are merely verbal. The object of the above addition will clearly appear on referring to sub-rule (3) of S. 137 of the present Code, which supplies the omission of Ss. 572 and 573 of the old Code. Section 137 (3) lays down, that where this Code requires or allows anything, other than the recording of evidence, to be done in writing in any such Court, such writing may be in English. Thus the words "shall be in writing," read with S. 137 (3), make it incumbent upon Courts to write judgments in English.

Contents of the judgment of the appellate Court.—Where it is found that the judgment of the lower appellate Court does not fulfil the requirements of this rule, the proper order is to set aside the decree and to remand the case to the lower appellate Court to dispose of the appeal according to law. Duty of appellate Court in case of change of officer, pointed out.—Saravana Pillai v. Sesha Reddi, 31 M. 469 (F. B.) : 18 M. L. J. 34 : 3 M. L. T. 71 (20 M. 496 ; 25 C. 97 ; 17 B. 428 ; 19 B. 551 referred to).

Where the judgment of the lower appellate Court dismissing an appeal was merely as follows: "The appeal is dismissed with costs," the High Court set aside the decree on the ground that the Court had not complied with the provisions of this rule.—Srikant Dey v. Huri Das, 11 C. L. R. 131. The same course was adopted where the judgment was "appeal rejected" under S. 551 (Or. XLI, r. 11) of the Civil Procedure Code.—Rami Deka v. Brojo Nath, 25 C. 97.

The judgment of a lower appellate Court, after setting forth the claim, the defence, the nature of the decree of the first Court, and the effect of the pleas in appeal, concluded, with general observations, as follows: "The point to be determined on appeal is whether or not the decision is consistent with the merits of the case. The Court, having considered the evidence on the record and the judgment of the Munsif, which is explicit enough, concurs with the lower Court. The finding arrived at by the Munsif, that the plaintiff's claim is established, is correct and consistent with the evidence. The pleas urged in appeal are therefore undeserving of consideration." Held, that this was in law no judgment at all inasmuch as it did not satisfy the requirements of S. 574, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule).—Sohawan v. Babu Nand, 9 A. 26. But see Sundar Bibi v. Bisheshar Nath, 9 A. 93 (F. B.). See also Bahau Singh v. Jaimangal, (1906) A. W. N. 86.

An appellate Court is bound to write a judgment, when an appeal is dismissed after rejecting an application for adjournment on the ground of absence of counsel.—Patinhare v. Vellur Krishnan, 26 M. 267.

Order XLI, r. 31 controls Or. XLI, r. 11, and an appellate Court dismissing an appeal under the latter provision must state the points for decision and the decision thereon with reasons.—Bipin Behari v. Jogendra Nath, 65 I. C. 479 (all relevant cases discussed).

The judgment of the appellate Court dismissing an appeal was as follows: "The point in dispute is a question of fact and I see no reason to differ from the finding of the lower Court." Held, that the judgment did not comply with the provisions of this rule as the reasons for the decision were not stated; that the defect was not cured by S. 578, C. P. Code, 1812 (S. 99); and that the defect in the appellate judgment is a ground of a special appeal.—Shaharulla Mondal v. Bangoo Mondal, 13 C. W. N. 143 (12 C. 199 distinguished). But see Rakhal Chunder v. Satindra Deb, 5 C. L. J. 348 (25 C. 197 distinguished), and Pachi Dass v. Bala Dass, 13 C. W. N. 1031.

The omission in a judgment to make any special reference to the oral evidence by the parties to a case is not in itself sufficient to show that as a matter of fact the Court did not consider the evidence of the witnesses who were examined in the case.—Motiwar Rasuk v. Dhanu Molla, 59 I. C. 963.

A judgment of a lower Court setting out no part of the evidence which leads the Judge to the conclusion at which he has arrived, is insufficient to enable a Court of second appeal to say whether the arguments of the trial Court on "....." not a judgment in accorda "....." I. C. 436. See also Anandpal v. Mahabal, 1 Luck. 458; 95 I. C. 525; A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 95.

Points for determination.—The object of the Legislature in making it incumbent on an appellate Court to raise points for determination is to clear up the pleadings and focus the attention of the Court and of the parties on the specific and rival contentions of the latter.—Mhasu Bhujee v. Davalat, 7 Bom. L.R. 174. The Judge of the lower appellate Court not having recorded his judgment as required by S. 359 of Act VIII of 1859 (this rule), the case was sent back to the lower Court, for the Judge to state the points for decision and to give his decision upon those points consecutively.—Tatur Khawas v. Jagannath, 7 B. L. R. Ap 14: 15 W. R. 131. A Judge's decision, not being in conformity with the provisions of S. 359, Act VIII of 1859, was held to be illegal and defective.—Rughobur v. Chattrapat, 1 Agra 73; Imrit Singh v. Koylashoo, 11 W. R. 559.

Section 359, C. P. Code, 1859 (this rule), made it incumbent upon an appellate Court to set down distinctly the point or points on which it has to decide the appeal, and record its reasons for the decision it arrives at on each and all of these points.—Shurbessur v. Sadhoo Churn, 15 W. R. 130; and Raj Chunder v. Rama Kant, 15 W. R. 324.

The judgment of an appellate Court should clearly and fully dispose of all the points in issue between the parties by a distinct finding on each of them.—Bhagbut Khan v. Puddo Bewa, 3 W. R. 192; Dhun Rae v. Ramphul, 2 N. W. P. 109.

"We wish to impress upon the lower Courts of appeal, the necessity of always raising points for determination, as required by the provisions of the C. P. Code, in every appeal, before it is argued, because they narrow the points in controversy and leave little or no room for complaint in second appeals".—Govind v. Yesuji Khandoji, 10 Bom. L. R. 492

The judgment of an appellate Court must contain the points for determination, the decision thereupon and the reasons therefor. It need not contain a review or setting forth of the whole of the evidence. The propriety of giving an intelligent and clear account of the evidence in the judgment is laid down.—Noor Mahomed v. Zuhoor Ali, 11 W. R. 34.

The judgment of an appellate Court should show on the face of it that the points in dispute were clearly before the mind of the Judge, and that he exercised his own discrimination in deciding them.—Sitarama Sastrulu v. Suryanarayana, 22 M. 12.

An appellate Court cannot make a declaration of right in favour of one of the parties, where no issue has been fixed on the point, and the right has not been set up in the lower Court.—Official Trustee of Bengal v. Krishna Chandra, 12 C. 239 (P. C.): 12 I. A. 166.

The decision thereon.—This rule does not make it imperative on an appellate Court to record its finding or decision on every point where it is really unnecessary to do so.—Ismail Khan v. Hari Charan, 9 C. W. N. 60. Contra Rampini, J.

When an appellate Court decides an appeal on a preliminary point it should decide the case on the merits as well, for it would then obviate a remand if the decision of the lower appellate Court on the preliminary question of law did not commend itself to the High Court.—Manomohan v. Shih Chandra, 34 C. W. N. 839.

The dismissal of an appeal under S. 551, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 11), by a Court whose decision may be the subject of an appeal does not relieve the Court from the necessity of writing a judgment which, according to the provisions of this rule, should show the points raised, the decision upon these points and the reasons for deciding them.—Rami Deka v. Brojo Nath, 25 C. 97; Dharam Das v. Shanker Ahir, 53 A. 528; 132 I. C. 300; A. I. R. 1931 All. 589; Durga v. Narain, A. I. R. 1931 All. 597 (F. B.): 29 A. L. J. 875. See also Royal Reddi v. Linga Reddi, 3 M. 1, and the cases under r. 11.

The finding on an issue of a lower appellate Court, which is based on a misconception of what the evidence is, cannot be accepted in second appeal as a legal finding on it.—Govind v. Vithal, 20 B. 753.

A Court is not precluded from basing its decision upon a ground not specifically pleaded by either of the parties.—Thakuri v. Kundan, 17 A. 280.

Decision of appellate Court on other grounds—Effect of such decision.—When the decision of a lower Court is taken on appeal to a superior tribunal and that tribunal, for any reason, does not think fit to decide any matter it is left an open question (8 C. 631 referred to): If the appellate Court declines to decide an issue and disposes of the case on other grounds, the judgment of the first Court upon that issue is no more a bar to a further suit than it would be, if that judgment had been reversed by the Court of Appeal.—Ghurphakni v. Purneshwar Dayal, 5 C. L. J. 653 (6 B. 110, 7 C. 381 referred to).

"To state reasons for the decision."—The judgment of an appellate Court should state clearly the reasons of the conclusion therein contained.—Ohunder Kant v. Hurish Chunder, 1 W. R. 214; Goburdhun v. Sadhoo, 1 W. R. 244; Kartick Nepit v. Personomoyee, 2 W. R. 77; Doolee Chund v. Oomda Begum, 18 W. R. 473; Khetlur Mohun v. Bhyrub Chunder, 3 W. R. 126; Trilochun v. Ishen Chunder, 3 W. R. 176; Hossein Buksh v. Ameena Khatoun, 16 W. R. 280; Korban Ali v. Ashan Ali, 4 W. R. 4; Shathuk Paul v. Gudadhur Roy, 4 W. R. 100; Bhagvat Sangji v. Partabsangji, 4 B. H. C. R. 105; Robert Wilson v. Radha Dulari, 2 C. W. N. 63.

The reasons for the decision should be stated not only when the decree of the first Court is varied or set aside, but also when it is confirmed.—Rami Deka v. Brojo Nath, 25 C. 97; Babu Madhav v. Venkatesh, 16 B. 540. If this rule is not observed, the proper form of the order to be made by the High Court in second appeal is to set aside the decree of the lower appellate Court and send back the case to that Court in order that the appeal may be disposed of according to law.—Saravana Pillai v. Sesha Reddi, 31 M. 469 (F. B.).

Where the decision of a case involves issues of fact, and the first Court has gone fully into the evidence, and recorded its finding and decision, if the appellate Court agrees with the conclusions of the Court below, the appellate Court is not obliged by law to state in detail the reasons previously recited in which it concurs.—Lalla Juggeshwar Sahay v. Gopal Lall, 15 W. R. 54. See also Imrit Lall v. Nuckshed, 10 W. R. 100; Kulumutee v. Jowahur Lall, 11 W. R. 318. But see Pertap Narain v. Maigh Lall, 13 C. W. N. 949; Mahommed Hossain Chaudhary v. Rabia Khatoon, 69 I. C. 467.

Where a lower appellate Court took no notice in its decision of a large quantity of evidence of very considerable importance, which had been urged before it as of the highest possible character, and gave no reasons for agreeing with the Court of first instance that the evidence in question had very little connection with the case, its judgment was held to be not a legal decision.—Adheen Misser v. Jograj Misser, 11 W. R. 312.

A plaintiff is entitled to some opinion by the lower appellate Court upon the oral testimony on his side. The mere affirmance of the decision of the first Court which considered the oral evidence in detail does not involve the adoption by the lower appellate Court of the first Court's view of the oral testimony.—Rajoo v. Raj Coomar, 7 W. R. 137.

Where a Judge has affirmed the decision of the lower Court without giving any reasons, his successor is not bound to give reasons for affirming its decision, the High Court is not bound to require the Judge to give reasons for affirming the case to his successor for fresh trial.—Assanullah v. Hafiz Mahomed, 10 C. 932.

The reasons for their decisions must in all cases be recorded by the Judges of the High Courts in India.—Kachekaluana v. Kachivigajaya, 2 B. L. R. (P. C.) 72 : 11 W. R. (P. C.), 33.

Where the decree of the first Court is confirmed in appeal, the Judge of the appellate Court should state his own reasons of the case, and should not confine himself to approving of the reasons of the Court of first instance.—Rohimoni v. Zamruddin, 8 C. L. R. 597; Kiran v. Subabhat, 8 B. 28. The reason is that the judgment should show on the face of it that the points in dispute were clearly before the mind of the Judge and that he exercised his own discrimination in deciding them.—Gupta v. Behari, 21 A. L. J. 567 : 74 I. C. 827 : A. I. R. 1924 All. 100. But there is no objection whatever to the Judge's adopting the lower Court's findings and reasoning as his own, without once more writing down the same reasons at length, if it is clear that the appellate Judge, in dealing with the appeal, has really applied his mind to the case and has come to his judgment independently of the findings and reasonings of the lower Court.—Surja Kumar v. Kamakhya, 97 I. C. 760.

An appellate Court is not bound to discuss seriatim the arguments adduced by a lower Court in support of its judgment, but need only give its own reasons for its own judgment.—Indrabati v. Mahadeo, 1 B. L. R. S. N. 2; Krishnendro Roy v. Digumburee, 16 W. R. 15; Shumshurooddy v. Jan Mahomed, 21 W. R. 260. See also Golam Hossein v. Ram Dayal, 12 W. R. 152.

An appellate Court is bound to state its reasons for reversing the decision of a lower Court.—Mahadeo Ojha v. Parmeswar, 2 B. L. R. Ap. 20; Munsoob Bibee v. Ali Meah, 17 W. R. 353; Mahomed Salleh v. Nusteroodeen, 21 W. R. 234; Raj Mohon v. Harendra, 56 I. C. 816.

Held, by Markby, J., that, in saying that the "reasons" for the decision of an appellate Court must be stated, S. 359, Act VIII of 1859 (this rule) meant not the reasons for coming to any conclusion of fact but the reasons showing upon what points of fact or law the decision runs. The bare fact that a Judge had not given the reasons for his judgment is not itself a ground of special appeal.—Ramessur v. Bhanoo, 12 W. R. 272.

The finding of an appellate Court not accompanied by reasons is not conclusive.—Gopalrao Ganesh v. Kishor Kalidas, 9 B. 527; Krishnarav v. Vasudev, 8 B. 371. See also Ningappa v. Shivappa, 19 B. 323.

The District Judge having given no reasons for making an order the order was discharged under the circumstances.—Raghunath Gopal v. Nilu Nathaji, 9 B. 452.

An appellate Court is bound to give reasons for deciding a specific point (in this case limitation) raised before it on appeal, even if it confirms generally the order of the Court below.—Radha Gobind v. Ram Kishore, 8 W. R. 340. See also Haimabati v. Govinda Chandra, 2 C. W. N. 695.

This rule is imperative, and under it the appellate Court is bound to state the reasons for its decision.—Bhagvan v. Kesur Kuverji, 17 B. 428 (6 A. 383, 391 followed); Guptanand v. Behari Lal, 21 A. L. J. 567; 74 I. C. 827; A. I. R. 1924 All. 100. The judgment of the appellate Court must state the reasons for the finding.—Santishwar v. Lakhikanta, 13 C. W. N. 177. A general and wholesale adoption of the judgment of the Court of first instance cannot be regarded as a sufficient compliance with the law.—Santa Singh v. Bhan Singh, 70 I. C. 830; 1923 Lah. 30.

In certifying to the High Court the findings on issues sent back on remand and found by the Court of first instance, it is the duty of the lower appellate Court to form its own opinion on the evidence and record reasons for the findings.—Ramchandra Govind v. Sono Sada Shiv, 19 B. 551.

A Judge having remanded a case for further evidence to be taken and a fresh finding to be recorded on a question of fact, is bound to examine the correctness of the finding, and to state in his judgment the reasons for which he either accepts or rejects it.—Kunhi Marakkar v. Kutli Umma, 20 M. 496.

Failure to comply with the requirements of this rule.—When the first appellate Court has failed to comply with the requirements of this rule, the proper form of order to be made by the second appellate Court is to set aside the decree and remand the case to the first appellate Court for disposal according to law. If the Judge of the Court to which the case is remanded is the Judge who heard the appeal in the first instance, he need not re-hear the appeal unless he is of opinion that he cannot dispose of the remanded case without a re-hearing. But where the Judge of the Court to which the case is remanded is not the Judge who heard the appeal in the first instance, a re-hearing is always necessary in order that there may be a compliance with the order of the second appellate Court that the case be disposed of according to law.—Saravana Pillai v. Sesha Reddi, 31 M. 469 (F. B.).

The omission by an appellate Court to comply strictly with the provisions of Or. XLI, r. 31 amounts to no more than an irregularity curable by S. 99 of the Code.—Musst. Lakhambai v. Musst. Devidai, 59 I. C. 673; Anandpal v. Mahabal, 1 Luck. 458; A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 95; 95 I. C. 925.

The question whether in a particular case there has been a substantial compliance with the provisions of this rule depends on the nature of the judgment delivered in each case. A non-compliance with the strict provisions of this rule may not vitiate the judgment and make it wholly void, and the regularity may be ignored if there has been a substantial compliance with and the second appellate Court is in a position to ascertain the findings of the lower appellate Court.—Durga v. Narain, A. I. R. 1931 All. 597 (F. B.): 9 A. L. J. 875.

Judgment affirming the decision of the trial Court.—A judgment of an appellate Court, affirming the decision of the trial Court, need not deal with the matter in dispute at the same length as would be necessary in a judgment of reversal.—Mahendra v. Ashutosh, 91 I. C. 478 · A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 545; Kulmutee v. Jowahur, 11 W. R. 318. But merely affirming the decision of the lower Court without deciding the case is not a proper judgment.—Nilma, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 408. See also Nitya Gopal, A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 454 : 133 I. C. 672.

The appellate Court must state in its judgment its own reasons and should not confine itself to approving of the reasons of the first Court, because the judgment must show on the face of it that the points in dispute were clearly before the mind of the Judge and that he exercised his own discretion in deciding them. Where this is not done, the High Court in second appeal will set aside the decree and send back the case to the lower appellate Court for disposal according to law.—Ramchand v. Ram Rattan, 12 I. C. 670 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 655 : 10 L. L. J. 257; Harnama v. Phania, 124 I. C. 346 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 152, Qasim Ali v. Hans Raj, 112 I. C. 698.

Where the judgment of the lower appellate Court did not indicate the points for determination which are to be found invariably in the grounds of appeal, its decision on those points and also the reasons for its decision, but merely stated that the evidence had been well discussed by the lower Court and should not be rejected, the judgment was not in accordance with law.—Anandpal v. Mahabal, 1 Luck. 458 : 95 I. C. 925 : A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 95 : 29 O. C. 380; Phulraj v. Abhilakh, 112 I. C. 845 : A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 374 : 5 O. W. N. 699. But an omission to refer in the judgment to every detail of evidence adduced by the appellant is not a ground for setting aside the appellate Court's judgment.—Zahid Ali, A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 480 : 5 O. W. N. 893.

Very great responsibility rests on the Court of first appeal, which is the ultimate Court on questions of fact, to write a judgment from which it may be clear to everybody concerned, that before recording findings of fact it did apply its mind to the materials upon the record relevant to the enquiry.—Bharat Bhai v. Jai Narain, 108 I. C. 129 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 102 : 27 A. L. J. 1102.

Where the judgment of the lower appellate Court was in the following terms :—"On the evidence on record this Court does not find reasons to disagree with the decision of the trial Court and the appeal is dismissed." Held, that the judgment should be set aside and the case remanded to that Court for fresh hearing and disposal.—Sri Ranganatha v. Raja Gopalachariar, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 16.

Where decree is reversed or varied—Relief must be stated.—It is the duty of the appellate Court when it reverses the decision of the first

Court, and more especially when the judgment of the first Court is full and cogent, to point out the grounds on which it comes to a different conclusion. Where a District Judge had omitted to do so and, having left the country, could not be required to supply the omission, the High Court, being unable to make the ordinary presumption that he had fully considered the evidence, set aside his judgment, and remanded the case to be heard in appeal de novo—Kristo Chunder v. Ram Brohmo, 20 W. R. 403.

When an appellate Court upholds the decree of the first Court for reasons different from those given by the lower Court, it must specify in the decree the exact modifications necessary according to its conclusions.—Lachho v. Har Sahai, 12 A. 46.

A decree of an appellate Court, not specifying the relief granted, but merely repeating the judgment that the "appeal be decreed," is not a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the law.—Hursarun v. Pursun Singh, 2 N. W. P. 415; Bell v. Guru Das Roy, 1 B. L. R. A. C. 50.

Appeal to Privy Council.—Non-compliance with the requirements of this rule is not a ground for appeal to the Privy Council.—Sundar Bibi v. Bisheshar Nath, 9 A. 93 (F. B.).

Appeals under S. 476, Cr. P. Code.—Such appeals are regulated by Or. XLI of the C. P. Code and the judgment must comply with the provisions of this rule.—Hamid Ali v. Madhu, 54 C. 355; 100 I. C. 351; A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 284; 31 C. W. N. 281.

As to the applicability of the provisions of this rule when an appeal is summarily dismissed under r. 11, see the cases noted under r. 11 of this Order.

32. The judgment may be for confirming, varying or reversing the decree from which the appeal is preferred, or, if the parties to the appeal agree as to the form which the decree in appeal shall take, or as to the order to be made in appeal, the Appellate Court may pass a decree or make an order accordingly. [S. 577.]

What judgment may direct.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 577, C. P. Code, with the substitution of the word "preferred" for the word "made," which occurred in the old section. The use of the word "may" in this rule clearly indicates the discretionary power of the appellate Court.

"If the parties agree as to the form of decree in appeal, appellate Court may pass a decree accordingly."—Where an application purporting to contain terms of a compromise was presented to the High Court by one of the parties to an appeal before it, but on the so-called solehnama being sent down to the lower Court for verification, it was found that the attendance of the parties for that purpose could not be procured, held, that the High Court was not justified in passing a decree under S. 577, C. P. Code, 1882, in accordance with the terms of the unverified solehnama.—Bandhu Bhagat v. Muhammad Taqi, 14 A. 350. Once an appeal is preferred from a decree the appellate Court becomes seized of the entire proceedings and becomes vested with the jurisdiction of confirming, varying and reversing the decree from which the appeal is preferred.—Abid Ali v. Har Pershad, 5 Luck. 359 : 119 I. C. 462 : A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 13 : G O. W. N. 644. The appellate Court has power to declare that the suit had abated.—Manohar v. Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab, 10 L. 691 : 118 I. C. 436 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 173.

Where an execution sale is set aside in appeal but the purchaser offers to satisfy the entire decree if the sale should be left intact, it was held that the Court could pass an order to that effect.—Mahomed Abdulla v. Sakhamam, 54 B 348 : 125 I. C. 903 : A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 290 : 32 Bom. L. R. 436.

33. The Appellate Court shall have power to pass any decree and make any order which ought to have been passed or made and to pass or make such further or other decree or order as the case may require, and this power may be exercised by the Court notwithstanding that the appeal is as to part only of the decree and may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties, although such respondents or parties may not have filed any appeal or objection. [New.]

Provided that the Appellate Court shall not make any order under S. 35-A, in pursuance of any objection on which the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has omitted or refused to make such order.

COMMENTARY.

Object and scope of the rule.—This rule is new. It has been taken for the most part from Or. LVIII, r. 4 of the Rules of the Supreme Court of Judicature in England. It should be read with r. 4 of this Order. By the addition of this rule, the power of the appellate Court has been enlarged.

The object of introducing this rule in the present Code will appear from the following report of the Special Committee :—

"The Committee consider it most important that an appellate Court should have the fullest power to do complete justice between the parties. The illustration indicates a type of case for which provision is intended to be made."

This rule has virtually superseded 27 A. 23, 23 M. 229, and other cases in which similar view was taken and has adopted the principle laid down in 31 C. 643 (F. B.), 8 C. W. N. 496. All those cases are noted under r. 4 of this Order under the heading "Decree against some of the defendants—Alteration of decree by appellate Court."

The proviso to this rule has been added by the C. P. Code (Amendment) Act (IX of 1922).

Cases to which the rule applies.—Although the terms of Or. XLI, r. 33 are very wide and they do confer on an appellate Court wide powers for the purpose of making such decree or order as the exigencies of the case or the ends of justice may require, still, ordinarily, the powers contained in r. 33 should be limited to those cases where, as a result of the appellate Court's interference with a decree in favour of the appellant, a further interference is required in order to adjust the rights of the parties in accordance with justice, equity and good conscience.—Nandalal v. Mukundalal, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 57 : 89 I. C. 24 (44 C. 759 (P. C.) : 34 M. L. J. 361 (P. C.) expld. ; 22 C. L. J. 390 : 28 C. L. J. 123 folld.) ; Bikram v. Mohit, 64 I. C. 178 ; Abjal Majhi v. Intu Bepari, 22 C. L. J. 394 ; Manal Shaikh v. Mahammad Golam Nabi, 113 I. C. 32 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 488 ; Punjab National Bank v. Umadatt, 9 L. 291 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 599 : 112 I. C. 425 ; Govind v. Ramcharan, 68 I. C. 307.

Where the trial Court passed an order of mandamus under S. 45, Specific Relief Act against the defendant instead of giving a declaratory decree claimed by the plaintiffs, the appellate Court, if it was of opinion that no order of mandamus could be granted, was nevertheless entitled to pass a decree for declaration as originally prayed for, if the Court deemed it proper.—Trustees for the Development of the City of Rangoon v. G. S. Behara, 10 R. 412 (F. B.) : A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 123 : 139 I. C. 566.

Under Or. XLI, r. 33, the appellate Court may pass any order it thinks fit in appeal, though the appeal does not extend to the whole of the decree appealed against and though the power is exercised in favour of any respondent or any party who has not objected before it to the decree. The section is to be given a liberal interpretation. But the power must be exercised in the interest and for the furtherance of justice, and not as a mode of evading other statutory rules and orders.—Bhutnath v. Sashimukhi, 30 C. W. N. 885 : 96 I. C. 474 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1042 ; Narain Singh v. Kaiwan, 95 I. C. 957 : 3 O. W. N. 299 : A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 304. See also Kadiraya v. Kamalu, (1928) M. W. N. 74 ; Rukia v. Mewa Lal, 51 A. 63 : 111 I. C. 751 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 746 : 26 A. L. J. 1139. Where the execution sale is set aside in appeal but the purchaser offers to satisfy the entire decree if the sale should be left intact, it was held that the Court could pass orders to that effect.—Mahomed v. Sakharan, 54 B. 348 : 125 I. C. 903 : A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 290 : 32 Bom. L. R. 436.

An appellate Court does not exceed the powers given to it by this rule by interfering with a portion of the decree not included in the appeal, where it adopts the principle on which the decision of the first Court was based, and makes an order which it considers ought to have been made by the said Court on the basis of that principle.—Gobind v. Jai Gopal, 72 I. C. 96.

This rule is applicable to all cases where an appeal is heard after this Code came into force.—Chandramathi v. Narayanasami, 33 M. 241. It is open to the appellate Court to vary the decree appealed against either in points (if any) in which it is erroneous or in respect of supplemental matters which are admitted.—Sakharam Mahadeo v. Hari Krishna, 6 B. 113, 115. The Courts, in the exercise of the powers conferred by this rule should not lose sight of the other provisions of the Code, nor of the Court-fees Act, nor of the Limitation Act. It should in particular bear in mind the case stated in the illustration.—Rangam Lal v. Jhandu, 34 A. 32 (F. B.) (distd. in Gobind v. Jai Gopal, 72 I. C. 96). See also Abjal Majhi v. Intu Bepari, 22 C. L. J. 394; Akimannessa v. Bepin Behari, 23 C. L. J. 397; Shib Chandra v. Dulcken, 28 C. L. J. 123; 48 I. C. 78.

This rule does not give a right to a respondent to urge something in his favour against another respondent which has nothing to do with the result of the appeal, without his filing an appeal or memorandum of objection himself.—Ramalingam v. Subramania, 50 M. 614; A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 620: (1928) M. W. N. 202; 103 I. C. 394.

Where pending a suit for administration of the estate of the deceased, X applied to be made a defendant claiming to be the adopted son of the deceased and the trial Court in an interlocutory order held that the adoption was not proved and the appeal preferred by X against this order was dismissed as premature, and thereafter on preliminary decree being passed, other parties appealed but X neither appealed nor filed any cross-objection when he was made a respondent by the other parties; it was held that it was not possible to reverse the finding against him in the absence of cross-objection and the memorandum of the previous appeal could not be considered as his cross-objection in the subsequent appeal by the other parties.—U Po Tha v. Maung Tin, 8 B. 480; 129 I. C. 524; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 237.

Where upon a decree passed against several persons only some of them had appealed so far as their interests were concerned and the others were content with the decree and admitted the claim of the party, the appellate Court has no jurisdiction under this rule to reverse that part of the decree which was not appealed against.—Venkatakrishnayya v. China Veerareddi, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1144; Piari Lal v. Saraswati, 123 I. C. 381; 28 A. L. J. 1298.

Where the appellate Court reversed the mortgage-decree and gave a money-decree instead of a mortgage-decree inspite of the fact that the defendants had not appealed nor filed a cross-objection, it was held that the appellate Court had no power under this rule to take such an action and had acted ultra vires—Vithoba v. Bhangi, 112 I. C. 893; A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 322.

Assuming that the appellate Court may have power, in a proper case, to add a defendant as respondent under this rule for the purpose of passing a decree against him, it could not do so, so as to deprive him of a valuable right acquired by the plaintiff's failure to appeal against him in time.—V. P. R. V.
7: 6 R. 29 (P. O.): 32 C. W. N. 291;

The powers under this rule cannot be exercised to the detriment or prejudice of an absent respondent against whom the suit has been dismissed in the lower Court.—Sakti Prasanna v. Naliniranjan, 59 C. 923; 193 I. C. 177; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 738.

A suit against A and B was decreed against A with costs and dismissed against B except as to costs. Both A and B appealed but the plaintiff did not appeal. The High Court in appeal made a decree reducing the sum payable by A and dismissing the suit against B. The plaintiff appealed to the Privy Council. It was held that so far as B was concerned, the appeal being in effect direct from the trial Judge, was not competent under the Code or under the Letters Patent and Or. XLI, and r. 33 is not intended to apply to such an appeal.—Mahomed Khaleel v. Leo Tanneries Lyonnaises, 53 I. A. 84: 49 M. 435 (P. C.): 31 C. W. N. 1: 94 I. C. 767. The effect of this Privy Council decision is that if a case arrives at the higher appellate tribunal in such a state that to deal with it would involve hearing directly an appeal from the first Court without the intervention of the lower appellate Court, that course cannot be permitted; therefore where one of the parties had been given up in the lower appellate Court, no relief can be granted under Or. XLI, r. 33 against him in second appeal.—Gangayya v. Venkayya, (1929) M. W. N. 112. But where the trial Court passed a decree against one of two defendants and dismissed the suit as against the other and the defendant against whom the decree was passed appealed making the plaintiff and the second defendant party respondents but the plaintiff did not appeal against the dismissal, this rule is applicable and under it the appellate Court is competent to pass a decree against the second defendant.—Majar Ali v. Nabin, 35 C. W. N. 1079. See Patiram v. Sadashee, 132 I. C. 459: A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 97, Khusiram v. Balakram, 130 I. C. 774: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 370.

Where an appellate Court is seized of the whole case on appeal, it can make such orders as are necessary to terminate the controversies and to do justice between the parties by making the necessary alterations in the decree of the lower Court.—Govind Dass v. Ram Charan, 4 U. P. L. R. 25: 68 I. C. 307. The object of this rule is to enable the Court to do complete justice between the parties to the appeal and therefore, where it is essential, in order to grant relief to an appellant, that some relief should at the same time be granted to the respondent also, the Court may grant that relief to the respondent although he has not filed an appeal or preferred an objection.—Magsud v. Sheikh Abdullah, 50 A. 218: 103 I. C. 728: A. I. R. 1928 All. 77: 25 A. L. J. 1017.

The appellate Court is entitled to grant relief to a defendant who could have appealed but has not done so.—Tamizan v. Nanhey Lal, 117 I. C. 111: A. I. R. 1929 All. 334; Naresk v. Hayder, 49 C. L. J. 83, 89: 115 I. C. 180: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 28; Subramania v. Sinnammal, 53 M. 881 (F. B.): 127 I. C. 624: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 801: 59 M. L. J. 634: (1930) M. W. N. 798: 32 L. W. 395. See also Gangama v. Veerappa, 131 I. C. 833: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 513; Ganga Prasad v. Hardei, 133 I. C. 536: A. I. R. 1932 All. 32. Where a party brings a suit claiming $\frac{2}{3}$ th of the property as his share as an heir to his father and the Court allows only $\frac{1}{2}$ and when in an appeal by the other party the person is found entitled to $\frac{2}{3}$ th share in view of the change in the law introduced by a ruling published subsequent to the decision of the lower Court, the High Court has power to correct the lower Court's mistake of law even though the person has not appealed against the lower Court's decision allowing him only $\frac{1}{2}$ share.—Ma San Nyun v. Maung Tint, 127 I. C. 597: A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 190. The appellate Court can increase the rate of alimony payable to a wife even though she has not preferred an appeal for that purpose.—Iswarayya v. Iswarayya, 58 I. A. 350: 54 M. 774 (P. C.): 35

A Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court, in a case where the plaintiff sued the defendant for rent and obtained a decree for a portion of his claim and the plaintiff then appealed against the disallowance of the balance of the amount but the defendant submitted to the decree and neither filed a cross appeal or took objection under r. 22, has held that it was not competent to the appellate Court acting under r. 33 to interfere with the decree obtained by the plaintiff so far as it had not been challenged by the defendant.—Rangam Lal v. Jhandu, 34 A. 32 (F. B.). See also Abjal Majhi v. Intu Bepari, 22 C. L. J. 394. Where a mortgage suit against the mortgagor and a transferee from him was decreed, the mortgagor not appearing at the trial, but on appeal by the transferee, the suit was dismissed against the defendants on the ground that the mortgage-deed was not legally attested, it was held that although the lower appellate Court had jurisdiction to dismiss the whole suit under this rule, it ought to have in a case of this character confined the dismissal to the case against the transferee.—Abinash v. Dasarath, 56 C. 593 : 32 C. W. N. 1223 : 43 C. L. J. 291 : 114 I. C. 84 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 123.

Where a suit for contribution was decreed against three defendants, and one of them appealed, the appellate Court can under this rule set aside the decree against the appealing defendant and pass a further decree on the other two for the sum previously charged upon the appellant.—Bejoy v. Kusum, 33 C. W. N. 221 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 315.

A decree was passed for varying amounts against three defendants, of whom two only appealed, the third being made a party to the appeal. Held, that it was competent to the appellate Court to modify the decree in favour of the defendant who had not appealed by decreasing the whole sum due to the plaintiffs against the defendants who had.—Jawahar Bano v. Shujaat Husain, 43 A. 85 : 18 A. L. J. 925 ; Mohsham Ali v. Muloo, 24 A. L. J. 536 : 94 I. C. 347 ; Man Han v. R. M. A. L. Firm, 4 R. 110 : 97 I. C. 876 : A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 172. See Tricomdas v. Gopinath, 44 C. 759 (769) (P. C.) : 44 I. A. 65 : 19 Bom. L. R. 450 : 32 M. L. J. 357 : 15 A. L. J. 217 : 39 I. C. 166

Where in a suit on a mortgage, a preliminary decree is passed specifying the separate liability of each property for a separate sum and only some of the defendants appeal in respect of a part of the decree, the appellate Court could not by virtue of Or. XLI, r. 33, C. P. Code have dismissed the suit against those defendants who were not parties to the appeal and had in fact submitted to the decree.—Gyan Singh v. Ata Husain, 43 A. 320 : 19 A. L. J. 83.

It is not competent to an appellate Court to interfere with the decree obtained by the appellant in so far as it has not been challenged by the respondent by way of appeal or cross-objections.—Ram Lal Johari Mal v. Dip Chand, 3 L. L. J. 231 : 60 I. C. 705.

An appellate Court can grant relief to an appellant as against a defendant against whom there is no appeal. But the power conferred by Or. XLI, r. 33 should be exercised in cases where, as the result of an appellate Court, interference in favour of the appellant further interference is required to adjust the rights of the parties in accordance with justice, equity and good conscience.—Bikram Kumar v. Mohit Krishna, 64 I. C. 178.

In a suit for ejectment against tenants in possession of the land purchased by the plaintiff or in the alternative for compensation against his vendor, the first Court dismissed the suit against the tenants and awarded compensation against the vendor. The plaintiff did not appeal but the vendor appealed. The Court of Appeal, in decreeing the appeal in favour of the vendor, could give the plaintiff a decree for possession and mesne profits against the tenants.—Charu Bala v. Nihar Kumari, 46 C. L. J. 247: 105 I. C. 600: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 831.

Where there is a common defence the appellate Court may dismiss a suit as against a defendant who has not appealed.—Mohsham v. Mulu, 48 A. 551: 94 I. C. 347: A. I. R. 1927 All. 37; but not where there is no common defence.—Munawar v. Jagmilan, 99 I. C. 280: A. I. R. 1927 All. 177.

"Such respondents or parties."—The use of the expression "respondents or parties" shows that the appellate Court may pass an order in favour of the respondents who have not appealed, and it may similarly decide any question in favour of a party, by which is meant a party to the suit and who is not a respondent in the appeal. The illustration to the rule does not limit the rule and is not intended to illustrate its full scope.—Bhutnath v. Sashimukhi, 30 C. W. N. 885: 96 I. C. 474: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1042. The word "parties" in this rule is intended to connote persons other than those who have been arrayed as appellants or respondents in the appeal. A decree can therefore be passed in favour but not against a person who is not a party to the appeal.—Madan Lal v. Gajendrapal, 51 A. 575: 116 I. C. 436: 27 A. L. J. 344: A. I. R. 1929 All. 243 (doubting Rukia v. Mewa Lal, 51 A. 63: 111 I. C. 751: A. I. R. 1928 All. 746).

Appellate Court is competent to take cognizance of events happened since the decree or order challenged was passed.—It is not only competent to a Court of Appeal but it may be its duty to take notice of events which have happened subsequently to the passing of the decree or order appealed against; and such events when not appearing in the record may be proved by extrinsic evidence.—Ram Ratan v. Mohant Sahu, 6 C. L. J. 74: 11 C. W. N. 732 (6 B. 113, 16 M. 350, 1 Bom. L. R. 218, 25 B. 606, 11 A. 148 referred to); Ahmadji v. Mahamadji, 1 Bom. L. R. 288. See also Hazari Mull v. Janaki, 6 C. L. J. 92; Ramya Sahu v. Bindewari, 6 C. L. J. 102; Udit Chobey v. Rashika Prasad, 6 C. L. J. 663; Nuri v. Ambica, 44 C. 47: 20 C. W. N. 1099; Amrit Lal v. Kanti Lal, 133 I. C. 244: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 280: 33 Bom. L. R. 266; Pandurang v. Ramchandraro, 54 B. 902: 130 I. C. 385: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 554: 32 Bom. L. R. 1252. An appellate Court has to decide a case as it was presented before the trial Court and on a consideration of which the original judgment is based; but if the right claimed is one which has either ceased to exist or been modified by certain events which have transpired since the decree of the trial Court, the Court is bound to take notice of it in order to give just and proper relief to the parties to the appeal before it; and upon similar considerations Or. XLI, r. 33 empowers a Court of Appeal to make such a decree or order as the case may require. Therefore where a suit for ejectment was instituted at a time when the Rent Act of 1920 was in operation but when the matter came up before the lower appellate Court, the Rent Act had expired, it was held that the temporary Act running out ceased to have effect upon the proceedings and the case must be decided in accordance with the general law under the Transfer of Property Act.—Suresh v. Kantichandra, 47 C. L. J 530 : 110 I. C 715 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 436.

Proviso.—The proviso was added by Act IX of 1922. It provided that where, in pursuance of any objection, the lower Court has omitted or refused to make any order as to compensatory costs under S. 35-A, the appellate Court shall not make any order as to such omission or refusal.

34. Where the appeal is heard by more Judges than one, any Judge dissenting from the judgment of the Court shall state in writing the decision or order which he thinks should be passed on the appeal, and he may state his reasons for the same. [S. 576.]

Dissent to be recorded

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S 576, C. P. Code, 1832, with the substitution of the word "where" for "when" in the beginning.

See notes under S. 98.

(3) The decree shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the appeal, and by whom, or out of what property, and in what proportions such costs and the costs in the suit are to be paid.

(4) The decree shall be signed and dated by the Judge or Judges who passed it :

Provided that where there are more Judges than one and there is a difference of opinion among them, it shall not be necessary for any Judge dissenting from the judgment of the Court to sign the decree.

Judge dissenting from judgment need not sign decree.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 579, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

Sub-rule (1) exactly corresponds to para. 1 of the old section.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of the old section, with some additions, alterations and omissions. The words "and the memorandum of appeal" which stood after the words "the number of the appeal" in the old section, have been omitted. The result of the omission seems to be that the appellate decree need not contain the memorandum of appeal. By the above omission the ministerial officers of the Civil Courts have been relieved of a great deal of clerical work. But Form No. 9 of Sch. I, App. G which is the form of the decree in appeal, has not been amended in accordance with this omission. The forms are not intended to override the express provision of the law. See notes under Or. XLVIII, r. 3. The words "and a clear specification of the relief granted or other adjudication made" have been substituted for the words "and shall specify clearly the relief granted or other determination of the appeal," which occurred in the old section. This alteration is simply a change of words and phrases.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 3 of the old section with some additions and alterations. The words "by whom" have been substituted for the words "by what parties" which occurred in the old section; and the words "out of what property" have been added after the words "by whom."

Sub-rule (4) exactly corresponds to para. 4 of the old section.

The proviso also corresponds to the proviso of the old section with the substitution of the word "and" for the word "if".

Effect of appellate decree—Relief granted.—Where the appellate Court has modified the decree of the Court below, the decree of the appellate Court supersedes entirely that of the lower Court, and is the only decree capable of execution.—Shohrat Singh v. Bridgman, 4 A. 376 (F. B.); Muhammad Sulaiman v. Muhammed Yar Khan, 11 A. 267 (F. B.); Muhammad Sulaiman v. Fatima, 11 A. 314 (F. B.); Nourang Rai v. Latif Chaudhri, 13 A. 394; Shivlal v. Jumak Lall, 18 B. 542; Sakhalchand v. Velehand, 18 B. 203; Nanchand v. Vitku, 19 B. 258; Daulat v. Bhukandas, 11 B. 173; Noor Ali v. Koni Meah, 13 C. 13; Kistokinker v. Burroda Caunt, 10 B. L. R. 101 (P. C.); Manavikraman v. Unniappan, 15 M. 170; Jawahir Mal v. Kistur Chand, 13 A. 343; Pichuvayyangan v. Seshayyangan, 18 M. 214 (F. B.); Mul Chand v. Ram Ratan, 20 A. 493. See also the case noted under Or. XXI, r. 11, under the heading "Final decree susceptible of execution."

Sections 579 and 587, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 85, S. 109), do not require the claim to be stated in the decree so as to make such statement a part of the decree itself.—Soude Shrinivasapa v. Krishnappa, 11 B. 177.

A decree takes priority over other decrees in respect of the date on which it was passed, and not in respect of the priority of the debt which it enforces.—Gheran v. Kunj Behari, 9 A. 413.

The date which the decree should bear is the date on which the judgment is pronounced.—Parbati v. Bhola, 12 A. 79.

Where the decree of the appellate Court did not specify the sums that would be due to the appellant under that decree, except by reference to the judgment on which it was based, and to the decree of the first Court, held that, though the decree was informal, yet as the amount due to the decree-holder was ascertainable from the record, and the decree was capable of execution, execution should, as a matter of equity, be granted to the decree-holder.—Jawahir Mal v. Kistur Chand, 13 A. 343.

Pending an appeal in a partition suit, one of the defendants died, and the plaintiff became entitled to a larger share on account of his death. Held that the appellate Court had power to vary the decree by giving the plaintiff his larger share.—Sakharam Mahadev v. Hari Krishna, 6 B. 113.

After the disposal of an appeal, and before preparation of decree, a Court has power to direct the plaintiff to correct the valuation and pay additional Court-fees on his memorandum of appeal.—Mahmood, J., contra in Mahadei v. Ram Kishen, 7 A. 528.

Decree in cross-appeals.—The law contemplates that there should be only one decree in one suit except in certain cases in which the Code lays down that there may or must be two decrees (one preliminary and one final); and the function of the appellate Court is to determine what decree the Court below ought to have made, and it follows that, where the trial Court has passed only one decree, there can be substituted for that decree only one decree, should the case come up on appeal; so, while it may be that for purposes of procedure, and in order to formally complete the records it may be necessary in the case of cross appeals to draw up a separate decree in each case, there is, in fact, only one and the same decree which ought to be incorporated with each appellate record.—Nannu v. Nazim, 50 A. 517: A. I. R. 1928 All. 274: 26 A. L. J. 258: 113 I. C. 93.

Costs.—When an appellate Court decrees an appeal and gives costs of its own Court, the costs of the first Court should be included in the decree.—Mohomed Busseeroollah v. Ram Kant, 16 W. R. 266.

Where a decree is confirmed in appeal upon grounds wholly different from those relied on in the lower Court, the proper course is to dismiss the appeal without costs.—Fischer v. Kamala Naicker, 8 M. I. A. 170: 3 W. R. (P. C.) 33

Section 360, Act VIII of 1859 (this rule), only requires the Judge of an appellate Court to state in his decision by what parties (and in what proportions if necessary) the costs of the original suit, which he must take for granted, are to be paid; but not to go into particulars, or append to his judgment a schedule setting forth the different items which make up the costs of the first Court.—Mothoora Mohun v. Hury Kishore, 18 W. R. 286 (reversing on review, 17 W. R. 445).

Where a decree of the High Court awards costs, the order is not bad in law simply because it does not specify the exact amount to be paid as costs of the lower Court. Such specification is not rendered incumbent by Act VIII of 1859, S. 360 (this rule), which only requires a Court of Appeal to declare the proportions in which the costs are to be paid where more parties than one are made liable.—Raj Krishno v. Pranoda Debee, 21 W. R. 74.

An appellate Court finally determining a suit is bound to decide by which of the parties before it the costs shall be borne; it is not at liberty to declare that the costs shall be borne by the unsuccessful party in a suit to be hereafter brought.—Kashee Chunder v. Bungshee Buddun, 23 W. R. 89.

Chartered High Courts.—This rule does not apply to Chartered High Courts in the exercise of their appellate jurisdiction (Or. XLIX, r. 3).

Form.—For Form of decree in appeal, see App. G, Form No. 9.

Copies of judgment and decree to be furnished to parties.

36. Certified copies of the judgment and decree in appeal shall be furnished to the parties on application to the Appellate Court and at their expense. [S. 580.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 580, of the C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the word "Appellate" before the word "Court."

37. A copy of the judgment and of the decree certified by the Appellate Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, shall be sent to the Court which passed the decree appealed from and shall be filed with the original proceedings in the suit, and an entry of the judgment of the Appellate Court shall be made in the register of civil suits. [S. 581.]

Certified copy of decree to be sent to Court whose decree appealed from.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 581, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "from" for the word "against."

Object.—This section simply specifies how an appellate decree is to be dealt with, and inter alia, it goes on to say that such decree shall be filed with the original proceedings in the suit, and an entry of the judgment of the appellate Court shall be made in the register of civil suits.—Kassa Mal v. Gopi, 10 A. 389, 392.

The reason for sending a certified copy of the appellate decree to the lower Court is, that the decree of the appellate Court completely supersedes the decree of the lower Court, and is the only decree capable of execution.—Muhammad Sulaiman v. Muhammad Yar Khan, 11 A. 267 and Muhammad Sulaiman v. Fatima, 11 A. 314. See also Nourang Rai v. Latif Chaudhri, 13 A. 394 (4 A. 376 followed).

ORDER XLII.

APPEALS FROM APPELLATE DECREES.

Procedure.

1. The rules of Or. XLI shall apply, so far as may be, to appeals from appellate decrees.

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to the first part of S. 597, C. P. Code, 1882; and it should be read with S. 108 of the Code under which all the rulings have been noted.

Second appeals.—See notes under Ss. 100, 102, 103, 107 and 108, and the notes under the preceding Or. XLI.

It is necessary that every second appeal preferred shall be accompanied by a copy of the decree of the lower appellate Court with the memorandum of second appeal.—Hakam Beg v. Rahim Shah, 100 I. C. 810: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 912.

Presentation of second appeal without copy of first Court's judgment, if valid.—A memorandum of second appeal must be accompanied not only by the copies specified in Or. XLI, r. 1, C. P. Code, but also by a copy of the judgment of the Court of first instance, and where the latter is filed after the expiry of the period of limitation, the appeal must be dismissed as time-barred unless just cause is shown for extending the period.—Dyala v. Hiru, 67 I. C. 670; Bhairon v. Ram Autar, 19 A. L. J. 598 (F. B.); Mathra v. Ram Singh, 105 I. C. 689: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 747.

Under the rules framed by the Lahore High Court every memorandum of appeal in a second appeal must be accompanied by a copy of the judgment of the trial Court and a note by the appellant that the said copy is already in the High Court in another appeal arising out of the same proceedings is not a sufficient compliance with the rules; Naidar v. Bharti, 101 I. C. 776: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 423: 28 P. L. R. 272. See Ghulam Muhammad v. Rura, 104 I. C. 290: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 721.

Where there were two cases before the trial Court between the same parties and one judgment written and a brief order was passed in the connected matter stating the result for the reasons contained in the common judgment and in second appeal a copy of the brief order was filed but not the judgment, it was held that the appellant ought to have filed the judgment and his omission was fatal to the second appeal.—Mengha Ram v. Hadi Hussain, 111 I. C. 384.

Right of a party in first Court but not in first appeal to prefer a second appeal.—It is not competent for the defendants or plaintiffs who are not parties to the appeal in the Court below to file a second appeal. To permit such an appeal would really amount in effect to permitting an appeal against the decree of the trial Judge.—Raghu Lal v. Arjun Singh, 132 I. C. 205: A. I. R. 1931 All. 766: 29 A. L. J. 271.

Inherent power of High Court to remand in second appeal.—When the Court of first instance declined to record oral evidence tendered by the plaintiff on the ground that the documentary evidence produced by him was quite sufficient to prove his case and the decree passed in his favour was reversed in appeal, but the lower appellate Court declined to permit the plaintiff to produce oral evidence, it was held by the High Court that it had inherent power, ex debito justitiæ, to set aside the proceedings of both the Courts below and to direct the first Court to re-try the case.—Durga v. Anoraji, 17 A. 29; Kabal v. Rayani, 39 C. L. J. 261: 81 I. C. 999: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 98; Jeshankar v Bai Divali, 22 Bom. L. R. 771: 57 I. C. 525.

ORDER XLIII.

- (q) an order under r. 2, r. 3 or r. 6 of Or. XXXVIII;
- (r) an order under r. 1, r. 2, r. 4 or r. 10 of Or. XXXIX;
- (s) an order under r. 1 or r. 4 of Or. XL;

- (u) an order under r. 23 of Or. XLI remanding a case, where an appeal would lie from the decree of the Appellate Court;
- (v) an order made by any Court other than a High Court refusing the grant of a certificate under r. 6 of Or. XLV.
- (w) an order under r. 4 of Or. XLVII granting an application for review. [S. 588.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 588, C. P. Code, 1882, with additions, alterations and omissions.

"We suggest that there should be appeals from orders pronouncing judgment against a party under Or. VIII, r. 10, Or. X, r. 4, and Or. XVI, r. 20. These orders are under the present law appealable as decrees, but, having regard to the definition of a decree under the Code they would no longer be appealable in that way, and we think it necessary to make them appealable as orders. We have also given an appeal against an order made under r. 21 of Or. XI."—See the Report of the Select Committee.

The words within square brackets in Cl. (o) were substituted for the words "under r. 3 or r. 8," by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1930 (XVI of 1930).

Section 104.—This Order read with S. 104 (2), of which it is a part, makes it clear that no appeal shall lie from any order passed in appeal under this Order; that is, no second appeal will lie from orders passed in appeals under this Order.—See Naubat Singh v. Baldeo Singh 33 A. 479.

APPEALABLE ORDERS.

Clause (a)—an order under r. 10 of Or. VII returning a complaint to be presented to the proper Court;

r. 1.

Clause (a)—This clause corresponds to Cl. (6) of the old section with the omission of the words "returning plaints for amendment." Although in the present Code there is no express provision for returning plaints for amendment, S. 151 of the present Code is wide enough to include such a case.—See notes under that section. An order returning plaint for amendment is no longer appealable under this clause.

Where after the issues in a suit were framed, the Court decided that it had no jurisdiction, and returned the plaint to be presented in the proper Court; held that its decision was appealable under S. 580, C. P. Code, 1882, as an order.—Abdul Samed v. Rajendro Kisher, 2 A. 357. But where a plaint has been returned for presentation to the proper Court, it is not open to the plaintiff to appeal from the order, after he has taken back the plaint and refiled it in the Court directed.—Beni Madhub v. Jotendra Mohan, 5 C. L. J. 580: 11 C. W. N. 765.

Where an order returning a plaint for presentation to the proper Court is passed by a Court of Appeal, an appeal will lie from such order in the manner provided by S. 589 of the Code of 1882.—Wahidullah v. Kanhaya Lal, 25 A. 174 (F. B.) (3 A. 456 overruled). See also Chinnasami Pillai v. Karuppaudayan, 21 M. 234; Goor Bux v. Birj Lal, 26 C. 275: 3 C. W. N. 243; Venkatanarasu v. Kotayya, 97 I. C. 790: 51 M. L. J. 119: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 900. But see Hari Chand v. Madan Lal, 128 I. C. 491: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 839, in which it has been held that no appeal lies from such an order of the appellate Court.

When a Court of first instance returned a plaint to be presented to the proper Court and the Court of Appeal set aside such order, and directed the original Court to hear the cause; held, that the High Court had no jurisdiction to interfere with such appealable order.—Mathura Nath v. Umesh Chandra, 1 C. W. N. 626.

The first Court ordered the plaint to be returned, for want of jurisdiction, but the appellate Court holding that the first Court was competent to try the suit, made an order "decreeing the appeal." It subsequently made an additional order directing that the case "should be returned for re-trial." On appeal to the High Court from such additional order, held that the appeal would not lie, as it was in reality one from an order passed in appeal from an order returning a plaint, which, under the last clause of S. 588, C. P. Code, 1882, was final.—Kishna Ram v. Narsing Sevak, 3 A. 855.

A District Court transferred a suit for trial from one Subordinate Court to another. The Court to which the suit was transferred finding that the Court in which it was instituted was not the proper Court in which the suit should have been instituted, returned the plaint for presentation to the proper Court. Held that the order must be taken to have been passed under S. 57, C. P. Code, 1882, and was therefore appealable under this section.—Pachaoni Awasthi v. Ilahi Bakhsh, 4 A. 478.

A Munsif dismissed a suit on the ground that, if it had been properly valued, it would not have come within his jurisdiction. The District Judge affirmed the Munsif's judgment and directed the plaint to be returned under S. 57 for presentation to the proper Court. This was not done. Held, that a second appeal would lie.—Joynath v. Lall Bahadur, 8 C. 126: 10 C. L. R. 146.

After the suit had been admitted, and the parties called on to produce evidence, the Munsif ordered the plaint to be returned for presentation in the proper Court, on the ground that the suit should have been instituted in the Sub-Judge's Court. Held, that the Munsif's order was appealable to the lower appellate Court, and under Act X of 1877, the lower appellate Court's order, to the High Court.—Kalian Das v. Nawal Singh, 1 A. 620.

Orders amending plaints then and there, are not made appealable under this section of the Code.—Rajindra Kishore v. Radha Prasad, 3 A. 854.

No appeal lies against the order of an appellate Court returning a memorandum of appeal for presentation to the proper Court.—Raghunath Charan v. Shamo Koeri, 31 C. 344 (14 M. 462 dissented from); Nazar Husain v. Kesri Mal, 12 A. 581; Nuruddin v. Pran Kishan, 40 A. 659; Bankey Lal v. Meghraj, 19 A. L. J. 868 : 63 I. C. 951.

An application for a decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 6 cannot be considered to come under "plaint" and consequently an appeal does not lie under this rule from an order returning such application to be presented to the proper Court.—Bhup Singh v. Fateh Singh, A. I. R. 1931 All. 192 : 29 A. L. J. 893.

Clause (b)—an order under r. 10 of Or. VIII pronouncing judgment against a party ;

This clause corresponds to part of Cl. (10) of the old section.

Rule 10 of Or. VIII lays down the procedure when a party from whom a written statement is required by the Court fails to present the same within the time fixed by the Court. The Court may in such a case either pronounce judgment against the defaulting party or make such other order as the Court thinks proper. See notes under r. 10, Or. VIII.

Order XLIII, r. 1 (b) merely gives a right of appeal if a judgment has been
 : . . . : appeal lies under this rule from an order
 : . . . : by a party are sufficient and rejecting
 : . . . : for striking off his pleadings.—Jagat
 : . . . : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 77.

Clause (c)—an order under r. 9 of Or. IX rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit.

This clause corresponds to Cl. (8) of the old section with some verbal changes only. Rule 9 of Or. IX lays down the procedure for setting aside a decree passed against the plaintiff by default.

When a decree is made against a plaintiff by default under r. 8 of Or. IX, the following courses are open to him : viz., (1) he may apply to set aside the order of dismissal under r. 9 of Or. IX; (2) he may apply for review; (3) he may appeal from the decree dismissing the suit under S. 96 (see Gosto v. Hari Mohan, 8 C. W. N. 313, noted below, and the cases therein referred to); or (4) he may appeal under this clause. See notes under r. 9, Or. IX. The words "in a case open to appeal" exclude Small Cause Court suits and such other cases not open to appeal.

When the plaintiff's application under Or. IX, r. 9, C. P. Code, is rejected on the ground that the previous order of dismissal was under Or. XVII, r. 3 and not under Or. XVII, r. 2, the plaintiff is entitled to appeal against it under Or. XLIII, r. 1. — Syed Bakar Husain v. Mirza Hussain Mirza, 73 I. C. 373 : A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 223.

An order under S. 102, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r. 8), dismissing a suit, is as much a decree as an order under any other section deciding a suit. The order comes within the definition of a decree and is appealable as such. The mere fact that a further remedy is given under S. 588, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), does not bar an appeal. — Gosto Behary v. Hari Mohan, 8 C. W. N. 313 (9 A. 427 and 30 C. 660 (F. B.) : 7 C. W. N. 486 referred to).

No appeal lies against an order dismissing for default an application to set aside the dismissal of a suit for default under Or. IX, r. 9. — Bayjilal v. Rameshwar, 7 P. 333 : 109 I. C. 264 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 335.

No appeal lies from an order rejecting an application to restore to the suit under S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 2) or an application for default under S. 102, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r. 8). — Muddin, 27 C. 414; Raja v. Srinivasa, 11 M. 319; Ningappa v. Gangawa, 10 B. 483; and Jung Bahadur v. Mahadeo Prosad, 31 C. 207. 8 C. W. N. 160 (19 W. R. 122 followed). Followed in principle in Ghazati Bibi v. Abdal Samad, 29 A. 596: (1907) A. W. N. 186. See also Hara Kumar v. Murari Mohan, 36 C. L. J. 184 (19 C. W. N. 25 refd to) When a suit is dismissed at an adjourned hearing for plaintiff's non-appearance the dismissal is one under Or. XVII, r. 2 and is appealable under this clause. — Shrimant Sagajirao v. Smith, 20 B. 736

Where the Court dismissed an application for execution for want of prosecution and subsequently refused to restore the application there is no appeal from the order refusing to restore the application — Bharat Indu v. Asghar Ali Khan, 45 A. 148 : 21 A. L. J. 135.

Clause (d)—an order under r. 13 of Or. IX rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte;

This clause corresponds to Cl. (9) of the old section, with some additions and verbal alterations. See notes under r. 13, Or. IX. The words "in a case open to appeal" have been added, to exclude Small Cause Court suits and other cases in which no appeal lies.

An appeal lies under S. 534, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXVII, r. 4), from an order refusing to set aside an ex parte decree. — Luckmidas Vithaldas v. Ebrahim, 2 B. 644.

An appeal lies under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (d), against an order dismissing for default an application to set aside an ex parte decree. — Musst. Bodhia v. Ram Chandra, 101 I. C. 753. A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 240.

This clause applies to ex parte orders passed in execution proceedings. — Krishna Chandra v. Protap Chandra, 3 C. L. J. 276

There is no appeal from an order setting aside an ex parte decree.—Shama Dass v. Hurbuns Narain, 16 C. 426; Tasaddug Husain v. Hayatunnissa, 25 A. 280; Beera Ram v. Mitha Ram, 103 P. R. 1905: 45 P. L. R. 1906; Ujaggar Singh v. Sohan Singh, A. I. R. 1927 Lab. 775.

No appeal will lie from an order made under S. 157 (Or. XVII, r. 2) read with S. 108 (Or. IX, r. 13), C. P. Code, 1892, setting aside a decree passed ex parte in default of appearance of the defendant on a day to which the hearing of the suit had been adjourned.—Bhaywan v. Hira, 19 A. 355 (23 C. 738, referred to).

An order refusing to set aside an ex parte order in execution proceedings was held appealable.—Krishna Chandra v. Protap Chandra, 3 C. L. J. 276.

An appeal lies from an order rejecting the application for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte, when the order is made because the conditions which were lawfully imposed on the defendants were not complied with.—Naryan v. Vaikunt, 28 Bom. L. R. 1245; A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 1 (F. B.) (Fakirgouda v. Vishundas, 28 Bom. L. R. 578 overruled).

No appeal lies from an order passed by a Land Acquisition Judge dismissing an application under Or. IX, r. 13 for setting aside an ex parte award.—Rajendra Nath v. Kamal Krishna, 36 C. W. N. 352 (following Hasun Molla v. Tasiruddin, 39 C. 393 and Banshidhur v. Secretary of State, 54 C. 312).

Clause (e)—an order under r. 4 of Or. X pronouncing judgment against a party;

This clause corresponds to Cl. (10) of the old section. Rule 4 of Or. X (S. 120 of the old Code) lays down that where a pleader refuses or is unable to answer any material question relating to the suit, the Court may direct the party to appear in person and in default pronounce judgment against him.—See notes under r. 4, Or. X.

Clause (f)—an order under r. 21 of Or. XI;

This clause is new. An order under r. 21 of Or. XI has been held to be a decree and hence the order has been made appealable. Vide 19 B. 307, 7 A. 159, and 6 C. L. J. 374, noted under r. 21 of Or. XI.

Rule 21, Or. XI, which corresponds to S. 136 of the old Code, lays down that where a party fails to comply with an order to answer interrogatories, for discovery or inspection, then his suit (if plaintiff) is liable to be dismissed and if defendant, his defence shall be struck out.

An order refusing to strike out a defence is one under Or. XI, r. 11, and is appealable.—Jnanada Prosad v. Falkur, 34 I. C. 220: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 428: 126 I. C. 781.

Clause (g)—an order under r. 10 of Or. XVI for the attachment of property;

This clause corresponds to part of Cl. (14) of the old section.

r. 1.

Rule 10 of Or. XVI, which corresponds to S. 168, C. P. Code, 1882, lays down the procedure for attachment of property of an absconding witness.—See notes under Or. XVI, r. 10.

Clause (h)—an order under r. 20 of Or. XVI pronouncing judgment against a party;

This clause corresponds to part of Cl. (10) of the old section. Rule 20 of Or. XVI (S. 177 of the old Code) empowers the Court to pronounce judgment against a party who being present in Court refuses, without lawful excuse, to give evidence or produce any document then and there in his possession.—See notes under r. 20, Or. XVI.

Clause (i)—an order under r. 34 of Or. XXI on an objection to the draft of a document or of an endorsement;

This clause corresponds to Cl. (15) of the old section. Rule 34 of Or. XXI (S. 216 of the old Code) relates to decree for execution of document.

Clause (j)—an order under r. 72 or r. 92 of Or. XXI setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale.

This clause corresponds to Cl. (16) of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. Rule 72 of Or. XXI (S. 294 of the old Code) prohibits the decree-holder to bid for or buy property without permission, and r. 92 makes orders under rr. 89, 90 and 91 (Ss 310-A, 311 and 313 of the old Code) appealable as orders.

The question whether an order under Or. XXI, r. 66 fixing the value of a property to be sold in execution has been fully discussed in the notes to that rule under heading "Appeal."

Similarly, the question of appealability of orders setting aside or refusing to set aside sales under Or. XXI, r. 89 has been discussed in the notes to that rule under heading "Appeal against order under this rule."

The effect of the introduction of fraud as a ground for setting aside a sale in an application under Or. XXI, r. 90 on the question of appealability of an order setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale has been explained in the notes to that rule.

See also notes to Or. XXI, r. 92 under heading "Appeals from orders passed under this rule" and "Revision."

No appeal lies from an order passed by a District Judge setting aside a sale in execution of an ex parte rent decree valued at less than Rs. 100.—Monmohini v. Lakhinarain, 28 C. 116 (27 C. 484 followed).

Where, after a judgment-debtor has applied, under S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882, to have a sale set aside, the auction-purchaser is made a party to the proceedings, and the sale is set aside, the auction-purchaser can appeal against the order setting aside the sale.—Gopal Singh v. Dular Kuar, 2 A. 352; Kanthi Ram v. Bankey Lal, 2 A. 396.

An order passed under the first clause of S. 312, C. P. Code, 1882, after an objection made under the provisions of S. 311 has been disallowed, is appealable under Cl. (16) of S. 593, C. P. Code, 1882.—Tota Ram v. Khub Chand, 7 A. 253 (F. B). See also Dakshina Mohan v. Basumati Debi, 4 C. W. N. 474 (479); and Bejoy Singh v. Hukum Chand, 29 C. 548.

No second appeal lies against an order under S. 312, C. P. Code, 1882, setting aside a sale.—Aubhoya Dassi v. Pudmo Lochun, 22 C. 802 (18 C. 422 followed).

An order under Or. XXI, r. 92 is appealable and under S. 104 (2) of the Code no further appeal lies from an order passed in appeal in such appeal.—Maung Pe Sein v. Ma Thin Mya, 7 R. 37: 117 I. C. 253: A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 148, in which it has also been held that the provisions of S. 11, Burma Courts Act, do not affect those of S. 104 of the Code.

There is no appeal to the High Court from an order refusing to set aside a sale unless such order is made under Ss. 294, 312 or 313 of the C. P. Code, 1882.—Durga Sundari v. Govinda Chandra, 10 C. 368. See also Bansidhar v. Gulab Kuar, 16 A. 443.

The question as to whether an order dismissing an application under Or. XXI, r. 90 for default is appealable or not has been considered in a very large number of cases and it has been held that such an order falls under Or. XXI, r. 92 and as such an appeal lies from it under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (j). See e.g., Broja Sundar v. Moti Lal, 14 C. W. N. 573: 13 C. L. J. 153; Kumud Kumar v. Hari Mohan, 21 C. L. J. 628; Kali Kanta v. Shayam Lal, 25 C. L. J. 163. See also Narendra v. Rakhal, 41 C. L. J. 286, in which it has been held that an order under Or. XXI, r. 90 to have a proceeding is not a proceeding and therefore with the order under S. 115 of the Code.

But the correctness of these decisions was doubted by Page, J. in Basaratulla v. Reazuddin, 30 C. W. N. 570, in which he held that an application to set aside the sale made under Or. XXI, r. 90 is not an application and not on the merits cannot be set aside and therefore such an order is not appealable. It was further held that the position becomes different where the application under Or. XXI, r. 90 is dismissed either on the merits or when the applicant does not appear and the opposite party is present and ready to contest, and in such a case the order dismissing the application is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (j).—Basanta v. Khirode, 55 C. 616: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 25. Reviewing the earlier decisions and the decision of Page, J. it has been held in Ansarali v. Bhim Sankar, 33 C. W. N. 392, that an appeal lies from an order dismissing an application under Or. XXI, r. 90 for default whether such default be for the non-appearance of the applicant or for non-appearance of both the parties, and even when no formal order is recorded under r. 92 confirming the sale.

There is no appeal against an order refusing to set aside the dismissal of an application under Or. XXI, r. 90 for default.—Dasarath v. Maharaja

Khaunish, A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 938 (following Jung Bahadur v. Mahadeo, 31 C. 207; 8 C. W. N. 160, and distinguishing Kali Kanta v. Shyam Lal, 25 C. L. J. 163; 38 I. C. 598).

No second appeal lies to the High Court from an order refusing to set aside a sale in execution of a decree.—Daivanayagam v. Rangasami, 19 M. 29.

No appeal lies from an order passed under S. 294, C. P. Code, 1882, refusing permission to a decree-holder to bid at a sale in execution of his decree.—Jodoonath v. Brojo Mohun, 13 C. 174.

An appeal does not lie from an order setting aside a sale, passed under S. 312, para. 2 of the C. P. Code, 1882—Sakharam v. Bhiku, 11 B. 603. But see Shib Singh v. Mukat Singh, 18 A. 437 (overruled by Shiam Behari v. Rup Kishore, 20 A. 379 (F. B.)).

Where on the application of the judgment-debtors, a sale was set aside but the order setting aside the sale saddled them with the costs of the other side, and they filed an appeal against that part of the order which directed them to pay the costs of the other side, held, that an appeal lay; Shib Kumar v. Sheo Ghulam, 44 A. 209; 20 A. L. J. 11.

An application under S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882, on behalf of a judgment-debtor who was a minor, was rejected on the ground that the applicant did not legally represent the minor, and the Court thereupon confirmed the sale. A second application to the same effect was then filed on behalf of the minor by his guardian, and was rejected on the ground that the Court had already confirmed the sale. From this order the judgment-debtor appealed. Held, that the appeal must be considered to be one from an order under the first para. of S. 312, C. P. Code, 1882, confirming the sale after disallowing the appellant's objection, and that it would therefore lie.—Baldeo Singh v. Kishan Lal, 9 A. 411.

No second appeal lies from an order made by a District Judge, on appeal, setting aside a sale under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882, held, that S. 244 bars a separate appeal, whilst it precludes a right of appeal, if the appeal is limited strictly by S. 588 Rooy, 21 C. 789.

Under the provisions of S. 588, C. P. Code, 1882, no second appeal lies to the High Court from an order passed in appeal by a District Judge, on an application by a judgment-debtor to have a sale in execution of a decree set aside on the ground of material irregularity.—Gopi Koeri v. Gopi Lal, 21 C. 799. See also Bansidhar v. Gulab Kuar, 16 A. 443.

No appeal lies under this rule after confirmation of sale where no objection had been specifically allowed or dismissed by the executing Court.—Brij Kumar v. Jagadamba, A. I. R. 1929 All. 671.

Where a sale is confirmed and no application is made to set it aside, no appeal lies from the order and definitely no second appeal is permitted.—Bahadur Ali v. Co-operative Credit Society, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 778.

An order rejecting an application by a judgment-debtor, under S. 293, C. P. Code, 1882, to recover from the purchaser the loss occasioned by re-sale, is appealable under this section.—Bajinath v. Moheep Narain, 16 C. 535; Kali Kishore v. Guru Prasad, 25 C. 99: 2 C. W. N. 408; Rajendra Nath v. Ramcharan, 2 C. W. N. 411; Amir Baksha v. Venkatachala, 18 M. 439; Vallabhan v. Págunni, 12 M. 454.

Land having been sold in execution of a decree, one claiming that it had been held by the judgment-debtor benami for him, applied to set aside the sale under S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882, and his petition was rejected. The appellate Court remanded the case to be disposed of on the merits. Held, that the order remanding the case was not appealable.—Timmanna v. Mahabala Bhatta, 19 M. 167.

Clause (k)—an order under r. 9 of Or. XXII refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit;

This clause corresponds to Cl. (20) of the old section.

Rule 9 of Or. XXII corresponds to Ss. 371 and 372-A of the old Code, and it prescribes the procedure for setting aside an order of abatement or dismissal of a suit. An order under Or. XXII, r. 3 is not open to appeal.—Trilochan Prasad v. Bhagwati, 73 I. C. 230.

There is nothing in Or. XLIII, r. 1 (k) which enables the High Court to apply the word "suit" to an appeal, and so there is no appeal against an order refusing to set aside the abatement of an appeal by the appellate Court.—Akkas Mia v. Abdul Aziz, 33 C. W. N. 881: 49 C. L. J. 538: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 532.

An order declaring that the suit had abated because the legal representative of the deceased defendant had not been brought on the record in time is a decree and appealable as such, even if no formal decree dismissing the suit is drawn up.—Suppu Nayakan v. Perumal, 34 I. C. 372: 30 M. L. J. 486: 1 M. W. N. 301: 19 M. L. T. 364. See Barju v. Kunja, 10 P. 471: 133 I. C. 767: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 353: 12 P. L. T. 90.

An appeal lies from a finding that a suit has abated but such an appeal is from the decree in the suit and it should be accompanied by a copy of the decree.—Hassomal v. Pirbux, 26 S. L. R. 81.

Clause (l)—an order under r. 10 of Or. XXII giving or refusing to give leave;

This clause corresponds to Cl. (21) of the old section. Rule 10 of Or. XXII (S. 372 of the old Code) lays down the procedure in other cases of an assignment, creation or devolution of interest during the pendency of a suit.

An appeal will lie from an order dismissing an application under S. 372, C. P. Code, 1882, to be brought upon record as representative of a deceased party, such order being a decree within the meaning of S. 2, C. P. Code.—Indo Mati v. Gaya Prasad, 19 A. 142 (followed in Moti Ram v. Kundan Lal, 22 A. 380). See also Sourindra Mohun v. Siromoni Debi, 28 C. 171: 5 C. W. N. 307, where it has been held that an appeal lies from an order directing substitution of parties under S. 372, C. P. Code, 1882. But see Lalit Mohan v. Shebock Chand, 4 C. W. N. 403 (19 A. 142, explained and distinguished); Tej Singh v. Chabeli Ram, 24 A. 342; and Jamna Bibi v. Sheikh Jha, 24 A. 532 (F. B.) (4 C. W. N. 403 followed; 22 A. 380 overruled; 19 A. 142 explained and distinguished).

An application by a mortgagee to be added as a party to a partition suit is an application under Or. XXII, r. 10, and an order granting or refusing it is appealable in accordance with the provisions of this rule.—Jadu Nath v. Murari Mohan, 35 C. W. N. 296; 134 I. C. 307; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 594. There are some observations in the decision of the Judicial Committee in Manindra v. Ram Lal, 49 I. A. 220; 27 C. W. N. 29, which may favour the view that the rule applies only to the case of substitution and not to the case of addition of a party, but it is not clear whether their Lordships intended to go that length.

An order passed on an application under S. 372, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 10), is appealable under S. 588, Cl (21), C. P. Code, 1882, and is not open to revision by the High Court under S. 622 of the Code (S. 115).—Raynor v. Mussorie Bank, Ltd., 7 A. 681.

Section 372, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 10), has no application to proceedings in execution of decree, and a Court has no jurisdiction reading S. 372, with S. 647, C. P. Code, 1882, to bring in a party after decree, and make him a judgment-debtor for the purposes of execution. Where a Court had so acted, its order was held appealable under S. 588, C. P. Code, 1882.—Goodall v. Mussorie Bank, Ltd., 10 A. 97 (5 C. 726 referred to).

Clause (m)—an order under r. 3 of Or. XXIII recording or refusing to record an agreement, compromise or satisfaction;

This clause is new. Rule 3 of Or. XXIII (S. 375, C. P. Code, 1882) relates to compromise of suits. In this connection, see Sridharan v. Puramathan, 23 M 101 and other cases noted under Or. XXIII, r. 3, under the heading "Appeal."

Where the Court, holding that a compromise is not valid and binding on the parties, refuses to record the same, an appeal lies under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (m), assailing the grounds for refusal to record.—Nandlal v. Ram Sarup, 103 I. C. 80. A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 546.

The words used in Or. XLIII, r. 1 (m), C. P. Code, "an order under ... nt, compromise, compromise or proved is not ... Mal, 73 I. C.

An appeal from an order under Or. XXIII, r. 3 is competent even ... sed in terms of ... to appeal both ... war Ratneswar, 36 C. W. N. 1013.

Clause (n)—an order under r. 2 of Or. XXV rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit;

This clause is new. Rule 2 of Or. XXV (S. 381 of the old Code) relates to the effect of failure to furnish security for costs. This clause gives legislative sanction to the law as laid down in Williams v. Brown, 8 A. 108. (F. B.) noted under Or. XXV, r. 2.

Clause (o)—an order under r. 2, 4 or 7 of Or. XXXIV refusing to extend the time for the payment of mortgage-money;

This clause is new. The words "r. 2, 4 or 7" have been substituted for the words "r. 3 or r. 8" by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1930. Rule 3 or r. 8 of Or. XXXIV (Ss. 87 and 93 of the T. P. Act IV of 1882), empowers Courts to enlarge time for payment of money due upon decrees in mortgage suits. This clause has been inserted adopting the law as laid down in Hulas Rai v. Prithi Singh, 9 A. 500, and in Rahima v. Nepal Rai, 14 A. 520, where it has been held that such an order is appealable as a decree. See notes under those two rules.

"The extension of time for the payment of mortgage money is obviously of much greater moment to the mortgagor than to the mortgagee. Therefore the Committee have provided for an appeal from an order refusing but not from an order granting, an extension of time."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Clause (p)—orders in interpleader-suits under r. 3, r. 4 or r. 6 of Or. XXXV;

This clause corresponds to Cl. (23) of the old section. Rules 3, 4 and 6 correspond respectively to Ss. 473 and 475 of the old Code.

The adjudication upon the claims of the defendants in an interpleader-suit is a decree and is appealable under S. 540, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 96). The direction as to interpleading is an order and is appealable under S. 588, Cl. (23), C. P. Code, 1882—Maharaj Singh v. Chittar Mal, 30 A. 22 : 4 A. L. J. 683 : (1907) A. W. N. 270.

Clause (q)—an order under r. 2, r. 3 or r. 6 of Or. XXXVIII;

This clause corresponds to part of Cl. (24) of the old section. Rule 2 of Or. XXXVIII (S. 479, C. P. Code, 1882) relates to defendant's furnishing security for his appearance (after arrest before judgment) to satisfy a decree that may be passed against him.

Rule 3 (S. 480, C. P. Code, 1882) relates to procedure in case of application, by the person who becomes surety, to be discharged.

Rule 6 (S. 485, C. P. Code, 1882) relates to attachment before judgments of defendant's property when he fails to show cause.—See notes under each of those rules.

An order of attachment before judgment is appealable under S. 588, Cl. (24) C. P. Code, 1882.—Mir Ali Mahomed v. Biharlal, 21 B. 273.

r. 1.

An order under Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 is not appealable while an order under r. 6 is appealable. An order for attachment before judgment which is unconditional must be deemed to be an order under Or. XXXVIII, r. 6, even though it is stated to be passed under r. 5.—S. Jai Dev v. S. Jai Singh, 107 276 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 445.

When in response to a notice issued under Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 defendant appears and shows cause and the Court accepts his contention, the order falls under Or. XXXVIII, r. 6 (2) and from such an order an appeal lies under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (g).—Chokhey Lal v. Sri Kishen, (1932) A. L. J. 228 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 269.

Clause (r)—an order under r. 1, r. 2, r. 4, or r. 10 of Or. XXXIX;

This clause is part of Cl. (24) of the old section. Rule 1 of Or. XXXIX (S. 492) relates to cases in which temporary injunction may be granted.

Rule 2 (S. 493) relates to injunction to restrain repetition or continuance of breach of contract or injury, etc.

Rule 4 (S. 496) relates to interlocutory orders.

Rule 10 (S. 502) relates to deposit of money, etc., in Court.—See notes under those rules.

An appeal will lie under S. 588, Cl. (24), C. P. Code, 1882, from an order under S. 496 of the Code, refusing to set aside an injunction — Zabada Jan v. Muhammad Taiab. 15 A. 8 (6 C 163 referred to).

A petition praying for a temporary injunction in a suit was presented by the plaintiff in a Subordinate Court. The Judge refused to pass orders on it without hearing the defendants, and ordered a notice to issue to them. The plaintiff appealed to the District Judge, who granted the injunction. Held, that the order of the Subordinate Court was not appealable to the District Judge — Luis v. Luis, 12 M. 186.

An order refusing to attach property for disobedience of an interim injunction falls within Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (3), C. P. Code, and is open to appeal.—Diwan Chand v. Jharra Coal Co., A. I. R. 1922 Lah 347 : 66 I. C. 9.

Where the defendant had, in breach of his undertaking to the Court not to do so, but the lower court did not do so, it was held that the defendant's appeal was allowed. The Court amounted to an injunction and that the order refusing to commit for disobedience of the injunction was appealable.—Chaturbhujdas v. Natvarlal, 134 I. C. 1165 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 509 : 33 Bom. L. R. 1109.

Clause (s)—an order under r. 1 or r. 4 of Or. XL :

This clause is part of Cl. (24) of the old section.

Rule 1 of Or. XL (S. 503, C. P. Code, 1892) relates to appointment of receiver.

Rule 4 is new and relates to enforcement of receiver's liabilities. See notes under those rules.

An order under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (s), declaring that a receiver should be appointed to anybody by name as receiver is an order v. Ganesh Ram, 1 P. 625 : (1922) P. 256. It. 577 (40 M. 18 : 40 I. C. 185 (F. B.) relied on; 14 O. L. J. 489; 13 O. L. J. 157, 17 Bom. L. R. 510, 18 A. L. J. 212 not folld.). See also Nrisingha v. Rajniti, 13 P. L. T. 525

An order refusing to appoint a receiver is appealable as a decree.—Gossain Dulmir v. Tekait Hetnarain, 6 C. L. R. 467; Venkatasami v. Stridavamma, 10 M. 179 (F. B.) (overruling Subramanya v. Appasami, 6 M. 355).

An order refusing to remove a receiver appointed under S. 503. C. P. Code, 1882, is appealable — Mithibai v. Limji Nouroji, 5 B. 45.

An order removing a receiver is appealable at the instance of the parties to the litigation but the receiver has no right of appeal.—Monmchan v. Surendra, 36 C. W. N. 903. See Sripati v. Bibhuti, 53 C. 319 : 92 I. C. 940 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 593. This view has been dissented from in A. U. John v. Agra United Mills Ltd., 134 I. C. 454 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 72 : 29 A. L. J. 13, in which it has been held that where a Court appointing a receiver under Or. XL, removes him from his office, there is no right of appeal at all.

An order authorizing a receiver appointed by the Court to remove any person in possession of the property is appealable under S. 589, Cl. (24), C. P. Code, 1882, at the instance of the person sought to be dispossessed.—Hudson v. Morgan, 13 C. W. N. 654 : 9 C. L. J. 563 : 36 C. 713.

An order refusing to appoint a receiver under S. 503, C. P. Code, 1882, is appealable.—Venkatasami v. Stridavamma, 10 M. 179 and 180-note (6 M. 355 overruled). See also Boidya Nath v. Makhan Lal, 17 C. 630 (6 C. L. R. 467 followed); Sangappa v. Shivbasawa, 24 B. 38; and Khagendra Narain v. Shashadhar Jha, 31 C. 495 : 8 C. W. N. 608; Manindra v. Suniti Bala, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1006.

The directions which a Court gives in passing a receiver's accounts are not appealable under this clause.—Rani Keshabati Kumari v. Mac Gregor, 12 C. W. N. 648 : 35 C. 568.

Where in execution proceedings the Court appoints a person as receiver of the property at the instance of the decree-holder, it is not open to a third party with whom the judgment-debtor has entered into an agreement respecting the property to question the order or to file an appeal under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (s); Thakur Jas Indar v. Thakur Beldeo Singh, 110 I. C. 410 : A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 295 : 5 O. W. N. 463.

For other cases see notes under Or. XLI, rr. 1 to 4, ante.

Clause (t)—an order of refusal under r. 19 of Or. XLI to re-admit, or under r. 21 of Or. XLI to re-hear an appeal;

This clause corresponds to Cl. (27) of the old section.

Rule 19 of Or. XLI (S. 553, C. P. Code, 1882) relates to re-admission of an appeal dismissed for default. Rule 21 of Or. XLI (S. 560, C. P. Code, 1882) relates to an application for re-hearing of an appeal heard ex parte.

An appeal does not lie from an order dismissing an appeal for default.—Mansab Ali v. Nihal Chand, 15 A. 359. See also Nand Ram v. Muhammad Bakhsh, 2 A. 616; Mukhi v. Fakir, 3 A. 382; Dhan Singh v. Basant Singh, 8 A. 519; Chand Kour v. Partab Singh, 16 C. 98 (P. C.); Muhammad Naimullah v. Ihsanullah, 14 A. 226 (F. B.); Jawahir Singh v. Debi Singh, 18 A. 119. See also Amrito Lal v. Ram Chandra, 29 C. 60 (23 C. 115 and 827, and 22 M. 221, referred to). Contra—Ram Chandra v. Madhav Purushottam, 16 B. 23. Followed in Radha Nath v. Chandi Charan, 30 C. 660; 7 C. W. N. 486 (F. B.) (23 C. 115 and 827 overruled). Referred to in Gosto Behary v. Hari Mohan, 8 C. W. N. 313.

Where an appeal has been dismissed under S. 553, C. P. Code, 1882, for the appellant's default, he may apply for its re-admission under S. 558, and if such re-admission is refused, he is entitled to an appeal under S. 588, Cl. (27), C. P. Code, 1882.—Elahi Buksh v. Marachow, 4 C. 825; 3 C. L. R. 593.

An order under Or. XXI, r. 19 refusing to set aside an order of dismissal of an appeal passed, ex parte, is appealable even though the order of refusal was passed in appeal in the course of an insolvency proceeding.—Bir Singh v. Humphery, 120 I. C. 791; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 112; 31 P. L. R. 906.

Besides the above cases, see Mathura v. Basanta, 36 C. 510, noted under r. 19 and Hare Krishna v. Bishnu Chandra, 35 C. 799; 12 C. W. N. 888; 7 C. L. J. 426, noted under r. 21 of Or. XLI, and also the other cases collected under each of those two rules.

Clause (u)—an order under r. 23 of Or. XLI remanding a case, where an appeal would lie from the decree of the Appellate Court;

This clause corresponds to Cl. (28) of the old section, with the addition of the words "Where an appeal would lie from the decree of the appellate Court." The above addition has been made to give effect to Mathura v. Nobin, 24 C. 774 and Jhandy Lal v. Sarman Lal, 21 A. 291, and it overrides 10 C. 523, 19 M. 391, 3 A. 18, 7 B. 292, 8 B. 260, and 11 C. W. N. 862. In these latter cases it was held that where an appellate Court passed an order remanding a case of Small Cause Court class, an appeal does lie to the High Court from the order of remand. In the former two cases it was held that an appeal does not lie. By the above addition, the conflicting cases have been reconciled adopting the law as laid down in Mathura Nath v. Nobin Chandra, 24 C. 774, and in Jhandy Lal v. Sarman Lal, 21 A. 291.

A party who is prejudiced by an order of remand can appeal against such order; but where a party has himself asked for a remand and obtained an order of remand, he cannot appeal because the ground covered by it is not desired.—Qadirunnissa v. Qutbul, 398.

Where the first Court rejected the plaint on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action and of defendants and the lower appellate Court set aside the order and remanded the case for decision on the merits: held that an appeal lies to the High Court under S. 588, Cl. (29), C. P. Code, 1882, against that order.—Ram Prosad v. Sachi Dass, 6 C. W. N. 585.

The first Court made an order returning the plaint in a suit to be presented to the proper Court, on the ground that it was not competent to try such suit; but the appellate Court holding that the first Court was competent to try the suit, made an order "decreeing the appeal" and directing that the case "should be returned for re-trial." Held, that no second appeal would lie, as it was in reality one from an order returning a plaint, and not an appeal from an order remanding the case under S. 562, C. P. Code, 1882—Krishna Ram v. Narsingh Sevok, 3 A. 855. See Naubat Singh v. Baldeo Singh, 33 A. 479; 9 I. C. 666; 8 A. L. J. 12; Motilal v. Nandan, 121 I. C. 545; A. I. R. 1930 All. 122; (1930) A. L. J. 454; Lala Ulfat Rai v. Lala Tulshi Prasad, 125 I. C. 581; Cotton Trading Syndicate Commission Agency v. Malwa Mal, 131 I. C. 750; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 497.

Where an order of remand was made without jurisdiction, held that an appeal lay from the order of remand, notwithstanding the Court of first instance had subsequently made what purported to be a final decree in the case.—Jatinga Valley Tea Co., Ltd v. Chera Tea Co., Ltd., 12 C. 45. See also Narain Pal v. Kali Kishore, 1 C. W. N. xxix (29)

An appeal from an order of remand under S. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, cannot be entertained if presented after the final disposal of the suit. The right of appeal given by S. 588 of the Code, from orders specified in that section ceases with the disposal of the suit.—Madhu Sudan v. Kamini Kanta, 9 C. W. N. 895; 2 C. L. J. 35-n; 32 C. 1023 (12 C. 45 distinguished). Followed in Gulzari Mal v. Kobrunissa, 30 A. 191; 5 A. L. J. 270. See also the cases noted under r. 23, Or. XLI.

Where a Court of first instance decided a suit, not upon a preliminary point so as to exclude any evidence of facts, but upon the merits, and upon all the evidence tendered and issues framed. Held, by the Full Bench, that legality of the remand order and the subsequent proceedings could, under S. 591, C. P. Code, 1882, be questioned in second appeal from the decree in the suit, though no appeal had been preferred against the order itself under S. 588, Cl. (28), C. P. Code, 1882.—Rameshar Singh v. Sheodin Singh, 12 A. 510 (F. B.) (followed in Sheonath v. Ramdin, 18 A. 19). See also Mohesh Chunder v. Jahiruddi, 5 C. W. N. 509; 28 C. 324.

A party aggrieved by an interlocutory order of remand may object to its validity in his appeal against the final decree though he might have appealed against the order under S. 588, C. P. Code, 1882, and has not done so.—Savitri v. Ramji, 14 B. 232.

An appeal from an order, in an appeal, remanding a suit for re-trial is not to be confined to the question whether the remand has been made contrary to the provisions of S. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, or not, but the question whether the decision of the appellate Court on the preliminary point is correct or not may also be raised and determined in such an appeal.—Badam v. Imrat, 3 A. 675 (F. B.); Loki Mahto v. Aghoree Ajail, 5 C. 144:

An order of remand under the inherent powers of an appellate Court and not falling within Or. XLI, r. 23, C. P. Code, is not appealable; Sheik Mahomed v. Rangasami, 31 M. L. T. 182: 16 L. W. 515; Wisakhi Ram v. Alawad, 6 L. L. J. 153; Permanand v. Bhon Lohar; 7 P. L. T. 535: 97 I. C. 105; Rama Nath v. Tarak, 107 I. C. 746: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 305.

An appeal does not lie from an order of remand passed by a special Judge under the Bengal Tenancy Act.—Mothur Chandra v. Tara Sunkar, 7 C. W. N. 440: Debi Prosad v. Official Trustee, Bengal, 37 C. L. J. 314.

Section 190 of the N. W. P. Rent Act (XII of 1881) makes S. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, applicable to appeals from a Court of Revenue to a District Judge, and where in such a case a District Judge has made an order of remand under S. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, an appeal will lie from such order to the High Court under S. 588, Cl. (28), C. P. Code, 1882.—Partap Singh v. Narain Das, 16 A. 375. See also Veeraswamy v. Manager, Pittapur Estate, 26 M. 518, which was a case under the Madras Rent Recovery Act (VIII of 1865).

A Judge of the High Court when hearing an appeal against an erroneous order of remand under S. 562, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 23), may pass a final decree in the suit, instead of remanding the suit to the lower appellate Court. No appeal lies against such decree under the Letters Patent, Cl. 15.—Sankaran v. Ramakutti, 19 M. 152 (followed in Vasudevo v. Visvaraja, 20 M. 407).

Though orders under S. 562, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 23), are appealable under S. 588, Cl. 28, C. P. Code, 1882, yet the provisions of the latter section are subject to its last para. which says that orders passed under this section shall be final; and therefore no second appeal lies from an order passed by the Court under S. 562, C. P. Code, 1882.—handy Lal v. Sarman Lal, 21 A. 291).

Where a lower appellate Court instead of remanding a suit under S. 566, C. P. Code, 1882, erroneously remands it under S. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, Or. XXI, r. 23, and the party aggrieved by its order appeal to the High Court under S. 588, Cl. (28), the High Court cannot deal with the case as if it were an appeal from a decree. All that the High Court can do is to rectify the order of the lower Court, and to direct that it decide the case.—Lal v. Azizunnissa, 7 A. 136 (3 A 675) Bansi, 8 A. 172.

The effect of the alteration made by the High Court of Allahabad and the Chief Court of Oudh in the language of Or. XLIII, r. 1 (u) by putting the words "any order" for the words "an order under r. 23 of Or. XLI" is not to permit an appeal even from an order of remand under Or. XLI r. 23 but the alteration was intended to and does cover by its language such orders of remand also as are not specifically made under r. 23 but may fall to be made by a Court in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction ex debito justitiæ or under the provision of S. 151.—Sarabjit v. Farhatullah, 127 I. C. 33; A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 366. See also Mati Lal v. Nandan, 121 I. C. 545; A. I. R. 1930 All. 122. 23 A. L. J. 451, in which it has been held that the alteration has been made in the language of this rule to cover cases which do not come within the four corners of the language of Or. XLI, r. 23 and yet such order is justifiable, but it is not intended that a second appeal can be permitted from orders from which no second appeal is otherwise allowed.

In an appeal from an order of an appellate Court, the High Court is bound to accept, as in a second appeal from a decree, the findings of fact arrived at by the lower appellate Court.—Tika Ram v. Shama Oharn, 20 A. 42.

Section 538, C. P. Code, 1892 (this rule), does not apply where the appeal is from one of the Judges of the High Court to another Division Bench of the High Court, and does not restrict the right of appeal conferred by Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.—Toolsimony v. Sudevi, 3 O. W. N. 347; 26 C. 361 (9 C. 482 followed; 11 A. 375, 14 A. 226 (230), 9 M. 253, 447, and 20 M. 407 considered and dissented from).

There is no appeal under the Letters Patent, Cl. 15, against an order of a single Judge, passed under S. 538, Cl. 23, C. P. Code, 1892.—Venganayyan v. Ramasami, 19 M. 422.

Though an appeal lies under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (u) from an order of remand, no appeal will lie from the order when the order is itself made in an appeal preferred under any other clause of Or. XLIII, r. 1.—Mt. Sumirta v. Mahabir, 111 I. C. 789. Where an order dismissing an application to set aside an ex parte decree is set aside and the Court of first instance is directed to proceed with the suit, the order is not an order of "remand" within the meaning of Or. XLIII, r. 1 (u) and the order of the appellate Court is not appealable.—Ejazai Begam v. Latifan, 53 A. 519.

Besides the cases noted above, see the cases collected under r. 23 of Or. XLI, below the heading, "Appeal from an Order of Remand under this rule."

The following cases have been overridden—A Court in the exercise of the appellate jurisdiction passed an order under S. 562, C. P. Code, 1892, remanding a case of the Small Cause Court class as described in S. 536. Held, that under the express words of the second portion of S. 539, C. P. Code, 1892, an appeal does lie to the High Court from such an order.—Kirte Mohaldar v. Ramjan 10 C. 523; The Collector of Bijnor v. Jafar Ali, 3 A. 18 (F. B.); Mahadev Narsinh v. Ragho Keshav, 7 B. 292; Chinnatambi v. Chinnana, 19 M. 391; Agandh v. Khajah Aliullah, 11 C. W. N. 862.

Clause (v)—an order made by any Court other than a High Court refusing the grant of a certificate under r. 6 of Or. XLV;

This clause is new and it corresponds to the proviso to S. 601, C. P. Code, 1892. Rule 6 of Or. XLV runs as follows: "Where such certificate (that it is a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council) is refused, the petition shall be dismissed."

r. 1.

The Judge in the Privy Council Department refused an application for a certificate, but was stopped from giving his reasons by the petitioner's counsel, who had hopes of making a compromise. The attempt, at compromise having failed, the petitioner appealed under Cl. (15) of the Letters Patent, when the Judge in the Privy Council Department was referred to, and was not able to deliver any judgment. Held, that no appeal lay to the High Court.—Tara Chand v. Radha Jeebun, 24 W. R. 148.

Although, under Cl. (15) of the Letters Patent of 1865, an appeal is given to the High Court from any judgment of a single Judge, an order or certificate of a Judge allowing an appeal to the Privy Council cannot properly be considered a judgment of the High Court.—Amirunnessa v. Behary Lall, 25 W. R. 529. See also Manly v. Patterson, 7 C. 339; 9 C. L. R. 166.

An order of a Judge presiding over the Privy Council Department in the High Court, rejecting an application for execution, is a final order, and is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Charter, and is therefore appealable.—Kally Soondery v. Hurrish Chunder, 6 C. 594; 7 C. L. R. 543; on appeal, 9 C. 482; 12 C. L. R. 511.

In a suit for account, the High Court refused, under S. 601, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLIV, r. 6), to grant the defendant a certificate on the ground that a decree directing the taking of accounts is not final within the meaning of S. 595, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 109). On application for special leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council, not by way of an appeal from the local Court's refusal, but asking for the exercise of the prerogative right of the Crown to admit an appeal, held, that the real question in this suit having been the liability of the defendant to account to the plaintiff upon several claims, the decree had decided this against the defendant in such a way that, although the account had not been taken, the decree was final within the meaning of S. 595 (S. 109).—Rahimbhoy v. Turner, 15 B. 155; 18 I. A. 6 (referred to and followed in Muzhar Hossein v. Bodha Bibi, 17 A. 112 (P. C.)).

Clause (w)—an order under r. 4 of Or. XLVII granting an application for review;

This clause is new, it gives general right of appeal from an order under r. 4 of Or. XLVII (S. 626 of Act XIV of 1882).

Sub-rule (2) of r. 4, Or. XLVII, provides that "where the Court is of opinion that the application for review should be granted, it shall grant the same." This Cl. (w) should be read with r. 7 of Or. XLVII, which also gives an appeal from an order granting review on the grounds specifically mentioned therein.

The right of appeal conferred by Or. XLIII, r. 1 (w) against an order granting review is not an unlimited right, but is subject to the condition of Or. XLVII, r. 7 and therefore no appeal lies in such cases on any other grounds.—Madhoru Saran v. Parbati, 47 A. 881; 89 I. C. 653; A. I. R. 1925 All. 552; 23 A. L. J. 534 (referring to Khurshed v. Rahmatullah, 40 A. 68 and Nandlal v. Panchanan, 45 O. 60 at p. 78); A. T. K. P. L. M. Nuthu Pillay v. Lakshminarayan, 6 R. 254; 111 I. C. 80. A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 177; Gaizaddy v. Soroj Kumar, 33 C. W. N. 693; 117 I. C. 849; Srinivasa v. Official Assignee, A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 641; 52 M. L. J. 692; Surja Narain v.

Ghulam Hassan*, 9 L. 298; 112 I. C. 518; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 609; Beli Ram v. Padam Sain, 116 I. C. 221; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 26; Mt. Rukmin Kuer v. Mt. Ram Piari, 122 I. C. 184; A. I. R. 1930 All. 126; Mt. Bitana v. Shanker Lal, 131 I. C. 518; A. I. R. 1931 All. 329; Behari Lal v. Abdul Rahaman, 8 O. W. N. 1267; Sikandar v. Baland, 107 I. C. 596; 29 Punj. L. R. 81; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 435; Mt. Rukhmabai v. Ganapatrao, 28 N. L. R. 221. But see Mukundsa v. Motiram, 116 I. C. 645; 12 N. L. J. 13; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 73, in which it has been held that the right of appeal granted by Or. XLIII, r. 1 (w) is not restricted by the grounds set out in Or. XLVII, r. 7 and a party can appeal on grounds other than those mentioned in Or. XLVII, r. 7.

This was also the view taken by the Bombay High Court in Dasho v. Karbasappa, 94 I. C. 591; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 121; 27 Bom. L. R. 144. But it is no longer good law in the Bombay Presidency since March 1926 when this rule was deleted by that High Court in the exercise of its powers under S. 122 of the Code; Kunversi v. Pitamberdas, 107 I. C. 50. See Shidramappa v. Gurushantappa, 116 I. C. 227; A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 183.

The High Court of Madras has held that although when a review is granted it is open to the aggrieved party to appeal against the order only on grounds specified in Or. XLVII, r. 7 yet when that stage has passed and on reheating a fresh decree is passed and the final decree or order is appealed against the Court is not confined to the grounds mentioned in Or. XLVII, r. 7 but has full power to go into the whole case on the merits and see whether on the evidence the decree passed on review is proper; T. R. Govinda v. Rangammal, 106 I. C. 172; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 261; (1927) M. W. N. 441. (See per Ramesam, J.—An appeal against an order granting a review can be filed only on the grounds mentioned in Or. XLVII, r. 7. If an appeal is filed against the final judgment and decree after review, even then if one of the grounds of appeal is that the order granting the review was an erroneous order, it should be attacked on the same grounds and no other; but this does not mean that the judgment after review cannot be attacked on the merits, while submitting to the order granting the review). But the High Court of Calcutta has held that in final appeal an order for review can only be challenged upon the grounds stated in S. 629 of the Code (Or. XLVII, r. 7)—Baroda v. Gobind, 22 C. 984 (followed in Jagiri Ram v. Daulat Khan, 112 I. C. 46; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 755).

For other cases see notes under Or. XLVII, r. 4 and r. 7.

There is no second appeal from an order granting a review.—Barada Kishore v. Jagat Chandra, 64 I. C. 568.

Procedure.

2. The rules of Or. XLI shall apply, so far as may be, to appeals from orders. [S. 590.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to S. 590, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. This rule is to be read with S. 108, and all the cases bearing upon this rule are collected under that section.—See the cases noted under S. 108.

Where in an appeal against an order returning a plaint, the plaintiff filed along with his memorandum of appeal the plaint which was returned to him with the endorsement made thereon by the Judge under Or. VII, r. 10, and failed to file the certified copy of the separate order which was made prior to the endorsement, it was held that there was a technical non-compliance with the provisions of Or. XLI, r. 1 but the irregularity might well be condoned under S. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Goverdhandas v. Musammatal. Rihibai, 130 I. C. 554 : A. I. R. 1930 Sind 252.

ORDER XLIV.

PAUPER APPEALS.

1. Any person entitled to prefer an appeal who is unable to pay the fee required for the memorandum of appeal, may present an application accompanied by a memorandum of appeal, and may be allowed to appeal as a pauper, subject, in all matters, including the presentation of such application, to the provisions relating to suits by paupers, in so far as those provisions are applicable:

Who may appeal
as pauper.

Provided that the Court shall reject the application unless, upon a perusal thereof and of the judgment and decree appealed from, it sees reason to think that the decree is contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law, or is otherwise erroneous or unjust. [S. 592.]

Procedure on application for admission of appeal.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 592, C. P. Code, 1892, with some additions, alterations and omissions.

The words "under this Code or any other law," which stood after the words "any person entitled," have been omitted. The words "including the presentation of such application" have been added to give effect to In re Naris, 8 M. 504. The addition of the above words overrides Mailthi v. Somappa, 26 M. 369. The other changes introduced in this rule are change of words and phrases; that is, some words and phrases of the old section have been replaced by more appropriate words and phrases, but no change seems to have been made in the meaning.

"Words have been added to avoid the conclusion at which the Madras High Court has recently arrived in Mailthi v. Somappa, 26 M. 369."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

A person who desires to appeal as a pauper, must present an application for permission to appeal as a pauper, together with a memorandum of appeal in a separate paper. If the application for permission to appeal as a pauper is rejected, his application must be entered in the record; and if he can subsequently procure funds and pay the necessary court-fees, then his appeal shall proceed in the ordinary way. But when a suit is brought in forma pauperis under Or. XXXIII, and the application is rejected, the applicant is required to present a fresh plaint in the ordinary way, as the application for permission to sue in forma pauperis, is itself the plaint and the Court has no power to allow it to be stamped as plaint. This is the distinction between an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis and an application for permission to appeal in forma pauperis. As to question of limitation, see the cases noted below.

The rules of this Order are to be read with the rules of Or. XXXIII, as the rules contained in this Order are subject to the provisions of the rules of that Order.—See notes under those rules.

Presentation of application to appeal in forma pauperis.—This rule provides that the provisions relating to suits by paupers shall apply, so far as may be, to appeals by paupers. Therefore the application referred to in this rule, for leave to appeal as a pauper, must be presented by the applicant in person just as an application for leave to sue as a pauper as provided by Or. XXXIII, r. 3.

An application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis under this rule must be made by the party in person, subject to the exemption contained in Or. XXXIII, r. 3.—In re Narisi, 8 M. 504. (Dissented from in Mailthi v. Somappa Banta, 26 M. 369, where it has been held that the provisions of Or. XXXIII, r. 3 do not apply to an application under this rule, to be allowed to appeal as a pauper.) The addition of the words "in all matters including the presentation of such application" overrides this Madras decision and it is no longer law.

... a pauper was presented, not
... or, and was on that ground
... revision by the High Court under S. 622, C. P. Code, 1882 (S 115), as that section did not apply to a proceeding of so purely interlocutory a character as mentioned in S. 592 of the Code (this rule).—Harsaran Singh v. Muhammad, 4 A. 91.

An appeal in forma pauperis by a purdanashin woman who had sued as a pauper in the first Court, presented by her duly authorized agent and not by herself nor an advocate, vakil or attorney of the Court, is a valid presentation in law because such a woman is exempted from appearing in Court under S. 640 of the Code of 1882, i.e., S 132 of the present Code.—Wazirunissa v. Nahi Bakhsh, 24 A. 172. An application for leave to appeal on behalf of such a woman may be presented by her husband; and the term "authorized agent" in Or. XXXIII, r. 3, does not mean "recognized agent" as defined in Or. III, r. 2 of the Code.—Mt. Bibi Sogra v. Radha Kishun, 7 P. 825 : 114 I. C. 210 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 27. (See per Macpherson, J.—"At the same time I think that agents who present applications to appeal in forma pauperis should ordinarily produce at the time of presentation something to show that they are in that authorised").

Subject to the provisions relating to suits by paupers.—It is the duty of the Court to have regard to the rules contained in Or. XXXIII, whether leave is to be given to a person to appeal in forma pauperis, the right to appeal being subject to the rules contained in that order. When at the time of the institution of the suit, there was a subsisting agreement falling within the terms of Or. XXXIII, r. 5 (d), no leave to appeal under this rule could be given to plaintiff.—Hamfa Bai v. Haji Siddick, 30 M. 547 : 17 M. L. J. 447 : 3 M. L. T. 11.

An application for leave to appeal as a pauper contained no schedule of any property and was not verified in the manner provided by Or. XXXIII, r. 2. Held, that the Court had no other alternative than to reject the application.—Muhammad Salamatullah v. Ram Jirah, 11 Ondh Cases 19.

Application and memorandum of appeal.—This rule contemplates the presentation of two separate documents, viz., a memorandum of appeal and an application for leave to appeal as a pauper. The disposal by the Judge of the pauper application does not therefore mean the disposal of the appeal. The Judge may still treat it as an existing appeal if the appellant desires to continue it as an ordinary appeal by paying the full Court-fees. The Judge is under no obligation to dismiss the appeal when he refuses leave to the appellant to appeal as a pauper.—Bai Ful v. Desai Manorbhai, 22 B. 849; Muhammad v. Rahat Ali, 40 A. 331; Achut Ramchandra v. Nagappa, 38 B. 41; Sajjad Ali v. Jagmohan, A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 13; 90 I. C. 371. See Mahant Diyal Das v. Sundar Das, 3 L. 35; 65 I. C. 741; A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 225; Rajendra v. Gopal, 115 I. C. 678; 9 P. L. T. 613, in which it has been also held that in such a case the application of S. 5 of the Limitation Act would be proper.

The Court need not issue notice to the respondent before granting leave. The practice of the Madras High Court has not been to issue such notice—Somasundaram v. Arunachalam, (1932) M. W. N. 537; 63 M. L. J. 28; A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 523.

There is no provision in Or. XXXIII, which authorizes a Court to reject the application to file an appeal in forma pauperis after having issued the notice, on the ground that it sees no reason to think that the decree is contrary to law or some usage having the force of law or is otherwise unjust or erroneous; the Court may try the appeal.—Hubraji v. Balkaran, 54 A. 394.

Questions to be considered before granting leave to appeal in forma pauperis—Whether proviso to this rule is mandatory.—The language of the proviso to this rule is imperative and a Court of appeal can only grant permission to the applicant who desires to appeal in forma pauperis if the applicant is in a position to satisfy the Court that the decree appealed from is contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law or is otherwise erroneous or unjust.—Mt. Ahmad-Ul-Nisa v. Jagan Nath, 109 I. C. 391; Vidyavanti v. Jai Dial, 89 I. C. 292; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 391; 7 L. L. J. 214; Rajendra v. Gopal, 4 P. 67; A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 442; Ghulam Nabi v. Secretary of State, 114 I. C. 80; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 539. See San Shwe v. Haji Ko Ishag, 9 R. 92; 132 I. C. 707; A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 131. Under the proviso to this rule the Court has to proceed upon a perusal of the application and the judgment and decree appealed from; and where after perusing these documents the lower appellate Court comes to a decision that the decree appealed from is not contrary to law and rejects the application the High Court will not interfere with the decision in revision unless it appears that the lower appellate Court has failed to exercise a judicial discretion in coming to such a conclusion.—Shamsuddin v. Gur Baksh, 91 I. C. 96; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 204. The High Court of Madras has held that this rule does not contemplate that before granting leave to appeal in forma pauperis, the Court should arrive at a definite and final conclusion that the decree complained against is contrary to law or is otherwise erroneous and unjust; it is enough if the Court finds that the appeal raises a substantial question of law, or the appellant has a prima facie good case.—In re Peram Chennamma, 53 M. 245; 122 I. C. 337; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 198; 58 M. L. J. 195; 81 M. L. W. 76.

Provided that, if the applicant was allowed to sue or appeal as a pauper in the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, no further inquiry in respect of his pauperism shall be necessary, unless the Appellate Court sees cause to direct such inquiry. [S. 593.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 593, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

Appellate Court's order calling for first Court's report on pauperism is not a final disposal of the application for leave.—The order of the Court calling upon the Subordinate Court to report, does not operate as a final disposal of the application, and the High Court which directed an inquiry to be made by the Court of first instance as to the pauperism of the applicant may upon receipt of the report consider whether the case is one in which leave to appeal in forma pauperis ought to be granted.—Hanifa Bai v. Haji Siddick, 30 M. 547: 17 M. L. J. 447.

ORDER XLV.

APPEALS TO THE KING IN COUNCIL.

1. In this Order, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context, the expression "decree" shall include a final order. [S. 594.]
- "Decree" defined.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 594, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations.

The words "shall include a final order" have been substituted for the words "includes also judgment and order," which occurred in the old section.

"Decree—Final Order."—For the meaning of the terms "decree" and "final order," see notes under Ss. 109-110.

2. Whoever desires to appeal to His Majesty in Council shall apply by petition to the Court whose decree is complained of. [S. 598.]
- Application to Court whose decree complained of.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 598, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations. The word "shall" has been substituted for the word "must", which occurred in the old section. The other alterations are merely verbal.—See notes under S 110.

Limitation for an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council—The application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council must be made within 6 months from the date of the decree appealed from.—See Limitation Act, Art. 179.

The application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council must be made within six months from the date of decree, and in computing the period of limitation the time required for obtaining a copy of the decree cannot be excluded, as S. 12 of the Limitation Act does not apply to such application.—Moroba Ramchandra v. Ghanasham Nilkant, 19 B. 301. See also Lakshmanan v. Peryasami, 10 M. 373.

The provisions of the second paragraph of S. 5 of Act XV of 1877 (S. 4 of Act IX of 1908) do not extend to applications for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council. The limitation therefore for an application for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council is six months from the date of the decree to appeal from which leave is sought.—In the matter of Sita Ram, 15 A. 14 (6 A. 250, 2 M. 230 and 10 C. 557: 11 I. A. 7 referred to). See also Shib Singh v. Gandharp Singh, 25 A. 391: 3 A. L. J. 165 (1 A. 644, 15 M. 159, 15 A. 14, 19 B. 301 followed).

The aforesaid decisions are no longer law and it has now been expressly held that under S. 12 of the Limitation Act of 1908, the time requisite to obtain a copy of the decrees appealed from is to be excluded.—Abdullah v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 42 C. 35; Ram Sarup v. Jaswant Rai, 38 A. 82.

Privy Council appeal filed during vacation, when the High Court was closed, but the offices were open. Held, that the applicant was entitled to the benefit of para. 2 of S. 5 of the Limitation Act, 1877 (S. 4 of Act IX of 1903).—Rani Venkata Ramania v. Kherode Mull, 10 C. L. J. 118; Ravaneswar v. Baij Nath, 10 C. L. J. 120.

In an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, the disability by reason of minority is not to be excluded from the prescribed period of limitation.—Thurai Rajah v. Jainilabdeen, 18 M. 484.

Application to appeal to the Privy Council in forma pauperis.—When a person applies for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council in forma pauperis, he must present an application for that purpose to the High Court, and a separate application to His Majesty in Council.—Munni Ram v. Sheo Churn, 7 W. R. (P. C.) 29 : 4 M. 1. A. 114. Order XLIV, r. 1 does not apply to appeals to His Majesty in Council, and the High Court has no power to grant leave to appeal in forma pauperis to His Majesty in Council.—Jagadanand v. Rajendra, 17 C. L. J. 381; Ram Kishen v. Manna Kumari, 3 P. L. J. 179; Amba v. Srinivasa, 43 M. 32.

3. (1) Every petition shall state the grounds of appeal and pray for a certificate either that, as regards amount or value and nature, the case fulfils the requirements of section 110, or that it is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council.

Certificate as to value or fitness

(2) Upon receipt of such petition, the Court shall direct notice to be served on the opposite party to show cause why the said certificate should not be granted. [S. 600.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 600, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations. The words “shall state” have been substituted for the words “must state”; and in sub-rule (2) the words “shall direct notice” have been substituted for the words “may direct notice,” which occurred in the old section. The other alterations are merely verbal.

Certificate.—In determining whether leave to appeal has been properly granted or not, the document which the Judicial Committee are bound to consider and act upon is the certificate of leave to appeal and not the order for such certificate and unless the certificate upon which the leave to appeal is based is in such a form as to justify that leave they ought to hold that leave has not been properly given.—Radha Krishn v. Rai Krishn, 33 A. 415: 28 I. A. 182. See also the cases noted under S. 109 (c), under the heading “Is certified to be a fit one for appeal.”

Petition to state the grounds of appeal.—The petition of appeal to the Privy Council should distinctly state what the substantial question of law is that it is proposed to submit to the Privy Council.—Mirza Ali Akbar v. Abdul Latiff, 12 B. H. C. R. 8.

It is incumbent upon a party applying for special leave to appeal, to set out in the petition a full statement of the facts and legal grounds to show that there is a substantial case on the merits, and a point of law involved, proper to be determined by the appellate Court. A petition too general and vague was ordered to be dismissed or to stand over for amendment as being too general and vague.—Goree Monee v. Juggut Indro, 11 M. I. A. 1.

A petition for special leave to appeal being ex parte, it is a universal and most important rule of the Court, that every fact which is material to the determination of the question raised upon the petition should be truly and fairly stated and where there is an omission of material facts, whether it arises from improper intention on the part of the petitioner, or whether it arises from accident or negligence, still the effect is the same, if the Court has been induced to make an order which, if the facts had been fully before it, it would not, or might not, have been induced to make.—Mohun Lall v. Bebee Doss, 8 M. I. A. 193.

Where a party applies to the Judicial Committee for special leave to appeal, the matter being under the appealable value, he should first apply to the Court below for a certificate under S. 600, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLV, r. 3). But this rule will not bind this Board not to grant such leave in any special case, although that course has not been followed.—Moti Chand v. Ganga Prasad, 24 A. 174 (P. C.): 6 C. W. N. 362.

In a suit for malicious prosecution in which the plaintiff claimed Rs. 3,00,000 as damages, held, that the question of malice and reasonable and probable cause is a question of fact and not a substantial question of law, and that the certificate was granted by the High Court under a misapprehension — Pestonji v. The Queen Insurance Co., 25 B. 332 (P. C.).

See notes under S. 110 as to amount or value.

Procedure.—If the applicant fails to take the necessary steps to prosecute his petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, it may be struck off for want of prosecution.—Moorajee Poonja v. Visranjee, 12 C. 658.

If leave to appeal be granted ex parte, the respondent may, as a matter of course, present a counter-petition to dismiss the appeal.—Sibnarain v. Hulodhur, 6 M. I. A. 207.

Form.—For Form of Notice under sub-rule (2), see App. G, Form No. 12.

Appeal—No appeal lies from an order granting a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council, because such order is not a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.—Lutf Ali v. Asgur Reza, 17 C. 455 So also no appeal lies under that clause from an order refusing leave to appeal to the Privy Council, where such refusal is based on the ground that the case did not fulfil the requirements of S. 110.—Manly v. Patterson, 7 C. 339.

4. For the purposes of pecuniary valuation, suits involving substantially the same questions for determination and decided by the same judgment may be consolidated; but suits decided suits.

by separate judgments shall not be consolidated, notwithstanding that they involve substantially the same questions for determination. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Consolidation of suits decided by the same judgment.—This rule is new. It has been added to give effect to the following decisions in which it was held that consolidation could not be permitted unless the suits, besides involving the same questions for determination, were decided by the same judgment.—Moofli Mohummud v. Baboo Mootechund, 5 W. R. (P. C.) 34; Khajah Ashanulla v. Karoonamoyi, 4 C. L. R. 125; Joogulkishore v. Jotendro, 8 C. 210; Byjnath v. Graham, 11 C. 740; Deonarain Singh v. Guni, 34 C. 400.

The word "judgment" in this rule refers to the judgment appealed against, that is, the judgment of the High Court and not the judgment of the trial Court.—Deiko Nandan v. Narsingh Raut, 60 I. C. 517; 6 P. L. J. 97; 2 P. L. T. 157; Sri Rajah Vasi Reddi v. Secretary of State, 61 M. L. J. 692; 34 L. W. 817.

The requirement of this rule is that the judgment which their Lordships of the Privy Council have to consider and from which an appeal is brought should be the same judgment in the consolidated appeals and not that they should have in the same case or in the same appeal to consider the effect of several separate judgments of the High Court. Where the trial Court disposed of all the analogous suits by one and the same judgment but in one case, valued at over Rs 5,000, the appeal was decided by the High Court and the other cases were decided by the District Court, the appellate judgment, against which leave to appeal to the Privy Council was sought, being not the same, Or. XLV, r. 4 cannot apply, and no consolidation can be granted by the High Court.—Deiko Nandan v. Narsingh Raut, noted ante.

Where there were two separate suits before a Subordinate Judge and the evidence in both the suits was taken in one suit, and the issues in both the suits were identical, and the Subordinate Judge's findings on these issues and reasons for the same were as recorded in the judgment in one suit and that judgment was directed to be treated as part of the judgment in the other suit although there was a separate judgment in that other suit on a separate question, and there were appeals against decrees in both these suits and both these appeals were simultaneously heard and the judgments were delivered on the same date and the main judgment of the appellate Court was delivered in an appeal and in the linked appeal the Court referred to the other judgment, it was held that the suits must in the circumstances be taken to have been decided by the same judgment within the meaning of this rule and the appeals could therefore be consolidated for the purpose of pecuniary valuation.—Jivangiri v. Gajanan, 50 B. 753; 100 I. C. 143; A. I. R. 1927 Bom 19. Even where the judgments appealed against were separate, if one is merely a copy of the other except for a few alterations, the two should be regarded as the same judgment.—Sri Rajah Vasi Reddi v. Secretary of State, ante.

Where two suits were decided by separate judgments but in the appeal in the High Court, the evidence in the two suits was considered as a whole at the request of the parties who were the same, and the High Court came to a decision on the whole of the evidence in favour of the respondent, and in one of these suits the High Court gave leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council, it was held that although it was contended that in the other suit there was no question of law involved and the value was below Rs. 10,000, it was a proper case in which the procedure sanctioned by Or. XLV, r. 4 should be applied and the parties given an opportunity of having the decision from the highest Court of appeal.—Bhagwan v. Bhawani, 43 A. 223: 59 I. C. 794: 18 A. L. J. 1119.

But where two suits were determined by two distinct judgments in the Court of first instance and appeals therefrom were originally heard together and decided by one judgment but an application for review in one of them was allowed and another judgment given, it was held that the judgments in the suits were different and distinct in both the Courts and consolidation for the purposes of valuation could not be allowed.—Raja Rajeswar v. Arunachalam, 73 I. C. 217: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 602: 44 M. L. J. 424.

Under Or. XLV, r. 4, the case is only consolidated for the purpose of pecuniary value. It does not matter what the reason is why the appeals are consolidated. Once they are consolidated for whatever reason, they form in fact one appeal and the parties in that appeal must be treated just as the parties in one suit—The Midnapore Co. Ltd. v. Madan Marwari, 70 I. C. 782: (1923) P. 17.

Order XLV, r. 4 allows consolidation but only to make good a defect of pecuniary valuation and not a defect of any other kind. The rule speaks only of the consolidation of different suits decided by the same judgment, but the principle applies where the interests of the two parties are so entirely separate that they are practically defendants in two different suits decided by one judgment.—Seth Narayandas v. Mt. Kamlabai, 69 I. C. 525: (1923) Nag. 198.

Inherent power to consolidate suits—This rule provides for consolidation of suits "for the purposes of pecuniary valuation" and for this purpose the rule expressly lays down that suits decided by separate judgments shall not be consolidated, and so the High Court cannot exercise inherent power to consolidate such as the obstacle presented by S. 110 of the Nandan v. Narsingh Raut, noted under &c.", ante.

See Hukum Chand v. Kamalanand, 33 C. 927: 3 C. L. J. 67, in which it has been held that a Court in the exercise of its inherent power must be careful to see that its decision is based on sound general principles and is not in conflict with them or the intentions of the Legislature.

But where there is no question of valuation (e.g., where both the appeals are valued at more than Rs. 10,000) and the certificates as to value and fitness have already been granted, the High Court or the Council of the Council which were in substance one security for costs—Choudhri Har Prasad v. Brij Kishen, 45 I. C. 551: 3 P. L. J. 446. See Nanda Kishore v. Ram Golam, 40 C. 955 at 959: 16 C. L. J. 508: 18 I. C. 207, in which the High Court's power to consolidate suits and appeals has been mentioned as one of the obvious cases of the exercise of inherent jurisdiction.

See notes under S. 110.

Whether one application for leave to appeal can be made in two separate suits and appeals—There is no provision of law authorizing one application for leave to appeal in two separate suits and appeals. Where one such application is filed, it is not open to the party to file another application out of time, but it is open to him to amend the application by confining his prayer for certificate to one of the cases.—Gopal Singh v. Johnstone, 33 P. L. R. 455.

5. In the event of any dispute arising between the parties as to the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance, or as to the amount or value of the subject-matter in dispute on appeal to His Majesty in Council, the Court to which a petition for a certificate is made under rule 2 may, if it thinks fit, refer such dispute for report to the Court of first instance, which last-mentioned Court shall proceed to determine such amount or value and shall return its report together with the evidence to the Court by which the reference was made. [New.]

Remission of dispute to Court of first instance.

COMMENTARY.

Dispute regarding value of subject-matter.—This rule is new. It has given legislative sanction to the practice followed in cases where there was a dispute as to the true value of the subject-matter of the suit. When there is a contest as to the true value of the matter in dispute it has been the invariable practice, a practice sanctioned by the Judicial Committee, to ascertain by evidence and inquiry, what the true value is.—Amrita Nath v. Abhoy Charan, 9 O. W. N. 370.

The High Court should not direct any fresh inquiry under this rule where the Court of first instance in the trial of the suit has already made an inquiry as to the value of the subject-matter of the suit and the appellant has acquiesced in the finding of the Court of first instance on this point.—Anant v. Ramchandra, 42 B. 609; Rameshwar v. Siddeshwar, 45 O. L. J. 225; 101 I. C. 901. A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 418. See also Hansman v. Bahuji, 43 O. 225, where it has been held that the Court of first instance should itself hold the inquiry when a reference is made to it under this rule.

Effect of refusal of certificate.

6. Where such certificate is refused, the petition shall be dismissed. [S. 601, PARA. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to para. 1 of S. 601, C. P. Code 1882. The proviso attached to that section (regarding appeals from orders of refusal) has been relegated to Or. XLIII as Cl. (v).

Costs.—Where the petition is made to the High Court and it is dismissed with costs, the proper Court to execute the order is the lower Court.—Jogendra v. Wazidunnissa, 34 O. 860.

Appeal.—An order made by any Court other than a High Court refusing the grant of a certificate under this rule is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (v).

7. (1) Where the certificate is granted, the applicant shall, within ninety days or such further period, not exceeding sixty days, as the Court may upon cause shown allow from the date of the decree complained of, or within six weeks from the date of the grant of the certificate, whichever is the later date,—

Security and deposit required on grant of certificate.

- (a) furnish security in cash or in Government securities for the costs of the respondent, and
- (b) deposit the amount required to defray the expense of translating, transcribing, indexing and transmitting to His Majesty in Council a correct copy of the whole record of the suit, except—
 - (1) formal documents directed to be excluded by any order of His Majesty in Council in force for the time being ;
 - (2) papers which the parties agree to exclude ;
 - (3) accounts, or portions of accounts, which the officer empowered by the Court for that purpose considers unnecessary, and which the parties have not specifically asked to be included ; and
 - (4) such other documents as the High Court may direct to be excluded.

Provided that the Court at the time of granting the certificate may, after hearing any opposite party who appears, order on the ground of special hardship that some other form of security may be furnished :

Provided further, that no adjournment shall be granted to an opposite party to contest the nature of such security.

(2) Where the applicant prefers to print in India the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, he shall also within the time mentioned in sub-rule (1) deposit the amount required to defray the expense of printing such copy. [S. 602.]

COMMENTARY.

Rule amended.—The italicized words were added into this rule by Act XXVI of 1920. In sub-rule (1) the words originally were "within six months." The period is now reduced to 90 days. The provisos were also added by the same Act.

"Date of the decree."—These words in this rule mean the date on which the decree is pronounced, not the date on which it is signed.—Harendra v Hari Dasi, 14 C. W. N. 420: 5 I. C. 844 (following The Owners of the Ship Brenhilda v. The British Indian Steam Navigation Company, 7 C. 547 (P. C.)) See Or. XX, r. 7 and notes thereunder.

Power to enlarge the time specified in this rule.—The Privy Council laid down that the words in S. 602 of Act X of 1877 (i.e., Or. XLV, r. 7 of this Code) relating to the time within which security was to be given, were directory only; and although they were not to be departed from without cogent reason, the Court from which the appeal was preferred had the right of extending the time.—Burjore v. Bhagana, 11 I. A. 7: 10 C. 557 (P. C.). In this case, the Privy Council approved of the decision in In re Soorjmulh Koer, 2 C. 272, in which it was held that the requirements as to the deposit of costs were not absolutely imperative and the Court had power in its discretion to modify them, and in which it was also held that when the period of making the deposit expired on a day when the offices of the Court were closed, it was a reasonable exercise of that discretion to allow the deposit to be made on the day they re-opened. See Fazlunnissa v. Mulo, 6 A 250 (F. B.).

The High Court of Madras has held that the "cogent reasons" must be such as would lead the Court to believe that the party was diligent in due time to be prepared to lodge the deposit within the limited period, and that he was prevented from doing so, not owing to the absence and difficulty of getting funds, but owing to some circumstances, accidental or otherwise, over which he had no control, or owing to mistake which the Court would consider not unreasonable, or caused by negligence.—Rangasayi v. Mahalakshamma, 14 M 391. See Roy Jotindra Nath v Rai Prasanna Kumar, 11 C W N 1104, noted under the heading "Whether this section applies to cases where special leave is granted by Privy Council," post.

But the view expressed by the High Court of Madras in Rangasayi v. Mahalakshamma, ante has been dissented from by the Punjab Chief Court in Bagga v Salihon, 6 I. C. 723: 44 P. R. 1910: 70 P. W. 1910 in which it has been held that the rule laid down by the Madras High Court is a mere gloss upon the Privy Council ruling and is not a necessary consequence of that ruling; and poverty is a sufficient reason for extension of time where the sum of money required is large and the diligence of the petitioner is shown by his having paid in three-fourth of the money required.

Where a petition for filing a security-bond out of time stated that the delay was caused by a misapprehension of the appellants about the date of reopening of the High Court and that none of the appellants' men being present in Calcutta on that date, the bond was not filed, it was held that these were not reasons over which the applicant had no control and that the delay was not due to a mistake which could be regarded as not unreasonable or caused by negligence and they were therefore not cogent reasons such as would justify the extension of time.—Harendra v. Hari Dasi, noted under heading "Date of the decree," ante.

Effect of the amendment by Act XXVI of 1920 upon Court's power to enlarge the time.—The provisions of Act XXVI of 1920 do not apply to an appeal from a decree passed before the coming into force of that Act.—Debi Rai v. Prahlad, 44 A. 242: 65 I. C. 340: A. I. R. 1922 All. 87: 20 A. L. J. 51.

After the amendment of Act XXVI of 1920, the High Courts of Allahabad, Patna, Madras, Rangoon and the Chief Court of Oudh have held that the Court's discretion to extend the time for furnishing security and making a deposit for translation printing and other charges has been curtailed and limited to the period mentioned in the amendment and so the High Court has no power to extend the period beyond six weeks.—Ram Dhan v. Prag Narain, 44 A. 216: 20 A. L. J. 13: A. I. R. 1922 All. 43; Ashiq Ali v. Arjunanunnisa, 70 I. C. 937: A. I. R. 1923 Oudh 50; Kachi Reddi v. Saki Reddi, (1923) M. W. N. 510: 18 L. W. 29; J. N. Surty v. T. S. Chettyar, 4 R. 265: A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 20, and even where the money was not paid into Court within the specified time because of a mistake caused by a bank and because of some delay by the Post Office, the High Court cannot extend the time; but the leave granted should be revoked, and the remedy, if any, of the aggrieved party is to move the Privy Council to restore to him the certificate which had been cancelled—Joti Prasad v. Harkesh Singh, 26 A. L. J. 433.

The only discretion which the High Court has under r. 7 is to extend the period of 90 days from the date of the decree to a further period of 60 days, but no discretion is given to the High Court by the rule (as amended by Act XXVI of 1920) to extend it beyond the period of 6 weeks from the date of the grant of the certificate—Ramani Ranyan v. Durga Dutt, 9 P. L. T. 305: A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 330; Jaskissen v. Baijnath, 103 I. C. 213: A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 332; Kamala Kanta v. Bindhumukhi, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 431, in which it has been held that the Privy Council ruling in Burjore v. Bhagana, ante, has no longer any application.

But a Full Bench of the High Court of Bombay has held that the provisions of this rule even after the amendment by Act XXVI of 1920 are as directory as before, and on the contrary, the new provisions as to the nature of the security (viz. cash or Government security) and the proviso, that no adjournment shall be granted to an opposite party to contest the nature of such security, indicate that if the Legislature intended to negative the powers of the Court as to extension of time for furnishing security and making the deposit there would have been an express provision to that effect, and under this rule read with r. 9 of the Privy Council rules contained in the Order of His Majesty the King in Council dated February 9, 1920, which are republished as r. 90-A of the Rules of the Appellate Side of the High Court of Bombay, the High Court can enlarge the time for furnishing security and making deposit beyond the period prescribed in this Rule.—Nil Kanth v. Shri Sachidanand, 51 B. 430 (F. B.): 101 I. C. 555: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 217: 29 Bom. L. R. 352. See Retanshidaya v. Gudnaya, 133 I. C. 438: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 275: 33 Bom. L. R. 487.

N. 1104, noted under the heading "Whether this section applies to cases where special leave is granted by Privy Council," post.

But the view expressed by the High Court of Madras in Rangasayi v. Mahalakshamma, ante has been dissented from by the Punjab Chief Court in Bagga v. Salihon, 6 I. C. 723; 44 P. R. 1910. 70 P. W. 1910 in which it has been held that the rule laid down by the Madras High Court is a mere gloss upon the Privy Council ruling and is not a necessary consequence of that ruling; and poverty is a sufficient reason for extension of time where the sum of money required is large and the diligence of the petitioner is shown by his having paid in three-fourth of the money required.

Where a petition for filing a security-bond out of time stated that the delay was caused by the absence of the petitioner from the date of reopening of the Court in Calcutta on the 1st of January 1910, and that these were not reasons over which the applicant had no control and that the delay was not due to a mistake which could be regarded as not unreasonable or caused by negligence and they were therefore not cogent reasons such as would justify the extension of time.—Harendra v. Hari Dasi, noted under heading "Date of the decree," ante.

Effect of the amendment by Act XXVI of 1920 upon Court's power to enlarge the time.—The provisions of Act XXVI of 1920 do not apply to an appeal from a decree passed before the coming into force of that Act.—Debi Rai v. Prahlad, 44 A. 242 : 65 I. C. 340 : A. I. R. 1922 All. 87 : 20 A. L. J. 51.

After the amendment of Act XXVI of 1920, the High Courts of Allahabad, Patna, Madras, Rangoon and the Chief Court of Oudh have held that the Court's discretion to extend the time for furnishing security and making a deposit for translation printing and other charges has been curtailed and limited to the period mentioned in the amendment and so the High Court has no power to extend the period beyond six weeks.—Ram Dhan v. Prag Narain, 44 A. 216 : 20 A. L. J. 13 : A. I. R. 1922 All. 43 ; Ashiq Ali v. Arjunanunnisa, 70 I. C. 937 : A. I. R. 1923 Oudh 50 ; Kachi Reddi v. Saki Reddi, (1923) M. W. N. 510 : 18 L. W. 29 ; J. N. Surty v. T. S. Chettyar, 4 R. 265 : A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 20, and even where the money was not paid into Court within the specified time because of a mistake caused by a bank and because of some delay by the Post Office, the High Court cannot extend the time; but the leave granted should be revoked, and the remedy, if any, of the aggrieved party is to move the Privy Council to restore to him the certificate which had been cancelled.—Joti Prasad v. Harkesh Singh, 26 A. L. J. 433.

The only discretion which the High Court has under r. 7 is to extend the period of 90 days from the date of the decree to a further period of 60 days, but no discretion is given to the High Court by the rule (as amended by Act XXVI of 1920) to extend it beyond the period of 6 weeks from the date of the grant of the certificate.—Ramani Rangan v. Durga Dutt, 9 P. L. T. 305. A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 330, Jakkissen v. Baijnath, 103 I. C. 213 : A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 332, Kamala Kanta v. Bindhumukhi, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 431, in which it has been held that the Privy Council ruling in Burjore v. Bhagana, ante, has no longer any application.

But a Full Bench of the High Court of Bombay has held that the provisions of this rule even after the amendment by Act XXVI of 1920 are as directory as before, and on the contrary, the new provisions as to the nature of the security (viz. cash or Government security) and the proviso, that no adjournment shall be granted to an opposite party to contest the nature of such security, indicate that if the Legislature intended to negative the powers of the Court as to extension of time for furnishing security and making the deposit there would have been an express provision to that effect, and under this rule read with r. 9 of the Privy Council rules contained in the Order of His Majesty the King in Council dated February 9, 1920, which are republished as r. 90-A of the Rules of the Appellate Side of the High Court of Bombay, the High Court can enlarge the time for furnishing security and making deposit beyond the period prescribed in this Rule.—Nil Kanth v. Shri Satchidanand, 51 B. 420 (F. B.) : 101 I. C. 555 : A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 217 : 29 Bom. L. R. 352. See Revanshidaya v. Gudnaya, 132 I. C. 438 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 278 : 33 Bom. L. R. 487.

Dissenting from this view it has been held by the High Court of Madras and the Chief Court of Oudh that the High Court has no power to extend the time for furnishing the security beyond that prescribed by Or. XLV, r. 7 as amended by S. 3 of Act XXVI of 1920. Rule 9 of the new Judicial Committee Rules, 1920, has reference only to the procedure in Or. XLV, r. 7. It does not confer on the High Court an unqualified power to extend the time.—Poornananthachi v. Gopalanwami, 62 M. L. J. 665 : (1932) M. W. N. 557 : A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 494 (following 18 L. W. 29 ; dissenting from 51 B. 430 (F. B.)). See also Hukumchand v. Radhakissen, 136 I. C. 33C. In Poornananthachi v. Gopalanwami, A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 494 : 62 M. L. J. 665 : (1932) M. W. N. 557, it has been held that the mere inability of a party to raise the requisite funds is not a sufficient ground to justify an extension of time for furnishing security.

Whether this section applies to cases where special leave is granted by Privy Council.—Although this rule applies to a case where the certificate of leave to appeal to the Privy Council has been granted by the High Court, it has been the invariable practice of the Calcutta High Court to treat it as applying to cases where special leave has been granted by the Privy Council ; and in such cases also the High Court following the decision of the Privy Council in Burjore v. Bhagana, noted ante, held that it has power to extend the time as provided by this Rule for depositing the estimated cost of translating, transcribing, indexing and transmitting to the Privy Council the record of a case under appeal, but it ought not to do so without some cogent reason.—Roy Jotindra Nath v. Rai Prasanna Kumar, 11 C. W. N. 1104. (In this case the only ground for extending the time as stated in the application by the appellants was that they expected that the estimated cost of translating etc., would come from their Zemindari, but instead of that a lesser amount reached them ; and there was no plea of poverty. The Court held there was no cogent reason to extend the time in these circumstances).

Whether the amount deposited for costs of Privy Council appeal and printing charges can be attached in execution of the decree obtained in the High Court.—Where the judgment-debtor appealed to the Privy Council and deposited a sum for the costs of the Privy Council and for printing charges, and the decree-holder applied to attach the amount in execution of the decree which he had obtained from the High Court, the idea underlying the application being that the decree-holder would attach and obtain the amount deposited and would then contend that the judgment-debtor having no necessary deposit the appeal should be dismissed, it was held that such a manoeuvre was grossly improper and an offence to Court.—Mahant Shantanand v. Mahant Basudevanand, 119 I. C. 5 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 794. In this case, seeing the impropriety of the application, the counsel for the decree-holder applied to attach so much of the deposit as would eventually be found not to be required for the purpose for which it was entrusted to the Court but did not put any figures to suggest that there was a likelihood of there being any surplus. It was at first held that the application had no substance and even if it did contain any figures the application would have been too premature ; but on a reference to the Full Bench of the Court it was held that it was a mere attachment that was being sought for and not an immediate payment and the position taken by the Court was a perfectly good one, as the judgment-debtor's interest in the surplus which might remain over was both transferable and attachable and the decree-holder had a right to attach the security, subject of course to the first charge created on it; and the Court had no discretion to refuse a prayer for such attachment merely because it considered that the motive, object or intention behind it was improper.—Mahant Shantanand v. Mahant Basudevanand, 52 A. 619 (F. B.); 125 I. C. 477: A. I. R. 1930 All. 225: 28 A. L. J. 402 (referring to Jagdish v. Ramsakal, 8 P. 478: 114 I. C. 465: A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 97: 9 P. L. T. 969, in which it has been held that money deposited in Court by an insolvent by way of security for costs of a Privy Council appeal can be attached subject to the result of the appeal).

Inclusion of unnecessary papers in the record.—The Privy Council have strongly condemned the inclusion in the record of unnecessary papers and disallowed the costs occasioned thereby.—Gopal v. Rajani, 47 C. 415 (P. C.): 46 I. A. 299: 24 C. W. N. 553: 76 I. C. 737.

Effect of delay in preparing papers for Privy Council appeal.—If inordinate delay in the preparation of the record for transmission to His Majesty in Council (such as three years) is due to the inaction and want of prosecution on the part of the appellant, the appeal may be certified as not effectually prosecuted in accordance with r. 70 of Rangoon High Court Rules —D. R. Saklat v. Bella, 2 R 91: A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 217: 80 I. C. 74.

Security for costs and deposit of printing charges &c., in case of consolidated appeals—The word "applicant" as used in this rule is the appellant, and where there are two or more appellants whose appeals must be consolidated before the conditions as to the pecuniary value necessary for granting the application are fulfilled, the security required by the rule is the whole security and not merely the security which the appellants in one of the appeals have to furnish. Therefore where two appeals are consolidated for the purposes of pecuniary jurisdiction, security of costs must be was no default in respect of it, should not be finally admitted and allowed to proceed under Or. XLV, r. 8.—Mt. Bibi Nabi v. Rai Baijnath, 50 I. C. 511: 4 P. L. J. 198. In this case an opportunity was given to the appellant, who had not defaulted, to proceed with his objection to the report of the Subordinate Judge as to the value of the matter of his appeal which was not pressed after the consolidation order made that course unnecessary.

Security in form other than cash or Government security.—The High Court, in a fit case, has jurisdiction to accept security in any form other than that prescribed in this rule, but it should be reluctant to do so except for good cause, because any other form (such as personal bond or even a mortgage-bond) cannot be in all respects as effective as the deposit of cash or Government securities. Where the appellant was a minor and the property of his guardian was under attachment so that it was impossible for him to furnish the security in the form of cash or Government securities, and the appellant was prepared to pay the amount of expenses of translating, transcribing, indexing and transmitting to His Majesty in Council a correct copy of the whole record under Cl. (b), r. 7, the High Court allowed the appellant to furnish a surety who was prepared to execute a mortgage of his property in favour of the Registrar of the High Court as also a personal bond.—Revanshidaya v. Gudnaya, 132 I. C. 438; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 278; 33 Bom. L. R. 487. Such an application to furnish security in a form other than cash or Government security on the ground of special hardship must be made at the time of granting the certificate, and an application made thereafter is out of time.—Kamala Kanta v. Bindhumukhi, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 431.

Appeal.—No appeal will lie under Cl. 15 of the Charter from an order refusing to extend the time for furnishing security for costs, and directing the appeal to be struck off for not furnishing security within the prescribed time.—Kishen Pershad v. Tiluckdhari, 18 C. 182.

As to the mode of enforcement, attestation and registration of security-bond, see notes under S. 145.

8. Where such security has been furnished and deposit made to the satisfaction of the Court, the Admission of appeal and procedure thereon. Court shall—

- (a) declare the appeal admitted,
- (b) give notice thereof to the respondent,
- (c) transmit to His Majesty in Council under the seal of the Court a correct copy of the said record, except as aforesaid, and
- (d) give to either party one or more authenticated copies of any of the papers in the suit on his applying therefor and paying the reasonable expenses incurred in preparing them. [S. 603.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 603, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations.

In the first para. of the rule, the word "furnished," has been substituted for the word "completed" and the word "shall" has been substituted for the word "may," which occurred in the old section. The other changes are merely verbal.

"Made to the satisfaction of the Court."—A deposit made out of time is not one made to the satisfaction of the Court within Or. XLV, r. 8.—Jagmohan v. Sahu Doski Nandan, A. I. R. 1923 All. 572.

Admission of appeal.—After the admission of an appeal under this rule, only so much of the original record as bore upon, and is material to, the questions decided by the High Court and the subject of the appeal should be printed in the copy.—Raja Rao Venkata Suriya v. Court of Wards, 20 M. 395 (P. C.) : 24 I. A. 194.

After the declaration of admission of an appeal under this rule, the High Court refused to stay execution, but the execution of the decree was stayed pending the appeal by an order of the Privy Council.—Chatrapat Singh v. Dwarkanath, 22 C. 1 (P. C.).

Where a petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council from a decree of the High Court has been presented, the High Court may grant stay of execution, although the appeal has not as yet been admitted under this rule.—Janbai v. Sale Mahomed, 19 B. 10 (dissented from in Bibi Jarao Kumari v. Gopi Chand, 5 C. W. N. 562).

The High Court has power to strike off a petition of appeal to Her Majesty in Council for want of prosecution.—Moorajee Poonja v. Visranjee, 12 C. 658.

An objection that an appeal has come before the Judicial Committee without proper authority ought to be taken at the earliest opportunity, but may be entertained at any stage of the appeal and is not unfrequently heard when the appeal is called on and before the arguments on the merits have commenced.—Gajadhur Pershad v. Widows of Emam Ali, 15 B. L. R. (P. C.), 221: L. R. 2 I. A. 208.

The High Court passed a separate decree on a cross-appeal, identical in terms with those of a decree passed on the appeal in the suit. From the latter decree an appeal to the Privy Council was declared by the High Court to be admitted, under this rule. Held, that special leave should be granted to appeal from the decree in cross-appeal, without further security being required than had already been taken in respect of the appeal in the other.—Muhammad Ikramuddin v. Musammat Najiban, 19 A. 95.

"Give notice thereof to the respondent."—The accidental omission to notify the respondents of the admission of an appeal to the Privy Council is not a sufficient ground for re-hearing provided the respondents in fact knew of the admission.—Hardit Singh v. Gurmukh Singh, 4 P. W. R. 1921: 59 I. C. 7 (P. C.).

Form.—For Form of Notice under Cl. (b) of this rule, see App. G, Form No. 10.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 605, C. P. Code, 1892, with some verbal alterations.

"Further payment is required."—Where it was impossible to say whether certain account-books and papers were material or relevant, or even were part of the evidence in the case, the High Court declined to put the appellant to the expense of translating and transcribing them, but gave the respondent the option of translating them at his own expense, with a view to their being sent to England as an appendix to a record.—In the matter of Raj Coomar Baboo, 7 W R. 90.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 608, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The words "admitting the appeal" which occurred in the first para. of the old section after the word "Court" have been omitted. This change has been intended to amplify the powers of the High Court and to avoid the difference of opinion which had arisen between the Calcutta High Court and the other High Courts about the power of the Court pending an application for a certificate and before the actual admission of an appeal.—See Tegha Singh v. Bichitra Singh, 13 C. W. N. cclxxxix (289-n).

Under the old Code, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that the words "admitting the appeal" indicated that it had no power to stay execution until the appeal was admitted.—Jarao Kumari v. Gopi Chand, 5 C. W. N. 562; while the Bombay High Court held that the Court had such power before the appeal was admitted.—Dame Janbai v. Sale Mahomed, 19 B. 10

The omission of the words "admitting the appeal" now makes it clear that the High Court can exercise powers under this rule even before an appeal to the Privy Council is admitted.

Another result of the omission of these words has been that the High Court is now invested with the power to stay execution of a decree pending an appeal to the Privy Council, in a case where the appeal has been admitted by the Privy Council by special leave.—Nityamoni v. Madhu Sudan, 38 I. A. 74 · 38 C. 335: 11 I. C. 384.

The words "by the appointment of a receiver or otherwise" have been added in Cl. (d). By the addition of these words the power of the High Court has been enlarged. The other changes are merely verbal.

"The Court."—In this rule and r. 14, "the Court" means the High Court.—Ram Bahadur v. Radha Krishen, 3 P. L. J. 40.

Clause (a)—"Impound any moveable property."—In the case of an appeal to the Privy Council, the Court has no power, on failure of both parties to furnish security as required, to attach any property held by the appellant beyond that decreed.—Khoroo Lal v. Kant Lal, 5 W. R. Mis. 37.

Clause (b)—"Taking such security."—The Court has power to require security to be given under this rule even after the decree has been executed wholly or in part.—Jariutool Butool v. Hoseinee Begum, 10 M. I. A. 196; Inder Kumari v. Jaipal Kumari, 14 C. 290, 295: 14 I. A. 1; Narayanan v. Arunachellam, 19 M. 140, 142; Khushaldas v. Chimanlal, 50 B. 453: 96 I. C. 245: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 425.

The respondent decree-holder's failure to give security will not deprive him of the benefit of S. 15 of the Limitation Act.—Pandey Satdeo v. Srimati Radhey, 5 P. L. J. 39: 53 I. C. 9.

Clause (c)—Power of High Court to grant stay pending Privy Council appeal.—When an order was made by the High Court in appeal that a mortgage suit should be stayed, England against that order was admitted and stay of the hearing of the mortgage suit, it was made if the materials before the Court warranted it, and that Or. XLV, r. 13 covered such a case and under this as also the inherent jurisdiction of the Court an order that may be necessary in the circumstances of a particular case pending the hearing of an appeal to His Majesty in Council may be made by the High Court.—Kumar Sarat Kumar v. The Official Assignee, 34 C. W. N. 631: 129 I. C. 833.

Where in a suit for maintenance, a preliminary issue whether the plaintiff could maintain the suit was tried and decided against the defendant, and an appeal from this decision was dismissed on the ground that the decision was not appealable, and thereafter the defendant after obtaining special leave to appeal to the Privy Council applied for stay of all proceedings in the suit pending the final disposal of the Privy Council appeal, it was held that the Court had jurisdiction to accede to such an application but the case was not a fit one for stay of proceedings—Shri Goverdhanlalji v. Shri Chandraprabhavati, 109 I. C. 139: A. I. R. 1923 Bom 159: 30 Bom. L. R. 126 (distinguishing Lalitessur v. Bhabessur, and Ram Narain v. Harnam Das, noted under heading "Grant of stay by Privy Council &c.," post).

Where the High Court orders stay of execution upon the appellant to the Privy Council giving security to the satisfaction of the Subordinate Judge, it is advisable to specify definitely the time within which the security must be tendered and to give such further directions as may be necessary to ensure the intention of the Court being carried out.—Kedar Nath v. Mati Lal, 24 C. W. N. 265: 57 I. C. 392.

The High Court has power to stay execution before admission of the Privy Council appeal. It has also power to stay execution even when the appeal is admitted by special leave of the Privy Council. See notes under heading "Alterations in the Rule," ante.

The High Court is also competent to make an order for stay of execution in view of an application by the judgment-debtor to the Privy Council for special leave to appeal.—Nanda Kishore v. Ram Golam, 40 C. 955: 16 C. L. J. 503: 18 I. C. 207.

In a case where the Court in India which has ample power to deal with the matter according to the circumstances of the particular case and has knowledge of the details which the Judicial Committee cannot possess on an interlocutory application.—Vasudeva v. Shadagopa, 33 I. A. 132: 29 M. 379 (P. C.): 4 C. L. J. 101: 10 C. W. N. 945: 16 M. L. J. 299. In this case the High Court was of opinion that it had no power to grant a stay of execution up to the determination of the appeal by the Privy Council but its judgment showed that the stay ought to be granted, and the Privy Council allowed such a stay of execution upon terms.

is of the Judicial Committee may grant a stay of execution, it will not appoint a receiver of the property under attachment nor take the security referred to in Cls. (b) and (c) of sub-rule (2). In such cases, the Judicial High Court with to act according to Atool v. Hosseine Begum, 10 M. I. A. 196, 202.

Where the High Court, having declared the admission of an appeal to the Privy Council from its decree, refused to stay execution pending the appeal, the two Judges constituting the Court differing as to whether or not the case was such that the application should be granted, the Privy Council decided that their discretion had not been exercised; Chutraput Singh v. Dwarkanath, 21 I. A. 170 : 22 C. 1.

Grant of stay by Privy Council pending Privy Council appeal.—This rule gives the High Court power to stay execution of the decree but it does not give the power to stay proceedings under the decree; and so the High Court has no power to stay proceedings in a suit following a preliminary decree for partition against which it has granted leave to appeal to the Privy Council, and the Privy Council which has seizin of the appeal can alone do so.—Laliteshwar v. Bhabeshwar, 13 C. W. N. 690 : 9 C. L. J. 561 : 1 I. C. 812; Ram Narain v. Harnam Das, 42 A. 170 : 54 I. C. 561 : 18 A. L. J. 142. In the first mentioned case the High Court having refused the Privy Council subsequently stayed the proceedings pending the appeal to the Privy Council. See Laliteshwar v. Bhabeshwar, 13 C. W. N. cclxxv (275-n.).

A party to a suit in an appellate Court, who had obtained leave to appeal from its decree to Her Majesty in Council, petitioned for the order of the latter staying execution of interlocutory orders made in execution of such decree, and directing payment by the petitioner to the opposite party of large sums without security taken for their repayment in the event of the decree being reversed. This accompanied a petition for special leave to appeal against those orders. The latter was granted, but it not being competent to the Judicial Committee to make any order as to the stay of execution, an intimation was made by it to the Court below that it appeared to be the reasonable course that the opposite party should not, pending the appeal, be put in possession of the large sums in dispute.—Inder Kumari v. Jaipal Kumari, 14 C. 290 : 14 I. A. 1 (10 M. I. A. 196 and 322, referred to).

Clause (d)—"To give such other direction."—Pending an appeal by special leave to the Privy Council, the High Court, on an application by the appellant, for an interim order for continuing a manager under the Encumbered Estates Act until final adjudication, or till respondent furnished proper security, refused it on the ground that the Code gives them no jurisdiction in an appeal not certified by themselves. But the Privy Council, on an application by the appellant ordered stay of proceedings at appellant's request.—Mohesh Chandra v. Satrugan, 4 C. W. N. 34 : 27 C. 1 : 26 I. A. 281.

The plaintiff having obtained a decree, took possession of the property on giving security. On appeal to the High Court the decree was reversed and restitution ordered. The plaintiff then appealed to the Privy Council, and applied to the High Court to be left in possession upon his former security. Held, that the High Court had no power to suspend the restitution and plaintiff was not entitled either to keep possession or to require the defendants to give security; but the defendants were entitled to restitution without security.—Rajkissen v. Baroda, 6 W. R. Mis. 111 : B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 605.

The principle which underlies all orders for the preservation of property pending litigation is this, that the ultimately successful party in the litigation is to reap the fruits of that litigation and not obtain merely a barren success.—Brij Coomaree v. Ramrick, 5 C. W. N. 781.

"By the appointment of a receiver"—The High Court has power to appoint a receiver under Cl. (d), notwithstanding that the appeal was admitted by special leave of His Majesty in Council.—Raja Wazir v. Rani Jagadamba, 52 I. C. 407 : 4 P. L. J. 482.

High Court's power to amend its decree after grant of leave to appeal to Privy Council.—The High Court is not restricted in any way by Or. XLV, r. 13 from amending its decree even after leave to appeal to Privy Council has been granted.—Aghora Kumar v. Mahomed Musa, 11 C. L. J. 155 : 5 I. C. 723 ; Barhamdeo v. Harmanoge, 18 C. W. N. 772 : 20 C. L. J. 18 : 23 I. C. 419 ; Trikha v. Nathu Ram, 116 I. C. 459 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 427 : 30 Punj. L. R. 253.

Appeal.—An order refusing to stay execution in the exercise of the discretion given to the Court under this rule, is not a decision which affects the merits of any question between the parties by determining a right or liability, and no appeal from such an order will lie under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.—Mohabir Prosad v. Adhikari Kunwar, 21 C. 473 (8 B. L. R. 433 and 17 C. 455 referred to). See also Raja Durga Prasada v. Raja Mallikarjuna, 24 M. 358 (14 M. 88 commented upon and 23 M. 329 distinguished).

14. (1) Where at any time during the pendency of the appeal, the security furnished by either party appears inadequate, the Court may, on the application of the other party, require further security.

(2) In default of such further security being furnished as required by the Court,—

(a) if the original security was furnished by the appellant, the Court may, on the application of the respondent, execute the decree appealed from as if the appellant had furnished no such security ;

(b) if the original security was furnished by the respondent, the Court shall, so far as may be practicable, stay the further execution of the decree, and restore the parties to the position in which they respectively were when the security which appears inadequate was furnished, or give such direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal as it thinks fit. [S. 609]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 603, C. P. Code, 1892, with some verbal alterations.

15. (1) Whoever desires to obtain execution of any order of His Majesty in Council shall apply by petition, accompanied by a certified copy of the decree passed or order made in appeal and sought to be executed, to the Court from which the appeal to His Majesty was preferred.

Procedure to enforce orders of King in Council.

(2) Such Court shall transmit the order of His Majesty in Council to the Court which passed the first decree appealed from, or to such other Court as His Majesty in Council by such order may direct, and shall (upon the application of either party) give such directions as may be required for the execution of the same; and the Court to which the said order is so transmitted shall execute it accordingly, in the manner and according to the provisions applicable to the execution of its original decrees.

(3) When any monies expressed to be payable in British currency are payable in India under such order, the amount so payable shall be estimated according to the rate of exchange for the time being fixed at the date of the making of the order by the Secretary of State for India in Council with the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and the Indian Governments.

(4) Unless His Majesty in Council is pleased otherwise to direct, no order of His Majesty in Council shall be inoperative on the ground that no notice has been served on or given to the legal representative of any deceased opposite party or deceased respondent in a case, where such opposite party or respondent did not appear either at the hearing in the Court whose decree was complained of or at any proceedings subsequent to the decree of that Court, but such order shall have the same force and effect as if it had been made before the death took place. [S. 610.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 610, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

Paras. 3—4 of the old section which related to execution of decree against the surety and the proviso attached thereto, have been omitted. The reason for the omission is, that S. 145 of the Code contains provisions for enforcement of decrees against sureties.

The words "enforce" and "enforcement," which stood before the words "execute" and "execution" in the old section, have also been omitted.

In sub-rule (3) the words "at the date of the making of the order" have been added before the words "by the Secretary of State". Sub-rule (4) was added by Act XXVI of 1920 in order to prevent delays in the disposal of Privy Council appeals

"Whoever desires to obtain execution"—An application to obtain execution under sub-rule (1) by some of the plaintiffs does not entitle all of them to apply under sub-rule (2) for execution to the Court to which the order of His Majesty in Council is sent for execution under that sub-rule, unless the decree was passed in favour of all the plaintiffs jointly.—Maharaja Raveneshwar v Rai Dajinath, 2 P. L. J. 496 : 40 I. C. 508

Where a party to whom the Order in Council, in accordance with the ordinary practice, was issued, delays or refuses to lodge the order with the High Court, the opponent can apply to the High Court, under Cl. (1) of this rule, with a certified copy of the order and ask for a summary order on the party to lodge the order which had been entrusted to him so that execution might follow in terms of the judgment of the Board.—Sourendra v Hari Prasad, 5 P. 461 : 53 I. A. 89 : A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 31 94 I. C. 813

"Execution."—A person desiring to obtain execution, even if it be by way of restitution, must apply in the first instance to the Court indicated by this rule because "execution" includes restitution as stated in S. 144.—Damodar Das v. Birj Lal, 37 A. 567. The provisions of this rule are mandatory so that if the petition is presented to a different Court, the execution application is liable to be dismissed; Bhagwanta v. Zamir, 3 P. 596 : 78 I. C. 766 : A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 576.

"To the Court from which the appeal to His Majesty was preferred."—A party in a suit, desirous of executing an order or judgment of Her Majesty in Council, ought to apply to the Court from which the appeal was finally brought to the Queen in Council; and it is the duty of such Court to give directions for executing the decree to the Court of first instance by which the suit was originally tried.—In re Barlow v. Orde, 18 W. R. 175.

"Certified copy."—Before a decree-holder in the District Court can obtain execution of a decree which has been affirmed by the Privy Council, he must produce, on the application for execution a certified copy of the order passed by Her Majesty in Council.—Juggernath Sahoo v. Judoo Roy, 5 C. 329 : 4 C. L. R. 397 (20 W. R. 441 followed).

The provisions of this rule are not to be construed as restricting the only admissible evidence of an order of Her Majesty in Council, to a certified copy, on an application for execution made under such rule. They must be read as directory, having the object that proper information regarding the order shall be supplied to the Courts in India. When the original order (given to the successful party) had not been filed in the High Court, so as to enable the proper officer to supply a certified copy; held, that a copy, though not certified by him, might accompany a petition for execution under this rule.—Hurriah Chunder v. Kali Sunderi, 10 I. A. 4 : 9 C. 482 : 12 C. L. R. 511 (P. C.).

appeal to the Privy Council does not disentitle him to such relief.—Balusami Iyer v. Venkatasami Naicken, 75 I. C. 219.

When the order of His Majesty in Council has been transmitted to the lower Court at the instance of one of the successful parties, it is not necessary that any other person interested in the execution of the decree should obtain a separate transmission of the order.—Karuppayi v. Ramaswami, (1932) M. W. N. 589; 62 M. L. J. 698; A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 440.

Rate of exchange.—Under Cl. (3) of this rule the amount payable must be estimated at the rate of exchange "for the time being fixed by the Secretary of State for India in Council," and the words "for the time being" mean the year in which the amount is realised or paid or execution taken out, and not the year in which the decree was passed.—Param Sukh v. Ram Dayal, 8 A. 650 (dissented from in Dakhina Mohan v. Saroda Mohan, 23 C. 357, which has been followed in Mahomed Abdul Hye v. Gajraj Sahai, 25 C. 283; 2 C. W. N. 89).

Costs and mesne profits.—It is settled law that where a decree is silent as regards interest or mesne profits subsequent to the institution of the suit, the Court executing the decree cannot assess or give execution for such interest or mesne profits.—Arunachellam v. Arunachellam, 15 M. 203; Sadasiva Pillai v. Ramalinga Pillai, 2 I. A. 219; 15 B. L. R. 393; 24 W. R. 193.

performance of such order as might be made by the Privy Council," and the appeal was subsequently dismissed, no order being made as to mesne profits; held, that the decree-holder was entitled to mesne profits from the date of the decree until he was put in possession and that the amount of such mesne profits should be determined by the execution department.—Gogun Chunder v. Laidlay, 5 C. L. R. 189 (15 B. L. R. 393; 2 I. A. 219; 24 W. R. 193 referred to).

When the Privy Council decree not only a certain specified sum as the costs of the appeal to His Majesty in Council but also awards the costs incurred in the Courts in India, the decree-holder is entitled to the costs of translation to England.—Aszur Ali v. Lopez, 9 B. L. R. App. 1; 1 B. L. R. App. 23-note; 15 W. R. 356; Saroda Prasad v. Luchmipat Singh, 9 B. L. R. 23-note; 18 W. R. 89; and Nil Madhub v. Bissumbhur, 21 W. R. 411.

Costs of printing and translation, certified by the Deputy Registrar of the High Court, are a necessary part of the costs of an appeal to the Privy Council. The amount of such costs is left to be ascertained by the High Court, and is not assessed by the Privy Council office.—Ram Coomiar v. Prosunno Coomiar, 10 C. 106.

A party to a suit whose case has been dismissed in both the lower Courts with costs, is entitled, when the decrees of the lower Courts are reversed by the Privy Council and the case remanded for re-trial, to ap for a refund of the costs already paid under the decrees of the lower Courts, but not for interest on such costs. Such an application need not be made to the Privy Council, but may be made to the Court in which the suit was instituted—Dorab Ally v. Abdul Azeez, 4 C. 229 : 3 C. L. R. 358.

Limitation for execution of decree of the Privy Council.—An application for execution under this rule is governed by Art. 183 of the Limitation Act—Tubikram v. Badri, 1 P. L. J. 385; Chutterpat v. Saita, 20 C. W. N. 930 (F. B.). Where an appeal is preferred to the Privy Council from the decree of a High Court, but the appeal is dismissed for want of prosecution, the order of the Judicial Committee does not amount to a decree for purposes of limitation or for any other purpose—Abdul Majid v. Jawahir, 36 A. 359 (P. C.) ; Batuk Nath v. Munni Dei, 36 A. 234 : 41 I. A. 104 : 23 I. C. 644 : 18 C. W. N. 740.

As to the mode of enforcement, attestation and registration of security-bond, see notes under S. 145.

Letters Patent Appeal—An order of a Judge presiding over the Privy Council Department in the High Court, rejecting an application for execution, is a final order, and is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. (15) of the Charter, and is therefore appealable. Per Garth, C. J.—That the duties of a Judge in dealing with the meaning of decrees of the Privy Council are purely ministerial, and that any order made in such capacity is not appealable—Hurrieh Chunder v. Kali Sunderi, 9 C. 482 : 10 I. A. 4 : 12 C. L. R. 511

Interest on costs.—No interest on costs can be allowed by any Court in this country where it is not allowed by the Privy Council.—Dakhina v. Saroda, 23 C. 357, Forester v. Secretary of State, 4 I. A. 137 : 3 C. 161.

16. The orders made by the Court which executes the order of His Majesty in Council, relating to such execution, shall be appealable in the same manner and subject to the same rules as the orders of such Court relating to the execution of its own decrees. [S. 611.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 611, C. P. Code, 1882, with some omissions and alterations. The words "enforce" and "enforcement," which occurred in the old section before the words "execute" and "execution," have been omitted. The other alterations are merely verbal.

ORDER XLVI.

REFERENCE.

1. Where, before or on the hearing of a suit or an appeal in which the decree is not subject to appeal, or where, in the execution of any such decree, any question of law or usage having the force of law arises, on which the Court trying the suit or appeal, or executing the decree, entertains reasonable doubt, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties, draw up a statement of the facts of the case and the point on which doubt is entertained, and refer such statement with its own opinion on the point for the decision of the High Court. [S. 617.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to S. 617, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions; it should be read with S. 113.

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" wherever it occurred in the old section. The words "not subject to appeal" have been substituted for the word "final," which occurred in the old section. The word "final" means, conclusive or decisive, that is, not open to review or revision; hence the words "not subject to appeal" have been substituted for it.

The words "on the construction of a document, which construction may affect the merits," have been omitted. The reason for the omission will appear from the following Report of the Special Committee :—

Court.—See notes under S. 113, ante.

Necessary conditions of reference—Reasonable doubt.—The powers of the Subordinate Judiciary to make a reference for the opinion of the High Court are hedged in by certain conditions and limitations which are to be found in this rule. A right of reference is fundamentally different from a right of appeal. The former vests in the Court and the latter vests in the suitor. The High Court cannot entertain a reference from a Subordinate Civil tribunal unless certain requisite conditions are fulfilled and it is necessary that the reference should be made in a pending suit or appeal arising out of a suit in which no appeal or further appeal is permissible, and that it should relate to a question of law on which the Court making the reference has a reasonable doubt.—Bakhsh v. Bedkiya, 50 A. 839 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 371 (F. B.) : 26 A. L. J. 729—(Per Sen, J.).

A reference under this rule can only be made when the Judge trying the suit entertains a reasonable doubt on a question of law or usage having the force of law and he cannot ordinarily entertain a reasonable doubt on point of law clearly decided by the rulings of the High Court of his Presidency unless the authority of the decision can be questioned by virtue of anything said or decided in Privy Council.—Bharaji Raoji v. Joseph De Brito, 20 B. 226 (21 B. 193 referred to). See also Naru Koli v. Chirra Bhosle, 13 B. 54; Fillingham v. Dunn, (1914) Panj. Rec. No. 8, p. 22: 20 I. C. 194. If the Court has no reasonable doubt, it should not make a reference merely because it is asked to make one.—Darwoodjee v. Municipal Corporation of Rangoon, 1 R. 220: 76 I. C. 519: A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 193.

Order XLVI, r. 1 applies when doubts arise in the proceeding of a suit or appeal or execution or other proceeding. This rule was not intended to provide for suppositions cases which do not naturally arise in a proper proceeding before the Court.—Mahammad Haji v. Ahmadbhai, 25 B. 327. See Hurish Chunder v. O'Brien, 14 W. R. 248.

The High Court can only express its opinion upon a matter referred to it when three conditions have been complied with: (1) that the Court referring the matter entertains a reasonable doubt upon some question of law, (2) that it states what the point is upon which the doubt is entertained, and (3) that it gives a statement of the facts containing an expression of opinion on the point which is referred to the decision of the High Court.—Garling v. Secretary of State, 30 C. 453.

"In which the decree is not subject to appeal."—A reference to the High Court is authorized by this rule only when the decree is not subject to appeal.—Banjji v. Bhajji, 11 B. 57; Krishna v. Ram Kumar, 7 C. L. R. 144; Secretary of State v. Fazal, 18 C. 234; Oriental Loan Association Ltd v. Hatch, 17 B. 735; Mahant v. Chudasama, 12 B. 30.

No reference under this rule can be made in cases in which the decrees are subject to an appeal.—Bhadri Narayan v. Secretary of State, 107 I. C. 649: A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1179: 54 M. L. J. 98: 33 M. L. J. 657.

Where, therefore, the applicant presented an application to a Sub-Judge praying that the adjustment of certain decrees might be certified, and the Sub-Judge being of opinion that the application could not be granted, inasmuch as the execution of the decree was then barred by limitation, referred the case to the High Court under this rule. Held, that the question could not be referred, as the order applied for to the Sub-Judge was appealable under Ss. 2 and 47 of the Code.—Ranjji v. Bhajji Harjivan, 11 B. 57.

Where the lower Court referred to the High Court under this rule the following question, viz., if, after a preliminary decree had been passed in a mortgage suit the sole defendant had died and no steps had been taken in time to bring on record the legal representative, a final decree can nevertheless be passed or the suit abated; held the reference was incompetent since whichever way he might decide the matter, the decree would be appealable.—Barju Biswal v. Kunja Behari, 10 P. 471: 133 I. C. 767: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 353: 12 P. L. T. 909.

A question arising in execution of a decree cannot be referred for the decision of the High Court under S. 617, C. P. Code, 1882, except where the decree is final.—Oriental Loan Association v. Hatch, 17 B. 735; Mahant v. Chudasama, 12 B. 30.

It is only when a matter cannot come before the High Court as a Court of Appeal that a reference can be made under S. 617, C. P. Code, 1882.—Krishna Nath v. Ram Kumar, 7 C. L. R. 144; Secretary of State v. Fazal, 18 C. 234.

A Munsif, being of opinion that he had no jurisdiction to entertain a particular suit, made an order returning the plaint for presentation to the proper Court. The District Judge, on appeal, entertaining a doubt upon the question of jurisdiction, made a reference under this rule. Held that, as the order of the Munsif is an appealable order and not a final decree in the suit, the High Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the reference.—Ramphul v. Durga, 7. A. 815.

A bail-bond was executed to a Munsif, who expressed no doubt as to the amount of duty to be paid, and made no application to have the case referred. The District Judge referred the case to the High Court. Held that the District Judge was not authorized to make the reference.—Reference under The Indian Stamp Act, 1879, 11 M. 38 (F. B.).

The order made by a District Judge on an application for probate, not being a final order, cannot be referred for the opinion of the High Court under S. 617, C. P. Code, 1882.—In the matter of Monohur Mookerjee, 5 C. 766.

The question as to the amount of security required on granting an application to stay execution is a question relating to execution as contemplated by S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), and therefore an order determining that question is appealable under S. 2, C. P. Code, 1882, and no reference would lie under this rule.—Ishwargar v. Chudasama, 12 B. 30.

Reference not authorised by this rule.—Order XLVI, r. 1 does not authorize a reference, except on a point arising in a litigation between the parties in a suit, or appeal, or in a matter wherein the Court is called on to adjudicate, that is, to pronounce on the opposite pretensions of contending parties. An enquiry into the professional conduct of a pleader with reference to a case cannot be a proper subject of reference under this rule.—Yashvant Narayan v. Souza, 12 B. 78; Mahamad v. Ahmadbhai, 25 B. 327. Nor can any reference be made in a proceeding other than a suit or an appeal in a suit even by virtue of the provisions of S. 141 above.—Damodara v. Kittappa, 36 M. 16 : 10 I. C. 879; Tancred v. Mullick, 84 I. C. 543 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 391.

This rule may be applied in the trial of the review of judgment suit.—Donomally made under S. 37 of Act XV of 1882.—Oakshott v. The British India Steam Navigation Co. Ltd., 15 M. 179.

The Full Bench of a Presidency Court of Small Causes cannot state a case for the opinion of the High Court on an application for a new trial.

This rule does not contemplate a reference as to the proper Court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal.—Pir Baksh v. Faiz Mahomed, (1906) A. W. N. 180.

The High Court has no power to review a judgment passed by it on a reference from a Sub-Judge with Small Cause Court powers. The judgment of the High Court in such a case is not a decree or order, but it is simply a statement of the grounds in conformity with which the lower Court is to dispose of the case.—Ram Chandra v. Sitaram, 10 B. 68.

Practice and procedure on reference.—In making a reference under this rule, the precise question of law or usage having the force of law must be formulated; a general question without stating the precise question arising in the case should not be referred.—Ralli Brothers v. Goculbhai Mulchand, 15 B. 376. See also Ishwardas v. Kalidas, 20 B. 779.

A party requiring a Judge to make a reference to the High Court, must do so before the Judge has delivered his judgment.—Bank of Bengal v. Vyabhoy Gangji, 16 B. 618.

The Small Cause Court passed a decree for the plaintiff, but contingent upon the opinion of the High Court, which decided that the plaintiff could not recover: Held, that the Small Cause Court, on receipt of the copy of the judgment of the High Court, was bound to enter judgment for the defendant.—Yule & Co. v. Mahomed Hossain, 24 C. 129: 1 C. W. N. 71 (dissented from in Moll v. Luchmi, 25 C. 505: 2 C. W. N. 283 (F. B)).

On a reference under Ss. 617 and 647, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLVI, r. 1 and S. 141), held, that the word 'land' includes land covered by a house, and consequently a suit for house-rent, unless due under a written contract signed by a defendant is not cognizable in a Village Munsif's Court.—Narayanamma v. Kamakshamma, 20 M. 21.

When, upon an application for a new trial, the Judges of the Presidency Small Cause Court differ in their opinion as to any question of law, and the majority without ordering a new trial reverse the decree of the Judge who tried the suit, the Court is bound to state a case for the opinion of the High Court under S. 69 of Act XV of 1882.—Seshammal v. Munusami, 20 N. 353.

On a reference to the High Court under S. 617, C. P. Code, 1882, by a Court of Small Causes, held, that Ss. 27, 28 and 29 of the Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879) do not relate to any arrangement or agreement made between a litigant and his own pleader as to the receipt of the fees which are actually allowed upon taxation.—Raziuddin v. Karim Bakhsh, 12 A. 169 (9 M. 375 followed).

A reference to the High Court under this rule is not bad, merely because it arises out of the action taken by a third person not a party to the suit. In this case the reference was made at the instance of the Collector, who was not a party to the suit.—Purshottam v. Balvant, 32 B. 157: 10 Bom. L. R. 13: 3 M. L. T. 135. -

2. The Court may either stay the proceedings or proceed in the case notwithstanding such reference Court may pass decree contingent upon decision of High Court and may pass a decree or make an order contingent upon the decision of the High Court on the point referred ;

but no decree or order shall be executed in any case in which such reference is made until the receipt of a copy of the judgment of the High Court upon the reference. [S. 618.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 618, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations.

In para. 1, the words "make an" have been added before the word "order"; and the word "decision" has been substituted for the word "opinion," which occurred in the old section, before the words "of the High Court."

In para. 2, the words "but no decree or order shall be executed," have been substituted for the words "but no execution shall be issued, property sold, or person imprisoned," which occurred in the old section.

3. The High Court, after hearing the parties if they appear and desire to be heard, shall decide the point so referred, and shall transmit a copy of its judgment, under the signature of the Registrar, to the Court by which the reference was made; and such Court shall, on the receipt thereof, proceed to dispose of the case in conformity with the decision of the High Court. [S. 619.]

Judgment of High Court to be transmitted, and case disposed of accordingly.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to S. 619, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications.

"After hearing the parties."—The words "after hearing the parties if they appear and desire to be heard," have been substituted for the words "shall hear the parties to the case in which the reference is made, in person or by their respective pleaders," which occurred in the old section. The alteration in the language seems to have been made to make it clear that the parties may be heard only when they appear and desire to be heard; but according to the wording of the old section it was incumbent upon the High Court to hear the parties even if they had not appeared.

"Dispose of the case."—The Calcutta Small Cause Court passed a decree for the plaintiff but contingent upon the opinion of the High Court, which decided that the plaintiffs could not recover. The judgment of the High Court was transmitted to the Small Cause Court, and the Small Cause Court Judge, instead of entering judgment for the defendants, allowed the suit to be withdrawn by the plaintiffs. Held, on revision, that the Small Cause Court was to bring a final suit. of the co judgment from the High Court was bound to enter judgment for the defendant and to dispose of the case in conformity with the decision of the High Court.—Fule & Co. v. Mahomed Hossain, 21 C. 133.

The High Court has no power to review a judgment passed by it on a reference from a Small Cause Court. The judgment of the High Court in such a case is not a decree or order, but is simply a statement of the ground in conformity with which the lower Court is to dispose of the case as provided by this rule.—Ramachandra v. Sitaram, 10 B. 63.

Costs of reference to High Court

4. The costs (if any) consequent on a reference for the decision of the High Court shall be costs in the case. [S. 620.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to S. 620, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations.

The word "the" has been added in the beginning, and the word "decision" has been substituted for the word "opinion," which occurred in the old section.

Costs—Under this rule the cost of a reference to the High Court cannot be dealt with separately, but must be dealt with when awarding the costs of the suit. They are, however, in the discretion of the Court, and need not necessarily follow the event of the suit.—Nicol v. Mathoor Dass, 15 C. 507.

5. Where a case is referred to the High Court under rule 1, the High Court may return the case for amendment, and may alter, cancel or set aside any decree or order which the Court making the reference has passed or made in the case out of which the reference arose, and make such orders as it thinks fit. [S. 621.]

Power to alter, etc. decree of Court making reference.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to S. 621, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations, of a verbal character.

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "when," and the words "or made," have been added after the word "passed."

"For amendment."—Where the three conditions mentioned in Or. XLVI, r. 1 are not complied with, the High Court can under this rule return the case to the lower Court for amendment.—Garling v. Secretary of State, 30 C. 458.

Power of High Court to quash the order of reference.—This rule is wide enough to enable the High Court to quash the order of reference itself which the Subordinate Court has made.—Krishnarao v. Lakshman, 118 I. C. 692: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 30: 30 Bom. L. R. 1627. In this case reference was made by a Judge of the Small Causes Court without delivering judgment in connection with a suit involving a small amount, viz., Rs. 300 on certain points of law under the Limitation Act of such a nature as to have caused disagreement between various High Courts in India. Looking at the matter from a practical point of view, there was no likelihood of the reference being heard by the High Court for 18 months or more although the referring Judge requested the matter to be disposed of promptly; the amount involved was very small; there was no possibility of having the advantage of arguments of pleaders as there was no appearance for the respondent and a counsel only appeared to argue on his behalf as amicus curiæ at the request of the High Court. Considering these circumstances the High Court cancelled the order of reference and returned the papers to the lower Court with directions to hear and determine the case according to law

6. (1) Where at any time before judgment a Court in which a suit has been instituted doubts whether the suit is cognizable by a Court of Small Causes or is not so cognizable, it may submit the record to the High Court with a statement of its reasons for the doubt as to the nature of the suit.

Power to refer to High Court questions as to jurisdiction in small causes.

- (2) On receiving the record and statement, the High Court may order the Court either to proceed with the suit or to return the plaint for presentation to such other Court as it may in its order declare to be competent to take cognizance of the suit. [S. 646-A.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This section corresponds to S. 646-A of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

"At any time before judgment."—A reference under Or. XLVI, r. 6 can only be made before judgment.—Diwalibai v. Sadashivdas, 24 B. 310.

7. (1) Where it appears to a District Court that a Court subordinate thereto has, by reason of erroneously holding a suit to be cognizable by a Court of Small Causes or not to be so cognizable, failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law, or exercised a jurisdiction not so vested, the District Court may, and if required by a party shall, submit the record to the High Court with a statement of its reasons for considering the opinion of the subordinate Court with respect to the nature of the suit to be erroneous.

Power to District Court to submit for revision proceedings had, under mistake as to jurisdiction in small causes.

- (2) On receiving the record and statement the High Court may make such order in the case as it thinks fit.

(3) With respect to any proceedings subsequent to decree in any case submitted to the High Court under this rule, the High Court may make such order as in the circumstance appears to it to be just and proper.

(4) A Court subordinate to a District Court shall comply with any requisition which the District Court may make for any record or information for the purposes of this rule. [S. 646-B.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 646-B with some verbal changes only.

Applicability of this rule.—This rule does not apply to every case in which a Court of Small Causes has failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law or has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, but only to a restricted number of such cases, namely, those cases, in which a Court of Small Causes has erroneously held a suit to be, or not to be cognizable by it. Where no question as to the Court's jurisdiction was raised by either party, and the Court proceeded to judgment as if the case was properly cognizable by it, the High Court refused to interfere upon a reference under this rule.—Ram Lal v. Kabul Singh, 25 A. 135.

Small Cause suit tried as ordinary suit by both the lower Courts.—Or. XLVI, r. 7 is an enabling rule and does not cut down the jurisdiction of the appellate tribunal.—Sri Raja Simhadri v. Chelasane Bhadrappa, 30 M. 41: 1 M. L. T. 414.

A plaint in a small cause suit was returned under S. 23 of Act IX of 1887, for presentation in the ordinary Civil Court, which tried the suit and passed a decree. On appeal the decree was reversed on the ground that the Munsif had no jurisdiction to try the suit. Held, that, having regard to Ss. 646-A and 646-B of the Code, 1882 (Or. XLVI, rr. 6 and 7) it is doubtful whether the appellate Court would have been right in dismissing the suit for want of jurisdiction.—Mahamaya v. Nitya Hari, 23 C. 425.

Powers of High Court under this rule.—Notwithstanding S. 16 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, the High Court has, on a case being submitted to it under this rule, full power to consider the matter of jurisdiction, or to deal with it on the merits, so as to do substantial justice without putting the parties to the expense of a fresh trial. Where a suit cognizable by a Small Cause Court was tried both in the Munsif's and District Judge's Courts without objection to the jurisdiction, held, on a second appeal to the High Court that this rule must be read with S. 16 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, so as to modify its full effect in the case wrongly tried by an ordinary Civil Court, and taken in appeal to the District Court.—Suresh Chunder v. Kristo Rangini, 21 C. 249 (1 C. 123: 24 W. R. 478 referred to). Followed in Parameshwaran v. Vishnu, 27 M. 478 (26 M. 176 not followed). See also Parameshwari v. Jagat, 19 C. W. N. 900. A contrary view was however taken by the Madras High Court in Kollipara v. Kankipati, 33 M. 323 (F. B.) in which it has been held that the High Court should in such a case set aside the decree of the District Court as having been made without jurisdiction and then dispose of the case on the merits either restoring or not restoring the decree passed by the Munsif as may in its discretion appear best. The same view was adopted by the Bombay High Court in Sanharbai v. Somabhai, 25 B 417. The Allahabad High Court, in Abdul Majid v. Bedyalhar, 39 A. 101, followed the above Full Bench decision of the Madras High Court in 33 M. 323 (F. B.).

The Court should state its reasons.—When a reference is made to the High Court under this rule, the Court which makes it should state its reasons for considering the opinion of the Subordinate Court with respect to the nature of the suit to be erroneous.—Chhotu v. Jawahir, 28 A. 293; 3 A. L. J. 23

"District Court shall submit, if required by a party."—Where a Small Cause Court Judge returned a plaint for presentation to a Munsif, who again returned it, being of opinion that the suit was cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, and the plaintiff then applied to the District Judge to submit the record for the orders of the High Court, held, that the District Judge was bound under this rule on the requisition of the plaintiff, to submit the record, although the plaintiff might have appealed to the District Judge against the order of the Munsif.—Simson v. Mc Master, 13 M. 344. See also Suresh Chunder v. Kristo Rungini, 21 C. 219 (251).

The Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur has held that under Or. XLVI, r. 7 the District Judge is bound, if required by a party, to submit the record to the High Court with a statement of his reasons. For this purpose it is immaterial whether the order forming the subject-matter is that of a Small Cause Court or by a Subordinate Judge.—Cantonment Board, Jubbulpore v. Phulchand, 137 I. C. 88; 28 N. L. R. 54; A. I. R. 1932 Nag. 70.

Before a District Court can make a reference under this rule it must be of opinion that the Subordinate Court has erroneously held upon the point of jurisdiction in regard to the particular suit before it, and that, therefore, the matter is one in which the interference of the High Court should be sought. The word "shall" in S. 646-B, Cl. (1), C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLVI, r. 7) is not mandatory, but directory.—Madan Gopal v. Bhagwan Das, 11 A. 304.

It would appear from the above rulings that there is a difference of opinion as to whether the reference to the High Court is mandatory or directory. The Madras High Court and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur are of opinion that the reference is mandatory if required by a party. The Allahabad High Court is of opinion that the word "shall" in this rule is not mandatory but directory.

ORDER XLVII.

REVIEW.

Application for Review of Judgment.

1. (1) Any person considering himself aggrieved—

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed, but from which no appeal has been preferred,

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is allowed, or

(c) by a decision on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, and who, from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or for any other sufficient reason, desires to obtain a review of the decree passed or order made against him, may apply for a review of judgment to the Court which passed the decree or made the order.

(2) A party who is not appealing from a decree or order may apply for a review of judgment notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal by some other party except where the ground of such appeal is common to the applicant and the appellant, or when, being respondent, he can present to the Appellate Court the case on which he applies for the review. [S. 623.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to S. 623, C. P. Code, 1892, with some alterations and omissions. It should be read with S. 114. The word "hereby," which stood before the word "allowed" in Cls. (a) and (b) of the old section, has been omitted; and in Cl. (c) the word "decision" has been substituted for the word "judgment." The words "or to the Court (if any) to which the business of the former Court has been transferred," which occurred in the old section after the words "to the Court which passed the decree or made the order" have been omitted. The omission seems to have been made probably in view of S. 150 of the present Code. (See Udit Narain v. Mathura, 35 O. 974: 12 O. W. N. 859).

In sub-rule (2), the word "order" has been added after the word "decree."

Application for review of judgment.—Any person considering himself aggrieved by a decree or a decision as stated in Cls (a), (b) or (c) of sub-rule (1) is competent to apply for a review of judgment on any of the following grounds: (1) on the ground of the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within the knowledge of such person or could not be procured by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or (2) on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or (3) for any other sufficient reason.

Petition of review involves three stages.—A petition of review involves three stages of procedure. The first stage commences ordinarily by the petitioner applying for a rule. The Court may then either grant a rule calling on the other side to show cause, or the rule may be granted. In the second stage, the rule may either be admitted or rejected and the hearing of the rule may involve to some extent an investigation into the merits. If the rule is discharged then the case ends. If, on the other hand, the rule is made absolute then the third stage is reached. The case is re-heard on the merits and may result in a repetition of the former decree or in some variation of it. In either case, the whole matter having been re opened, there is a fresh decree.—Vadilal v. Fulchand, 30 B. 56: 7 Bom. L. R. 664. Until that fresh decree is passed, the old decree remains in suspense.—Achyut v. Tapibai, 48 B. 310: 79 I. C. 753: A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 310.

"Any person considering himself aggrieved."—This means a party to the suit against whom a decision has been pronounced, who has suffered some actual loss, or legal grievance, or derogation of some right, or who has failed to obtain some right, title or interest to which he is entitled directly as a matter of legal right. It does not mean any person who is disappointed of benefit which he might have received if some other order had been made.—Jhabba Lal v. Shub Charan, 15 A. L. J. 1. But when defendants having separate interests bring separate second appeals which are dismissed, the Court cannot, on an application for review on the part of two of them, modify the decrees in which there is no application of review.—Pegoo Jan v. Wazooddeen, 18 W. R. 464.

A Director of a Company is an aggrieved person within the meaning of this rule, and can apply for review of an order made in a proceeding against the Company if the said Company was not represented by any of its Directors or Secretary in that proceeding; and the fact that he was not a party to the original proceedings does not preclude him from filing an application for review.—Kawdu v. Berar Ginning Co., Ltd., 116 I. C. 427: A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 185.

"By a decree or order."—An order under Or. XXXIII, r. 7, refusing leave to sue as a pauper is open to review under this rule.—Adari v. Manikji, 4 B. 414; so is an order rejecting an application for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council.—Nand Kishore v. Ram Gulam, 39 C. 1037: 16 C. W. N. 1099; so is an ex parte order granting letters of administration.—Parman v. Bohra Nekram, 13 A. L. J. 441; and an order as to costs.—Braja v. Jagannath, 6 P. L. J. 284: 63 I. C. 763. But an order under S. 39 (h) of the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, is not open to review.—Ralla v. Manglan, 116 P. R. 1912; nor is an order dismissing a second appeal under Or. XLI, r. 11, C. P. Code.—Rajani v. Kali Prasanna, 41 C. 809. The provisions of this rule are applicable to an Insolvency Court.—Challa Abbieddi v. Challa Venkatarreddi, 51 M. L. J. 60; 94 I. C. 351.

"By a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed".—This rule clearly shows that not only is an application for review by a party who has already appealed disallowed by that rule, but even in the case of a party not appealing no review lies when there is an appeal by some other party on a common ground, or where the former as a respondent is in a position to bring before the appellate Court the matter to be reviewed. The manifest intention of the provision is to avoid a conflict of jurisdiction and to prevent any action on the part of the inferior Court which would have the effect of controlling the powers of the higher Court with reference to the matter actually under appeal. Though a party who has applied for a review is not precluded from appealing, the Code does not provide for the procedure to be followed when an appeal is preferred after the review. Of course both the proceedings cannot go on simultaneously. If the review proceeding is to be continued and the appeal stayed, expediency would require that the party affected by the final order in the review should be enabled to obtain a remedy in the pending appeal notwithstanding that such remedy would be in respect of what was not in existence on the date of the appeal.—Ramanadhan Chetti v. Narayanan, 27 M. 603 (606): 14 M. L. J. 321.

Clause (a)—"From which an appeal is allowed but from which no appeal has been preferred."—In appealable cases the review application should be filed before the appeal is lodged.—Secretary of State v. Hindusthan Co-operative Insurance Society Ltd., 36 C. W. N. 40; A. I. R. 1932 Cal 171.

Sub-rule (1) of this rule provides that any person considering himself aggrieved by a decree from which an appeal is allowed, but from which no appeal is preferred, may apply for a review of a judgment to the Court which passed the decree. Hence an application for a review of a decree after an appeal has been preferred against it, is not maintainable; Muhammad Yusuf v. Raja Ram, 35 I. C. 867; Indrajit Pratap v. Amar Singh, 2 P. 676 (P. C.).

It is however open to the person aggrieved, after an appeal is preferred, to apply for a review, provided his appeal is withdrawn; and the appellate Court may allow the appellant to withdraw the appeal with a view to apply to the lower Court for a review.—See Pandu v. Devji, 7 B. 287 (relying on Nanabhai v. Nathabhai, 9 B. H. C. R. 89 and Narayan v. Davudbhai, 9 B. H. C. R. 238); In the matter of Nand Kishore, 32 A. 71; Mariamunissa v. Babu Ram, 45 A. 458; 73 I. C. 1016; A. I. R. 1923 All 541. But when an appeal is actually dismissed, it is in fact preferred and cannot be regarded as not having been preferred. Therefore, when an appeal is summarily dismissed under S. 551 of the Code of 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 11) a ver Court's judgment under this important evidence cannot be 125 : 8 Bom. L. R. 843. See also Rajani v. Kali Prasanna, 41 C. 809; Suilabalu v. Gadadhar, 36 C. L. J. 76; Hari Ganu v. Hari Ganu, 118 I. C. 255; A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 225 : 31 Bom. L. R. 436. (See the rulings referred to in the last-mentioned case).

See also Sheo Balak v. Mahabir, 133 I. C. 432. A. I. R. 1931 All. 704. 29 A. L. J. 945.

In Ramappa v. Bharmu noted ante, Jenkins, C. J., observed that the reasoning of the learned Judges who decided the case of Pandu v. Devji, noted ante, was that as by the cancellation of the order for admission it was to be taken that no appeal had been admitted, so by a withdrawal of the appeal it must be treated as though no appeal had been preferred. Following this observation it has been held in Ram Prasad v. Asa Ram, 43 A. 288 : 61 I. C. 334, that where a party to a suit filed an appeal first and then an application for review and after filing the review the applicant withdrew the appeal, the fact of an appeal having been filed and withdrawn was no bar to the hearing of the application for review. But dissenting from this view it has been held that an application for review is not competent if on the date on which it is filed, the appeal from the decree sought to be reviewed is pending, nor can a subsequent withdrawal of the appeal before the application for review comes on for hearing amount to non preferring of the appeal within the meaning of this rule.—Balling Vithaling v. Shri Devasthan Fund, 132 I. C. 446 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 233 33 Bom. L. R. 378 (distinguishing Ramappa v. Bharmu, ante).

If an appeal is dismissed for default and an application under Or. XLI, r. 19 has become time-barred, the review is incompetent.—Manphul Singh v. Hamid Ali, 21 A. L. J. 416 : 74 I. C. 523 : A. I. R. 1923 All. 576.

Filing of appeal pending application for review.—Where after the presentation of an application for review, by a party to the suit, an appeal is preferred from the same decree, whether by the same party or by the other party to the suit, the Court to which the application for review is made, is not thereby deprived of its jurisdiction to entertain the application.—Chenna Reddi v. Peddaobi Reddi, 32 M. 416 : 2 I. C. 802 (F. B.) ; Narayan v. Lazmibai, 38 B. 416 : 23 I. C. 513, Pyari Mohan v. Kalu Khan, 44 C. 1011 : 41 I. C. 497. But that power exists so long as the appeal is not heard, because once the appeal is heard, the decree on appeal is the final decree in the case, and the application for review of judgment of the Court of first instance can no longer be proceeded with.—Pyari Mohan v. Kalu Khan, 44 C. 1011 : 41 I. C. 497 ; Gour v. Nil Madhab, 36 C. L. J. 484 : 73 I. C. 34 : A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 113 ; Shivappa v. Ram Chandra, 46 B. 1 : 63 I. C. 910 : A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 130. If, on the other hand, the application is passed, the appeal cannot be heard. decree appealed from is superseded by v. Baldeo Prasad, 28 A. 240 ; Brijbasi v. Sahg Ram, 34 A. 282 ; Pyari Mohan v. Kalu Khan, 44 C. 1011 : 41 I. C. 497. See also Shudramappa v. Gurushantappa, 116 I. C. 227 : 31 Bom. L. R. 137 : A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 183.

There is nothing in this rule or in the other provisions of the Code which would justify the Court in refusing to entertain an application for review merely on the ground that subsequent to the making of the application an appeal had been filed —Rang Lal v. Lalawati, 119 I. C. 561 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 375. Where an appeal is presented after an application for review, the decision on the appeal should be held over pending the decision on the application for review—(Ibid). Where a Court postponed the hearing of the application for review pending the decision of the appeal, the procedure was wrong and the High Court could interfere under S. 115 and direct the Court to proceed with the application for review—(Ibid).

Deposit of decretal amounts to be made before filing application for review in suits under Provincial Small Cause Courts Act and Bengal Tenancy Act.—See S. 153-A. of the Bengal Tenancy Act and S. 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act.

Power of Small Cause Court to review its decree.—The provisions of S. 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act as to the deposit of costs on an application for review are not mandatory, but merely directory.—Ramsami v. Kurisu, 13 M. 178 (F. B.). But see Jogi Ahir v. Bishen Dayal, 18 C. 83. See, however, Jem Aluchi v. Budhram, 32 C. 339 : 1 C. L. J. 43.

An application for a review of judgment by the High Court on a reference from a Small Cause Court, was not admissible under the Code of 1859.—Doyle v. Khosal, 3 W. R. S. C. C. Ref. 8.

The High Court has no power to review a judgment passed by it on a reference from a Sub-Judge with Small Cause Court powers. Clause (c) of S. 623, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLVII, r. 1), allows of a review of judgment, on a reference only from a Court of Small Causes.—Ramchandra v. Silaram, 10 B. 68.

The Judge of a mofussil Small Cause Court may grant an application for a review of judgment under the Civil Procedure Code.—Isan Chunder v. Luchun Gope, 5 C. 699 : 5 C. L. R. 559. See also Ratan Krishen v. Raghuo Nath, 8 C. 287 : 10 C. L. R. 275; Madon Mohon v. Purno Chundra, 10 C. 297 (in which the distinction between new trial and review has been pointed out).

A bonafide mistake of the Official Receiver in allowing an order of discharge to be passed ex parte can be reviewed because the general body of creditors should not suffer by the mistake of the Official Receiver.—Ayyaswami v. Official Receiver, 61 M. L. J. 719 : 34 L. W. 735 : (1931) M. W. N. 924.

Power of Insolvency Court to review its order.—The Insolvency Court in the mofussil has by virtue of S. 5 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, the power to review its own orders.—Ayyaswami v. Official Receiver, (1931) M. W. N. 924 : 61 M. L. J. 719 : 34 L. W. 735. Larger powers are conferred on the Insolvency Court under S. 8 (1) of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act for reviewing, rescinding or varying its orders than in proceedings which fall exclusively within Or. XLVII, r. 1 of the Code.—In re Morarji Jairam Naranji, 34 Bom. L. R. 1175.

Power of revenue Court to review its order.—A Revenue Court has no power to review a judgment because no such power is conferred upon it by the U. P. Land Revenue Act, nor do the provisions of S. 114 and Or. XLVII apply to proceedings in such a Court.—Musst. Siraj Fatima v. Mahmood Ali, 30 A. L. J. 437 (F. B.) : A. I. R. 1932 All. 293.

Review of ex parte decree.—It is competent to a party against whom an ex parte decree has been made to apply for review of judgment.—Mutto v. Nahi Begam, 6 A. 65 ; Porosh Nath v. Khettro Monee, 20 W. R. 284 ; Ali Azim v. Ram Manick, 12 W. R. 195 ; Hari Hur v. Buddu, 13 C. L. R. 254. See also Amur Hasan v. Ahmad Ali, 9 A. 36 ; Ramchandra v. Draupadi, 20 B. 281 ; and Bamacharan v. Gadadhar, 56 C. 21 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 322, in which it has been held that against an ex parte decree, the party aggrieved has three courses open to him; he may either make an application under Or. IX, r. 9 or r. 13, he may appeal from the decree or apply for a review of the judgment or order passed ex parte. Where the only objection is with regard to the non-appearance of a party at the hearing on account of sufficient cause the matter can chiefly be agitated in an application under Or. IX; where the decree is against the record or against law, it can be successfully challenged in an appeal from it; where there is any error which comes within the ambit of Or. XLVII, r. 1, the ex parte decree may be questioned by an application for review.

Where an application for setting aside an ex parte decree is made on the ground of fraud, the Court should determine whether the alleged fraud was established and constituted "sufficient reason" within the meaning of this rule.—Nathu Ram v. Ganga Bux, 128 I. C. 753: A. I. R. 1930 All. 815: 28 A. L. J. 1057.

An appeal was heard and disposed of by the Full Bench in the absence of the respondent. Subsequently, on the application of the respondent, a review was granted on the ground that no notice of reference to the Full Bench was served on him, and that his absence of the hearing came within the words "any other sufficient reason" in this rule.—Ghansham v. Lal Singh, 9 A. 61 (F. B.).

Review from order of dismissal for default.—When a suit has been dismissed for default under S. 98, C. P. Code, 1892 (Or. IX, r. 3) and the plaintiff neglected to make an application under S. 99 of that Code (Or. IX, r. 4) within 30 days from the date of dismissal to get the suit restored to the file, the Court has no jurisdiction under S. 623 (this rule) to re-instate the case.—Kotlash v. Nabadwip, 2 C. W. N. 318. But this is strictly applicable only to an order of dismissal made under S. 98 of the Code of 1892 (Or. IX, r. 3) and does not equally apply to an order of dismissal made under S. 102 (Or. IX, r. 8); and when a suit is dismissed for default under S. 102 (Or. IX, r. 8) a judgment is made by the plaintiff without a jurisdiction to entertain the application for review of judgment.—Raj Narain v. Ananga Mohan, 26 C. 598; Khasomal v. Bacho, 115 I. C. 314: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 38.

Where on the day of hearing of a suit, the Court, in the presence of pleaders of both parties, dismissed the plaintiff's application for adjournment on the ground that only one out of his six witnesses was present and passed an order thereon dismissing the suit, and then wrote on the plaint dismissing the suit ex parte for plaintiff's default, it was held that although the Court had jurisdiction to refuse an adjournment, it had no jurisdiction to dismiss the suit in the presence of the pleaders for the plaintiff without giving the plaintiff an opportunity of arguing the case or of examining the witness who was absent, or of issuing a warrant against the absent witnesses; the Court had no jurisdiction to pass a second order of dismissal for default of appearance by the plaintiff after the plaintiff's pleader had left the Court; and as such it was a fit case for granting an application for review—(Ibid).

The dismissal of a suit for default on a date not notified to the parties is a ground for review.—A. T. K. P. L. M. Muthu Pillay v. Lakshminarayan, 6 R. 254 : 111 I. C. 80 : A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 177.

For distinction between review and revival, see Jonardan Dobey v. Ramdhone, 23 C. 738 (760 and 764) (F. B.).

Review of consent Or compromise decree.—In Aushootosh v. Tara-prasanna, 10 C. 612, it has been held that for the purpose of setting aside a decree passed in pursuance of a compromise come to out of Court, there are two available modes of procedure : (1) by suit ; (2) by a review of the judgment sought to be set aside ; the latter being the more regular mode of procedure (followed in Ram Gopal v. Prosunna Kumar, 10 C. W. N. 529). Following these two decisions B. B. Ghoso, J. held, that fraud discovered after the decree or order complained of is a "new and important matter" within the meaning of Or. XLVII, r. 1, and decree vitiated by fraud (e.g., where a superintendent of the decree-holder's estate who suspended by his master had without any authority fraudulently compromised a case under Or. XXI, r. 90) may be set aside by a suit or by review of judgment, but the latter is the more regular procedure ; but if a party pursued one remedy, he cannot, being unsuccessful, again have recourse to the other ; and therefore, where the lower Court has refused to entertain an application for review of a compromise decree based on an allegation of fraud, the High Court will interfere in revision, in as much as there has been a clear refusal of jurisdiction.—Khitish v. Nagendra, 33 C. W. N. 572 : 49 C. L. J. 425 : 119 I. C. 371 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 513. Where, however, the party pleaded that he had entered into a compromise by reason of coercion and undue influence, that circumstance may not be a good ground for review, because it would not fall within the phrase "new and important matter"—(Ibid.). See Alamelu Ammal v. Rama Iyer, A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 446 : 43 M. L. J. 290, in which it has been held that a plaintiff, who wishes to displace a decree passed in terms of a compromise to which she was a party on the ground that she affixed her signature to the compromise at the instance of an agent in ignorance of its contents, can either apply for a review of the decree or institute a separate suit for the purpose ; the affixing of signature in ignorance of the contents of the document is "new and important matter" within the meaning of this rule. See also Rasik v. Rajan, 10 C. W. N. 286, in which it has been held that the ground that fraud was practised upon a party in connection with a petition of compromise upon which a decree was made is a good ground for review ; and although a mistake in the matter of copying out the petition of compromise may not, by itself, fall within the scope of S. 623 of the Code of 1882 (i.e., this rule), it might be a good ground for review if it is taken with the other ground stated above. In Chandra v. Prosunna, 64 I. C. 259, it has been held that an application for review of a consent decree is maintainable on the ground that the decree was induced by fraud, although in the majority of cases it would be more convenient if relief is sought by way of suit. In the following cases it has been held that when a consent decree is sought to be attacked on the ground of fraud, misrepresentation, mistake, coercion or undue influence, or any similar grounds, the appropriate remedy is by a suit although on the terms of this rule, as also on the authorities, it cannot be said that a Court has no jurisdiction to review a consent decree.—Murali Rahimbhoy v. Rehmoobhoy, 15 B. 594 ; Fool Coomary

v. Woodoy, 25 C. 649; Barhamdeo v. Banarsi, 3 C. L. J. 119; Gulab Koer v. Badshah Bahadur, 10 C. L. J. 420: 13 C. W. N. 1197. In Nathumal v. Baghubir, 48 A. 160: A. I. R. 1926 All 50: 23 A. L. J. 1029, it has been held that when a compromise has been incorporated into a decree, the Court cannot review its order on the sole ground that the compromise has been entered into under undue influence or coercion, in as much as fraud, undue influence or coercion cannot be considered as in any way analogous to either the discovery of a mistake or error apparent on the face of the record or the discovery of new and important evidence.

The High Court of Patna has held that if a decree embodying a compromise is inaccurate or does not embody the true terms of the compromise, the only remedy is by an independent suit to set aside the decree on the ground of mistake or fraud or some other ground ejusdem generis therewith; Ram Lagan v. Ram Birich, 4 P. L. J. 205 (referring to Wilding v. Sanderson, (1897) 2 Ch. D. 534).

Rankin, C. J., approving of this decision held that it is not competent under Or. XLVII, C P Code to obtain a review of a consent decree on the ground that the decree was procured fraudulently, and that the only way by which such a decree can be amended is by a separate suit.—Galstann v. Kumar Pramiathanath, 33 C. W. N. 883. A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 470.

In Bhagwan v. Ram Dut, 4 Luck. 76 113 I. C. 483: A. I. R. 1923 Oudh 418: 5 O. W. N. 812, it has been held that where at the hearing of the suit the general agent of the defendant admitted the plaintiff's claim and a decree was passed and the principal thereupon filed a suit to set aside the decree on the ground that the agent had colluded with the plaintiff and that he had no power to make such an admission, it was held that the suit was maintainable and that the remedy of the aggrieved party was not to file a review application because there was no error or mistake on the face of the record.

Discovery of new and important matter or evidence.—The word "evidence" in this rule is not confined to documentary evidence but includes oral evidence—Lalchand v. Imdad Ali, 103 I. C. 439: A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 279.

The Code of Civil Procedure permits applications for review, on the ground of discovery of new and important evidence, but exacts very strict conditions, so as to prevent litigants lying on their oars when they ought to be looking for evidence. It enjoins the Judge to require the facts as to the absence of the negligence to be strictly proved, and makes the Judge who tried the case final on such application. Where such an application for review was refused by the original Court, but the Court of Appeal, upon a special and preliminary application and before hearing the appeal on the merits, made an order for the admission of the further evidence, held that the appellate Court's order was without jurisdiction—Kessowji v. G. I. P. Ry. Co., 31 B. 381 (P. C.) 11 C. W. N. 721: 6 C. L. J. 5: 17 M. L. J. 347: 4 A. L. J. 461: 34 I. A. 116.

A point which was never raised at the trial at all and on which no evidence was adduced should not be permitted to be raised by an applicant for review.—Madhori Saran v. Parbati, 47 A. 831. The Privy Council has observed that it may perhaps be questioned whether an appellant who had

The dismissal of a suit for default on a date not notified to the parties is a ground for review.—A. T. K. P. J. M. Muthu Pillay v. Lakshminarayan, 6 B. 254 : 111 I. C. 80 : A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 177.

Discovery of new and important matter or evidence.—The word "evidence" in this rule is not confined to documentary evidence but includes oral evidence.—Lalchand v. Imdad Ali, 108 I. C. 439; A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 279.

The Code of Civil Procedure permits applications for review, on the ground of discovery of new and important evidence, but exacts very strict conditions, so as to prevent litigants lying on their oars when they ought to be looking for evidence. It enjoins the Judge to require the facts as to the absence of the negligence to be strictly proved, and makes the Judge who tried the case final on such application. Where such an application for review was refused by the original Court, but the Court of Appeal, upon a special and preliminary application and before hearing the appeal on the merits, made an order for the admission of new evidence, it was held that the appellate Court's order was without error.—Ry. Co., 31 B. 381 (P. C.); 11 C. W. N. 75; 4 A. L. J. 461; 34 I. A. 116.

A point which was never raised at the trial at all and on which no evidence was adduced should not be permitted to be raised by an applicant for review.—Madhori Sutan v. Parbati, 47 A. 831. The Privy Council has observed that it may perhaps be questioned whether an appellant who had not taken a point when the matter first came to be argued, was entitled to raise it by a proceeding in review.—Jijiboy v. T. S. Chettyar, 55 I. A. 161 : 6 R. 302 : 32 C. W. N. 845 : 47 C. L. J. 510 : 109 I. C. 1 : A. I. R. 1928 P. C. 103 : 26 A. L. J. 657 : 30 Bom. L. R. 842 : 54 M. L. J. 696.

As to whether fraud discovered after the decree or order complained is a "new and important matter" within the meaning of this rule. See Khitish v. Nagendra noted under heading "Review of consent and compromise decree," ante. See also Nathumal v. Raghubir under the same heading.

A review of judgment, on the ground of discovery of new evidence not within the applicant's knowledge at the hearing of the case, should not be admitted without proof of the truth of the ground alleged.—Umrao Thakur v. Gakul Mandal, 8 B. L. R. Ap. 34 : 16 W. R. 7 ; Nolita Mohon v. Denonath, 11 B. L. R. 427-note ; Khelut Chunder v. Pran Kisto, 11 B. L. R. 428-note : 12 W. R. 461 ; Naffar Chand v. Sandes, 8 B. R. 1928 Mad. 56 ; Debi Dayal v. Ambika, 119 I. C. 99 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 515. The "discovery of new and important evidence" in Or. XLVII, r. 1, would refer only to a discovery made since the order sought to be reviewed was passed.—Musst. Tribeni v. Mohan Lal, A. I. R. 1922 All. 366 : 66 I. C. 558.

Generally speaking, in a case of this kind the only material dates would be those between the institution of the suit and the date on which the decree was pronounced.—Conally v. Conally, A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 63 : 120 I. C. 465.

A Court's power to review its order depends on a ground which existed on the date when the order was made and cannot be exercised on a ground which had come into existence subsequently.—Nathu Mal v. Raghubir, 48 A. 160 : 23 A. L. J. 1029 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 50 ; Kotagiri Venkata v. Vellanki, 24 M. 1 (P. C.) : 27 I. A. 197 : 4 C. W. N. 725 ; Balwantrao v. Farid Sahib, A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 10.

A judgment delivered after the passing of the decree sought to be reviewed is no material on which an application for review can be based ; for "the new and important matter" alleged to have been discovered must have existed at the date of the decree.—Kaliprasanna v. Bhagabati, 64 I. C. 324.

The words "or could not be produced by him at the time" in Or. XLVII, r. 1, C. P. Code, must refer to the words which precede, namely, "was not produced by him at the time." The whole clause means that the new and important matter alleged to have been discovered must have been produced by the applicant were not within his knowledge at the time of the trial.—Rameshwardhari v. Sadho Saran, 75 I. C. 91.

When a review is sought on the ground of the discovery of new evidence, the evidence must be relevant and of such a character that if it had been given in the suit it might possibly have altered the judgment.—In re Appa Rao, 10 M. 73, 77. 13 I. A. 155; Nandalal v. Panchanan, 45 C. 60 (67-68). But the discovery of evidence not originally available tending to prove that a decree had been obtained by perjury is ground for an application for review.—Munshi Mesuful v. Surendra, 16 C. W. N. 1002; Abdul Huq v. Abdul Hafez, 14 C. W. N. 695; Lakshmi v. Nur Ali, 38 C. 936. 15 C. W. N. 1010

In Conally v. Conally, A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 63: 120 I. C. 465, it has been held that the consideration that if due diligence had been exercised, the evidence subsequently discovered or not then within knowledge of the party would have been found, is not the test for judging if the case falls under Or. XLVII, r. 1. Each case must be judged on its own peculiar circumstances.

If a suit is dismissed on two grounds and the plaintiff applies for a review on the discovery of new evidence on one of the grounds only, the application should be rejected in as much as the reversal of the decision on the ground sought to be reviewed would not lead to the modification or setting aside of the original dismissal of the suit on the other ground.—Mahabir v. Collector of Allahabad, 36 A. 277.

The High Court will not accept a review of a judgment in a second appeal dismissed under Or. XII, r. 11, C. P. Code, on the ground that new evidence to prove a fact has been discovered.—Sailabala v. Gadadhar, 36 C. L. J. 76. For other cases on this point see also notes under heading "Cl. (a) from which an appeal is allowed but from which no appeal has been filed."

As a general rule, the discovery of new evidence is not a ground for the admission of a review of a judgment passed in special appeal. When new evidence is discovered, the proper course for the appellant to adopt is to withdraw his special appeal and apply to the lower Court for a review of its judgment.—Nanabhai v. Nathabhai, 9 B. H. C. R. 59 (followed in Ram Chandra v. Krishnaji, 23 B. 4) See also Pandurang v. Moro Vasudev, 6 B. H. C. R. 68; Pandu v. Devji, 7 B. 287; and Raru Kutti v. Mamad, 18 M. 480.

The High Court cannot, in a review of judgment based on a special appeal, documentary evidence has been discovered, which, if proved, would have led the Court below to come to a different finding, although had such evidence been discovered before the disposal of the appeal the Court might have allowed the appellant to withdraw the appeal with a view to apply to the lower appellate Court for a review of judgment on the discovery of fresh evidence.—Mariamunnaissa v. Babu Ram, 45 A. 459: 21 A. L. J. 377.

The decision of the Privy Council in an appeal is "new and important matter" for the purposes of an application for review in respect of a decree made on a subsequent accrual of facts which the decree appealed against was based on. Ram Lal v. Kalka, 33 A. 566; 14 I. L. J. 330;

The production of a new ruling or authority, which if brought to the notice of the Judge at the first hearing might have altered the judgment is "new and important matter" within the meaning of this rule.—Ellem v. Basheer, 1 C. 181; Abdul Sadiq v. Abdul Aziz, 21 A. 152, 153.

The objection to the admission of a review of judgment on the strength of a new document was not allowed to prevail in a case where the so-called new document was not the sole reason for the admission of the review.—Huro Gobind v. Huro Soondarce, 18 W. R. 316.

The High Court has no authority to admit a review of judgment passed in special appeal merely on the ground that new evidence to prove a fact has been discovered.—Bhyrub Nath v. Kally Chunder, 16 W. R. 112; Ex parte Bashuyagarulu, 1 M. H. C. R. 254; Jackammal v. Palnappa, 5 M. H. C. R. 464; Panchanan v. Radha Nath, 4 B. L. R. 213.

Where no case of fraud or surprise having been made out, a party to the suit sought for a new trial on the ground of discovery, after judgment, of an important document, which was in the possession of the opposite party but which the party first-named had neglected to obtain discovery before judgment. Held, that a new trial should not be lightly granted and in the present case it ought not to be granted.—Turnbull & Co. v. Duval, 6 C. W. N 809 (P. C.).

During the pendency of a suit for rent, a plaintiff applied for postponement on the ground that he was unable to obtain a copy of a document, which he had applied for from the Collectorate. The application was refused, and the plaintiff got a modified decree. He subsequently obtained a review of judgment and a decree in full. Held, that the review was properly admitted.—Goor Dyal v. Deha Noonya, 22 W. R. 446.

Where new evidence is adduced in an application for review, it need not be per se sufficient to show that the previous decision is wrong or such as to cause an overmastering balance of evidence. If there is sufficient ground for receiving the new evidence, the case is to be heard as if it were being originally heard with the materials then before the Court.—Sahebjan v. Sufdur Ali, 22 W. R. 288.

Decree rendered ineffectual by reversal.—The plaintiffs sued the defendant to recover the amount of assessment paid in respect of land for the years 1872—76, and got a decree. The defendant appealed to the Privy Council. The plaintiffs subsequently filed a second suit to recover the assessment paid in respect of the land for the years 1877—82, and obtained a decree solely on the strength of the former decree. The Privy Council reversed the decree. The defendant thereupon applied for review of the decree in the second suit. Held, that the Court had jurisdiction to entertain the application for review. The decision of the Privy Council reversing the first decree was a "new and important matter" within the meaning of this rule.—Waghela Rai Sangji v. Masludin, 13 B. 330 and Jogesh v. Kali Churn, 3 C. 30 (F. B.), p. 46. See Maung Kyaw v. Ko Aye, 5 R. 261: 103 I. C. 258: A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 189. See also Satto Saran v. Tarini Charan, 3 B. L. R. 287: 12 W. R. 154 (doubted in Panchanan v. Gurudas, 9 B. L. R. 187: 18 W. R. 317). But it has been held that a subsequent Full Bench case overruling the authority on which the judgment sought to be reviewed was based was not a ground for granting an application for review.—Amrit Lal v. Madho Das, 6 A. 292. The discovery of a fresh authority was also held to be not a good ground for review.—Vellaya v. Jaganatha, 7 M 307. See also Banee Pershad v. Radha Pershad, 15 W. R. 143; Chandi Charan v. Monoranjan, 17 C L J. 416.

Mistake or error apparent on the face of the record.—A review of judgment may be granted for the ends of justice where there is an error of law on the face of the judgment, or where the decision of the Court has proceeded upon a mistaken view of the law.—Sharup Chand v. Pat Dassee, 14 C 627 (Rewa Mahton v. Ram Kishen, 13 I. A. 106: 14 C. 18 referred to; Chintamani v. Pyari, 6 B L R 126: 12 W. R 1 (F. B.) and Reasut Hossein v. Hadjee Abdoolah, 3 I. A 221: 2 C. 131 cited).

The "error" as used in this rule is not limited to one of fact; and an error of law committed by a Judge and apparent on a perusal of the record is a ground for granting a review; and where a Judge dismissed a suit on the ground that as between the plaintiffs who were the nearest agnates and the defendants who were the sister's son of the last male owner, the latter were the preferential heirs under the Mitakshara law prevailing in the Madras Presidency, it was an error apparent on the face of the record and could be reviewed—Murari v. Balavanth, 46 M. 955: 76 I. C. 342: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 98: 45 M. L J 309: (1923) M. W. N. 761.

Failure of the Court to apply the law of limitation to the facts found in the case is an error apparent on the face of the record.—Debi Sahai v. Basheskar, 10 L. 184: 112 I. C. 540: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 919; Kawdu v. Berar Ginning Co Ltd, 116 I. C. 427: A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 185; J. W. Surty v. T. S. Chettyar Firm, 4 R. 205: 99 I. C. 417: A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 20; Ma Hta Yi v. Ma Pwa Hnit, 5 R. 610: 105 I. C. 710: A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 12; Beli Ram v. Padam Sain, 116 I. C. 231: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 26.

Where the question involved is not that the Court had taken a wrong view of the law or misinterpreted the law, but the apposite law had not been applied at all an application for review does prima facie lie.—British Equitable Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Rajaram, 113 I. C. 896: A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 305. Where an order is made setting aside a sale held in execution of a rent decree on an application to make the deposit without giving a notice of the application as required by the proviso to S. 174-A (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, held it was a good ground for review of the order.—Bholanath v. Maharajadhiraj of Burdwan, A I. R 193 Cal. 265.

Where in a Land Acquisition case the valuation allowed was on a supposed admission of the Government valuer, which had, in fact, no existence, the error was one apparent on the face of the record.—Secretary of State v. Hindusthan Co-operative Insurance Society Ltd., 36 C. W. N. 40: A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 171.

But an error of law to be apparent on the face of the record must relate to some proposition of law which is well settled and beyond controversy so far as the Court which delivered the judgment is concerned, and on which the judgment rests and not merely to a question of law which is debateable and may be shown to be erroneous. Where a judgment was sought to be reviewed on the ground that the Court had misconceived the

The production of a new ruling or authority, which if brought to the notice of the Judge at the first hearing might have altered the judgment is "new and important matter" within the meaning of this rule.—Ellem v. Basheer, 1 C. 184; Abdul Sadiq v. Abdul Aziz, 21 A. 152, 153.

The objection to the admission of a review of judgment on the strength of a new document was not allowed to prevail in a case where the so-called new document was not the sole reason for the admission of the review.—Huro Gobind v. Huro Soondarce, 18 W. R. 316.

The High Court has no authority to admit a review of judgment passed in special appeal merely on the ground that new evidence to prove a fact has been discovered.—Bhyrub Nath v. Kally Chunder, 16 W. R. 112; Ex parte Bashiagarulu, 1 M. H. C. R. 251; Jackammal v. Palnappa, 5 M. H. C. R. 464; Panchanan v. Radha Nath, 4 B. L. R. 213.

Where no case of fraud or surprise having been made out, a party to the suit sought for a new trial on the ground of discovery, after judgment, of an important document, which was in the possession of the opposite party but which the party first-named had neglected to obtain discovery before judgment. Held, that a new trial should not be lightly granted and in the present case it ought not to be granted.—Turnbull & Co. v. Duval, 6 C. W. N. 809 (P. C.).

During the pendency of a suit for rent, a plaintiff applied for postponement on the ground that he was unable to obtain a copy of a document, which he had applied for from the Collectorate. The application was refused, and the plaintiff got a modified decree. He subsequently obtained a review of judgment and a decree in full. Held, that the review was properly admitted.—Goor Dyal v. Deka Noonya, 22 W. R. 446.

Where new evidence is adduced in an application for review, it need not be per se sufficient to show that the previous decision is wrong or such as to cause an overmastering balance of evidence. If there is sufficient ground for receiving the new evidence, the case is to be heard as if it were being originally heard with the materials then before the Court.—Sahabjan v. Sufdur Ali, 22 W. R. 288.

Decree rendered ineffectual by reversal.—The plaintiffs sued the defendant to recover the amount of assessment paid in respect of land for the years 1872—76, and got a decree. The defendant appealed to the Privy Council. The plaintiffs subsequently filed a second suit to recover the assessment paid in respect of the land for the years 1877—82, and obtained a decree solely on the strength of the former decree. The Privy Council reversed the decree. The defendant thereupon applied for review of the decree in the second suit. Held, that the Court had jurisdiction to entertain the application for review. The decision of the Privy Council reversing the first decree was a "new and important matter" within the meaning of this rule.—Waghela Rai Sangji v. Masludin, 13 B. 330 and Jogesh v. Kali Churn, 3 C. 30 (F. B.), p. 46. See Maung Kyaw v. Ko Aye, 5 R. 261: 103 I. C. 258; A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 189. See also Satto Saran v. Tarini Charan, 3 B. L. R. 287; 12 W. R. 154 (doubted in Panchanan v. Gurudas, 9 B. L. R. 187; 18 W. R. 317). But it has been held that a subsequent Full Bench case overruling the authority on which the judgment sought to be passed on overlooking the fact that the defendants had admitted a portion of their claim, the case clearly came under Or. XLVII, r. 1 of the Code.—Probhas v. Nithar, 29 C. W. N. 928: 84 I. C. 278: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 1054.

A judgment by the High Court based on a judgment of the Privy Council may be reviewed by the High Court on the ground that after the presentation of the application for review but before its hearing the Privy Council had delivered another judgment in which the case relied on in the judgment of the High Court was construed in a manner which rendered the judgment of the High Court wrong. The expression "error apparent on the face of the record" is wide enough to embrace a case like this.—Brindaban v. Damodar, 29 C. W. N. 148: 85 I. C. 65: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 304.

In Kamla Prosad v. Kunj Behari, (1922) P. 1, it has been held that a mere omission to raise a point of law, which had it been raised, might and probably would have brought about a different result is not necessarily a mistake or error apparent on the face of the record for which a review can be claimed.—See Opporti Padhi v. Paila Ujjula, 106 I. C. 514: A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 998, in which it has been held that the mere omission on the part of a Judge to consider a decision, however regrettable and however wrong, cannot possibly be regarded as constituting an error apparent on the face of the record affording a proper and sufficient ground for granting review of a judgment. See also Kishan Chand v. Mukan, 132 I. C. 815: A. I. R. 1931 All. 91.

A mere incorrect exposition of law is not a good ground for review.—See Chhajju Ram v. Neki, 49 I. A. 144: 3 L. 127: 26 C. W. N. 697: 36 C. L. J. 459: 72 I. C. 566: A. I. R. 1922 P. C. 112: 41 P. L. R. 1922: 17 P. W. R. 1922: 43 M. L. J. 332: 30 M. L. T. 295: 24 Bom. L. R. 1238; Oankar Lal v. Yadoo, 107 I. C. 908; G. I. P. Railway v. Harakchand, 112 I. C. 653: A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 58; Gana Manikam v. S. R. Samson, A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 129; faulty logic or error of law is not a sufficient ground.—Syed Mahomed v. Janki, 13 P. L. T. 384; and grounds which might be good grounds of appeal would not support an application for review.—Gurupada v. Upendra, 34 C. W. N. 696: 129 I. C. 365: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 701. Therefore, where there is no mistake in computing the period of notice but only an error in law in holding that 15 days from the 17th to the 31st inclusive of the month were sufficient, there is no sufficient ground for review.—Akshoy Kumar v. Agarwala, A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 308.

Granting of a claim as to personal relief, the prayer for which could not be made out clearly upon a construction of a clause of the plaint which is doubtfully worded, is not an error apparent on the face of the record.—Syed Mahomed v. Janki Saran, (ante).

Where the Court dismissed an application in chambers in the absence of the applicant, held there is a mistake apparent on the face of the record justifying an application for review.—Behari Lal v. Abdul Rahaman, 8 O. W. N. 1267.

The insolvent got himself fraudulently and collusively adjudicated by setting up a bogus creditor. Later on, another creditor, who had sued to enforce his claim, dropped out and another bogus creditor stepped in to continue the proceedings, and put in proof of his claim before the official receiver. This claim having been rejected, the said bogus creditor appealed to the District regulations of the Company relating to transfer and registry of shares, but it appeared that the effect of those rules was considered by the Court at the hearing of the appeal, and it also appeared that the rules were not so strictly worded as to warrant one construction only. Held there was no error of law on the face of the record so as to support an application for review.—Tinnevely Mills Co. Ltd v. Mohideen, 117 I. C. 712: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 209: (1928) M. W. N. 911.

The law as to the liability of the legal representatives under Hindu law for the payment of the debt of the deceased to the extent of the entire estate whether self-acquired or ancestral of the deceased being undisputed, there was no suggestion by the defendant that the ancestral property was not liable for the debt and no issue was framed on the subject and the judgment did not contain any discussion thereon, but the trial Judge added a restrictive clause exempting the ancestral property without assigning any reason. Held that this mistake was not the result of any exposition of law and the error committed by him was apparent on the face of the record.—Ram Das v. Sundar Singh, 118 I. C. 396: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 424: 30 Punj. L. R. 593 (distinguishing Chhaju Ram v. Neki, 49 I. A. 144: 3 L. 127).

An order that S. 15 of the Code does not apply to an application for "setting aside the dismissal for default of an application under Or. IX, r. 9 is an error apparent on the face of the record", and even if the High Court refuses to interfere under S. 115 with such an order of the Subordinate Judge, an application for review can be made thereafter to the Subordinate Judge, because the refusal of the High Court to interfere in revision cannot be taken as implying an approval of the order.—Sourendra v. Jatindra, 32 C. W. N. 811.

Where the provisions of S. 575 para. 2 of the old Code (S. 98, Sub-sec. 2 of this Code) were erroneously applied in a case, it was held that there was a mistake or error apparent on the face of the record and that there was a sufficient cause for granting review.—Husani Begam v. Collector of Muzaffarnagar, 11 A 176; and in Bollapragada Garu v. Bollapragada Janki, 31 M. 414 it has been held that where a Court passed an order under a wrong section, it has jurisdiction to review the wrong order for sufficient reason and the High Court will not interfere under S. 115 if the right result has been reached and that which was irregularly done has been set right.

A Full Bench of the High Court of Calcutta has held that it cannot be treated as universal that no point can be raised on an application for a review which has been already discussed and decided in the original hearing of the appeal; or that no new point which has not been raised at the hearing of the appeal can be argued on the application for review. In each case the Court to which application is made must consider and decide whether a review is necessary to correct any evident error or omission or is otherwise requisite for ends of justice.—Chintamani v. Pyari, 6 B. L. R. 126: 15 W. R. 1 (F. B.) (the earlier decisions of the Court considered). Pinhey, J. concurred with this view in Kalu v. Vishram, 1 B. 543. The High Court granted an application for review of a judgment on the ground that two previous rulings were not considered therein.—Jatra Mohan v. Aukhil, 24 C. 334. Where an application for review of the order passed by the Munsif dismissing a suit, was made on the ground that the said order had been passed on overlooking the fact that the defendants had admitted a portion of their claim, the case clearly came under Or. XLVII, r. 1 of the Code.—Prokhas v Nithar, 29 C. W. N. 928: 84 I. C. 278: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 1054.

A judgment by the High Court based on a judgment of the Privy Council may be reviewed by the High Court on the ground that after the presentation of the application for review but before its hearing the Privy Council had delivered another judgment in which the case relied on in the judgment of the High Court was construed in a manner which rendered the judgment of the High Court wrong. In Kamla Prosad v. Kunj Behari, (1922) P. 1, it has been held that a mere omission to raise a point of law, which, had it been raised, might and probably would have brought about a different result is not necessarily a mistake or error apparent on the face of the record for which a review can be claimed.—See Opporti Padhi v. Paila Ujjula, 106 I. C. 514: A. I. A mere incorrect exposition of law is not a good ground for review.—See Chhajju Ram v. Neki, 49 I. A. 144: 3 L. 127: 26 C. W. N. 697: 36 C. L. J. 459: 72 I. C. 566: A. I. R. 1922 P. C. 112: 41 P. T. 384; and grounds which might be good grounds of appeal would not support an application for review.—Gurupada v. Upendra, 34 C. W. N. 696: 129 I. C. 365: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 701. Granting of a claim as to personal relief, the prayer for which could not be made out clearly upon a construction of a clause of the plaint which is doubtfully worded, is not an error apparent on the face of the record.—Syed Mahomed v. Janki Saran, (ante).

Where the Court dismissed an application in chambers in the absence of the applicant, held there is a mistake apparent on the face of the record justifying an application for review.—Behari Lal v. Abdul Rahaman, 8 O. W. N. 1267.

The insolvent got himself fraudulently and collusively adjudicated by setting up a bogus creditor. Later on, another creditor, who had sued to enforce his claim, dropped out and another bogus creditor stepped in to continue the proceedings, and put in proof of his claim before the official receiver. This claim having been rejected, the said bogus creditor appealed to the District

Judge. The District Judge dismissed the appeal and at the same time annulled the adjudication. Thereupon another creditor applied under Or. XLVII, r. 1 for review of the order annulling the adjudication. Held that the annulment of the order of adjudication in the absence of a prayer by any of the parties was an error apparent on the face of the record.—China v. Punnayya, (1932) M. W. N. 153 (F. B.).

Any other sufficient reason.—The words "any other sufficient reason," as pointed out by the Privy Council in Reasut Hossein v. Hadjee Abdoolah, 3 I. A. 221 : 2 C. 131, confer a wide discretion on the Court to which an application for review is presented and enables it to grant a review for good and sufficient reasons so far as may be requisite for the ends of justice.—Gobinda Lall v. Shibadas, 3 C. L. J. 545 (557) : 10 C. W. N. 986 : 33 C. 1323.

Rule 1 of Or. XLVII of the C. P. Code must be read as in itself definitive of the limits within which review is permitted and reference to practice under former and different statutes is misleading. The words "any other sufficient reason" in Or. XLVII, r. 1 mean a reason sufficient on grounds at least analogous to those specified immediately previously, that is to say, to excusable failure to bring to the notice of the Court new and important matters or error on the face of the record.—Chhajju Ram v. Neki, 49 I. A. 144 : 3 L. 127 : 26 C. W. N. 697 : 36 C. L. J. 459 : 72 I. C. 566 : A. I. R. 1922 P. C. 112 : 41 P. L. R. 1922 : 17 P. W. R. 1922 : 43 M. L. J. 332 : 30 M. L. T. 295 : 24 Bom. L. R. 1238 ; Rama Raghavareddi v. Raja of Venkatagiri, 52 M. L. J. 123 : 99 I. C. 954 : A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 355 ; In the application of Dwarka Dhish, 46 A. 245 : A. I. R. 1924 All. 398 ; Kumar Gopika v. Mahar Ali, 39 C. L. J. 247 ; Galstaun v. Pramatha, 33 C. W. N. 883 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 470 ; Ganesh Das v. Hari Singh, 33 P. L. R. 290 ; Mt. Rukmini Kuer v. Mt. Ram Piari, 123 I. C. 184 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 126 ; Sadasheo v. Vithoba, 100 I. C. 30 : A. I. R. 1927 Nag. 363 ; Hiralal v. Lomkaran, 108 I. C. 750 ; Seth Sorabji v. Seth Dwarkadas, 133 I. C. 887. See also Nem Das v. Kunjbehari, 126 I. C. 677 : A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 392 : 7 O. W. N. 741, in which it has also been held that a review cannot be granted against an order deliberately passed by a Bench of the High Court for the benefit of the parties in order to meet the circumstances of a particular case.

Delivery of judgment without previous notice to the parties is illegal, and this is a "sufficient reason" for granting a review of the judgment where, by such illegal procedure, a party is deprived of his right to apply for a certificate for a Letters Patent appeal in a case which is fit for the granting of such certificate.—Maung Sein Myi v. Maung Tun Pe, 6 R. 794 : 114 I. C. 687 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 70.

Although the words "any other sufficient reason" mean a reason sufficient on ground at least analogous to those specified immediately previously, it is not necessary that the reason should be ejusdem generis with those previously specified. The phrase ejusdem is more restricted in its meaning than the word "analogous." The summons to a witness in a case was returned unreserved as the witness could not be found. The Court with a view to avoid the case pending idly, declined to adjourn the case for giving a further opportunity to the party concerned to secure his attendance and decided the suit. The witness was subsequently found out and the party applied for review of the case and the application was granted by the trial Court. Held that there was a sufficient ground for review, and the order of the trial Court granting the application was not illegal.—K. K. S. A. R. Firm v. Maung Kya Nyun, 5 R. 675: 107 I. C. 161: A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 31.

The High Court of Patna has held that any other "sufficient reason" is to be read ejusdem generis. If the Court comes to know rulings or decisions, not referred to in the arguments, which in its opinion are decisive of the case the Court ought to give the parties an opportunity of arguing on or explaining them. But a failure in this respect is not by itself a sufficient reason for granting a review.—Syed Mahomed v. Janki Saran, 13 P. L. T. 384.

The reversal of a judgment of the lower appellate Court was not a "sufficient reason" for review within the meaning of Or. XLVII, r. 1. "Sufficient reason" must be some reason analogous to the reasons which have been stated in Or. XLVII, r. 1.—Sudanunda v. Rakhal, 31 C. W. N. 822 (Chhajju Ram v. Neki, noted ante, referred to).

The words "or for any other sufficient reason" mean that the reason must be one sufficient to the Court or Judge to whom the application for review is made, and they cannot be held to be limited to the discovery of new and important matter on evidence or the occurring of a mistake or error apparent on the record. Whether or not there is in such cases "any other sufficient reason" may depend on a question of law or a question of fact, or mixed question of law and fact.—Amir Hasan v. Ahmed Ali, 9 A. 36 (2 C. 131 (P. C.) referred to); Gangabai v. Ghansaram, 62 I. C. 253. In Gopal Chandra v. Solomon, 13 C. 62 (reversing 11 C. 767), it has been held that although it is difficult to define precisely the meaning of the words "any other sufficient cause" in this rule yet, from the earlier part of the clause, it is clear that a point which might have been, but which has not been, discovered at the trial by the exercise of due diligence, was not intended by the rule to afford any sufficient reason for review. In Narain v. Chiranji, 46 A. 568: 79 I. C. 945: A. I. R. 1924 All. 730, the Allahabad High Court described the rule in Ohhajju Ram's Case (49 I. A. 144) as "technical," and said: In our opinion the words in Or. XLVII, r. 1, 'for any other sufficient reason' are not only very wide in themselves, but are intentionally so made by the Legislature because of the possibility of exceptional cases arising in which obvious injustice would be worked by a strict adherence to the terms of the decree." Mookerjee, J., in Gopika v. Mahar Ali, 39 C. L. J. 247: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 872, referring to Ohhajju Ram's Case, said: "Whether any analogy can be discovered between the two grounds specified, viz., the discovery of new and important matter or evidence, and some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, need not be discussed. But whether a particular reason is analogous to either one or other of these two grounds may obviously lead to very different results. The powers exercisable under S. 151 and exclusive (Probhas v. Nithar Lal, 23 C.

Cal 1045), and it has been held in the following cases that it is immaterial whether the review was granted under Or. XVII or under the inherent jurisdiction.—Basanta v. Abhoy, 37 C. L. J. 99: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 450; Adit

Prasad v. Ram Harakh, 4 P. 180 : A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 435; Rameshwar v. Dwarka Prasad, 3 P. 778 : A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 36.

The subsequent discovery of a reasonable ground for adjournment by the Court is a good ground for granting review.—Subbaraya v. Sundaresa, 140 I. C. 226 : (1932) M. W. N. 1262.

It would be a patent misapplication by Court of S. 151 of the Code, if the Court in exercise of its inherent power assumes jurisdiction by way of review where it is expressly forbidden by the Legislature to entertain such an application.—Sudananda v. Rakhal, 31 C. W. N. 822 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 920. See also Kanai v. Jalindra, 45 C. 519 : 22 C. W. N. 446 : 42 I. C. 711 : 26 C. L. J. 325.

An appeal was heard and disposed of by the Full Bench in the absence of the respondent. Subsequently, on the application of the respondent, a review was granted on the ground that no notice of reference to the Full Bench was served on him, and that his absence at the hearing came within the words "any other sufficient reason" in this rule.—Gharasham v. Lal Singh, 9 A. 61 (F. B.).

Remedy by way of review or revision against an order should not be ordinarily allowed where the obvious remedy for him is to appeal against the order. Therefore, where a surety against whom execution had been ordered applied for a review of the order on the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction to do so without calling upon him to show cause why execution should not be ordered, it was held that as a surety had a right of appeal, it was not open to him to invoke the remedies by way of review or revision.—Mahomed Sultan v. Nagoji, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 828 : (1931) M. W. N. 963 : 135 I. C. 539.

The proper course for getting the value of improvement where a decree for redemption is passed and the sum is not added to the price of redemption, is not to make an application for review but to make a demand on the opposite party for one of the alternatives mentioned in S. 51 of the Transfer of Property Act, and on his refusal to enforce the demand by suit.—The Sialkot Mission v. Sir Bisheshardas Daga, 169 I. C. 95 : A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 144.

Where the point sought to be raised in review had not been raised or argued by either party, but was first taken by the Court itself in giving its opinion upon the case referred to it, the Court granted a review observing as follows: "The question arising in this case is not a question merely between two parties, but is one of great general commercial importance, and under the circumstances, and on very special grounds we think the review ought to be granted."—Sulleman Hussein v. New Oriental Bank Corporation Ltd., 15 B. 267.

A suit was dismissed on the ground of deficiency of court-fee stamp. Subsequently the Court granted a review having found that the court-fee paid was sufficient. Held that this constituted a most fitting ground for granting a review and was clearly "any other sufficient ground" within the meaning of this rule.—Ali Akbar v. Khurshed Ali, 27 A. 695 (followed in Gopala Aiyar v. Ramasami, 31 M. 49 : 17 M. L. J. 603).

Where an auction-purchaser applied for an order for delivery of possession and the order was made, it was held that it was a sufficient ground for reviewing the order that the application was on the face of it barred by limitation.—Dhanindar Das v. Bakshi, 3 P. L. J. 571.

The mere fact that another Judge is inclined to take a different view of the case from that taken by a Judge who originally decided the case, is no ground for review.—Ma Kyaw v. Ma Kyin, (1922) U. B. 16 : 64 I. C. 895. See Girdharlal v. Kapadvanj Municipality, 128 I. C. 19 : A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 317 : 32 Bom. L. R. 610.

The absence of a pleader is not a ground for review.—Rama Raghavareddi v. Raja of Venkatagiri, 52 M. L. J. 123 : A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 355 (A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 980 folld.).

That the lower Court should have improperly neglected to examine a witness is not a ground for a review of judgment, if the objection was not taken when the case was heard by the Court in regular appeal.—Munshad Bibee v. Luchmeeput, 9 W. R. 129.

The fact that the High Court ought to have remanded the case on the ground that the Judge had wrongly decided a point of law is no ground for review.—Prosunnath v. Judoonath, 9 W. R. 599.

It is not a proper ground for granting a review of judgment that a Judge, by going through the evidence a second time, might arrive at a different conclusion.—Chunder Churn v. Loodunram, 25 W. R. 324.

The fact that the Court decided a case without granting an adjournment prayed for is no ground for review.—Trimbak v. Krishna, 115 I. C. 173 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 89 : 11 N. L. J. 238.

It is not a "sufficient reason" for granting a review that if another opportunity was given to the applicant, he would satisfy the Court that its previous order was wrong.—Buda Prasad v. Raghur, 37 A. 440.

A review cannot be given merely for the purpose of allowing the parties to re-argue the case upon the evidence, on the chance of eventually throwing doubt upon the decision already passed.—Koleemooddeen v. Heerun Mundul, 24 W. R. 186.

The failure to argue a point of law is not a sufficient ground for review.—Hiralal v. Lomkaran, 109 I. C. 750.

A review cannot be granted on the ground that, if the facts had been better or more fully placed before the Court, the judgment would have been different, or even on the ground of a subsequent decision of a question of law by the Privy Council in another suit, where there has been no discovery of new evidence such as is contemplated in this rule.—Jadub Ram v. Ram Lochun, 19 W. R. 189.

A misconception on the part of the pleader in consequence of which the evidence on a certain point had been shut out and the issue found against the party, is a matter of considerable importance and would come under the words "for any other sufficient reason."—Pridhanmal v. Laloo, 130 I. C. 545; A. I. R. 1931 Sind 3 : 25 S. L. R. 242.

Where a Judge had made a mistake as to the subject of certain daugh in a Government chitta, held, that an error of this kind was sufficient ground for entertaining a review.—Gunesh Ram v. Rohinee Dasee, 14 W. R. 236.

Where there is no clear decision by the lower appellate Court concerning the correctness or otherwise of the trial Court's finding that theft from running train had occurred, absolving thereby the railway company from liability, and yet the decree of the lower Court is reversed, there is a mistake or error apparent on the face of the record or at any rate a sufficient reason for review analogous to such error.—Jai Narain v. G. I. P. Railway Co., 11 L. 158 : 123 I. C. 845; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 37 : 31 P. L. R. 419.

Where a Judge on appeal declined to admit additional evidence on the ground that the application should have been made to the lower Court, held, it was a ground for applying for a review of his order pointing out his mistake.—Ram Lall v. Rung Lall, 17 W. R. 47.

It is not a sufficient ground for a review of judgment passed on special appeal that the point which was then raised and on which the Court's decision was based, was one not raised in either of the lower Courts, and specially, as in this case, where the question was pointedly raised in the special appeal, and the respondent had ample time to prepare himself to meet the statement therein.—Cowell v. Mohadeb Mundul, 17 W. R. 182.

A Munsif granted a review on a ground which was no ground in law for granting a review, but his order in review had the effect of making the decree in the suit a right decree instead of a wrong decree. The District Judge allowed an appeal from that order. On an application for revision, held, that the proper course was to set aside the District Judge's order and to leave standing the order of the Munsif granting the review, which order, though wrong in principle, was right in its results.—Abdul Sadiq v. Abdul Aziz, 21 A. 152.

Where a suit is dismissed for non-joinder of parties, the Court is justified in granting a review of his order and in allowing the plaintiff to bring in all the persons interested.—Girish Chunder v. Juramoni De, 5 C. W. N. 83.

An execution application that has been dismissed cannot be restored by way of review.—Narayana v. Muthu, 50 M. 67 : 97 I. C. 1008; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 980.

New exposition of law by Privy Council, Full Bench, or Division Bench, or subsequent legislation.—A lower Court admitted a review of judgment on the ground that the decision of a Divisional Bench of the High Court which it had followed in that judgment, had subsequently been overruled by the Full Bench. Held, that the lower Court was not authorized to admit a review of judgment on such ground.—Amrit Lal v. Madho Das, 6 A. 292.

Because there is a subsequent decision of a superior Court of binding authority on a question of law, the prior judgment passed on a different view of law is not liable as a matter of course to be reviewed.—Dawloo Ma v. Ghowdappa, 126 I. C. 486; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 579.

A new exposition of the law by a Full Bench after the passing of the original decree is a "just and reasonable cause" for admitting a review after the prescribed period.—Jonmenjoy v. Dassmoney, 8 C. 700; Forbes v. Dyanutollah, 10 W. R. 415. Contra—Madhub Chunder v. Radhika, 7 W. R. 405; Dwarkanath v. Manick Chunder, 9 W. R. 102; Shama Shurn v. Bindabun, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 892: 9 W. R. 181; Bura Boodho v. Kaylash Chunder, 6 W. R. 100 and Allad Monee v. Joy Sunkur, 7 W. R. 408. But see Sitaram v. Kaniram, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 251 (F. B.) in which it has been held that a review cannot be permitted in such a case because a review is not permitted where new materials come into existence subsequently, and in deciding whether an application for review lies or not the question of hardship to the applicant does not arise.

The ground for review under Or. XLVII, r. 1, must be something which existed at the date of the decree and the rule does not authorize the review, of a decision which was right when it was made on the ground of the happening of some subsequent event. Where the lower Court had decided a case following the decision of the High Court in a connected case which was subsequently reversed on appeal by the Privy Council, the reversal of the High Court's judgment is not a ground for review of the lower Court's judgment.—Kotagiri Venkata v. Vellanki Venkatarama, 27 I. A. 197: 24 M. 1 (P. C.): 10 M. L. J. 221; Ganna Bathula Venkamma v. Ganna Bathula Ranga Rao, 43 M. L. J. 33: (1922) M. W. N. 304: 15 L. W. 593 (24 M. 1 (P. C.)), 4 M. L. T. 86 folld.; 13 B. 330, 33 A. 566, 31 B. 128, 13 M. L. T. 225, 3 P. L. J. 372 refd. to; Sarfaraaj Khan v. Rama Chandra, 73 I. C. 4; Sudananda v. Rakhal, 31 C. W. N. 823: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 920.

A judgment cannot be reviewed under Or. XLVII, r. 1, on account of some mistake or an error apparent on the face of the record when the alleged mistake or error is a wrong exposition of the law, as, for instance, when the judgment is based on a precedent which has been modified by a subsequent decision. Even assuming that the discovery of an authoritative precedent, by which a precedent relied on in the judgment has been modified, amounts to the discovery of new and important matter or evidence within the meaning of Or. XLVII, r. 1 (1), such a discovery is not a ground for review without strict proof that the subsequent authority was not within the knowledge of the applicant, or could not be produced by him when the decree or order was passed or made. Therefore when a judgment was based on a decision which had been modified by a subsequent decision of the Full Bench, and the latter decision had been reported in the authorised law reports four months before the trial, held, (a) that if in fact the Full Bench decision was not within the knowledge of the applicant or his pleader, ignorance of this nature could not, in view of Or. XLVII, r. 1, be pleaded in support of an application for review, and (ii) that an order granting a review in such a case was appealable under Or. XLVII, r. 7 (1) (b).—Srimati Garabini v. Suraja Narain, 3 P. 134: 75 I. C. 177: A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 250: 5 P. L. T. 52: (1923) P. 361. See also Firm of Gurditta v. Balmokand, 112 I. C. 277, Lazman v. Mt. Shevantisbai, 102 I. C. 6: A. I. R. 1927 Nag. 252; Venkamma v. Rang Rao, 43 M. L. J. 33: 70 I. C. 741: A. I. R. 1922

Mad. 227; Ramachandra v. Govind Rao, A. I. R. 1925 Nag. 266: 23 N. L. R. 63.

The production of an authority which was not brought to the notice of the Judge at the first hearing, and which lays down a view of the law contrary to that taken by the Judge, is not a sufficient ground for granting a review.—Ellen v. Basheer, 1 C. 184: 21 W. R. 382; Sheikh Abdul Aziz v. Musst. Munro, (1921) P. 152: 1 P. L. T. 561.

Where a review of judgment was applied for on the ground of the subsequent publication of the report of a High Court decision on a point of law which governed the case, but which had not been urged at the previous hearing, it was considered that the applicant was not to blame for this omission, and the application for review was granted.—Achuta v. Mammavu, 10 M. 357. See also Jatra Mohun v. Aukhil, 21 C. 334 (336).

The fact that the decision proceeds upon a wrong exposition of law or is based upon a ruling which has been disapproved by a later Special Bench is not sufficient reason.—Gana Manikam v. S. R. Samson, A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 129.

Although the discovery of a new ruling may not entitle a party to a review of judgment, yet when a Court is satisfied that its judgment has proceeded upon an erroneous view of the law, the provisions of this rule allow review of judgment.—Vallaya v. Jagannatha, 7 M. 307.

That one Division Bench of the High Court has decided a point at variance with the decision of another Division Bench is no reason for granting a review of judgment.—Nobeen Kishen v. Shib Pershad, 9 W. R. 161 and Fergusson v. Government, 9 W. R. 153.

Where the decree sought to be reviewed depended on another decree between the same parties and raising the same questions, which was subsequently reversed by the Privy Council, it was a fit case to be reviewed on the ground of "discovery of new and important matter" within the meaning of this rule.—Waghela v. Shaik Masludin, 13 B. 330.

There were two connected appeals between the same parties one before a Bench of two Judges and the other before a single Judge. The respondent in one was the appellant in the other and the matter at issue was practically connected. The appeal before the two Judges was dismissed under Or. XLI, r. 11 and no notice was issued to the respondent (who was the appellant before the single Judge). The single Judge then heard and decided the other appeal and delivered judgment. Subsequently the appellant before the single Judge having come to know that the point which was decided by the single Judge against him was decided in his favour in the appeal before the Bench of two Judges applied for review. Held, that the case came within the purview of Or. XLVII, r. 1.—Pittan Singh v. Hukum Singh, A. I. R. 1930 All. 621.

Where a case was decided by the High Court following the view of the law on the point of the Privy Council, but the Judge had anticipated legislation on the point which was subsequently passed and which was contrary to the view of the Privy Council, it was held that the case could not be reopened simply on this ground, because subsequent legislation does not affect decided cases, nor can the subsequent legislation be said to be a discovery of

new and important matter justifying review.—Gyanaji v. Ningappa, 52 B. 434: 111. I. C. 633: A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 308: 30 Bom. L. R. 668 (following Kotagiri Venkata v. Vellanki Venkatarama, and Waghela v. Shaik Masludin, noted ante).

For other cases see notes under headings "Mistake or error apparent on the face of the record" and "Any other sufficient reason," ante.

Review by minors.—A decree passed against an infant properly represented is binding upon him like a decree passed against an adult, and is not subject to review on his application after attaining majority; but it is open to the infant to impeach such a decree by a suit in cases where his guardian had been guilty of fraud or negligence.—Cursandas Natha v. Laddkavahu, 19 B. 571.

The only modes of setting aside a decree, apart from appeal, prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure are by review under this rule and by suit under S. 9. — Mirali Rahimbhoy v. Rehmoobhoy, 15 B. 594 (affirming 13 B. 137). See also Ram Sarup v. Shah Latifat Hossein, 29 C. 735, where it has been held that where the next friend of a minor plaintiff withdraws from the suit, it is open to the minor through another next friend to have the suit re-opened on review. See also Rakhal Moni v. Adwyta Prasad, 30 C. 613: 7 C. W. N. 419, and Ram Gopal v. Prasanna, 2 C. L. J. 503: 10 C. W. N. 529. But see Barhamdeo Prasad v. Banarasi Prasad, 3 C. L. J. 119, where it has been held that if a decree is regular in itself and on the face of it correct, the minor's remedy lies in a fresh suit and not by an application for review. See also Gulab Koer v. Badshah, 13 C. W. N. 1197.

Review of judgment in Letters Patent appeals.—The High Court has power to review judgments passed in appeals preferred under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.—Venkata Subbarayudu v. Sri Rajah Krishna, 40 M. 651; Ratanchand v. Damji Dharsey, 101 I. C. 766: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 232. But a contrary view has been taken in Abhilakhi v. Sada Nand, 132 I. C. 24 (F. B.). A. I. R. 1931 All. 244, and Inder Mahton v. Ram Kishun, 134 I. C. 630 A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 409. 12 P. L. T. 652.

Order made by one Judge cannot be set aside by another Judge.—One Judge of a High Court cannot set aside an order made by another Judge of that Court although such order might be wrong. The proper remedy in such a case is by review on any of the grounds mentioned in this rule.—Basanta Kumar v. Kusum Kumari, 44 C. 23.

Commissioner.—A Commissioner for taking accounts has no power of review under this order; but before his report is submitted, he may reopen the enquiry into any item on grounds analogous to those of this rule.—Fernandez v. Rodrigues, 47 B. 593 82 I. C. 593: A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 231.

Court-fee on application for review.—The proper fee leviable on an application for review of judgment when it refers to a portion of the decree is the fee leviable on the plaint or memorandum of appeal, in which the judgment, review of which is asked for, is passed.—In re Sheikh Maqbul, 31 A. 294 (4 B. 26 not followed, 3 C. W. N. 292 followed).

Where the price of redemption of property held by the purchaser is fixed by a judgment and the purchaser files an application for review for the addition to that sum of the price of improvements made in the property by him, the court-fee payable on such application is to be determined by the money value of improvements and not as prescribed under Art. 17 (vi) of the Court-Fees Act.—The Sialkot Mission v. Sir Bisheshardas Daga, 109 I. C. 95: A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 144. It has been, however, held in this case that a review is not the proper course to be sought in a case of this kind, but a suit should be instituted.

The stamp-fee on an application for review must be calculated on the amount that would be obtained if the review were granted, and not necessarily on the whole value of the suit.—In re Manohar G. Tambekar, 4 B. 26; Anonymous, 7 M. H. C. R. Ap. 1. But see Nobin Chundra v. Mohamed Uzir Ali, 3 C. W. N. 292, in which a different view has been taken.

An application for review of an interlocutory order is properly stamped with a court-fee of Rs. 2 and neither Art. 4 nor Art. 5 of Sch. I of the Court-Fees Act refers to an interlocutory order.—Jagan Nath v. Mulchand, 31 A. 262.

An application for review of judgment, such as is alluded to in Arts. 4 and 5, Sch. I of the Court-Fees Act (VII of 1870), does not include an application for a new trial in a Small Cause Court in the mofussil.—Gopeenath v. Ram Joy, 14 W. R. 249.

Limitation.—An application for review of judgment must be made within 90 days of the passing of the judgment, and it is only when a sufficient cause is shown that the time can be extended under S. 5, Limitation Act. Where a decree-holder applied for execution on 27th August, 1929, and did not ask the Court that it should review its previous order dated 11th August, 1928, regarding the character of the property sold in execution, and he appended copies of certain sale-deeds to the application for execution with the idea of showing that the property belonged to the judgment-debtor personally and was not his ancestral property, it was held that there was no application for review of judgment, much less there was any statement of circumstances under which the application for review could not be made within 90 days allowed by law, and the application for execution could not be treated as an application for review and therefore the previous order that the property sought to be sold was the ancestral property of the judgment-debtor must stand.—Bhukhan v. Piare Lal, 130 I. C. 839: A. I. R. 1931 All. 218: 29 A. L. J. 103.

Under appropriate circumstances an application for review if found to be barred by limitation may be treated as an application under S. 151, if the Court is satisfied that there has been a flagrant abuse of its own process and it is also open to the appellate Court under similar circumstances to treat a barred application for review, made to the first Court, as one made under S. 151 in order to remove an apparent injustice done to the applicant and to prevent an abuse of the process of the Court.—Kawdu v. Berar Ginning Co. Ltd., 116 I. C. 427: A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 185.

Where a Court in an application for review, which is prima facie time-barred, without determining the question of limitation, proceeds to admit the application for review, the order passed by the Court is not only irregular but possibly without jurisdiction, and the entire proceedings consequent on such a review must be set aside as of no legal effect.—Nathuram v. Ganga Buz 128 I. C. 753: A. I. R. 1930 All. 815: 28 A. L. J. 1057.

2. An application for review of a decree or order of a Court not being a High Court, upon some ground other than the discovery of such new and important matter or evidence as is referred to in rule 1 or the existence of a clerical or arithmetical mistake or error apparent on the face of the decree, shall be made only to the Judge who passed the decree or made the order sought to be reviewed ; but any such application may, if the Judge who passed the decree or made the order has ordered notice to issue under rule 4, sub-rule (2), proviso (a), be disposed of by his successor. [S. 624 and Cl. (c) of S. 626.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope.—This rule is not applicable to S. C. Courts.—See, Or. L.

Alterations.—The first part of this rule corresponds to S. 624 and the latter part corresponds to Cl. (c) of S. 626 of the C. P. Code, 1882. The wording of the old section has been changed in order to make the provisions more clear.

The words "or the existence of a" have been substituted for the word "some," and the words "or arithmetical mistake" have been added.

Section 624 and S. 626, Cl. (c) are reproduced below for the purpose of comparison :—

" 624. Except upon the grounds of the discovery of such new and important matter or evidence as aforesaid, or some clerical error apparent on the face of the decree, no application for a review of judgment, other than that of a High Court, shall be made to any Judge other than the Judge who delivered it."

" 626 (c) An application, made under S. 624 to the Judge who delivered the judgment may, if that Judge has ordered notice to issue under proviso (a) to this section, be disposed of by his successor."

To whom applications for review may be made.—Where a decree is passed by a Judge other than a High Court Judge and the review is sought not upon the grounds mentioned above, but upon other grounds the application shall be made to the very Judge who passed the decree ; it cannot be made to his successor in office—Sarangapani v Narayanasami, 8 M. 567 ; Moheshur Sing v. Bengal Government, 7 M. I. A. 293 : 3 W. R. (P. C) 45, Ram Baran v Bhagwati, 47 A 751 (at pp. 754-756) · 89 I. C. 295 : A. I R. 1925 All. 804.

A review was intended to be a consideration of the same subject by the same Judge, as distinguished from an appeal, which is a hearing before another tribunal. A review, therefore, should be presented with as much expedition as possible with a view to the re-hearing before the same Judge. The exceptions to this rule are allowable only ex necessitate, that is, from the death of the original Judge, or some unexpected or unavoidable cause which prevents him from hearing the review. The causes accounting for delay in applying for a review must, to justify the grant of it, be of grave importance.—Moheshur Singh v. Government of India, 3 W. R. (P. C.) 45 : 7 M. I. A. 293 ;

Shamser Ali v. Jagannath, 17 C. W. N. 403; Surut Soonduree v. Rajendur Kishore, 9 W. R. 125.

A Judge has no power to allow a review of his predecessor's judgment on the ground that he comes to a different conclusion on the facts of the case. It is only the discovery of new evidence or the correction of a patent and indubitable error or omission or some other particular grounds of like description which justifies the granting of a review.—Roy Meqhray v. Beejoy Gobind, 1 C. 197; 23 W. R. 438; In the petition of Mathra Parshad, 1 A. 296; Banee Madhub v. Kalee Churn, 24 W. R. 397; Muneerooddeen v. Kadir Buksh, 24 W. R. 410; and Wolfut v. Nusrutoollah, 25 W. R. 48; Silela Din v. Ram Narain, 6 O. W. N. 707.

Under this rule a review petition, on the ground of an "accidental slip" in the decree, is entertainable before the successor of the Judge who disposed of the case. Only, if the ground is other than an accidental slip or discovery of fresh evidence, such petition cannot be entertained by the successor.—Kathyumma v. Muhammad Kutty, 24 L. W. 447; 97 I. O. 545: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 1083.

If review of a decree passed by a Judge other than a High Court Judge is sought on the ground of a supposed error of judgment, the application for review must be made to the Judge who passed the decree or made the order.—Behari Loll v. Mangolanath, 5 C. 110; 4 C. L. R. 371. So also where review is sought on the ground that the order complained of was made by the Judge in the absence of or without notice to a party, the application for review should be made to the Judge who made the order.—Khema v. Dhanji, 14 B. 101.

A Judge (not being a Judge of the High Court), other than a Judge who delivered the judgment, has no jurisdiction to grant a review on the ground that no leave or consent of the Court under S. 462, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXII, r. 7), had been given to the guardian-ad-litem to refer the matter in dispute between the parties to the suit to arbitration.—Ananda Krishna v. Jogendra Nath, 8 C. L. J. 294.

An application for review of judgment upon a ground other than those mentioned in S. 624, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), if presented to the Judge who delivered it, and who thereupon directs notice to be given to the opposite party, may be heard and disposed of by his successor.—Karoo Singh v. Deo Narain, 10 C. 80; 13 C. L. R. 261 (4 A. 278 dissented from); Fazel Biswas v. Jamadar Sheik, 13 C. 231; Ramasami v. Kurisu, 13 M. 178; and Ganpat v. Jivan, 16 B. 603. Contra—Pancham v. Jhinguri, 4 A. 278.

A Judge of a Mofussil Small Cause Court was held to have jurisdiction to direct a new trial of a case tried by his predecessor. The Judge, however, in dealing with applications for new trial, should have regard to the rule laid down in S. 624, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule).—Shumsher Ally v. Kurkut Shah, 6 C. 236; 6 C. L. R. 549.

An application for review of judgment was presented, on other grounds than those specified in S. 624, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), to a District Munsif, who had delivered the judgment, and he thereupon ordered the decree to be produced. The District Munsif having resigned, his successor heard and determined the application. Held, it was not competent to the District Munsif, who had not delivered the original judgment, to entertain the application for review.—Cheru Kurup v. Cheru Kanda, 12 M. 509

A suit was decided by the Additional Sub-Judge, who was afterwards transferred to the Court of the permanent Sub-Judge. An application for review was made to the successor of the Additional Sub-Judge, and was subsequently transferred to the same Sub-Judge, who was then the presiding officer of the permanent Court. Held, that the requirements of S. 624, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), were substantially complied with.—Sundar Das v. Saroda Charan, 13 C. W. N. xci (91-n).

Per Mahmood, J.—Where a decree has been simply affirmed on appeal, S. 579, C. P. Code, 1882, does not imply that the appellate decree supersedes the original decree so as to render it ineffective for purposes of execution. In such a case the lower Court continues to have jurisdiction to entertain an application for review of judgment under S. 206, C. P. Code, 1882, by any article of the Limitation Act, and a decree granted under S. 206, even where an application for review of judgment under S. 623 upon the same ground would be barred by S. 624, C. P. Code, 1882.—Muhammad Sulaiman v. Muhammad Yar Khan, 11 A. 267 (F. B.).

A Judge cannot, by transferring a case to his own file, confer on himself the power to review an order of dismissal pronounced by a principal Sudder Ameen.—Golam Esha v. Hurrish Chunder, W. R. (1864) Mis. 29.

In a pre-emption suit, the money was directed to be given to a wrong person and the decree was passed in pursuance of the judgment. An application for review was made to the successor of the Judge who passed the decree. Held, the erroneous direction in the decree as to the person to whom the pre-emption price was to be paid was not a clerical mistake apparent on the face of the decree under Or. XLVII, r 2, and the successor in office cannot entertain such an application.—Baliram Piraji v. Yeswanta, 75 I C 829.

Where the order is an ex parte order issued without hearing the opposite party, it cannot operate as res judicata and can be reviewed by the successor of the Judge who made such ex parte order.—Jwandas v. Khemchand, 116 I C 101: A. I. R. 1929 Sind. 110.

"If the Judge who passed the decree has ordered notice to issue."—An application for review of judgment, upon a ground other than those mentioned in S. 624 of the C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), if presented to the Judge who delivered it, and who thereupon directs notice to be given to the opposite party, may be heard and disposed of by his successor.—Karoo Singh v. Deo Naram, 10 C. 80: 13 C L R. 261, Fazel Biswas v. Jamadar Sheik, 13 C. 231, Ganpat v. Juan, 16 B 603, Ramasami v. Kurisu, 13 M. 178 (F. B) Contra—Pancham v. Jhinguri, 4 A 278; Cheru Kurup v. Cheru Kanda, 12 M. 509.

Form of applications for review.

3. The provisions as to the form of preferring appeals shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to applications for review. [S. 625.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 625, C. P. Code, with change of some words.

Scope.—This rule is not applicable to Small Cause Courts.—See Or. L.

Form of applications for review.—Applications for review of judgment should set forth concisely the grounds on which the review is asked for.—Purna Chandra v. Nil Madhub, 5 C. W. N. 485.

Applications for review of judgment should set forth concisely the grounds of objection to the decision of which a review is sought, without argument or narrative, and such grounds should be numbered consecutively.—Mahadaji Ramchandra v. Vithal, 1 B. H. C. R. 185.

A petitioner applying for review under S. 623, C. P. Code, 1892 must file a copy of the order of which he seeks a review, together with a memorandum of objections.—Adarji Edulji v. Manikji Edulji, 4 B. 414. But see Wajid Ali v. Nawal Kishore, 17 A. 213 (F. B.).

This rule relates to form and does not enlarge the right. It does not make Or XLIII, r. 1 (t) applicable to a refusal to restore an application for review.—Girdhari Lal v. Zorawar Singh, 47 A. 1: 80 I. C. 649: A. I. R. 1925 All. 57.

4. (1) Where it appears to the Court that there is not sufficient ground for a review, it shall reject the application.

(2) Where the Court is of opinion that the application for review should be granted, it shall grant the same :

Provided that—

(a) no such application shall be granted without previous notice to the opposite party to enable him to appear and be heard in support of the decree or order, a review of which is applied for : and

(b) no such application shall be granted on the ground of discovery of new matter or evidence which the applicant alleges was not within his knowledge, or could not be adduced by him when the decree or order was passed or made, without strict proof of such allegation. [S. 626.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 626, C. P. Code, 1892, with some alterations and omissions.

In sub-rule (2) which corresponds to para. 2 of the old section, the words “and the Judge shall record with his own hand his reasons for such opinion,” which occurred in the concluding part of para. 2 of the old section, have been omitted. By the omission, the rulings in 4 C. W. N. 203 (P. C.), 23 M. 496, 3 A. 316 and 22 C. 734 noted below have been rendered obsolete.

r. 4.

Clause (c) of the old section has been detached from this rule and added to the last part of r. 2. The other alterations are merely verbal.

Sufficient ground for review.—On application for review of judgment, held, a party applying for review of judgment must show that there is good and sufficient cause for granting the review before he can be heard to argue that the decision is erroneous. In so showing cause (1) no point can be raised which has been already discussed and decided on the original hearing of the appeal, and (2) no new point which has not been raised at the hearing of the appeal can be argued on the application for review.—Bhawabal Sing v. Rajendra, 5 B. L. R. 321 : 14 W. R. 105 (upholding on review, 13 W. R. 157); Janab Ali v. Chandi Charan, 5 B. L. R. 334-note : 11 W. R. 202; Gungapersad v. Agra and Masterman's Bank, 5 B. L. R. 340-note : 15 W. R. (F. B.) 5-note; Hazra Begum v. Hossein Ali, 5 B. L. R. 341-note; Collector of Tippera v. Mafizunnissa, 5 B. L. R. 341-note : 14 W. R. 84; Garib Hossein v. Wise, 5 B. L. R. 342-note; Mehuroonissa v. Wise, 15 W. R. (F. B.) 2-note; Beni Madhab v. Ganga Gabind, 5 B. L. R. 345-note : 15 W. R. (F. B.) 3-note. But see Chintamani v. Pyari Mohan, 6 B. L. R. 126 : 15 W. R. (F. B.) 1. See also Kalu Bin v. Vishram, 1 B. 543; and Huree Pershad v. Nund Kishore, 17 W. R. 479.

The Judges are not required to re-adjudicate points considered and adjudicated when brought before them by a pleader then employed, though they may be better argued, and put in a different light by another pleader subsequently, but are to be guided in their admission of reviews by the definite terms of Ss. 377 and 378 of the C. P. Code, 1859.—Choonee Mundur v. Chundee Lall, 14 W. R. 334.

Where a Sub-Judge, after deciding a regular appeal, granted an application for review of judgment on the ground that new evidence had been discovered, but without any inquiry or proof that such evidence was not within the knowledge of the applicant, or could not have been adduced by him at the time the decree was passed, held, that this was an error or defect in the procedure or investigation of the case which affected the decision, and was a ground of appeal when the decision, upon review, was brought before the High Court on special appeal.—Bhyrub Chunder v. Madhubram 11 B. L. R. (F. B.) 423 : 20 W. R. 84; Nubo Kishore v. Jadub Chunder, 20 W. R. 426; Dhunka Devla v. Hira Ramla, 4 B. H. C. R. 57.

Where, owing to the conduct of the opposite party, who, though served with notice, made no objection, an applicant for review had no opportunity of showing that a new piece of evidence which he adduced was not within his knowledge, and could not be adduced by him when the decree was passed, such opposite party cannot afterwards be allowed to object on the ground of the Full Bench ruling in Bhyrub v. Madhubram, 11 B. L. R. 423 : 20 W. R. 84; Romjoy v. Jugodessuree, 22 W. R. 399.

Previous service of notice necessary.—A proceeding admitting a review, without notice to the opposite party, as required by this rule, is wholly vitiated by such defect, and not binding on that party.—Golaboo

v. Ram Dyal, 8 W. R. 304. See In re Huro Mohun Mookerjee, 16 W. R. 135; Gurditta v. Muhammad Khan, 116 I. C. 714.

Notice to the other side is imperative under this rule, and an order without such notice is illegal and not merely an irregularity, and a party is not bound by the illegal order.—Narayana Chettiar v. Muthu Chettiar, 51 M. L. J. 219; 97 I. C. 1008; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 980; Abdul Hakim v. Hem Chandra, 42 C. 433; 30 I. C. 165.

In the case of a summary dismissal of an appeal under Or. XLI, r. 11, the order of dismissal may be set aside on an ex parte application for review without notice to the respondent because the respondent in such a case cannot be said to mean the "opposite" party within the meaning of Cl. (a) of this rule.—Janki Nath v. Prabhasini, 43 C. 178 (42 C. 433 dissented from); Official Trustee of Bengal v. Benode, 51 C. 943; 84 I. C. 147; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 114. But see Narayana v. Muthu, 50 M. 67; 97 I. C. 1008; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 980.

Where the defendant was given every opportunity to raise any objection that he could raise, he is in no way, therefore, prejudiced by reason of the fact that no notice was issued to him; it was therefore held that the order granting review should not be set aside by the appellate Court.—Firm Gopal Mal Ganda Mal v. Hara Chand, 75 I. C. 656.

The expression "opposite party" in Or. XLVII, r. 4 (2) (a) of the C. P. Code is not limited to cases in which such party has actually appeared before the Court. It means the party interested to support the order or decree sought to be set aside on review. Where an appeal has been dismissed for default in paying court-fees it cannot be restored under Or. XLI, r. 19, which has no application to such a case, nor can it be restored under Or. XLVII, r. 4 (2), without notice to the opposite party.—Surajpal v. Utim Pandey, 63 I. C. 99; A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 231; 6 P. L. J. 625.

Strict proof of such allegation.—See notes to r. 1 of this Order under the heading "Discovery of new and important matter or evidence."

The provision of S. 626, C. P. Code, 1882, requiring the Judge granting a review to record his reasons, is rather a direction to the Judge how to act when he has decided to grant the application than a condition of granting it, and the failure to record his reasons is not a ground for granting special leave to appeal to the Privy Council.—Thakur Shunker Buksh v. Balwant Singh, 4 C. W. N. 203 (P. C.); 27 C. 333. See also Manicka Mudaliar v. Gurusami Mudaliar, 23 M. 496, where it has been held that the provision in S. 626, C. P. Code, 1882, requiring a Judge to record reasons for granting review is rather directory and not mandatory.

Before a review of judgment is granted, an order granting the application for review, and the reasons for granting the same should be recorded.—Bhairon Din Singh v. Ram Sahai, 3 A. 316. See also Gyanund Asram v. Bepin Mohun, 22 C. 734.

These cases, in so far as they decided that the reasons for granting the review must be recorded, are no longer law.

Death of party pending review.—The order granting a review only holds the judgment in suspense. The death of a party does not, therefore, cause the suit or appeal to abate.—Achyut v. Tapibai, 48 B. 210: 79 I. C. 753: A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 310.

Form.—For Form of Notice, see App. G, Form No. 14.

Appeal.—Order XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (w) provides that an appeal lies from an order under this rule granting applications for review. Clause (w), however, should be read with r. 7 of this Order as subject to it.—Hari Charan v. Baran Khan, 41 C. 746: 25 I.C. 903; Ahid v. Mahendra, 42 C 830; Nandalal v. Panchanan, 45 C. 60, 78; Sundar Mull v. Upendra Nath, 1 P. L. J. 193; Sikandar v. Baland, 8 L. 617; A. T. K. Muthu v. Lakshminarayan, 6 R. 254: 111 I. C. 80: A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 177; Lan Tin v. Ma Mya, 7 R. 187: 118 I. C. 120: A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 105; Kunversi v. Pitamberdas, 29 Bom. L. R. 1355; Shidramappa v. Gurushantappa, 31 Bom. L. R. 137: 116 I. C. 227: A. I. R. 1929 Bom 183. See notes under r. 7, post. An order granting a review on the ground that the view of the law taken was contrary to a Full Bench decision which had not been taken to its notice is appealable.—Garabini v. Surja Naram, (1923) P. 361: 75 I. C. 177.

It is open to the appellant to prefer an appeal from the order granting the review without taking any steps as regards the decree itself, and in the appeal preferred by him to contend that the order granting the review should be set aside and that the alterations made in the decree should be cancelled, leaving the original decree to stand as it was before the review was made. No separate appeal need be filed from the final order or decree made after the original one was reviewed, for if the order granting the review falls, all subsequent proceedings taken and orders made fall along with it.—Radha Krishna v Benimadhab, 36 C. W. N 212: 55 C L J. 98.

5. Where the Judge or Judges, or any one of the Judges, who passed the decree or made the order, a review of which is applied for, continues or continue attached to the Court at the time when the application for a review is presented, and is not or are not precluded by absence or other cause for a period of six months next after the application from considering the decree or order to which the application refers, such Judge or Judges or any of them shall hear the application, and no other Judge or Judges of the Court shall hear the same. [S. 627.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 627, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations only.

Scope—This rule is not applicable to S. C. Courts.—See Or. L.

"Attached to the Court"—A second appeal was heard and decided by two Judges and an application for review was filed with the Registrar. One of the Judges having left India, it was heard and decided by the other of the two Judges sitting alone. Held, that he had jurisdiction to hear and dispose of the rule.—Aubhoy Churn v. Shamont Lockun, 16 C. 788.

"No other Judge shall hear the same."—A review may be admitted by the sole remaining Judge of the Bench which heard the case originally.—Jardine, Skinner & Co. v. Dhun Kishen, 13 W. R. 82.

Where an appeal was heard by two Judges and thereafter on account of the absence of one of them, a review application came before the other Judge sitting with a third new Judge and was granted. Held, the proceedings were entirely vitiated, as the terms of Or. XLVII, r. 5 prohibited the new Judge from taking part in the review.—Ohhajju Ram v. Neki, 41 P. L. R. 1922: 26 C. W. N. 697 (P. C.): 49 I. A. 144 (P. C.)

The language of this rule is imperative. Where an application for review preferred to a District Judge was transferred by him to the Additional District Judge, the procedure was not permitted by this rule. If the District Judge had been transferred to some other place, his successor-in-office could hear the application for review.—Bansidhar v. Ratanlal, 128 I. C. 771: A. I. R. 1930 All. 785.

Application for review in Courts consisting of two or more Judges.—Application for re-admission of an appeal dismissed on failure to deposit the costs for the preparation of the paper-book under the Rules of the High Court is not an application for review of judgment, and cannot be disposed of by a single Judge of the High Court under this rule.—Ramhari Sahu v. Madan Mohan, 23 C. 339. Partially overruled by Fatimunnissa v. Deoki Pershad, 24 C. 350 (F. B.): 1 C. W. N. 21.

During the pendency of an appeal preferred by the defendants to the High Court, one of the appellants died. No steps were taken to bring the heirs of the deceased appellant on the record and the fact of his death was not known to the Court at the time of hearing of the appeal. The appeal was decreed by a Division Bench consisting of Newbould and Graham, JJ. and the case was remanded for reconsideration on 6th July, 1925. Thereafter the lower appellate Court decided in favour of the defendants on 17th July, 1926 and the plaintiff preferred a second appeal to the High Court and the heir of the deceased defendant was added as a party respondent for the first time in this appeal. An application was made by the plaintiff appellant before the Division Bench hearing the cases of the group to which the case belonged for vacating the order and decree dated the 6th July, 1925. Held the proper procedure should have been one for review under this rule made within limitation and such application should have been made before Graham, J. who was the only member of the Division Bench who decided the appeal on the previous occasion now present in Court.—Muktaram v. Gomasta, 47 C. L. J. 623: 112 I. C. 225: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 654.

6. (1) Where the application for a review is heard by more than one Judge and the Court is equally divided, the application shall be rejected.

Application where rejected.

(2) Where there is a majority, the decision shall be according to the opinion of the majority. [S. 628.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 623, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

Scope.—This rule is not applicable to S. C. Courts.—See Or. L.

Where two Judges of a Division Bench have concurred in a final decree, the fact that there is a difference of opinion as to one point, amongst others, raised in review on the judgment on which such final decree is based, is no ground for an appeal under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent —Hurbans Sahay v. Thakoor Persad, 10 C. 103 : 13 C. L. R. 295.

Order of rejection not appealable. Objections to order granting application

7. (1) An order of the Court rejecting the application shall not be appealable; but an order granting an application may be objected to on the ground that the application was—

- (a) in contravention of the provisions of rule 2,
- (b) in contravention of the provisions of rule 4, or
- (c) after the expiration of the period of limitation prescribed therefor and without sufficient cause.

Such objection may be taken at once by an appeal from the order granting the application or in any appeal from the final decree or order passed or made in the suit.

(2) Where the application has been rejected in consequence of the failure of the applicant to appear he may apply for an order to have the rejected application restored to the file, and, where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when such application was called on for hearing, the Court shall order it to be restored to the file upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for hearing the same.

(3) No order shall be made under sub-rule (2) unless notice of the application has been served on the opposite party. [S. 629.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S 629, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

In sub-rule (1), the words "shall not be appealable" have been substituted for the word "final" and the words "but an order granting the application" have been substituted for the words "but whenever such application is admitted, the admission," which occurred in the old section.

The words " the Court shall order it to be restored " in sub-rule (2) have been substituted for the words " the Court may order it to be restored." The word "final" means conclusive and not open to revision or review, hence it has been replaced by the words "shall not be appealable." There was a diversity of opinion on the point.—See Gobinda v. Bholanath, 15 C. 432; Yaman Sakharam v. Malhari, 26 B. 485 and Ram Lal v. Ratan, 26 A. 572.

Therefore, no appeal lies from an order of a Provincial Small Cause Court Judge granting a review, but the aggrieved party may make an application to the High Court under S. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act.

The last para. of S. 629 has been detached from this rule and reproduced in a modified form as r. 9.

The other changes are mere changes of words and phrases.

It should be noted here that, besides the provisions contained in sub-rule (1) for appealing against an order granting review, an appeal has also been allowed by Cl. (w) of Or. XLIII, from an order granting review. Clause (w) seems to be more general and it includes the grounds mentioned in sub-rule (1). For the difference between sub-rule (1) and Cl. (w) of Or. XLIII, see notes under the latter.

Small Cause Courts.—This rule is not applicable to S. C. Courts.—See Or. L. The power of the High Court under S. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act is, of course, much wider than S. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code, but it has been held that every order in which, in granting a review a Provincial Small Cause Court Judge fails to observe the terms of Or. XLVII, should not be interfered with in revision.—Venkataratnam v. Dhanalakata, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 56 : 104 I. C. 746.

An application for review of judgment in a Small Cause Court suit was rejected wrongly, on the ground of a supposed deficiency in the Court-fee paid upon the application. Held that this order was open to revision.—Willis v. Jawad Husain, 29 A. 468 : 4 A. L. J. 439.

Order of rejection not appealable.—Where a Court rejects an application for review its decision is not open to revision.—Ram Lal v. Ratan, 26 A. 572 (distinguished in Willis v. Jawad Husain, 29 A. 468 : 4 A. L. J. 439). See also Somayya v. Subbamma, 26 M. 599 (602). But see Akbar Khan v. Muhammad Ali Khan, 31 A. 610, where it has been held that the order of rejection is open to revision where it was made on the erroneous view that the Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the application.

No appeal lies even if the application be rejected by a single Judge on the Original Side of the High Court.—Achaya v. Ratnavelu, 9 M. 253.

An order rejecting an application for review of an order dismissing an execution case for non-payment of process-fees is not appealable.—Raja Pudmanund v. Doorga Pershad, 4 C. W. N. 39. See also Vadilal v. Fulchand, 30 B. 56.

Only the order rejecting the application for review is final; but the decision as to whether there was just and reasonable cause for allowing the application to be made after the prescribed period of ninety days is not final.—Shama Churn v. Bindabun, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 893: 9 W. R. 181; also George v. Hamilton & Co., 4 N. W. P. 74.

A mere refusal to grant a review of judgment cannot alter the judgment sought to be reviewed or the decree founded on it, and nothing which the Judge says with reference to his refusal to grant the review can be binding so as to alter such judgment or decree.—Ramhurry v. Mothoor Mohun, 20 W. R. (P. C.) 450.

Order granting review is appealable.—Under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (w) an appeal lies from an order granting an application for review, but an order granting a review is not appealable except under the conditions specified in this rule.—Abdul Sadiq v. Abdul Aziz, 21 A. 152; Akbar v. Khurshid Ali, 27 A. 695; Hari Charan v. Baran Khan, 41 C. 746: 25 I. C. 903; Sundar v. Habib, 42 A. 626: 18 A. L. J. 838; Munnu Lal v. Kunj Bihari Lal, 44 A. 605: 20 A. L. J. 517; Venkata v. Veena, 83 I. C. 548: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 602: 46 M. L. J. 463. (1924) M. W. N. 355; Beli Ram v. Padam Sain, 116 I. C. 221: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 26; Lan Tin v. Ma Mya, 118 I. C. 120: 7 R. 187: A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 105. Clause (w) of Or. XLIII, r. 1 has to be read along with the provisions of this rule which specifically lay down that an order granting an application for review can be objected to in appeal only on one or the other of the three grounds specified therein. There is no real inconsistency between the two rules; the former rule merely gives a party aggrieved by an order granting a review a right of appeal, but it does not deal with the grounds on which the order appealed against can be objected to. The two provisions of the Code are not mutually inconsistent but are really complementary to each other. The one gives the right to appeal, and the other defines the extent to which that right can be exercised.—Sikandar Khan v. Baland Khan, 8 L. 617: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 435, Srinivasa v. Official Assignee, Madras, 50 M. 891: 103 I. C. 377: 52 M. L. J. 682: A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 641. See Babu Vaidyan v. Murugesan, (1928) M. W. N. 595. The granting of a review on the ground of production of an authority which was not before the trial Court amounts to granting a review on the ground of discovery of new matter and falls under r. 7 coupled with r. 4 of Or. XLVII and is appealable.—Ibid.

Where the review was granted on the ground of an error on the face of the record, the same is not appealable.—Shidramappa v. Gurushantappa, 116 I. C. 227: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 183 31 Bom. L. R. 137.

Where an application for review is granted for "any other sufficient reason", the sufficiency or otherwise of the reason is not a good ground of appeal against the order.—Gopal Aiyar v. Ramaswami, 31 M. 49: 17 M. L. J. 603: 2 M. L. T. 519 (27 A. 695, 24 C. 878 followed; 23 M. 314 distinguished); Benarsi v. Altaf Husain, 63 I. C. 171.

No appeal lies from an order granting a review of judgment either under this rule or under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent except under the conditions specified in this rule.—Aubhoy Churn v. Shamont Lockun, 16 C. 789; Bombay and Persia Steam Navigation Co. Ltd v. Zuari, 12 B. 171; and Achaya v. Ratnavelu, 9 M. 253. See also Harnandan v. Behari, 22 C. 3; Barada v. Gobind Proshad, 22 C. 934; Ramanadhan Chetty v. Narayanan Chetty, 27 M. 603 (607); Daryai Bibi v. Badri Prasad, 18 A. 44; Chunilal v. Sonibai, 21 B. 323; Munni Ram v. Bishen Perkash, 24 C. 878; and Mahabir v. Nathin, 1 C. W. N. 338;

Madhori v. Parbati, 47 A. 881: 88 I. C. 653: A. I. R. 1925 All. 553: 23 A. L. J. 534; Meah v. Durga, 29 C. W. N. 1027: 90 I. C. 456: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 243; Venkata v. Veena, 46 M. L. J. 463: 83 I. C. 548: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 602: (1924) M. W. N. 355; Bakhtan v. Ghulam, 9 L. 298: 112 I. C. 518: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 608.

Under Or. XLVII, r. 7, an order granting an application for review may be attacked by way of appeal on the ground that the application has been granted on the ground of discovery of new evidence without strict proof of the applicant that such new evidence was not within his knowledge or could not be adduced by him when the decree was passed.—Nandalal v. Panchanan, 45 C. 60: 21 C. W. N. 1076.

In an appeal from an order granting a review on the ground of discovery of new evidence, it is not competent to consider whether the new evidence is important or not. That must be left to the discretion of the Court deciding the application for review.—Saherjan v. Gopal, 34 C. W. N. 265: 127 I. C. 71: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 424.

An application under S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 90), to set aside a sale was rejected. Subsequently on review the sale was set aside. The District Judge on appeal set aside the order setting aside the sale. Held, that the order was not appealable, as it was not an order granting an application for review, but one setting aside a sale.—Bhairon Din Singh v. Ram Sahai, 3 A. 316.

For other cases see notes under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (w) and Or. XLVII, r. 4, ante

Second appeal from order passed in appeal under this rule.—No second appeal lies from an order passed in appeal from an order granting an application for review of judgment.—Gopal Das v. Alaf Khan, 11 A. 383; Than Singh v. Chandun Singh, 11 C. 296; and Papayya v. Chelamayya, 12 M. 125. But see Bala Natha v. Bhira Natha, 13 B. 496. This is now clear from the provisions of Or. XLIII, r. 1 (w), read with S. 104, sub-sec. (2).

No second appeal lies to the High Court from an order setting aside an order granting a review of judgment.—Kanti Chunder v. Saligram, 24 C. 319 and 319-note.

The admission of a review presented out of time without any sufficient cause is a good ground of appeal under S. 629, Cl. (c) of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882 (r. 7).—Purna Chandra v. Nil Madhub, 5 C. W. N. 485.

Where an order granting a review has been set aside on appeal, the order passed in appeal is final and not open to second appeal.—Jainal Bibi v. Abdul Jalil, 6 C. L. J. 225.

May be objected to in any appeal from the final decree.—Under this rule it is open to the appellant on appeal from the final decree, to take objection to the order passed on the application for review.—Ananda Krishna v. Jogendra Nath, 8 C. L. J. 294.

A suit was at first dismissed, but afterwards a review was applied for by the plaintiff and granted, overruling the objections of the defendant. Both plaintiff and defendant adduced new evidence, and a decree was given for the plaintiff. Held, on special appeal, that the fact of the defendant's having adduced fresh evidence in the Court below, did not debar him from objecting on appeal that the review was wrongly granted.—Pran Nath v. Sree Kant, 2 C. L. R. 257.

Sections 584 and 591, C. P. Code, 1882 (Ss. 100 and 105), do not control S. 629, C. P. Code 1882 (r. 7), so as to confer a right of appeal in a case, where the appeal is not based on any of the objections mentioned in this rule. An objection against an order of admission of an application for review cannot be taken in an appeal against the final decree except on one of the grounds mentioned as grounds of objection in this rule.—Gopal Aiyar v. Ramasami, 31 M. 49 : 17 M. L. J. 603 : 2 M. L. T. 519 (27 A. 695, 24 C. 878 followed) ; Khursed v. Rahamatullah, 40 A. 68 : 43 I. C. 490 : 15 A. L. J. 839 ; Baroda Charan v. Gobind Prosad, 22 C. 984.

The provisions of this rule that objection can be taken by appeal against the order or an appeal against the final decree are not controlled by S. 591, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 105).—Gyanund Asram v. Bepin Mohun, 22 C. 734. See also Manicka v. Gurusami, 23 M. 496 ; Radhakrishna v. Benimadhab, 36 C. W. N. 212 : 55 C. L. J. 93 noted under heading "Appeal" in notes under r. 4, ante.

See notes under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (w), ante.

Sub-rule (1), Cl. (b) — Application in contravention of the provisions of rule (4)—This clause does not refer to the weight or sufficiency of evidence, and an appellate Court cannot set aside an order of review merely because in its opinion the probative force of the evidence is insufficient to establish the allegations made in support of the application for review, though such evidence had such probative force to the Court granting the review.—Ahid v. Mahendra, 42 B. 830 ; Bar Nematbu v. Bar Nematullabu, 42 B. 295 ; Nandalal v. Panchanan, 45 C. 60 : 42 I. C. 484 : 26 C. L. J. 187.

The appellate Court can interfere if a review has been granted on insufficient grounds.—Nritya v. Jarit, 30 C. W. N. 584.

Where the Court of first instance grants an application for review on the ground of discovery of new and important evidence not within the knowledge or power of the applicant at the time of the trial, the appellate Court will not generally consider the evidence afresh and disturb the conclusion of the lower Court.—Ambika Charan v. Bhani Ram, 64 I. C. 219.

The appeal under this rule will be confined to a disregard of the provisions of r. 2 or r. 4 only and not to any matter on which the granting of the review is based. Where the ground of attack is that the lower Court was incorrect in thinking that there was mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, no appeal is provided for in such a case under Or. XLVII.—Shaukat Ali v. Mt. Shakila Bano, 94 I. C. 78 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 492.

Order going beyond the scope of the application for review.—Where a Court in considering an application for review and in granting the same passed an order which went beyond the scope of the application for review, the order was without jurisdiction and can be set aside in appeal.—Akshoy v. Ashutosh, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 73 : 105 I. C. 4.

In Hafajuddin v. Habi Nasya, 108 I. C. 246 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 416, an objection was taken in the High Court that as the review was granted upon a ground different from that upon which the application for review was based, the subsequent proceedings in the Court below were all vitiated, but the High Court refused to consider the point as it was not taken before the lower appellate Court.

See notes under heading "Appeal" in notes to r. 4, ante.

Clause (c)—Application after prescribed time.—Under Arts. 161, 162 and 173 of the Limitation Act, the period for an application for review of judgment by a Provincial Small Cause Court is 15 days, by the High Court in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, 20 days, and by other Courts, 90 days from the date of the decree; and the applicant is entitled, under S. 12 of the Limitation Act, to deduct the time spent in obtaining copy of the decree.—Fazal v. Umar, 7 L. L. J. 129 : 88 I. C. 1019 : A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 377. But S. 5 of that Act says that the Court may admit the application if the applicant satisfies the Court that he had "sufficient cause" for not making the application within the prescribed period.

Where a party, applying for a review of judgment after the expiry of the prescribed period, had not shown any just and reasonable cause for not preferring his application within the prescribed period, the order admitting the review was held to have been improperly granted, and was set aside with all subsequent proceedings thereon—Luchmun Singh v. Tirbani Buksh, 14 B. L. R. 373 (P. C.); Lulcet Mohun v. Sowtra Beebee, 10 W. R. 42; Gour Pershad v. Anjub Ali, 24 W. R. 294; Fakira v. Basapa, 8 B. H. C. R. 234; Gunganarain v. Gonomoonee, 8 W. R. 184; Betts v. Bonsi Mundul, 25 W. R. 343; Kristo Gobind v. Jugobundhoo, 12 W. R. 94; Sreenath v. Kritattomoyee, 18 W. R. 286. See also Shama Churn v. Bindabun, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 892 : 9 W. R. 181; Mahomed Gaz v. Dullab Beebee, 5 B. L. R. 318-note : 11 W. R. 22; Kasheenath v. Luckheenarain, W. R. (1864) 91; Jhubhoo Sahoo v. Jusoda, 17 W. R. 230.

There seems to be no limit to the time after the expiration of ninety days at which the application for review may be filed, provided the applicant shows just and reasonable ground for review.—R. 483.

A new exposition of the law by a Full Bench after the passing of the original decree is not "just and reasonable cause" for admitting a review after the prescribed period. When a review has been granted, the Court is bound to decide the case according to any new exposition of the law by a Full Bench made since the original decision.—Shama Churn v. Bindabun, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 892 : 9 W. R. 181; Bura Boodho v. Koylash Chunder, 6 W. R. 100; Alladmonee v. Joysunkur, 7 W. R. 408; Madhub Chunder v. Radhika, 7 W. R. 405; Dwarkanath v. Manick Chunder, 9 W. R. 102. Contra—Forbes v. Dyanutoollah, 10 W. R. 415; and Jonmenjoy v. Dassmoney, 8 C. 700.

An application for review of judgment of a lower Court is not admissible after the limited period merely in consequence of a decision of the High Court, or of the Privy Council, modifying the law or practice which prevailed at the time when the judgment sought to be reviewed was passed.—Onoóp Chunder v. Ekkowree Singh, 6 W. R. 167. But see Banes Pershad v. Radha Pershad, 15 W. R. 143.

Where an application for review is not made within the prescribed period the pendency of a special appeal is not such a "just and reasonable cause" for the loss of time, as the Court to do is bound to arrive at before it can entertain v. Stephen, 9 W. R. 301; Fakira v. Basapa, the pendency of the first application for review is a just and reasonable cause for admitting a second application for review out of time.—Vaman v. Malhari, 26 B. 485.

An applicant for review cannot plead his ignorance of the effect of the judgment as a justification for his delay.—Gulam Husen v. Musa Miya, 8 B. 260.

An application for a review of judgment having been made on the first day after the vacation, after the ninetieth day from the date of the judgment which it was sought to review, it appeared that the ninetieth day fell during the vacation when the High Court was closed. Held, that the full fee leviable on the memorandum of appeal must be paid in the first instance, but that the Court, if satisfied that the delay was not caused by the laches of the applicant, might direct a refund of one-half of such fee.—In the matter of Doorga Prosunno, 9 C. L. R. 479.

In computing the period of 90 days from the date of decree, within which an application for review of judgment may be presented on payment of half the fee leviable on the plaint or memorandum of appeal (under Art. 5 of Sch. I of the Court-fees Act, 1870), the time during which the Court is closed for vacation cannot be excluded.—In re Kota, 9 M. 134.

The pendency of a second appeal is not a sufficient cause for the delay in filing an application for review.—Gulam Husen v. Musa Miya, 8 B. 260.

An insufficiently stamped application for review was presented to the Munsarim of the Court within 90 days, but the deficiency was not supplied till after the expiry of that period. Held, that there was no presentation within the prescribed period, and that the Judge had no power to admit the application.—Munro v. Cawnpore Municipal Board, 12 A. 57.

Sub-rule (2).—No appeal lies from an order refusing to re-admit an application for review of judgment which has been dismissed for default under sub-rule (2)—Basrat Ali v. Maung Aung, 5 R. 121 · 102 I C. 706 : A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 204.

Revision.—If review is granted in a case where the Court granting it had no jurisdiction, the order is open to revision under S. 115 as made without jurisdiction but it is doubtful whether in such a case an appeal will lie from the order granting the review.—Ramanadhan v. Narayanan, 27 M. 602, 607; Chunilal v. Sonbat, 21 B. 328.

The discretionary powers of revision vested in the High Court by S. 115 are not in any way controlled by the provisions of Or. XLVII. Such powers are intended to apply to orders disallowing a review application.—Khasomal v. Bacho, 115 I. C. 314 : A. I. R. 1929 Sind 38.

8. When an application for review is granted, a note thereof shall be made in the register and the Court may at once re-hear the case or make such order in regard to the re-hearing as it thinks fit. [S. 630]

Registry of application granted, and order for re-hearing.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 630, C.P. Code, 188

Court is bound to register application for review if it is granted.—If an application for review is granted the Court is bound under this rule to make a note in the register that the application for review had been granted. Where there are no materials to determine as to whether the requisition contained in this rule had or had not been complied with, the procedure adopted by the Court is open to criticism.—Nathu Ram v. Gang Bux, 128 I. C. 753 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 815 : (1930) A. L. J. 1037.

What questions may be gone into after grant of review.—When review of a decision has been admitted, the whole case is thereupon reopened.—Sainal Ranchhod v. Dullabh, 10 B. H. C. R. 360.

Where a review of judgment is granted on a particular ground, the Court is not bound to re-hear the whole case under this rule. It is in the discretion of the Court to re-hear the whole case, or only the particular point on which the review has been granted.—Hurbuns Sahay v. Thakoor Purshad, 9 C. 209 : 12 C. L. R. 64.

Where review was granted for additional evidence to be taken, that evidence should be taken and any relevant evidence in rebuttal, and also any other evidence which the party tendering was prevented from adducing by some cause for which he was not responsible or which it was not reasonable or necessary to call in the absence of that additional evidence. But neither party will be allowed to adduce evidence which was available and which with reasonable diligence could have been produced at the trial.—Bhainram v. Ambica, 53 C. 856 : 97 I. C. 731.

Under Or XLVII the Court should re-hear the case on the merits after the review is granted. But where the review relates to the connection of an error apparent on the face of the decree all that the Court has to do is to decide after notice to the party whether or not to make the correction.—Mahmad v. Mugaseth, (1930) M. W. N. 166.

It is a matter of discretion with the Court to admit certain documents at the re-hearing after a review of trial had been obtained though they were not tendered in evidence at the first trial.—Hefajuddin v. Habi Nasya, 108 I. C. 246 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 416.

It cannot be treated as a universal rule that no point can be raised on an application for review which has been already discussed and decided on the original hearing of the appeal, or that no new point, which has not been raised on the hearing of the appeal, can be argued on the application for a review. In each case, the Court to which the application is made must consider and decide whether a review is necessary to correct any evident error or omission, or is otherwise requisite for the ends of justice—Chintamani v. Pyari Mohun, 6 B. L. R. 126 (F. B.); 15 W. R. 1 (F. B.) (followed in Kalu Bin v. Vishram, 1 B. 543). See also Huree Pershad v. Nund Kishore, 17 W. R. 479. But see the cases noted under r. 4 of this Order.

rr. 8, 9.

Effect of grant of review on original decree.—When the application for review is granted, the decree previously made is vacated, with the consequence that an appeal preferred against the decree can no longer be prosecuted. But the parties can appeal from the final decree passed on review.—Gour Krishna v. Nilmadhab, 36 O. L. J. 484; Nibaran v. Abdul Hakim, 107 I. C. 75; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 418.

9. No application to review an order made on an application for a review or a decree or order passed or made on a review shall be entertained.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This section corresponds to the last para. of S. 629, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The last para. of S. 629 is reproduced here for comparison.—“No application to review an order passed on review or on an application for a review shall be entertained.”

Second application for review.—There is nothing in the Civil Procedure Code which prevents a second application for a review being made after a previous application for review has been made and rejected, and such an application can therefore be entertained if it is based on grounds different from those taken in the first application.—Gobinda Ram v. Bholanath, 15 C. 432 (distinguished in Vaman v. Malhari, 26 B. 485; 4 Bom. L. R. 121). See also Nasiruddin v. Indro Narain, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 367; 5 W. R. 93; Kasheenath v. Luckheenarain, W. ORDER XLVIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

1. (1) Every process issued under this Code shall be served at the expense of the party on whose behalf it is issued, unless the Court otherwise directs.

Process to be served at expense of party issuing.

(2) The court-fee chargeable for such service shall be paid within a time to be fixed before the process is issued.

Costs of service.

[S. 93.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 93, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes.

In sub-rule (2), the word "chargeable" has been substituted for the word "leviable," and the word "paid" has been substituted for the word "levied" which occurred in the old section.

"Unless the Court otherwise directs"—This rule does not give a Court any power to depart from the rules of the High Court on the subject of levy of fees or to remit them. The rule relates to the payment of process fees by the parties to a suit, and gives the Court, acting judicially, power to make an order, between party and party only, as to who should pay the process-fees. It does not expressly give power to remit the fees, and to order that the process should be served free, at the expense of Government.—In the matter of the application of Studd, 26 C. 124: 3 C. W. N. 82.

2. All orders, notices and other documents required by this Code to be given to or served on any person shall be served in the manner provided for the service of summons.

Orders and notices how served.

[PART OF S. 94.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to the latter part of S. 94 of the C. P. Code, 1882. The former part of S. 94 has been made a separate section (S. 142). This rule should be read with S. 142.

The rules for issue and service of summons are given in Or. V.

3. The forms given in the appendices, with such variation as the circumstances of each case may require, shall be used for the purposes therein mentioned.

ORDER XLIX.

CHARTERED HIGH COURTS.

1. Notice to produce documents, summonses to witnesses, and every other judicial process, issued in the exercise of the original civil jurisdiction of the High Court, and of its matrimonial, testamentary and intestate jurisdictions, except summonses to defendants, writs of execution and notices to respondents may be served by the attorneys in the suits, or by persons employed by them, or by such other persons as the High Court by any rule or order, directs. [S. 636.]
- Who may serve processes of High Courts.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 636, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character.

“Or by persons employed by them”—There is no provision of law for handing the notice to a village headman to serve upon a party resident in his village. The special employment of an individual does not seem to be contemplated by Or. XLIX, r 1, which might be deemed to refer to persons in the attorney's regular service—Sugan Chand v. Kanappa Chetty, 30 C. W. N. 734 : 96 I. C. 375 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal 977

2. Nothing in this schedule shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect any rules in force at the commencement of this Code for the taking of evidence or the recording of judgments and orders by a Chartered High Court. [NEW.]
- Saving in respect of Chartered High Courts

COMMENTARY

History—Section 633, C. P. Code, 1882, contained provisions for the taking of evidence and recording judgment and orders. The section ran as follows:—“The High Court shall take evidence and record judgments and orders in such manner as it by rule from time to time directs.”

The intention of the Legislature, as expressed in S. 633 of the C. P. Code, 1882, was that the High Court might frame rules as to how its judgments should be given, whether orally or in writing, or according to any mode which might appear to it best in the interests of justice—Sundar Bili v. Bisheshar Nath, 9 A. 93

Signing, delivery and pronouncing of judgments—The provisions of Or. XLI, r 31 and Or. XX, of the Code as to the signing, delivery and pronouncing of judgments do not apply to Chartered High Courts where there were rules already in force when the Code was enacted.—Banarsi Das v. Sagar Mal, 116 I. C. 23 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 403.

3. The following rules shall not apply to any Chartered High Court in the exercise of its ordinary or extraordinary original civil jurisdiction namely :—

Application of rules

- (1) rule 10 and rule 11, clauses (b) and (c), of Or. VII ;
- (2) rule 3 of Or. X ;
- (3) rule 2 of Or. XVI ;
- (4) rules 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 15 and 16 (so far as relate to the manner of taking evidence) of Or. XVIII ;
- (5) rules 1 to 8 of Or. XX ; and
- (6) rule 7 of Or. XXXIII (so far as relates to the making of a memorandum) :

and r. 35 of Or. XLI shall not apply to any such High Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. [S. 638.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to part of S. 638, C. P. Code, 1882 with some additions, alterations and omissions. The first part and the last part of the old section, are inserted in S. 120, and this rule is to be read with S. 120.

Power of High Courts.—This order is to be read with Part IX of this Code, which contains special provisions relating to the Chartered High Courts.

For the power of the High Courts to make rules, see Part X.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

ARBITRATION.

ARBITRATION IN SUITS.

1 (1) Where in any suit all the parties interested agree that any matter in difference between them shall be referred to arbitration, they may, at any time before judgment is pronounced, apply to the Court for an order of reference.

Parties to suits may apply for order of reference

(2) Every such application shall be in writing and shall state the matter sought to be referred. [S. 506, PARA. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

Object of this Schedule and Alterations—Two questions of importance have arisen in connection with this subject: (1) Should any of the sections of the Arbitration Act of 1899, be incorporated in the Code? (2) should the right of appeal as now existing be altered, and if so, in what direction? We are of opinion that the best course would undoubtedly be to eliminate from the Code all the clauses as to arbitration, and insert them in a new and comprehensive Arbitration Act. There are perhaps difficulties as to this at present. We have determined therefore to leave the arbitration clauses much as they are in the present Code; but we have placed them in a schedule in the hope that at no distant date, they may be transferred into a comprehensive Arbitration Act.—See the Report of the Special Committee.

This para. corresponds to para. 1 of S. 506, C. P. Code of 1882 with some modifications. The words "where in any suit all the parties interested agree" have been substituted for the words "if all the parties to a suit desire," which occurred in the old section, the words "in the suit" which followed the words "between them" in the old section and the words "in person or by their respective pleaders specially authorized in writing in this behalf," which stood after the words, "before the judgment is pronounced" in the old section, have been omitted.

Sub-rule (2) is almost similar to para. 2 of S. 506 of the old Code, with the omission of the adjective "particular," which stood before the word "matter" in the old section.

The reason for the substitution of the words "all the parties interested" for the words "all the parties to a suit" which occurred in the old section is, that the words in the old section gave rise to much discussion as will appear from the cases reported in Pitam Mal v. Sadiq Ali, 24 A 229; Chairman of the Purnea Municipality v. Siva Sankar, 33 C 899 and Lal Mohan v. Surya Kumar, 11 C. W N 1152; in those cases it has been held that the expression "all the parties to a suit" in S. 506, C. P. Code, 1882, does not include defendants who never appeared and between whom and the plaintiff, there was not any matter of difference. Thus a pro forma defendant, who never enters appearance and against whom no relief is asked by the plaintiff, is not a party "interested" within the meaning of the present rule, although he is made a defendant as a matter of form. It would thus appear that the word interested refers only to parties who are interested and not to the parties who are formal parties and not interested in the result of the suit. This would explain the object of the change.

The reason for the omission of the words "in person, or by their respective pleaders specially authorized in writing in this behalf" seems to be, that those words are quite unnecessary, when this rule is read with the r. 1 of Or. III, which provides that any appearance, application etc. etc., required or authorized by law to be made or done by any party, may be made or done by a pleader duly appointed to act on his behalf.

The other changes introduced in this rule, are not material.

Section 506 and the following sections up to S. 522, C P Code, 1882 (r 16), deal with cases in which the parties to a suit desire to leave the matters in difference between them to arbitration and apply to the Court for an order of reference—Sheo Dat v. Sheo Shankar, 27 A. 53.

Provisions of Sch. II whether mandatory.—The use of the word "may" in a matter of jurisdiction, no questions of hardship and no consideration of technicality can be permitted to affect the judgment. The rules as to jurisdiction should be strictly construed and the Court should be astute not to permit litigants to circumvent such provisions of the Code.—Per Mookerjee, J. in Laduram v. Nanda Lal, 47 C 555: 31 C L.J. 150: 55 I C. 747.

Reference to be made by all the parties interested.—In the case of a reference under this rule the agreement to refer and the application to the Court must have the concurrence of all parties and the actual reference is the order of the Court, so that no question can arise as to the regularity of the proceedings up to the order of reference by the Court—Ghulam Jilani v. Muhammad Ahmed, 29 I A. 51: 6 C.W.N. 226 (P.C.): 29 C. 167: 4 Bom. L.R. 161: 12 M. L. J. 77.

An application for reference was signed by some of the defendants personally, and on behalf of others by a pleader; but the vakalatnama was not signed by one of the defendants on whose behalf the pleader had signed it. Held, that the reference and the subsequent proceedings were invalid.—Kadhu v. Baljit, 29 A. 423: 4 A L J. 347 (24 A. 225 distinguished).

A party may be interested, though no relief is claimed against him.—Subbarao v. Appadurai, 48 M.L.J. 142: 86 I C. 839: A L.R. 1925 Mad 621. See notes under heading "Effect of award made without all parties joining," post.

To constitute a valid reference to arbitration it is enough if all the parties to suit interested in the subject-matter agree to the reference. From the mere fact that certain parties are interested in the subject-matter it does not follow that they are concerned, v. Soetha, 2 P. 777.

A defendant who is ex parte may be a party "interested" within the meaning of Sch. II, Para 1, C P Code.—Patita Pavana v. Narasinga, 42 M. 632: 36 M. L. J. 538: 51 I. C. 165

A person who is not a necessary party to a suit is not a party "interested" within the meaning of this para.—Sabta Prasad v. Dharam, 35 A. 107. 18 I. C. 609.—Ajudhia Prasad v. Badar-ul-Husain, 39 A. 489: 41 I. C. 357: 15 A. L. J. 427.

The words "all the parties interested" in para. 1 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code only need be parties to the application of fact in each case as to who are the parties.—v. Tapeswari, 45 I C. 321: Mahadev, I C. 343: A L. R. 1928 Bom 248. Where in a suit for partnership accounts, the plaintiff made a retired partner a formal party and no relief was asked against him but the defendant did not accept his exoneration from liability and that person having remained ex parte the other parties referred the matter to arbitration and an award was passed without notice to the ex parte defendant: held that it was a case in which the non-joinder did not vitiate the award—Ibid

As to the meaning of the "person interested" see also Vythinatha A. Vaithalinga Mudaliar, 18 M. L. T. 375 : (1915) M. W. N. 847.

All the parties interested in a suit must join in the reference to arbitration, and only some of the parties agree to refer, the award on such reference is void.—De Nath v. Jogendra Nath, 64 I.C. 221.

The words "all the parties" in the reference to arbitration, means all the parties to the suit, and not only the parties to the submission there was fact any matter in issue in the suit.—Pisam Mal v. Sadiq Ali, 24 A. 229. See Lal Mohan v. Surja Kumar, 11 C. W. N. 1152 and Chairman of Purnea Municipal Siva Sankar, 33 C. 899, Sorajbala v. Jatindra, 45 C. L. J. 453 : 103 I.C. 625 : A. 1927 Cal. 619.

Section 506, C. P. Code, 1882 (this para.), contemplates an application to the C in which all the parties join as applicants or parties consenting to the applica. There is no provision made for giving an opportunity to an objecting party to be heard. Tincovery Day v. Fakir Chand, 30 C. 218 : 7 C. W. N. 180.

In a suit for partnership accounts two out of three defendants petitioned the C to refer the matters in dispute to arbitration. The representatives of the third defendant (who was then deceased) were not parties to the application. Held that reference was illegal and the award was void.—Indur Subbarami v. Kanda Rajmanner, 26 M. 47. Subba Reddy v. Venkatasubba, 51 M. 755 : 110 I.C. 51 : 55 M. L. J. 72. A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 519. Ranga Reddy v. China Sudda, A. I. R. 1927 M. 1154 : 55 M. L. J. 78.

Where the parties to a reference to arbitration are material, the award must be set aside.—Da, Miran Boksh Sher cannot be a valid reference to arbitration in a suit unless all the parties to the suit join in asking for the reference.—Abdul Halim v. Abdul Gafur, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 249; Debendra v. Jogendra, 64 I.C. 221; Hassomal Kodommah, 22 S. L. R. 135.

of S to the C. the C. appearance and an award was made thereon, held, that the order of reference was invalid not only against the parties who did not agree to the order of reference but also against those who had agreed and the award must be set aside (9 C. W. N. 873 fold, 11 C. W. N. 1152 dissented from : 29 C. 167 refd. 20); Dooly Chand v. Mamuji Musaji, 21 C. W. N. 387 : 25 C. L. J. 339 : 41 I.C. 295 (relied on in Hara Prasanna v. Arabati, 71 I.C. 326).

An application for arbitration on behalf of an absent plaintiff is not allowable without special authority.—Goor Chunder v. Joogul Chunder, 1 W. N. 20. See also Bhugwan Dass v. Nund Lal, 12 C. 173 (178).

One partner has no power, in the absence of special authority, to bind the firm by a submission to arbitration.—Ram Bharati v. Ballu Mal, 22 A. 135; Firm Juran Mal v. Firm Paras Ram, 118 I. C. 906; Bhagwan v. Hivaji, 34 Bom. L. R. 1112; Gopala Das v. Baijnath, 46 A. 209 : 31 I. C. 930 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 238 : 24 A. L. J. 235 : Diwan Chand v. Punjab National Bank, 193 I. C. 558; Rajendra v. Panna Lal, 36 C. W. N. 8 : A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 348. If some of the partners do not join in submitting a dispute to arbitration the award does not become invalid or ineffectual, as between the persons making the reference, it is binding on them especially when it has been acted upon. Where the arbitrators proceed to decide as well a matter that is not included in the reference and the parties concerned take part in the proceedings and accept the award when it is made and act upon it they must be deemed to have made a second submission in respect of that matter and cannot be allowed to repudiate the award (following 71 I. C. 660).—Jagannath v. Dina Nath, 184 I. C. 99.

The plaintiff in a suit by a firm was signed by the managing partner of the firm. Subsequently that person died and the suit was referred to arbitration, the application for arbitration having been signed by the succeeding managing partner and the pleader for the firm. Held, that the reference to arbitration was valid.—Tajbhan v. Somnath, 117 I. C. 783: A. I. R. 1930 Sind 40. An attorney acting for a firm and having the power to conduct a suit has no power to refer a matter to arbitration unless he is authorised specifically for that purpose.—Rajendra v. Panna Lal, 36 C. W. N. 8: A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 343.

A manager of a joint Hindu family has the power to bind the family by reference of a dispute with any outsider regarding the family property to arbitration provided such reference be for the benefit of the family. Minors in the family are bound by the reference.—Balaji v. Nana, 17 B. 287; Hardeo Sahai v. Gauri Shankar, 28 A. 35 (27 C. 229: 12 M. 483 followed); Annada Krishna v. Jogendra Nath, 8 C. L. J. 294; Guran Ditta v. Pokkar Ram, 8 L. 693: 104 I. C. 202: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 362; Ram Bilas v. Birich Singh, 12 P. L. J. 733.

The Judge intimated that he should refer the suit to arbitration, and allowed a certain time to the parties to object to that course. No objection was made within such time, and thereupon the Judge referred the cause to arbitrators named by him. Held that the reference was not warranted, there having been no express consent by the parties.—Degumbur v. Ram Preea, Marsh. 517: 2 Hay. 583 (referred to Beni Madhub v. Preeto Nath, 23 C. 803: 5 C. W. N. 258).

Where a claimant objects to the attachment of property in execution of a decree and the matter is referred to arbitration, the judgment-debtor is a necessary party to the reference.—Basdeo v. Saraswati, 64 I. C. 469.

"Apply."—This para requires that all the parties interested should not only agree to a reference, but that they should all apply to the Court for an order of reference.—Dooly Chand v. Mamuji Musaji, 21 C. W. N. 887: 25 C. L. J. 389: 41 I. C. 295. Therefore, if one of the parties interested agrees to a reference, but changes his mind subsequently and does not join in the application, the application for an order of reference should be refused.—Miran Bakhsh v. Sher Muhammad, 9 I. C. 195. Where on a compromise petition in a partition suit, the Court passed a preliminary decree in terms of the compromise the first portion of which set out the respective shares of the parties, and the latter parties had done the proceeding by which the actual decision was preliminary decree as to the first portion of the compromise is valid, but as to the latter valid order of reference in as much as there was no order.—Tara Prasanna v. Asoke, 33 C. W. N. 11, 370. See also Dwarkanath v. Atul, 46 C. L. J. 353:

Where there is a minor who is represented by a referring the matter to arbitration must ascertain course.—Hanuman v. Ram Lakhan, 28 A. L. J. 923: Paragraph 1 does not necessarily mean that all the contesting parties must necessarily join in arbitration; where the interest of the defendants can be secured, such as in a suit for money, there is no bar to some of the contesting defendants joining with the plaintiffs in referring the matter in difference between them to arbitration (approving 2 P. 777).—Bankey Lal v. Chotey Misan, 53 A. 669: 29 A. L. J. 442: 133 I. C. 31: A. I. R. 1931 All. 453.

Application for reference by pleader.—A pleader unless specially authorized cannot apply for reference to arbitration; and if there is nothing to show that the reference was acquiesced in by the subsequent conduct of the parties the reference is invalid.—Shao Das v. Birji Nandan, 7 C. W. N. 343; Azizudin v. Motiram, 96 I. C. 277: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 563. A Vakalatnama in general terms is wholly insufficient.—Ram Jiauan v. Kali Charan, 29 A. 429: 4 A. L. J. 342. See also Kadhu v. Baljit, 29 A. 423: 4 A. L. J. 347.

The application for a reference to arbitration must be made in Court by an instrument in writing by the parties in person or their pleaders specially authorized in that behalf.—Bhriogoo Roy v. Bhagrath, W. R. (1864), Act X, 41; Gazee v. Hamid Buksh, 16 W. R. 150; Guran Ditta v. Pokkar Ram, 8 L. 693: 104 I. C. 202: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 362.

Effect of Acquiescence and Tacit Consent.—Where a party after signing a petition for reference to arbitration does not make any objection to the appointment of the arbitrator on the day when the order of reference is made, he must be taken to have tacitly acquiesced in the course adopted by the Court, and such acquiescence amounts to a fresh submission.—Halimbhai v. Shanker Sai, 10 B. 381 (9 B. H. C. R. 117 and 8 W. R. 171 followed). See also Dharnidhar v. Sakharam, 71 I. C. 800.

When a party authorized his agent to conduct a suit, and the agent consented to the case being referred to arbitration, which was carried on with the assent and knowledge of the party, he cannot afterwards apply to set aside the award on the ground that his pleader had no authority in writing to refer the matter to arbitration.—Unniraman v. Chathan, 9 M. 451 (followed in Saturjit v. Dulhin Gulab Kuer, 24 C. 469, which has been distinguished in Sheo Das v. Brij Nandan, 7 C. W. N. 343). See also Abdul Hamid v. Raizuddin, 30 A. 32 and Luxmbai v. Hajos Widina, 23 B. 629, where it has been held that the absence of a written authority did not invalidate the order of reference. These cases have been distinguished in Beni Madhub v. Preet Nath, 28 C. 203; 5 C. W. N. 268, where it has been held that a mere silence on the part of a person, not a party to an order of reference to arbitration, and his omission to inform the arbitrators that he was not a party to the reference, cannot make the award binding on him, even though, during the arbitration, he produced through a servant a document before the arbitrators in obedience to a summons, and declined to produce others.

Where three out of the four plaintiffs did not join in the reference to arbitration but all the plaintiffs were represented before the arbitrators by their pleader: held, that the defect in the reference was cured by subsequent conduct of the parties.—Jai Mal v. Tib Ram, 122 I. C. 100; 31 P. L. R. 192; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 523.

In a suit pending before arbitrators, a person who is made a co-plaintiff on application, and makes no objection to the arbitration, is bound by the award.—Shiva Nath v. Kishen Mohun, 5 W. R. 130.

Effect of award made without all parties joining.—An arbitration award, not being one which has been made upon a reference by all the parties to the suit, is not capable of being converted into a final decree, though it is evidence against any party who agreed to the reference.—Bafoj Chunder v. Bhynib Chunder, 15 W. R. 427. See also Basao v. Jagannath, 131 I. C. 448; A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 127; 8 O. W. N. 71; 14 O. L. J. 184; Tey Singh v. Ghazi Ram, 49 A. 812; A. I. R. 1927 All. 563; 102 I. C. 236.

The agreement to refer to arbitration and the application to the Court founded upon it must have the concurrence of all the parties concerned and if all the defendants including those who have not appeared and contested the suit, do not join in the reference to arbitration the award is wholly invalid and not merely against those who joined in it, and is liable to be set aside on the application of any of the parties; Dooly Chand v. Manuji Musaji, 21 C. W. N. 387; 25 C. L. J. 839; 41 I. C. 295 (9 C. W. N. 873 followed); 11 C. W. N. 1152 dissented from; 29 C. 167, refd. to; Giri Nath v. Kanai Lal, 27 C. L. J. 339; 43 I. C. 169; Fanindra Nath v. Dwarka Nath, 25 C. W. N. 832 (29 A. 429, 21 C. W. N. 387, 27 C. L. J. 339 refd. to); Laduram v. Nandalal, 47 C. 553; 31 C. L. J. 133; 55 I. C. 742; Potita Pavana v. Narasinga, 42 M. 632; 36 M. L. J. 538; 51 I. C. 155; Indur Subbaram v. Kandadai Rajamannar, 26 M. 47; Karam Bibi v. Muhammed Alam, 119 I. C. 235; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 477; Muhammad Sharif v. Muhammad Ismail, 121 I. C. 378; 31 P. L. R. 55; Venkatasubbayya v. Venkataramanayya, 126 I. C. 735; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 646; Venkataramanaya Charlu v. Vasudeva Charjulu, 96 I. C. 273. But according to the Allahabad High Court, a defendant who does not put in an appearance and does not contest the suit is not a "party" within the meaning of this rule, and the non-joinder of such a party in the application for an order of reference will not invalidate an award.—Ishardas v. Keshab Das, 32 A. 657; Ajudhia Prasad v. Badarut Husain, 39 A. 489, 495. This view has been modified and it has now been held that a person who has chosen to remain absent and allows ex parte proceedings to be taken against him is not necessarily a person not interested in the subject-matter of the suit, an important test is to consider whether he is a necessary party or such that if not originally impleaded the Court would direct him to be joined under Or. 1, r. 10.—Sharafat Ali v. Bhagwati, A. I. R. 1929 All. 763. Where an award is declared invalid because one of the parties to the proceeding did not join in the reference the award cannot be upheld in part if the decree is a joint one (2 P. 777 distinguished).—Mahomed Husain v. Nanki, A. I. R. 1931 All. 242; (1931) A. L. J. 100; 130 I. C. 211. Such an illegal award may be set aside in revision.—Tey Singh v. Ghazi Ram, 49 A. 812; 102 I. C. 236; A. I. R. 1927 All. 563.

An arbitrator's award declared the right of a member of a Hindu family jointly possessed of property, such member being deaf and dumb, and not a party to the arbitration award. He afterwards sued for separate possession against the others who in their defence denied his title to property. The High Court, on appeal, set aside the award on the ground of physical infirmity of the family. Gunga Sahai.

Withdrawal of suit after reference to arbitration—After a case has been referred to arbitration on the application of the parties under this para, the Court has no power to allow one of the parties to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit. An order of Court permitting the withdrawal of the suit and liberty to bring a fresh suit is ultra vires and a fresh suit instituted in pursuance of the permission thus given, is barred by S. 21 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), and also by the second clause of S. 373, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXIII, r. 1).—Sheoambar v. Doodat, 9 A. 168. See, however, Gouri Shankar v. Maida Koor, 31 C. 516.

Where a party dies after application but before order of reference—In such a case, the death of the party does not operate as a revocation of the authority of the proposed arbitration. If, therefore, the right to sue survives, it is competent to the Court to make an order of reference after substitution of the representative of the deceased party.—Dutta v. Khedu, 33 A. 615; Binayakdas v. Sasi, 26 C. W. N. 804; 70 I. C. 459; A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 226.

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—This para. corresponds to para. 1 of S. 507 of the C. P. Code, 1882 with this modification that the word "appointed" has been substituted for the word "nominated," which occurred in the old section. The other changes are not material.

The second para. of S. 507 has been omitted from this para. and inserted in para. 5 with some amendments.

Appointment of Arbitrator.—Before a Judge refers a case for arbitration he should ascertain whether the persons nominated are willing to accept the office, and till he has done so, any nomination of an arbitrator by him, without the application or consent of the parties, is illegal—Troylucko Nath v. The Collector of Beasboom, W. R. (1864) 339.

Where a party has selected an arbitrator, he cannot ask the Court to appoint another arbitrator.—Shiam Sundar v. Bhairoo Singh, (1906) A. W. N. 51 : 3 A. L. J. 185.

The Code gives no power to a Court to force arbitrators on an unwilling suitor. The award of arbitrators so appointed will not be enforced.—Shao Nath alias Burray Kaka v. Ram Nath alias Chotay Kaka, 5 W. R. 21 (P. C.) : 10 M. I. A. 413 ; Jagannath v. Chhed, 51 A. 501 : 27 A. L. J. 182 : 115 I. C. 611 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 144.

A pleader of one of the parties to the suit should not be appointed as arbitrator—Kali Prasanna v. Rafani Kant, 25 C. 141 (referred to in Mahomed Wahiduddin v. Hakimani, 29 C. 278 : 6 C. W. N. 235).

3. (1) The Court shall, by order, refer to the arbitrator the matter in difference which he is required to determine, and shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of the award and shall specify such time in the order.

(2) Where a matter is referred to arbitration, the Court shall not, save in the manner and to the extent provided in this Schedule, deal with such matter in the same suit. [S. 503.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to S 508 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification, that the words "for the making" have been substituted for the words "for the delivery," which occurred in the old section.

Sub rule (2) corresponds to para 2 of S 508, C. P. Code, 1882, with change of language only, there being no change in the meaning.

Scope—The under this Rule, suit, though entered cannot be said to be a reference to arbitration.

Direction of Court to refer application for reference to arbitration by parties.—The Court may, on the application of either party, direct the parties to refer the matter to arbitration and apply to the Court to refuse to do so, even after the hearing of the case by the Court.—Idoo Sahai v. Harbins, 33

A. 626 : 8 A. L. J. 652 ; Subbayya v. Papayya, A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 789

Matters in difference between the parties.—Where all matters in difference between the parties in the suit were referred to arbitration under an order of Court. Held, that the arbitrators had power to award interest after the date of the submission, and to deal with the costs of reference and award.—Mohan Lal v. Nathu Ram, 1 B. L. R. O. C. 144

The arbitrators to whom the matters in difference in two suits for money were referred to arbitration, made an award for payment to the plaintiff of certain sums by the defendant, and further directed that these sums should be paid by certain instalments. Held, that as it was clear that the reference to arbitration gave the arbitrators full powers, not only as to the amount to be paid, but also as to the manner of payment the lower appellate Court was wrong in reducing the number of instalments which had been fixed by the award.—Jawahar Singh v. Mul Raj, 8 A. 449.

The parties cannot have a piece-meal arbitration.—Wadero Ali v. Khushaldas, A. I. R. 1932 Sind 77.

Where the whole case is referred to the arbitrator and he is called on to decide all questions that were in dispute between the parties, the fact that the Court failed to frame issues noting the points in dispute between the parties and refer them specifically does not matter.—Muhammad Aijas v. Bosant Bai, 54 A. 297 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 665. The Court has power to refer a question of jurisdiction, namely, whether the cause of action arose in one place or another, to the arbitrator.—Ibid.

A decision of arbitrators in a matter not in difference between the parties nor referred to them, is null and void for want of jurisdiction.—Moshahel Singh v. Konomutty Bewa, 15 W. R. 172.

An award upon a question referred to arbitrators, on whose part no misconduct or mistake appears, precludes the parties who have submitted to the reference from afterwards contesting in a suit the question so referred and disposed of by the award.—Bhagoti v. Chandan, 11 C. 386 (P. C.) : 12 I. A. 67.

Power of Arbitrators to deal with the question of costs.—See notes under para. 13

Courts shall fix time for delivery of award.—Paragraph 3 provides that the Court shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of the award and shall specify such time in the order of reference. Paragraph 8 enables the Court from time to time to enlarge the period for the making of the award. Paragraph 15 provides that an award made after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court may be set aside by the Court. The provision contained in this paragraph, requiring the Court to fix a reasonable time for the making of the award, is not merely directory but is mandatory and imperative. Hence the provisions of this para should be strictly followed. It has, however, been held that, if no time is fixed for the delivery of the award in the order of reference, but the Court subsequently makes an order under para 8 for enlarging the time and fixes in that order the time within which the award is to be made, the omission to fix the time in original order of reference is not fatal to the award.—Har Narain v. Bhagwant Kuar, 13 A. 300 (P. C.) : 18 I. A. 55 (reversing 10 A. 137). In Robindra Deb v. J. gendra Deb, 27 C. W. N. 420 : 80 I. C. 459 : A. I. R. 1923 Cal 410, it was held by Rankin, J., recalling the order of reference, that the provision in para 3 of Sch II, viz., "the Court shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of the award," is mandatory; accordingly, a reference which gave the arbitrators leave to extend for such further time as they may allow themselves was bad and of no effect. See also Gauri Shanhar v. Babbar Lal, 14 A. 347; Luchman Das v. Abparkash, 30 A. 169.

The Madras High Court in Muthukutti Nayakan v. Acha Nayakan, 18 M. 22 (referring to Har Narain v. Bhagwant Kuar, 10 A. 137), held that an award is not invalid merely because no time has been fixed for the making of the award, S. 508, C. P. Code, 1882, being directory and not mandatory. This view of the Madras High Court is opposed to the Privy Council case reported in 13 A. 300. In Umarscy Premji v. Shamji Kanji, 13 B 119, the Bombay High Court has held that an award made but not filed within the time specified by order of the Court is not invalid. See also Mohan Lal v. Baz Khan, 46 I C, 324, Radhakant v. Jaladhor, 37 I. C. 844.

In the case of an arbitration made under the order of a Court it is sufficient if the award is made, completed and signed by the arbitrators within the period limited under S. 508, C. P. Code (this rule). It is not necessary for the validity of such award that it should actually reach the hands of the Court within such period.—Asadullah v. Mohammad Nur, 27 A. 459 (22 M 22, 13 B 119, and 13 A. 300 followed; 8 A 543 dissented from). See also Debendra Nath v. Sarbamangola, 8 C. W. N. 916.

The time fixed by the Court for the delivery of an award was the 16th of April, 1900. The award was made and signed by the arbitrators and handed over to a peon of the Court on the 15th of April, 1900, but it did not in fact reach the Court within time.—Sitaram v. ... and 22 M. 22 referred to).

... directing the arbitrators for sending in the date for delivery of the award, the award is valid.—B. L. R. S. N. 13 : 10 W. R. 206. See also Lachman Das v. Abparkash, 30 A. 169 (A. 548 followed).

Where no time was originally fixed within which the award was to be made, it is open to either party to hasten the proceedings by giving notice to the arbitrators that the award must be made, and an umpire appointed, within a reasonable time; but where the time elapsing after the notice has been actively employed by the arbitrators, and the delay has been owing to necessity which they could not control, the parties cannot recede from their submission by reason of the notice — Pestonjee v. Manockjee & Co., 10 W. R. 51 (P. C.): 12 M. I. A. 112. See also Ablakhee Koor v. Oodun Singh, 15 W. R. 331.

Power of Courts to extend time for making award.—See notes under rule 8.

Clause (2)—“The Court shall not deal with such matter in the same suit”—When once a matter is referred to arbitration, it is not competent to the Court, under the second paragraph of this para. to “deal with” the matter in difference between the parties except as provided in this schedule. There is no rule of that Schedule which authorizes the Court to revoke the authority conferred on an arbitrator and to appoint a new one except in cases strictly within the purview of S 510, C. P. Code, 1892 (r. 10,

After a reference to arbitration the Courts' power to deal with the case is of a very limited nature, as for example if there is no occasion to remit the award under para. 15 and if the party's application to set aside the award under para. 15 is dismissed, the Court can act, if at all under para. 12 only.—Kaikabad v. K'hambatta, 124 I. C. 339: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 26: 31 P. L. R. 668.

When, on account of the arbitration clause in a partnership agreement or lease or might be referred and the Court might defer the consideration of the question of appointment of a Receiver in the view that the parties by agreement between themselves have disentitled themselves to the auxiliary relief which otherwise they could have from the Court.—Surendra v. Sushil, 55 C. 249: 109 I. C. 759: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 256.

9 A. 168; Debi Churn v. Bipra Prosad, 1 C. W. N. 186

It is not open to the Court to hear the suit on the merits unless the arbitration has been superseded under paras. 5, 8 or 15 — Jamna v. Nasib, 24 A 312 Similarly, the Court has no power to confirm an order passed by arbitrators making payments of their fees a condition precedent to the hearing of the reference, there being no paragraph in this Schedule empowering the Court to make an order in that behalf.—Steel v. Roberts, 6 C. 809

The parties to a suit applied for an adjournment on the ground that they had agreed to refer the matters in difference between them to arbitration The Court accordingly referred the matters in difference to arbitration and an award was made. Held, that under the circumstances, the further hearing of the suit was barred.—Salig Ram v. Jhunna Kuar, 4 A 546

Where the proceeding has assumed the character of a reference to arbitration it is governed by the second schedule and the party cannot institute a separate suit It cannot be said that there cannot be arbitration proceedings until a valid reference has been made.—Raoji v. Ratansi, 54 B 696: 32 Bom. L. R. 389: 126 I. C. 305: A. I. R. 1930 Bom 431.

Where the costs incurred prior to the reference to arbitration were also referred to arbitration, the Court has no power to award costs. Held, that the costs incurred before the reference to arbitration were also referred to arbitration. Held, that the costs incurred before the reference to arbitration were also referred to arbitration. Held, that the costs incurred before the reference to arbitration were also referred to arbitration.

over the arbitration during the course of the arbitration may have been made in the suit 832.

A suit was referred to three arbitrators who were to make an award within six months. An agreement was come to by the parties to withdraw the matters from arbitration and to appear to have been afterwards made an application by the plaintiff to have the suit restored to the file of the Court.—Held, that the suit was still pending, the arbitrators not having determined it while they had jurisdiction to do so, and it was ordered that it should be brought again before the Court.—Gop: Nath v. Shih Chandra, 6 B. L. R. App. 74.

... was subsequently of the arbitration gain referred the matter to the arbitrators after the heirs of the deceased plaintiff were brought upon the record. The arbitrators made a fresh award, and the Court passed a decree accordingly. Held, that the Court had no power to deal with the matter.—Pachkouri Ram v. Nand Rai, 30 A. 505.

Revocation of, or withdrawal from, Arbitration.—It is almost an universal rule that a submission to arbitration is irrevocable.—Surubjeet Narain v. Gouree Pershad, 7 W. R. 269.

When persons have agreed to submit the matter in difference between them to the arbitration of one or more specified persons, no party to the agreement can revoke the submission to arbitration, unless for good cause, and a mere arbitrary revocation of the authority is not permitted.—Pestonjee v. Manockjee & Co., 10 W. R. 51 (P. C.); 12 M. I. A. 112 (confirming the judgment reported in 3 M. H. C. R. 183). Followed in Nainsukh Rai v. Umarai, 7 A. 273, and also in Sultan Muhammad v. Sheo Prasad, 20 A. 145. See also Ram Coomar v. Kala Chand, 21 W. R. 395; Ablakhes Koor v. Oodun Singh, 15 W. R. 339 and Dansidhar v. Sital Prasad, 29 A. 13, where it has been held that if it be proved that the arbitrator is in fraudulent collusion with one of the opposite side, that may be a good ground for revocation. A reference to arbitration made under an order of Court cannot be revoked at the instance of a party.—Nilmones v. Mohima Chunder, 17 W. R. 516.

An agreement to refer an existing dispute to arbitra enforcement as any other lawful contract; and a submission once made is not, without just and sufficient cause. Perumalla, 27 M. 112. See also Nagasawmy Naik v. (3 M H C R 82 overruled; 3 M. H. C. R. 183 and 184). Sheo Narain v. Bala Rao, 137 I. C. 198; 30 A. L. J. 331; A. I. R. 1932 All. 348 (which also held that the fact that one of the arbitrators figured as a witness for the prosecution in a security proceeding against a party is no ground for its revocation).

An agreement by parties to a suit to have a case decided in accordance with the statement made on oath by a third party, is in the nature of a reference to arbitration under the C. P. Code, and the revocation of such a reference is not prohibited by the law.—Lekhraj Singh v. Dullima Kuar, 4 A. 302.

If, after a reference to arbitration, it transpires that the arbitrator has been acting as a muktear of one of the parties, the other party is entitled to withdraw from the arbitration and the reference can be revoked as to the parties.—Mo

A submission to arbitration can only be revoked on good grounds. Long and unreasonable delay in the conduct of the proceedings is a good ground for revocation of the agreement for submission. When an agreement to refer has been duly revoked the Court is incompetent to order it to be filed under S. 523, C. P. Code, 1882.—Coley v. DaCosta, 17 C. 200.

In the course of arbitration proceedings in Calcutta, the parties telegraphed to the arbitrators to stay further proceedings. Held, that the telegrams sent to arbitrators did not amount to a revocation of their authority.—Kellie v. Fraser, 2 C. 445.

4. (1) Where the reference is to two or more arbitrators, provision shall be made in the order for a difference of opinion among the arbitrators—

Where reference is to two or more, order to provide for difference of opinion.

- (a) by the appointment of an umpire; or
- (b) by declaring that, if the majority of the arbitrators agree, the decision of the majority shall prevail; or

- (c) by empowering the arbitrators to appoint an umpire; or
(d) otherwise as may be agreed between the parties or, if they cannot agree, as the Court may determine.

(2) Where an umpire is appointed, the Court shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of his award in case he is required to act. [S 509.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This para. corresponds to S. 509, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations in the language of clauses (b) and (d). The changes are of a verbal character; no change seems to have been made in the meaning.

Provision as to difference of opinion among Arbitrators—Where a case has been referred to arbitration, but no provision has been made in the order of reference for any difference of opinion among them. Held, that the Court should have ordered that the arbitrators should appoint an umpire; or should have declared that the decision of the majority should prevail; or should have appointed an umpire; or should have made such arrangements as the parties would have consented to; or if they could not agree such arrangement should be made as it thought fit. Where this was not done, case with instructions to submit the case

v. Krishna Banary, 8 C. L. J. 475) where an order of reference to arbitration does not provide for difference of opinion among the arbitrators, and for authorizing a majority to decide the case, the award will, on objection being taken, be set aside—Futteh Singh v. Gango, 4 W. R. 4 (distinguished in 8 C. L. J. 475)

Where the parties agreed to refer a suit to arbitration, but no provision was made that the decision by the majority of arbitrators should be binding, and two out of five arbitrators withdrew, held, that the decision by the remaining three who constituted the majority was invalid—Gurupathappa v. Narasingappa, 7 M. 174

In an agreement to refer certain matters to arbitration, no provision was made for difference of opinion between the arbitrators by appointing an umpire or otherwise. The arbitrators being unable to agree, the Court, on the application of one of them, appointed an umpire, and directed that the award should be submitted on a particular date. An award was made by the umpire, and one arbitrator and a decree followed. Held, that the award was not legal, inasmuch as the agreement to refer gave the Court no power to appoint an umpire and required that the award should be made by the arbitrators named by the parties—Muhammad Abid v. Muhammad Ashgar, 8 A. 64

An arbitrator cannot be an arbitrator as well as an umpire.—Kafurchand v. Jeuraf, 36 C. W. N. 332.

Effect of award made contrary to Order of Reference.—When a case has been referred to arbitration, the presence of all the arbitrators at all meetings, and, above all, at the last meeting, when the final act of arbitration is done, is essential to the validity of the award—Nand Ram v. Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523. See, however, Nadhar Chand v. Gobinda Chander, 2 C. L. J. 61

A case was referred to the arbitration of five persons, with a provision that if any two of the arbitrators being ab the other three. Two of the arbitrators ver consent of the parties, ceased to act as a other arbitrators. Held, that the award mad award—Debendra v. Aubhoy, 9 C. 905: 12 C. L. R. 525.

Umpire appointed contrary to the terms of the agreement—Decision by majority of arbitrators. Held, that, as it was stipulated as an essential part of the submission that an umpire should be chosen from seven persons named, the power of the Court to appoint an umpire under this section was controlled and limited by that stipulation; and that the umpire not being one of the seven persons named in the submission, there was no valid award.—Barrocho v. A. D. Souza, 7 M. H. C. R. 72.

Delegation of duty by Arbitrator.—An arbitrator cannot delegate his duties to a third person.—Jamna v. Nosib, 24 A. 312. But he may delegate, to a third person, the performance of acts of a ministerial character.—Buta v. Municipal Committee of Lahore, 29 C. 854 (P. C.); 29 I. A. 168; 7 C. W. N. 82; 4 Bom. L. R. 673; 87 P. R. 1902.

Arbitrators cannot delegate their power of appointment of an umpire.—Where by a contract the matters in dispute between the parties were referred to the arbitration of two persons, with a provision that, if they disagree, they should appoint an umpire, held, that the arbitrators could not delegate the power of appointment of umpire conferred on them by the contract to a third person.—Smith v. Ludha Ghella, 17 B 129.

Extension of period for submission by umpire.—As in the case of an arbitrator, so in the case of an umpire, a Court has power to extend the period within which the award is to be submitted. The Court can extend the time allowed to an umpire under this section.—Kupu Rau v. Venkataramayyar, 4 M. 311.

to appoint arbitrator in certain cases.

5. (1) In any of the following cases, namely:—

(a) where the parties cannot agree within a reasonable time with respect to the appointment of an arbitrator, or the person appointed refuses to accept the office of arbitrator, or
[S. 507 (2) and S. 510.]

(b) where an arbitrator or umpire—

(i) dies, or

(ii) refuses or neglects to act or becomes incapable of acting, or [S. 510.]

(iii) leaves British India in circumstances showing that he will probably not return at an early date, or

(c) where the arbitrators are empowered by the order of reference to appoint an umpire and fail to do so, any party may serve the other party or the arbitrators, as the case may be, with a written notice to appoint an arbitrator or umpire [S. 511.]

(2) If, within seven clear days after such notice has been served or such further time as the Court may in each case allow, no arbitrator or no umpire is appointed as the case may be, the Court may, on application by the party who gave the notice, and after giving the other party an opportunity of being heard, appoint an arbitrator or umpire or make an order superseding the arbitration, and in such case shall proceed with the suit. [S. 510.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This para. embodies in a concise and amended form the provisions contained in Ss. 507 (2), 510 and 511 of the C. P. Code of 1882. The provisions of the old sections have been recast and summarized in this rule by change of language and phraseology, as will appear on a comparison of the provisions of the old sections with this para.

Death of Court under this paragraph.—The Court must on the happening of any event, which would prevent the arbitrator or supersede the arbitration, refer the matter to the arbitrator, or, if the arbitrator is not appointed, one of the three arbitrators, or, if none of the three arbitrators nor made an arbitrator by the other two was appointed, the Court must appoint one. Bapiraju, 12 M. 113;

Thakardas v. Narain, 2 L. L. J. 637; 56 I. C. 644.

Death, negligence, refusal or incapacity of arbitrators to act.—Where a case was referred to the arbitration of three persons, and the parties agreed to be bound by the award of the majority, and one of the arbitrators died, or became incapable of acting, or refused to act, the award of the other two is valid. Bapiraju, 12 M. 113.

Bapiraju, 12 M. 113.

When a person goes away from the country and remains away, and there is no evidence to show an intention to return, that person becomes incapable of acting as umpire; Gadadhar v. Ganga Prasad, 4 B. L. R. O. C. 89.

The Court has no power to revoke the authority conferred on an arbitrator and to appoint a new one, except in cases falling strictly within the purview of this paragraph. Where "the scope and the object of the reference cannot be executed" It is only in those cases, apparently, that the authority conferred on arbitrators can be revoked "for good cause," the cause being such as is contemplated in that section, as where "an arbitrator refuses, or neglects, or becomes incapable to act, or leaves British India under circumstances showing that he will probably not return to India at an early date."—Halimkhat v. Shankar Sai, 10 B. 381.

Matters in dispute were referred to the arbitration of five persons of whom four made their award. Subsequently the same arbitrators granted an application for re-hearing. Before the matter was re-heard one of the four died, and an order striking off the application was made by two of the surviving arbitrators. Held, that the award was not valid and final.—Boon Jad Mathoor v. Nathoo Shahoo, 3 C. 375; 1 C. L. R. 455.

Appointment of new arbitrator or umpire.—It was held under the corresponding S. 507 of the old Code, that the Court had no power, on the happening of either of the events referred to in Cl. (a) of this paragraph, to appoint a new arbitrator without the consent of all the parties to the reference.—Pugardin v. Moudinsa, 6 M. 414; Bapin v. Annoda, 18 C. 324. But under this paragraph, the Court has power to appoint a new arbitrator without the consent of all the parties even in the cases mentioned in Cl. (a). In cases covered by Cl. (b), it is open to the Court to appoint only one new arbitrator in place of several old arbitrators.—Rampersad v. Juggernath, 6 C. L. R. 1. But the Court has no power to appoint an arbitrator or umpire under sub-para. (2) unless notice as required in sub-para. (1) is given and the party served with the notice has been given an opportunity of being heard.—Abdul Ghani v. Din Daul, 41 A. 578; 50 I. C. 655; 17 A. L. J. 643; Thakar Das v. Ram Das, 7 L. L. J. 163; 88 I. C. 975; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 574; Ram Lagan v. Phatanean, 111 I. C. 559; A. I. R. 1928 All. 674; 27 A. L. J. 31; Peran Lal v. Rup Chand, 29 A. L. J. 612; A. I. R. 1931 All. 761. An irregularity of procedure in the appointment of a new arbitrator is cured by consent of parties.—Mahmud Sheikh v. Messrs Kankinarah Co., 28 C. W. N. 634; A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 665. Halimkhat v. Shankar Sai, 10 B. 381. The Court is legally appointed and objects stopped from questioning the appointment. 17 I. C. 344; A. I. R. 1929 All.

the failure of one of the parties to appoint a new arbitrator after formal notice to do so.—Vishwas v. Bhalshandra, 33 Bom. L. R. 1022; 134 I. C. 733; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 529.

Where the arbitrator refused to act and the Court acting suo motu superseded the reference to arbitration, held, that order superseding the arbitration was contrary to law and should be set aside.—Budh Sen v. Nanak Chand, 129 I. C. 162 : 7 O. W. N. 1043.

Appointment of Umpire.—The appointment of an umpire under S. 511, C. P. Code, 1882, is required where there are two or more arbitrators to provide for any difference of opinion amongst them; but not where, with the consent of the Court, only one arbitrator has been appointed.—Mahabeer v. Juggur Nath, 25 W. R. 11.

Provision should be made in the order of reference for the appointment of an umpire in case of difference of opinion among the arbitrators.—Haradhan v. Radha Nath, 2 B. L. R. S. N. 14—15 : 10 W. R. 398.

Award by umpire and one arbitrator without provision for the appointment of an umpire—agreement to refer not providing for disagreement of arbitrators—Appointment of umpire by the Court Held, that there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated, inasmuch as the agreement to refer gave the Court no power to appoint an umpire, and required that the award should be made by the arbitrators named by the parties.—Muhammed Abid v. Muhammad Asghar, 8 A. 64.

Where the terms of a submission to arbitration were that an umpire should be selected by seven persons named, and the umpire first selected declined to act, and the Court of its own motion appointed an umpire who was not one of the seven persons named in the submission. Held, that, as it was stipulated as an essential part of the submission that an umpire should be chosen from seven persons named, the power of the Court to appoint an umpire was controlled and limited by that stipulation; and that the umpire not being one of the seven persons named, there was no valid award.—Barracho v. A. D. Souza, 7 M. II. C. R. 72.

Where arbitrator refuses to act.—It is an essential principle of the law of arbitration that the adjudication of disputes by arbitration should be the result of the free consent of the arbitrators to act; and the finality of the award is based entirely upon the principle that the arbitrators are Judges chosen by the parties themselves, and that such Judges are willing to settle the disputes referred to them. Thus, where an arbitrator refused to act, and the Court, instead of accepting his refusal, directed him to proceed and make an award, it was held that the award was invalid.—Shib Charan v. Rotiram, 7 A. 20; Lal Khan v. Kashmiri Lal, 124 I. C. 676 : 31 P. L. R. 386 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 125 (relying on 7 A. 20). But where the Court requested the arbitrators to proceed in the following terms: "The arbitrators are requested to finish the work. The protest does not matter. It is unjustified. The Court has confidence in the arbitrators. They should not retire, for that would mean that plaintiff succeeds in his tactics": Held, that the Judge's order was not one which forced or compelled the arbitrators to resume the arbitration against their own wish, but was in the nature of a request made to the arbitrators to reconsider their decisions and was consequently valid in law.—Kesharlal v. Bai Laxmi, 52 B. 568 : 112 I. C. 284 : 30 Bom. L. R. 950 : A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 50. Where one of the arbitrators, before duly signing the award, tendered his resignation in a letter to the Judge, but was induced to withdraw it, and afterwards signed the award, held, that the award was valid.—Joy Mungul v. Mohun Ram, 23 W. R. 429 (P. C.) (affirming 15 W. R. 38).

Order superseding arbitration.—If a Court refers a dispute to arbitration, it cannot proceed with the suit until it supersedes the arbitration. If it does proceed without supersession, it acts without jurisdiction.—Ganesh Prasad v. Damodar Das, 10 A. L. J. 23 : Jamna v. Nasib, 24 A. 312.

Form.—For Form of appointment of new arbitrator, see Appendix to this Schedule, Form No. 3.

Powers of arbitrator or umpire appointed under paragraph 4 or 5. 6. Every arbitrator or umpire appointed under paragraph 4 or paragraph 5 shall have the like powers as if his name had been inserted in the order of reference. [S. 512.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This para. corresponds to S. 512, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

7. (1) The Court shall issue the same processes to the parties and witnesses whom the arbitrator or umpire desires to examine, as the Court may issue in suits tried before it.

Summoning witnesses and default.

(2) Persons not attending in accordance with such process, or making any other default, or refusing to give their evidence, or guilty of any contempt to the arbitrator or umpire during the investigation of the matters referred, shall be subject to the like disadvantages, penalties and punishments, by order of the Court on the representation of the arbitrator or umpire, as they would incur for the like offences in suits tried before the Court. [S. 513.]

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This para. exactly corresponds to S. 513, C. P. Code, 1882.

"Refusing to give their evidence"—The words refusing to give their evidence in Sch II, para. 7 (2) are intended to refer to the case of a person who refuses to give evidence when placed on oath and required to answer questions put to him. A person therefore who elects not to produce any evidence cannot be said to refuse to give evidence within the meaning of the enactment.—Janan v. Narain Das, 8 A. L. J. 929: 11 I. C. 259.

Arbitrators ought only to take such evidence as is required by the terms of the agreement referring the question in dispute to arbitration -- Krishna Kanta v. Bidya Sundari, 2 B. L. R. App. 25

8. Where the arbitrators or the umpire cannot complete the award within the period specified in the order, the Court may, if it thinks fit, either allow further time, and from time to time, either before or after the expiration of the period fixed for the making of the award, enlarge such period; or may make an order superseding the arbitration and in such case shall proceed with the suit. [S. 514.]

Extension of time for making award.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This para. corresponds to S. 514, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions

The words "where the arbitrators or the umpire cannot complete the award" have been substituted for the words "if from the want of the necessary evidence or information, or from any other cause the arbitrators," which occurred in the old section. By the above change, the scope of the present rule has been enlarged, as it includes any cause for non completion of the award within the time fixed, but under the old section certain causes were specifically mentioned.

The words "either before or after the expiration of the period fixed," have been added after the words "from time to time." The other changes are merely verbal.

Extension of time for making an award.—The application to extend the time must be for the award 300 (P.C.); view of the effect that no award even after has been made a 51 M. 103 (F B. 69. Section 148

But the Lahore High Court has held that the award is not final till it is announced and on application of the arbitrator extended the period to another date and the award was filed on that date but it bore a date a day previous to the date originally fixed and it was contended that the extension of time was illegal and so the award was invalid: held, that the award is not final till it has been promulgated either by its being filed in Court or by its being announced to the parties and hence the award was valid.—Harbhajan v. Mewa, 110 I. C. 748: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 753 (following 49 I. C. 522 and 89 P. R. 1907).

Application for the extension of the period for the submission of an award and order thereon should be made in writing and recorded.—Monji Premji v. Mahiyakel Kojassan, 3 M. 59. But see Sahri Chand v. Ambarim, 26 Bom. L. R. 280: 80 I. C. 260: A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 380, which has held that an application for extension of time need not necessarily be in writing.

As in the case of an arbitrator, so in the case of an umpire, a Court has power to extend the period within which the award is to be submitted. The Court can extend the time allowed to an umpire under S. 509, C. P. Code, 1882.—Kupu Rau v. Venkata Ramayyar, 4 M. 311.

A Court has power, to act under this para. at any time before the award is actually made whether the time previously limited for making the award has expired or not.—Ram Manohar v. Lal Behari, 14 A. 343 (13 A. 300 referred to).

Where the arbitrator returned the papers to Court stating his inconvenience to proceed with the matter on the due date but he never declined to arbitrate: held that the Court had jurisdiction to send the papers back to arbitrator and extend the time.—Muhammad Aijaz v. Basant Bai, 54 A. 297: A. I. R. 1932 All. 665.

An order extending time for the presentation of an award upon application presented within time is not bad in law by reason of its having been made after the expiry of the term which it purports to extend.—Suppu v. Govinda Charyar, 11 M. 85.

Award made out of time—An award made after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court may be set aside under r. 15, Cl. (c). See notes under r. 15, post.

Where a Judge dismissed a suit for failure to attend on the date fixed for filing of the award even though the dismissal is improper and would be set aside by the arbitrator, the parties need not be perjured.—Bhagat, 3 P. L. T. 346: 65 I. C. 144.

If the arbitrators fail to submit their award within the time prescribed, Sch. II of para. 8 of C. P. Code applies and it is within the discretion of the Court after hearing both the parties to the suit to make an order under that article superseding the arbitration and proceeding with the suit.—Hrishikesh Das v. Lal Mohan, 57 I. C. 890.

The time fixed by the Court for the delivery of an award was the 16th April, 1900. The award was actually completed and signed and made over to a peon of the Court on the same day, but, as it was received by the peon after Court hours, it did not in fact reach the hands of the Court, until the next day. Held, that the award was within time.—Sita Ram v. Bhawan Din, 26 A. 105 (8 A. 543 and 548, 13 A. 300, 13 B. 119, and 22 M. 22 referred to).

An award made, that is completed and signed but not submitted to the Court within the time limited for delivering the same in Court is valid in law.—Isadullah v. Muhammad Nur, 27 A. 459 (22 M. 22, 13 B. 119, 13 A. 300 followed; 8 A. 543 dissented from). See also Debendra Nath v. Sarbamingola, 8 C. W. N. 916. Where by an order of reference an arbitrator is given power to extend the time for making the award, he can only extend the time before the time originally fixed for making the award has expired.—Co-operative Hindusthan Bank Ltd. v. Bholu Nath, 19 C. W. N. 165.

Estoppel by conduct.—The parties to a reference may be estopped by their conduct from impeaching the validity of an award on the ground that it was made after time.—Patto Kumari v. Upendranath, 4 P. L. J. 265, 270; Kishen Lal v. Jai Lal, 52 I. C. 352.

Order superseding the arbitration—Before the Court can proceed to hear the suit it is necessary that it should itself make, either under this para. or para. 5, an order superseding the reference to arbitration.—Jamna Kunwar v. Nasib Ali, 24 A. 312.

There is no rule of law except S. 151 of the Code which can authorise a Court to revise its own order superseding a reference to arbitration—Salle Singh v. Mullo Singh, 138 I. C. 524; A. I. R. 1932 All. 656.

Appeal.—Under S. 104 (1) (a) an appeal lies from an order superseding arbitration where the award has not been completed within the period fixed by the Court. See notes under that section of the Code.

Where umpire may arbitrate in lieu of arbitrators 9. Where an umpire has been appointed, he may enter on the reference in the place of the arbitrators—

(a) if they have allowed the appointed time to expire without making an award, or

(b) if they have delivered to the Court or to the umpire a notice in writing stating that they cannot agree. [S. 515.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This para. corresponds to S 515, C. P. Code, 1882. The word "where" has been substituted for the word "when" in the beginning. No other change has been made.

Decision by umpire.—Where the parties prayed to the Court to appoint two arbitrators and an umpire, and to refer the case to them for decision, and undertook to abide by such decision as might be passed by them unanimously or by the majority of them. Held, that an award by the umpire alone, the arbitrators being unable to decide, was valid—Kupin Rau v. Venkataramanyar, 4 M 311.

In a reference to arbitration one of the arbitrators absented himself. After expiry of the time for the award the umpire approached the Court for direction. The Court directed him to proceed under Cl (a) Held, that it was a fair inference that the arbitrators had allowed the time to expire without making an award and that under the circumstances the umpire by himself was entitled to make an award—Ram Lagan v. Phatangan, 111 I. C. 559; A I R 1928 All 674; 27 A L J 31. Where an umpire is appointed, r 9 gives him power to enter on the reference without the arbitrators.—Ibid

10. Where an award in a suit has been made, the persons who made it shall sign it and cause it to be filed in Court, together with any depositions and documents which have been taken and proved before them; and notice of the filing shall be given to the parties. [S. 516.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This para. corresponds to S. 516, C P Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "where" for "when"

Section 516—Para. 10 applies only to awards which are made when the suit is pending before the Court. An award made on a reference need not be in writing or signed by the Court. P. L. J 733.

Persons making the award shall sign it—It is necessary, that all the arbitrators agree to the terms of the award, but there is no provision of law requiring them to sign it in the presence of each other—Muthukutti v. Acha Nayagan, 18 M 22. See also Bhabasundari v. Makhuntal, 8 B L R 178. But see per Norman, J, in Jai Mangal v. Mohan Ram, 8 B L R 130-note and 319-note; 12 W R. 397.

An award must be signed by all the arbitrators before it is filed, Ayyasami v. Appandai, 38 M L. J. 145; 54 I. C. 912; but not necessarily at the same time and place—Abdul Rahman v. Shahabuddin, 1 L. 481; 55 I. C. 893. An award which was signed by an arbitrator after it was filed in Court is invalid.—Ramesh Chandra v. Karunamoyi, 33 C. 498; Kanaklu v. Nagalinga, 32 M. 510.

Under para. 10 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code, it is incumbent upon all the arbitrators to sign the award before it is filed in Court and a Court has no power to allow any of them to sign it after it is duly submitted. A decree passed in accordance with an award which was signed by some of the arbitrators after its submission to Court is illegal and invalid—Khudiram v. Chand Charan, 1 P. L. J. 306; 2 P. L. W. 377.

For the meaning of the word "made" see Unersay Premji v. Shamji Kaji, 13 B. 119, in which it has been held that the word "made" in Ss. 514 and 521, C. P. Code, 1882, does not include the filing of the award.

Even if the writing out of the award be a ministerial act, it does not become an award until it is signed by the arbitrators—Rindas v. Jodigi, 107 I. C. 532; A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 231.

Where the agreement was that the decision of the majority of the arbitrators shall prevail, the signatures of the three out of five arbitrators who decided one way rendered the award valid—Bhoj Nath v. Sriva Nandan, 7 O. W. N. 541; 127 I. C. 254; A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 389.

Draft of award was signed by all the five arbitrators, but the fair copy was signed by only four of the arbitrators. Held, that the award was complete at the date of rough draft, and that its validity was not affected by the subsequent occurrences.—Kula Nugobushanam v. Kula Seshachalam, 1 M. H. C. R. 178.

Cause it to be filed.—A Court is not competent to act on an award unless it is not only signed by all the arbitrators but is also properly placed before the Court by the arbitrators and by no other persons. Where award was sent to Court by post and none of the arbitrators took responsibility for saying as to who caused the award to be sent to Court, the award was not properly placed before the Court, and, as such, could not be acted upon by the Court (A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 231, rel.; 1 P. L. J. 90; 6 B. 663, expl.; 6 W. R. 93, rel.)—Ram Narain v. Lalji, 118 I. C. 606; A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 178.

Arbitrator's presence at meetings essential to the validity of the award.—The presence of all the arbitrators at all meetings, and, above all, at the last meeting when the final act of arbitration is done, is essential to the validity of the award.—Nand Ram v. Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523. The absence of one of the arbitrators from a part of the hearing vitiates the judicial character of the proceeding.—Benode v. Pran Chandra, 14 C. L. J. 143; 11 I. C. 898. Dwitiar Chand v. Dharanidhar, A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 831.

"Together with any depositions and documents."—Although the arbitrator may deliver his award to one of the parties, he ought not to hand over with it the proceedings, depositions and exhibits—Jagat Sunder v. Sonatan Bysak, 5 B. L. R. 357.

When a Court has referred a suit to arbitration, it has jurisdiction over the arbitrators to compel them to give up documents filed before them as exhibits during the course of the arbitration and to return the original records of the suit which may have been handed to them. Such jurisdiction can be exercised by an application made in the suit on notice to the arbitrators—Nursing Chunder v. Nuffer Chunder, 17 C. 832. The omission of the arbitrators to file with their award the depositions and documents may lead to the inference that they are guilty of legal misconduct.—Yusuf v. Riyasat, 1 Luck. 139; 93 I. C. 446; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 307.

Para. 10 undoubtedly contemplates the possibility of the depositions of witnesses being reduced to writing by the arbitrators but does not oblige them to keep such a record—Samprit v. Kisan, 119 I. C. 694; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 264. It is not essential that in every case the ordinary rules of judicial procedure should be followed by an arbitrator inquiring into a matter—Gudipoodi v. Kotipalli, 105 I. C. 105; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 48.

Notice of filing to be given to parties.—When a Court passed a decree in the terms of an award without giving notice of the filing of the award under this rule, it was held that the Court had acted with material irregularity and the judgment was liable to be set aside in revision.—Ranjit v. Bissay Ram, 94 I. C. 115; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1018; Ringasami v. Muttusami, 11 M. 144 (followed in Chatarbuj v. Ganash, 20 A. 474). See also Ram Kumar v. Khushal Chand, 107 I. C. 665; A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 166. Where the Judge refuses to grant the prayer asking for an opportunity to give evidence in support of objections to the award and passes a decree the decree is invalidated.—Ibid. The fact that the parties might have received knowledge of the award having been filed in Court aliunde does not amount to such a notice.—Punoo Ram v. Nebu Raj, 119 I. C. 331; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 228. The mere signature by a party to an award does not necessarily in all cases estop him from afterwards disputing its correctness; nor does the mere signature necessarily remove all objection. Rahman, 7 R. 136; 117 I. C. 574; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 136. If the order of the Court were shown the order of the Court re- order-sheet as an acknowledgment, it Bata Krishna, 7 P. L. T. 739; Siroj 458; 103 I. C. 625.

When the arbitrator himself brings in the award, the Court is bound to give notice to the parties that the award has been filed, and the Court cannot pass a decree unless such notice has been given. If the parties or their pleaders bring in the award and ask that it should be filed, and the Court informs them that they should file objections within the time then no notice is necessary.—Valchand v. Gulba, 28 Bom. L. R. 511; 95 I. C. 547; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 312.

It is the duty of the arbitrator to bring in the award in the proper form, and to the proper cation" within the time which is prescribed by the Arbitration Act, 1908, s. 333; 9 C. L. R. 209.

Form.—For Form of award see Form No. 5 in the Appendix to this schedule.

11. Upon any reference by an order of the Court, the arbitrator or umpire may, with the leave of the Court, state the award as to the whole or any part thereof in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court, and the Court shall deliver its opinion thereon, and shall order such opinion to be added to and to form part of the award. [S. 517.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This para. corresponds to S. 517 of the C. P. Code, with some alterations. The words "with the leave" have been substituted for the words "with the consent"; and the words "shall order such opinion to be added to" have been substituted for the words "such opinion shall be added to," which occurred in the old section.

Special case.—The scope of the special case contemplated by this para. is limited to questions of law.—Laxman v. Ram Chandra, 48 B. 663; 26 Bom. L. R. 836; 84 I. C. 378; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 22.

It may be used on or strengthened by to state a special case.— (P. C.): 33 Bom. L. R. 1066; 134 I. C. 1060; A. I. R. 1931 P. C. 289; 61 M. L. J. 623.

Appeal.—Under S. 104 (1) (b) an appeal lies from an order on an award stated in the form of a special case. See notes under that section of the Code.

Form.—For Form of special cases, see Form No. 4, given in the Appendix to this schedule.

Power to modify or correct award. 12. The Court may, by order, modify or correct an award—

(a) where it appears that a part of the award is upon a matter not referred to arbitration and such part can be separated from the other part and does not affect the decision on the matter referred; or

(b) where the award is imperfect in form, or contains any obvious error which can be amended without affecting such decision; or

(c) where the award contains a clerical mistake or an error arising from an accidental slip or omission. [S. 518.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to S. 518 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and additions. The word "and" has been substituted for the word "provided," which occurred in Cl. (a) of the old section; and Cl. (c) has been newly added.

"The Court may, by order, modify or correct an award."—The Court has no power to modify or correct an award except in the three cases mentioned in this rule. Where a Court modifies an award because it takes a view different from that held by the arbitrator it acts without jurisdiction.—Parma Dutt v. Dhillu (1916) Punj. Rec. No. 78, p. 243; 35 I. C. 847; Gopal Dinkar v. Ganesh Narayan, 45 B. 512; 59 I. C. 783; Aftab Begam v. Haji Abdul, 22 A. L. J. 816; 81 I. C. 525; A. I. R. 1924 All. 800; Anant Ram v. Gurditta, 7 L. 327; 98 I. C. 336; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 519.

When, under para. 12 of the second schedule, the Court proceeds to correct an award in a case where a severable matter not referred has been dealt with, it does so by cancelling that part of the award and the part so cancelled is set aside for all purposes. Neither para. 12 nor para. 14 is directed to such a confusion of jurisdiction as the present case discloses.—Rimpratap Chamlra v. Durgabasad Chamlra, 28 C. W. N. 424.

An award in a suit for cancellation of a deed of gift and for recovery of Rs. 680 to the defendant for which the deed of gift was cancelled, and a possessory mortgage in favour of the defendant, was not set aside under para. 12 or 14 and it could not be set aside on any of the grounds mentioned in para. 15.—Ganesh v. Bhikham, 3 Luck. 1 (F. B.); 107 I. C. 545; A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 1.

"When a part of the award is upon a matter not referred to arbitration"—The addition, in a judgment according to an award, of a trifling direction upon a matter not referred to the arbitrators, which was quite separable from the other parts of the award, and did not affect the decision of the matter referred, was held not to affect the finality of the judgment.—Huro Soonduree v. Sresdur, 17 W. R. 352.

The arbitrators to whom the matters in difference in two suits were referred for arbitration, made an award for payment of certain sums of money to plaintiff by certain instalments. The plaintiff preferred objections to the award in so far as it directed payment by instalments and the first Court modified it to that extent. The appellate Court which allowing the power of the arbitrators to direct payment by instalments reduced the number of instalments. Held, that the reference gave the arbitrators full powers to direct payment by instalments and that the lower appellate Court was wrong in reducing the number of the instalments.—Jawahar Singh v. Mul Raj 8 A. 449. Even if the order fixing the instalments is erroneous, harsh or oppressive, the error is one of substance in the adjudication of the dispute, and not of form which could be amended without affecting the decision.—Kaikabad v. Khambatta, 11 L. 342; 124 I. C. 339; 31 P. L. R. 668; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 26.

The decision of arbitrators in a matter not in difference between the parties, not referred to them, is null and void for want of jurisdiction.—Mohabbat Singh v. Konomuttu 15 W. R. 172. See also Mumtaz Ali v. Salawat Ali, 28 I. A. 190; 23 A. 394 (P. C.); Bula v. Municipal Committee of Lahore, 29 I. A. 168; 29 C. 854 (P. C.); 87 P. C. 7 C. W. N. 82; 4 Bom. L. R. 673. If the arbitrators went beyond the scope of their authority and determined a matter not referred to arbitration, it is the duty of the Court to take action under para. 12 or 14 (a) of Sch. II.—Hanu Ram v. Dhanna, 110 I. C. 401; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 915.

"And such part can be separated from the others."—See notes under para. 14.

Where the award is imperfect in form—Para. 12 applies only if the "imperfect in form" exists in the award at the time when it is filed in Court by the arbitrator.

Paras. 12-14.

and not if it comes into existence at a subsequent stage on the happening of an unanticipated event.—Karkabad v. Khambatta, 124 I. C. 339; 31 P. L. R. 668; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 26; 11 L. 342.

"Where the award contains a clerical mistake," etc.—Under para. 12 (b) and (c) of Sch. II to the C. P. Code, the only power the Court has is either to amend without affecting the decision or to rectify a clerical mistake or an error arising from an accidental slip or omission. It has no power to correct an error of calculation or arithmetic and award a sum different from that awarded by the arbitrator.—Gopal Dinkar v. Ginesh Narayan, 45 B. 512; 22 Bom. L. R. 1416; 59 I. C. 785; Shiam Lal v. Parshotam Das, 41 A. 277; 58 I. C. 585.

An award was made upon the basis of figures contained in certain documents assessed according to the award without subsequently found that there was a mistake and the party who was affected by the mistake applied for correction of the error. Held, that the application was not to correct an error patent and apparent on the face of the record but to go much deeper into the matter and to reopen the accounts and the figures at which the arbitrators had arrived and the remedy lay either by review or by appeal, Maham Lakshmi v. Maham Batchayya, 53 M. L. J. 38; A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 720; 103 I. C. 829. See also Ramanathan v. Muthiah Chetty, 43 M. 429.

"Or contains any obvious error"—In a suit for dissolution of partnership and for accounts plaintiff claimed interest which the defendant denied. The matter in dispute was referred to arbitration, one of the points referred being whether the defendant was liable for any money and, if so, the amount due. Held, that it was not an error on the part of the arbitrator to include in his award the sum payable by the defendant as interest both on sums advanced to the firm and on those advanced to defendant for the personal use and also for the period before and after the suit and up to the date of the award—Jaharmal v. Birinchi, 56 I. C. 941.

Appeal—Under S. 104 (1) (c), an appeal lies from an order modifying or correcting an award. See notes under that section of the Code.

13. The Court may also make such orders as it thinks fit respecting the costs of the arbitration where any question arises respecting such costs and the award contains no sufficient provision concerning them. [S. 519.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—This para corresponds to S. 519, C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification that the word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" after the word "arbitration."

Power of arbitrators to deal with costs—The parties to a suit being referred to arbitration are referred to the arbitrator with the question of costs and directed the award to stand good, except so far as it awarded costs—Dagdusa Tslakchand v. Bhukan Govind, 9 B. 82; Amolak v. Charan Das, 52 P. R. 1913; 16 P. W. R. 1913, 17 I. C. 684.

In the absence of any provision in the award in the matter of costs it is open to the Court seized of the proceedings to make an order as to costs under para. 13.—Ramcharan v. Jasoda, 5 Luck. 678; 126 I. C. 508; 7 O. W. N. 97; A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 89.

Where an award or matter referred to arbitration may be remitted 14 The Court may remit the award or any matter referred to arbitration to the reconsideration of the same arbitrator or umpire, upon such terms as it thinks fit—

(a) where the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred to arbitration, or where it determines any matter not referred to arbitration, unless such matter can be separated without affecting the determination of the matters referred;

(b) where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution;

(c) where an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of it. [S. 520.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations

The words "unless of the matters" have been made adopting the law as laid down in the Privy Council case of Buta v. Municipal Committee of Lahore, 29 C. 854 (P. C.); 7 C. W. N. 82; 4 Bom. L. R. 673 noted below.

Award going beyond matters in dispute in suit and adjudging rights of a stranger to suit, if valid—Where the arbitrators made an award which dealt with matters not included within the scope of the suit and was in excess of their authority in respect of matters included within its scope, held, that the award was invalid and could not be enforced either under the C. P. Code, Sch. II, or the Indian Arbitration Act, and at any rate, it was not a case in which the Court should exercise its discretionary powers under para. 12 or para. 14 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code.—Ram Pratap Chamria v. Durga Prasad Chamria, 28 C. W. N. 424.

Clause (a)—"Where the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred to or determined any matter not referred to arbitration."—The ground for holding an award to be invalid on account of its not disposing of all the matters referred, appears to be that there is an implied condition in the submission of the parties to the arbitration that the award shall dispose of all. This condition may be waived by the consent of the parties before the arbitrators.—Makund Ram v. Salig Ram, 21 I. A. 47; 21 C. 590 (P. C.); Bhagwan Das v. Shiv Dial, (1913) P. R. 332; 22 I. C. 811; Jnanendra Sureschandra, 6 P. 556; 109 I. C. 821; A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 7. Where there was no distinct and separate finding on each of the issues, but there was a decision on the whole matter and any of the matters referred to for consideration—re-consideration is not necessary, when the whole matter in issue between the parties is decided by the arbitrators.—Ghulam Jilani v. Muhammad Hussain, 29 I. A. 51; 29 C. 167 (P. C.); 6 C. W. N. 226; 4 Bom. L. R. 161; 12 M. L. J. 77; 25 P. R. 1902.

In a suit for partition and for settlement of accounts, the arbitrator to whom the case was referred for determination made an award only with reference to partition, but omitted to settle accounts, Held, that the Court had acted erroneously in confirming the award before the accounts had been settled, inasmuch as the award had left undetermined a very important matter, viz., the settlement of accounts; and that the Court should, under this rule, have remitted the award for the reconsideration of the arbitrator.—Sadik Ali v. Imdad Ali, 3 A. 286. Where several issues in a suit are referred to arbitration, but the arbitrator makes his award deciding only some of the issues, the award must be remitted for the determination of the other matters raised in the case.—Jonardon v. Sambhu Nath, 16 C. 806.

In cases where a reference to arbitration is made by the order of the Court, the Court may remit the award for the determination of the matter left undetermined under para. 14 of Sch. II; but in the case of an arbitration without the intervention of the Court, para. 21 of the schedule confers no such power on the Court.—Kunj Lal v. Banwari Lal, 4 P. L. J. 394; 48 I. C. 711.

Where the arbitrator determines matters not referred to arbitration it is open to the Court to remit the award to the arbitrator once again.—Abdullah v. Ali Mardhna, 12 L. L. J. 314; 131 I. C. 303; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 215.

Para. 14.

Where reference to arbitration proves abortive.—When the arbitration agreed to by the parties proves abortive, the Court has no jurisdiction to send the case to another arbitrator of its own motion without the consent of all the parties. The Court can supersede the award or remit it to the original arbitrator but it cannot make a fresh reference to arbitration.—Satish Chundra v. Patirani, (1921) Pat. 170 : 2 P. L. T. 277.

"Unless such matter can be separated"—Where one portion of the award

An award that goes beyond the terms of reference to the arbitrators is to that extent ultra vires—Raja's Mohammod Muntaz Ali v. Sakhawati Ali, 28 I. A. 190 : 23 A. 394 (P. C.): 5 C. W. N. 881.

Clause (b)—"Where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution."—Under Cl. (b) of this para. the award is to be remitted when it is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution. But the fact that a particular expression used in an award is capable of more than one interpretation does not show that it is indefinite, much less that it is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution. The expression in such a case has to be interpreted in execution proceedings consequent on the decree following the award.—Raghuraj Bihedur v. Rajeshwar, 35 I. C. 761 : 3 O. L. J. 258.

Where an award was remitted back to the arbitrator on the ground that it was

The mere fact that the amount is not actually ascertained or calculated by the arbitrator is not sufficient justification for holding the award to be uncertain, for the principle will apply that that is sufficiently certain which can be made certain.—Nathu v. Abdul Ghani, 119 I. C. 726. An award is not incapable of execution simply because the executing Court will have to make an enquiry into the various circumstances before determining what each party is entitled to get.—Ibid.

Clause (c)—"Where an objection to the legality of the award is apparent on the face of it"—An award defective and illegal on the face of it, should be at once remitted to the arbitrators.—Luchmee Narain v. Pyle, 2 N. W. P. 150, Ram Kurn v. Zahira, 101 P. R. 1868, Narain v. Kanhe, 3 P. R. 1872. But where there is no illegality apparent on the face of an award, a Court cannot remit it for re-consideration.—Nanak Chand v. Ram Narayan, 2 A. 181 (F. B.)

An error in law on the face of an award, such as will justify the Court in setting it aside, must be an error in some legal proposition, to which the arbitrators have tied themselves, the same being found in the award or a document actually incorporated therein, and forming the basis of the award.—Chamfsey Bhara & Co v. The Jivroy Balloo Spinning Co, 50 I. A. 324 : 47 B. 578 (P. C.). A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 66 : 73 I. C. 436 : 44 M. L. J. 706 : 38 C. L. J. 130. Salch Mahomed v. Nathoomji, 54 I. A. 427 : 55 C. 126 (P. C.): A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 164 : 104 I. C. 476 : 29 Bom. L. R. 1150 : 53 M. L. J. 18. Ram Devi v. Ganesh Lal, 48 A. 475 : 95 I. C. 416 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 501. See also Sreelal v. Madan, 52 C. 100 : 88 I. C. 49 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 599. A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 619. Where the arbitrator nowhere stated that he was following the Imamia Law of Succession but he was simply following his own views as to what was right and proper in the circumstances of the family, it was held there was no error of law so as to vitiate the award.—Mahommed Yousuf v. Wilayat Husain, 113 I. C. 785: A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 1: 5 O. W. N. 1001.

This section authorizes a Court to remand a case, to arbitrators for reconsideration when their award contains mistakes, omissions, or defects, and the award, on the refusal of the arbitrators to reconsider it, becomes null and void, without proof of corruption or misconduct.—Mohun Kishen v. Bhodun Shyam, 7 W. R. 406.

A case involving questions of Hindu law having been referred to arbitration, the arbitrator decided the case against the plaintiff. The plaintiff obtaining the opinions of certain pundits in his favour, applied to the Court to remit the award. The Court accordingly remitted the award with the opinions of the pundits, requesting the arbitrator to reconsider them. The arbitrator having refused to act further, the Court proceeded to determine the suit and gave the plaintiff a decree. Held, that there being no illegality apparent on the face of the award the Court was not justified in remitting the award, or setting the award aside, and proceeding to determine the suit itself.—Nanak Chand v. Ram Narayan, 2 A. 181 (F. B.) (referred to in George v. Vastian Soury, 22 M. 202).

Where six arbitrators were appointed but they did not all take part in the proceedings, it was held that the award so passed by the arbitrators was invalid on the face of it under para. 14 (c) of Sch. II of the C. P. Code.—Raj Charan v. Guptnath, 16 A. L. J. 307: 45 I. C. 31.

A reference to arbitration provided that the arbitrator should determine the case after hearing the evidence and that if one of the parties failed to appear before him, he should have power to proceed to hear the evidence ex parte. Held, that, on the plaintiff's failure to appear before the arbitrator on the day fixed for trial, the arbitrator could not make an award without taking evidence but should have proceeded to hear the evidence of the other side. Held, also that the award so made without taking any evidence could not be set aside by the Court on the plaintiff's application under Or. IX, r. 9, C. P. Code, but should be remitted under para. 14 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code to the arbitrator for reconsiderations if a proper case was made out by the plaintiff to excuse his absence before the arbitrator.—Gopal Chandra v. Khetra Mohan, 22 C. W. N. 933: 46 I. C. 195.

Where a suit was referred to arbitration for the determination of the only question whether a Hindu was born blind and therefore not entitled to inherit and the arbitrator made an award whereby the blind man was declared to be entitled to a certain portion of the property, it was held on an objection to this award that the award was not so vitiated as to require its remission under para. 14 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code.—Madefa v. ..., 22 C. W. N. 933: 45 I. C. 644.

Part of the award cannot be remitted.—There is no provision in the Civil Procedure Code by which a portion of an award may be remitted.—Tursi Ram v. Baredoo, 24 A. L. J. 705: 96 I. C. 531. A. I. R. 1926 All. 567.

Pleader.—Whether can be Arbitrator.—A gentleman of the legal profession does not become incompetent to act as an arbitrator merely because on some occasions he was engaged by one of the parties as their pleader, Rajendra Nath v. Abdul Hakim Khan, 39 I. C. 767.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order under this para. remitting an award to the reconsideration of the arbitrators. Where an award is remitted to the reconsideration of the arbitrator, and a decree is passed in accordance with the revised award, no appeal lies from the decree on the ground that the order of remittal was wrong.—Subbiah v. Sridharan, 21 M. 479. Kalid Bakhshi v. Ram Chandra, 6 L. L. J. 500: 84 I. C. 693.

15. (1) An award remitted under paragraph 14 becomes void on failure of the arbitrator or umpire to reconsider it. But no award shall be set aside except on one of the following grounds, namely:—

(a) corruption or misconduct of the arbitrator or umpire;

(b) either party having been guilty of fraudulent concealment of any matter which he ought to have disclosed or of wilfully misleading or deceiving the arbitrator or umpire ;

(c) the award having been made after the issue of an order by the Court superseding the arbitration and proceeding with the suit or after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court, or being otherwise invalid.

(2) Where an award becomes void or is set aside under Cl. (1), the Court shall make an order superseding the arbitration and in such case shall proceed with the suit. [S. 521.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the para.—This para. corresponds to S. 521, C. P. Code, 1882, with several alterations and additions.

The words "on failure" have been substituted for the words "on the refusal," after the words "becomes void "

The words "and proceeding with the suit or after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court, or being otherwise invalid" have been added to Cl. (c), and the last para. of S. 521, which ran as follows: "and no award shall be valid unless made within the period allowed by the Court" has been omitted. The object of the addition of the words "or being otherwise invalid" will appear from the following report of the Special Committee.

The words "and proceeding with the suit or after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court, or being otherwise invalid" have been inserted in the para. reported in 25 C. 141 (which followed the present Code. If, therefore, either he can apply to have it set aside.—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Sub-sec (2) is new.

"But no award shall be set aside"—There is a clear distinction between setting of Sch. II and a Court has no authority to go into the question of the reasonableness of the award.—Nathu v. Abdul Ghani, 119 I C 726; A I R 1930 Lah. 22.

'Corruption or misconduct.'—The word "misconduct" does not necessarily imply

Riyasat Ali, 1 Luck, 139. 3 O W N 279; 93 I C 446; A I R. 1926 Oudh 307. The word 'misconduct' does not necessarily or at all imply anything in the nature of fraud. It certainly may include cases where the arbitrator has failed to perform the essential duties which are cast upon him as an arbitrator as he is occupying a quasi judicial position.—Bhogilal v. Chimanlal, 52 B 116; 30 Bom L.R 92; 107 I C 707; A I R. 1928 Bom. 49. The word 'misconduct' simply means legal misconduct.—Ayyammal v. Narayappa, (1927) M. W. N 917

The term 'misconduct' in S. 521, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 15), does not necessarily imply "corruption."—Kali Charan v. Sarat Chunder, 30 C. 397; 7 C. W. N. 545.

Perversity is misconduct within the meaning of S. 15 of the Second Schedule of the C. P. Code, and a Court would be justified in setting aside an award on that ground.—Nga Tek v. Nga Kasini, 5 Bur. L. T. 55; 14 I. C. 978.

Where one of the questions referred to arbitrators was whether certain moulds used for stamping marks on cotton goods belonged to partners L and K or to K alone and the award stated that both parties should have the right to use the moulds; held, that the award was bad because of the technical misconduct on behalf of the arbitrators that they did not attempt to decide the real question at issue between the parties and that the point could not be separated from the other point.—Khiaram v. Ial Chand, 125 I. C. 824. A. I. R. 1930 Sind 103.

"Acts amounting to misconduct."—The following acts have been held to amount to "misconduct" within the meaning of this para. affording grounds for setting aside an award:—

Proceeding with the arbitration in the absence of one of the arbitrators.—Thammiraju v. Bapiraju, 12 M. 113; Nand Ram v. Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523; Benode v. Pran Chandra, 14 C. L. J. 143.

Bay Nath, 29 C. 36.

Irregularities in procedure which amount to no proper hearing of the matters in dispute amount to misconduct on the part of the arbitrator.—Amir Begam v. Badruddin, 36 A. 336 (P. C.); 23 I. C. 625; 18 C. W. N. 755; 19 C. L. J. 484; 16 Bom. L. R. 413; 27 M. L. J. 181. Where an arbitrator was asked to decide certain issues and he decided them on an inspection of the locality without taking any steps to call on the parties to produce evidence, held, that it was a case where evidence had to be taken and consequently the award was vitiated.—Ayyammal v. Naranappa, (1927) M. W. N. 917. Where the nature of the dispute is such that it could not be settled without evidence; the arbitrator is guilty of misconduct when he examines no witnesses.—Ramchand v. Buta Ram, A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 65; 130 I. C. 833.

Hearing and receiving evidence from one side in the absence of the other side, without giving the other side the opportunity of meeting and answering it, is also "misconduct" within the meaning of this para.: Cursetji v. Crowder, 18 B. 299; Mohammed Afzal v. Abdul Hamid, 7 I. L. J. 463; 88 I. C. 161; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 570; Venkatasubbayya v. Venkataramanayya, 126 I. C. 735; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 646.

Refusal of arbitrator to hear witnesses produced by the parties amounts to judicial misconduct within the meaning of this para.—Rughoobur v. Maina Koer, 12 C. L. R. 564. Receiving documents from one party and basing the award upon those documents, without giving the other party an opportunity of seeing those documents and of meeting the inferences deducible therefrom, is misconduct within the meaning of this para.—Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co. v. Kidari Pershad, 64 I. C. 363.

any one of the parties or the subject matter of the reference.—Kalprovanu v. Rajani, 25 C. 141; Mahomed v. Hakimian, 29 C. 278; Yusuf v. Riyasat, 1 Luck. 139; 93 I. C. 446; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 307; or improperly adding another to their number amounts to misconduct within this para.—Phuran v. Baroran, 7 N. W. P. 367; or ignoring the evidence and deciding on his own special knowledge.—Gopalan v. Surayanarayana, 50 M. L. J. 514; 95 I. C. 740; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 752.

Taking third party's opinion on a suspicious entry in an account book without calling upon the parties to explain the suspicious entry, amounts to judicial misconduct on the part of the arbitrator.—Ramchand v. Buta Ram, A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 65; 130 I. C. 833.

Making an award after a delay of 5 years; the mere fact that no time was specified during which he should make the award was immaterial, for in such a case the arbitrator should pass the award within a reasonable time.—Bhogital v. Chhimantal, 52 B. 116; 30 Bom. L. R. 92; 107 I. C. 707; A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 49.

Act amounting to misconduct in arbitration. It is settled that arbitrations, but it is not for the arbitrators. Therefore an award made in a short time and did not vitiate the award. Arbitrators is not misconduct. 4 P. L. J. 394: 48 I. C. 711; Cursetji v. Crowder, 18 B. 299; Ram Nath v. Ram Rangan, 67 I. C. 866.

There is no misconduct of an arbitrator in having made private enquiries or examined evidence in the absence of a party to the arbitration proceeding where that party by his own conduct waives the objection he had to such a procedure.—Dayaram v. Naraindas, 119 I. C. 529; A. I. R. 1929 Sind 200.

Where the parties knew that arbitrators might be examined as witnesses and two of them were so examined subsequently, each on one side; held, that the award and decree were not vitiated.—Brojendra v. Purnachandra, 58 C. 269; 34 C. W. N. 689; 129 I. C. 428; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 53.

Acts not amounting to misconduct—It is not a valid objection to an award that the arbitrators have not acted in strict conformity to the rules of evidence.—Suppu v. Gobindacharyar, 11 M. 85; Maung Shwe v. U Min Ngun, 3 R. 387; 91 I. C. 659; A. I. R. 1925 Rang 383. Perusal of a letter marked 'without prejudice' and which was consequently inadmissible in evidence and which was subsequently rejected by the arbitrator, was no misconduct so as to vitiate the award simply because the reading of the letter might possibly have prejudiced the mind of the arbitrator.—Das & Co. v. Broach Electric Supply, 30 Bom. L. R. 90; 108 I. C. 18; A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 55. The extent to which an arbitrator may seek outside advice upon matters of law is difficult to prescribe in general terms. Where the language of the award indicated no more than that the

It is not misconduct on the part of an arbitrator to delegate, to a third person, the performance of acts of a ministerial character, so long as he exercises his own judgment on the matters referred.—Buta v. Municipal Committee of Lahore, 29 I. A. 168; 29 C. 854 (P. C.); 7 C. W. N. 82; 4 Bom. L. R. 673. Misconduct cannot be presumed from the fact that the arbitrator is the relative of one of the parties.—Nainsukh v. Umadas, 7 A. 273. From the mere fact that the arbitrators failed to satisfy the Court that their delay was due to the negligence of the parties or other proper causes, it cannot be presumed that they acted fraudulently.—Savjappa v. Dev Chand, 26 B. 132. An award cannot be set aside on the mere surmise that the arbitrator has been partial.—Nainsukh v. Umadas, 7 A. 273. An award is not vitiated by material irregularity by reason of the fact that one of the arbitrators used knowledge obtained by him privately, provided he communicated that knowledge to the other arbitrators in the presence of the parties.—Shetk Mohidin v. Ramaswami, 41 M. L. J. 276.

The absence of an arbitrator cannot be deemed to amount to misconduct where it is clear that no business of a disputed character was gone into during the absence of the arbitrator and where the decision is that of all the arbitrators (relying on 2 C. L. J. 61)—Brojendra v. Purnachandra, 58 C. 269; 34 C. W. N. 689; 129 I. C. 428; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 53.

The mere fact that the arbitrators questioned the parties as to their respective cases, would not amount to misconduct so as to vitiate an award, unless the parties were denied the opportunity of meeting the representations made by the other side.—Ramaswami v. Subbar, 24 L. W. 482; 97 I. C. 478; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 1158.

Absence of notice by arbitrators that they were prepared to receive evidence, when the reference itself implied that no further evidence was to be produced, does not render the award invalid.—Yerra Venkata Reddi v. Krishna, 106 I. C. 331; A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1010.

An award based entirely or almost entirely on evidence, the arbitrators only using their own personal knowledge in understanding and appreciating the evidence, is not bad.—Ienka Polipillai v. Ammannu, 114 I. C. 367; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 144 (distinguishing A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 752).

An award is not illegal by reason of the acceptance, by the arbitrators, of the offer of a fee for their services, such an acceptance not involving any misconduct on their part.—Subraya v. Manjunath, 29 M. 44.

Where a particular arbitrator has been selected only because of his personal knowledge of the matter in dispute it would not be a misconduct on his part to use his personal knowledge in coming to a certain decision, although in such cases it is desirable that he should tell the parties what his personal knowledge is and give an opportunity to adduce evidence sufficient to vary his views.—Danlatsing v. Ratna Anandsing, 97 I. C. 673 : 28 Bom. L. R. 86 : A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 527.

Clause (b)—Fraudulent concealment.—Where the arbitrator is directly interested in the subject-matter of the litigation in that he would get a share out of the money which may be decreed to the plaintiff on the strength of the award, and the plaintiff does not disclose this matter in Court when the case is going to be referred to his arbitration, he, the plaintiff, can be considered to be guilty of fraudulent misconduct, and the case comes within Cl (b) of this para.—Yusuf Khan v. Riyasat Ali, 1 Luck, 139 : 3 O. L. J. 224 : 93 I. C. 446 : A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 307.

A Court is justified in holding that an award is not valid and binding upon the defendant when the arbitrator was the retained pleader of the plaintiff, and no disclosure of this fact was made, before the arbitrator was appointed, to the defendant who was consequently unaware of it.—Kali Prasanna v. Rajani Kant, 25 C. 141; Mahomed Wahiduddin v. Hakimian, 29 C. 278 : 6 C. W. N. 235.

Award made after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court.—The words "or after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court" have been added to sub cl (c), and the words "and no award shall be valid unless made within the period allowed by the Court" which occurred in the original draft of this alteration is that the only remedy now open is that it was made after the expiration of under this para. to set aside the award. If no application is made to set aside the award under this paragraph, or if the application is made but refused, the award becomes final, and no appeal will lie from a decree based upon the award.—Shib Krishto Daw & Co v. Satis Chandra, 39 C. 822 (followed in Kahan Singh v. Mohan Lal, 34 I. C. 177 : 56 P. L. R. 1917).

Paragraph 15 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code does not render an award made out of time per se a nullity. The award is merely voidable and if not sought to be set aside within 10 days from the time when it was filed, it is binding upon the parties.—Bibi Pattoo Kumari v. Upendra Nath, 4 P. L. J. 265 : 50 I. C. 52.

Under S. 521 of the C. P. Code, an award made out of time was a nullity.—Behari Das v. Kashi Prasad, 12 C. 173 : Simson v. Venkatagopalam, 18 I. A. 55 : Shib Krishto Daw & Co v. Satis Chandra, 39 C. 822, and reversing 13 A. 300 (P. C.) 10 A. 137, it was held that an award made after the date given in the last order extending the time for its delivery, the award was invalid. The above Privy Council case was followed in Ram Monohur v. Lal Behari, 14 A. 343. But under the present para it is merely voidable, and if not set aside within the period provided by S. 158, Limitation Act, is binding upon the parties.

Objection to invalidity of award when to be taken—An objection to an award on the ground that it is invalid must be made at the time when it is filed. If no objection is then taken, or if it is made and disallowed, the party objecting cannot reargue the matter by way of appeal from the decree.—Mahomed Valli Asmal v. Valli Asmal, 26 Bom. L. R. 171 (26 M. 47 : 31 A. 450 distd ; 36 B. 105 reld. on).

"Or being otherwise invalid."—These words at the end of sub cl (c) are new. The object of adding them will appear from the following report of the Special Committee : "To meet the difficulty expressed in the case reported in 25 C. 141 (Kali Prasanna v. Rajani Kant), the High Court, we have added the words 'or being otherwise invalid' at the end of S. 521 of the C. P. Code. If any ground be shown for setting aside the award, the Court is empowered to give effect to the objection. Special Committee, 26 C. W. N. 225.

Para. 15.

4 Bom. L. R. 161 11 M. L. J. 77, and followed in Chairman of the Purnea Municipality v. Siva Sankar, 33 C. 692 (922)

The words "or being otherwise invalid" in Cl. (c) should not be read as ejusdem generis with the other cases mentioned in that clause and are not restricted to cases where an award is bad on grounds like want of jurisdiction. On the other hand, they are meant to include all cases of invalidity, on grounds other than those mentioned. It is open to a minor by a suit instituted either through a guardian or when he attains majority, to impeach an award if he can prove that his guardian was grossly negligent or acted fraudulently in conducting the proceedings before the arbitrator—Lakshminarayana v. Ram Chandra, 34 M. L. J. 71; 23 M. L. T. 89. But see Durga v. Gangadhar, 34 C. W. N. 813; 130 I. C. 137; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 109 and Golenur Bibi v. Abdul Samad, 58 C. 628; 35 C. W. N. 238; 52 C. L. J. 298; 130 I. C. 209; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 211, where it has been held that the said words refer to the invalidity of the kind referred to in the preceding sentences of the said clause as for instance the award having been made after an issue of an order by the Court superseding the arbitration and proceeding with the suit or after expiration of the period allowed by the Court; S. 15 assumes a valid reference to arbitration and only contemplates cases where the propriety of the award on the basis of such a reference is in question.

The meaning of the words "or being otherwise invalid" in Sch. II, para. 15, C. P. Code, and the doctrine of finality of decision either upholding or rejecting objections to an award explained with reference to the ruling in the Full Bench case of Intarwan v. Lachiya, 12 A. L. J. 57; Kanhaya Lal v. Jagannath Prasad, 43 A. 305; 19 A. L. J. 33.

Where an arbitrator, in a reference pending a suit, treats a person, who is not a party to the suit, as a party to the arbitration and decides disputes between parties to the suit or any of them and such person, however just and equitable the award may be, "it is otherwise invalid" within the meaning of para. 15, sub-cl. (c).—Ishtaram v. Balchand, A. I. R. 1927 Sind 193; 101 I. C. 802.

An award is invalid if the arbitrators go beyond the scope of the suit and decide matters which are not in suit and which concern persons who are not parties to the suit.—Ram Pratap v. Durga Prasad, 28 C. W. N. 424; 83 I. C. 300; A. I. R. 1924 Cal.

Manindra, 44 C. L. J. 224; 98 I. C. 803; A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 52

Where the parties agree to be bound by the unanimous opinion of the arbitrators or by the opinion of the majority in case of difference, the Court has no power to force upon the parties the award of the umpire alone.—Aijaz Ali v. Zohra, 134 I. C. 39; 29 A. L. J. 906; A. I. R. 1932 All. 76.

Where the agreement to refer to arbitration was vague and indefinite and did not clearly lay down the power of the arbitrators in dealing with the subject-matter in dispute, and it was not possible to make out what powers were intended to be conferred upon the arbitrators. Held, that the objection to the validity of the award was well-founded.—Bindessuri Pershad v. Jankee Pershad, 16 C. 482.

When the arbitrator has been stated to have awarded the shares in the Law but he was simply in the circumstances of the case the award.—Mohammad 929 Oudh 1.

The words "or being otherwise invalid" should not be taken as including the question whether there was a valid reference to arbitration—Mahadeo v. Badri, 50 A. 955; 110 I. C. 881; 26 A. L. J. 1009; A. I. R. 1928 All. 740; Durga v. Gangadhar, 34 C. W. N. 813; 130 I. C. 137; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 109.

There is nothing wrong in parties agreeing to abide by the award of a majority of the arbitrators even when one of the parties is a minor represented by a guardian (distinguishing A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 301 and 38 M. L. J. 145)—Lenka Potipillai v. Annumma, 114 I. C. 367; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 144.

The arbitrators have power to decide the question of jurisdiction. They may err in law for they are judges of fact as well as of law and such error will not vitiate the award Where the arbitrators proceeded on a view that there was no pre-existing wakf and that a wakf which was to come into existence could be separately managed and no objection was made to the decree at any later stage; held, that the decree is binding on the parties and that it could not be said to be a nullity merely because the arbitrators wrongly decided a mixed question of law and fact (referring to 29 C. 167 (P. C.)).—Madan Mohan v. Narain, 27 A. L. J. 540: 117 I. C. 361: A. I. R. 1929 All. 521.

The Court has jurisdiction to entertain objections to the validity of the award and a separate suit for that purpose will not lie. The remedy lies under para. 15 (1) (c) of the second schedule.—Raoji v. Ratansi, 54 B. 696: 32 Bom. L.R. 389: A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 431: 126 I. C. 305

Sut-Clause (2)—When the Court supersedes an award, it should give the parties time and opportunity to present themselves in Court and to produce evidence.—Krishna Kishore v. Banwari Lal, 27 A. L. J. 100. 113 I. C. 749: A. I. R. 1929 All. 259.

Appeal—Except in the case provided by S. 104, Cl. (a), no appeal lies from an order under the paragraph setting aside or refusing to set aside an award.—Zakur Ahmad v. Taslimun Nissa, 89 I. C. 404: 23 A. L. J. 891: A. I. R. 1926 All. 55. If the objecting party does not appear in support of the objection, the Court has no option but to pronounce judgment in accordance with the award.—Raghunath v. Bridhi Chan, 3 P. 839: 83 I. C. 26: A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 603; and the decree made thereon cannot be set aside under Or. IX, r. 13, because it is not an ex parte decree.—Raghunath v. Bridhi Chan, 3 P. 839: 83 I. C. 26. A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 603. It has been held by the High Courts of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay and the Chief Court of the Punjab that though no appeal lies from an order setting aside an award, the legality of the order may be challenged on appeal from the decree that may ultimately be passed in the suit.—Achuthayya v. Thimmayya, 31 M. 345; Damodar v. Raghunath, 26 B. 551. Juma v. Mubarak, 97 P. R. 1912: 133 P. L. R. 1912 106 P. W. R. 1912: 15 I. C. 62. Ambica v. Nadyar, 11 C. 172. R. 1925 All. 566 An order under this para. setting aside an award on the ground of the arbitrator's misconduct, is not subject to revision by the High Court in the exercise of the power conferred on it under S. 115.—Chattar Singh v. Ichhraj, 5 A. 293. Damodar Trimbak v. Raghunath Hari, 26 B. 551; Nasariwani v. Jamshetty, 34 Bom. L. R. 376. A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 232: 138 I. C. 215

Where an award was superseded on the ground that the umpire was related to the plaintiff but this was not proved: held that the order was invalid in law and must be set aside in revision, the Court has inherent power to pass such an order but it should be exercised only in extreme cases.—Bhola Nath v. Raghunath 51 A. 1010: 27 A. L. J. 918: A. I. R. 1929 All. 743.

An order setting aside the award on the ground of technical misconduct by the arbitrator and resuming cognizance of the suit, is not a decision of a case and is consequently not revisable.—Ganga Prasad v. Ram Narain, 6 O. W. N. 813: A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 493

16. (1) Where the Court sees no cause to remit the award or any of the matters referred to arbitration for reconsideration in manner aforesaid, and no application has been made to set aside the award, or the Court has refused such application, the Court shall, after the time for making such application has expired, proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award.

Judgment to be according to award.

(2) Upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow, and no appeal shall lie from such decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award [S. 522.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the para.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to paras 1 and 2 of S. 522, C. P. Code, with this modification that the word "pronounced" has been substituted for the word "give."

The third para. of S. 522, which ran as follows, 'or if the award has been submitted to it in the form of a special case, according to its own opinion on such case' has been omitted.

Sub para (2)—"No appeal shall lie from such a decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award."—Sub-para (2) corresponds to the last para. of the old section, with some alterations and omissions; the old para is reproduced here for the purpose of comparison: "Upon the judgment so given, a decree shall follow, and shall be enforced in manner provided in this Code for the execution of decrees. No appeal shall lie from such decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award."

This paragraph gives effect to the "principle of finality" of awards, by declaring that no appeal shall lie from a decree based on an award, except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award—Ghulam Jilani v. Muhammad Hussain, 29 I. A. 51; 29 C. 167 (P. C.); 6 C. W. N. 226; 4 Bom. L. R. 161; 12 M. L. J. 77; Hansraj v. Sundar Lal, 35 C. 648 (P. C.); 35 I. A. 88; 12 C. W. N. 585; 7 C. L. J. 520; 10 Bom. L. R. 581; 18 M. L. J. 266.

"After the time for making an application to set aside an award has expired."—The period of limitation for an application to set aside an award is ten days from its submission to the Court under Art. 158 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908). The date of submission of the award to the Court is the date on which the award is received by the Registrar of the Court.—Nobin Kally v. Ambica, 5 C. W. N. 813. In Sova Chand v. Hurry Bux, 46 C. 721; 50 C. W. N. 280; 53 I. C. 46, it was held that it means the date of filing the award.

Any point of objection against an award must be taken in the lower Court. A point which could have been taken but was not taken in the lower Court, cannot, for the first time, be allowed to be taken in revision—Dustiar Chand v. Dharanidhar, A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 831.

Paragraph 16 (1) does not prevent the Court from passing a decree on an award if the parties so desire without giving them 10 days' time to file their objections, if any, to the award—Pandurang v. Amrit Rao, 27 N. L. R. 240; 134 I. C. 282; A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 112.

"An appeal lies from a decree based upon a judgment pronounced in . . . , though the decree may be in passed on an award before the time expired an appeal will lie from the decree, though the decree may be in accordance with the award.—Najmuddin v. Albert Pucb, 29 A. 584; Baynath v. Narain Prasad, 50 A. 51; 102 I. C. 608; A. I. R. 1927 All. 614. This is perfectly clear from the language used in Cl. (1) of para 16, viz "upon the judgment so pronounced by Cl. (1) of para. 16—All. 120. Tulsi v. Bas . . . A. I. J. 705. See also . . . 1930 Rang. 307. "The Court shall proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award."—The Court can only give judgment in accordance with the award, and cannot add an order for interest to it, if interest has not been given—Mohun Lall v. Joy Narain, 23 W. R. 105. Where an award is modified under para 12, the only award according to the award; no second appeal therefore in excess of the award.—Mazhar 1930 Lah. 219.

Held, per Mahmood, J.—The word "award" used in the last sentence of S. 522, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 16), must be understood to mean an award as given by the arbitrators and as amended by the Court under S. 518, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 12). The words "in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award" used in S. 522, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 16) were intended to enable the Court of appeal to check the improper use of the power conferred by S. 518, C. P. Code, 1882.—Jawahar Singh v. Mul Raj, 8 A. 449.

power to order the sale of certain property of which the arbitrators were unable to make partition, and the sale of which they recommended on that ground.—Chunimony v. Nistarinee, 3 C. L. R. 357.

An arbitrator is fully justified in rejecting in part the case set up by either party and ascertaining the real facts according to his own view of the evidence. A counsel is not entitled to attack the findings of fact given by the arbitrator on the evidence led by the parties. Whether his conclusions are for consideration by the trial Court or Rambhatta, 120 I. C. 494. A. I. R. 1930 L. The technical provisions of the Evidence Act and his decision cannot be challenged on the ground that he relied upon a document not admissible under the Act.—Ibid.

Apart from the provisions contained in sub-para. (1) of para 16, there is no other provision under which judgement may be pronounced on a modified award and so from such a judgment no appeal lies under Sub-para (2)—Nilmoni Pal v. Dakshinewar, 138 I. C. 818; 36 C. W. N. 1069; A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 713.

Finality of decree in accordance with the award.—No appeal lies from a decree based on an award except in so far as the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award.—Ghulam Istani v. Muhammad Hassan, 29 I. A. 51; 29 C. 167 (P. C.); 6 C. W. N. 226; 4 Bom. L. R. 161; 12 M. L. J. 77. Chairman of the Purnea Municipality v. Siva Sankar, 33 C. 899. *Bihari Lal v. The only cases in which the Code allows an appeal from a decree based on an award are: (1) where the decree is in excess of the award, or (2) where the decree is not in accordance with the award. No appeal lies from a decree in accordance with the award even on the ground that the submission was invalid owing to want of concurrence of all the parties. (A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 362, 36 A. 69, A. I. R. 1923 All. 502, 25 I. C. 593, A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 324 foll., 28 P. R. 1916 held obiter; 25 C. W. N. 832 not foll.)—Balkishan v. Sohan Singh, 116 I. C. 559; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 476; Wiran 126; Wali v. Hira Nand, 12 L. 408; 131 I. C. 348; 32 P. L. R. 44; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 126; Baldeo v. Abdur, 137 I. C. 151; 9 O. W. N. 191; A. I. C. 236. The Calcutta High Court has held that para. 16 contemplates an award made in a case where there has been a valid submission to arbitration; where the reference itself is impugned for want of consent of the parties interested an appeal will lie against the decree passed on the basis of the invalid award (relying on 25 C. W. N. 832)—Durga v. Gangadhar,

No appeal lies from a decree passed in terms of the award even though the award itself was one liable to be set aside as one made beyond the date allowed—Shib Kripso v. Satish Chandra, 39 C. 822.

Where parties were added in a suit at the time of considering the objections to the award and they joined in the objections: Held, that they are bound by the decision of the Court and no appeal lies at their instance—Guran v. Akhar 8 L. 693; 9 L. L. J. 569; 29 P. L. R. 247; 104 I. C. 202; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 362.

Where the chosen arbitrators enlisted the services of a third person to act as arbitrator, the award made by him is not binding on the parties—Hari Shankar v. Ram Piar, 45 A. L. J. 441; A. I. R. 1923 All. 502; 74 I. C. 834; 21 A. L. J. 326. I. C. 212; A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 225.

The principle of finality applies even to cases where the award is impeached on account of alleged errors of law—Emnabas v. Fakir Mahomed, 65 I. C. 50; 15 S. L. R. 165. Where the ground of attack on an award has failed and the Court has refused to set aside the award under para. 16 (1), a decree must be passed in accordance with it and a finality attaches to such a decree and the matter can be allowed to be challenged in revision—Ajazz Ali v. Zehra, 134 I. C. 30; 29 A. L. J. 466; A. I. R. 1932 All. 76.

Finality of decree on fresh award—Where the Court remits an award under r. 14 and the arbitrators submit a fresh award and the Court passes a decree in accordance with such revised award under this para. no appeal lies against such decree on the ground that the order of the remittal was wrong and that the original award ought to have been accepted and acted upon—Subbiah Iyer v. Subramania, 31 M. 479; 18 M. L. J. 485.

Invalid award—It was held under the old Code in a number of cases that though Ghulam Jilani v. Muhammad Hussain, 29 I. A. 51; 29 C. 167 (P. C.); 6 C. W. N. 226; 4 Bom. L. R. 161; 12 M. L. J. 17. The words "except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award," in Cl. (2) of para. 16, now make it clear that no appeal lies from a decree passed in accordance with the award on the ground that the award was invalid—Chairman of the Purnea Municipality v. Siva Sankar, 33 C. 899; Kanakku v. Nagalinga, 32 M. 510. In such a case the party aggrieved may apply under para. 15 (1)(c) to have the award set aside—Guran Ditta v. Pokhar Ram, 8 L. 693; 101 I. C. 202; A. I. R. 1917 Lah. 362; Hari Shankar v. Ram Piar, 45 A. L. J. 441; A. I. R. 1923 All. 502; 74 I. C. 834; 21 A. L. J. 326. If he does not avail himself of that remedy, the award becomes final and no appeal lies from the decree based upon the award—Valli v. Valli, 79 I. C. 723; 26 Bom. L. R. 171; A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 324. But see Durga v. Gangadhar, 34 C. W. N. 813, noted under heading "Finality of decree in accordance with the award," ante.

The rule prohibiting an appeal against a decree based on and in accordance with an award does not apply to a case where the objection is as to the inherent jurisdiction of the Court to entertain the suit—Ladha Ram v. Raila Ram, 10 L. L. J. 242; 112 I. C. 262; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 730.

Second Appeal.—Where the Court of first instance sets aside the award and passes a decree on the merits, and the first appellate Court reversing that decree passes judgment in accordance with the award, held, that the decision of the appellate Court is not final under S. 522, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 16), and a second appeal lay. The mere fact that the decree of the first appellate Court is in accordance with the award is no ground for refusing the appeal—Shyama Charan v. Prolhad, 8 C. W. N. 390; Ganga Prasad v. Kura, 28 A. 469; Ganesh v. Bhikham, 3 Luck. 1 (F. B.); 107 I. C. 545; A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 1. But see Mazhar v. Fatch Din, 31 P. L. R. 337; 120 I. C. 673; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 219.

A second appeal will also lie to the High Court where the decree of the Court of first instance is in accordance with the award, and such decree is set aside by the first appellate Court.—Krishnan v Muthu, 22 M 172

Power of Arbitrators to review their decision.—After an award has been made and handed to the parties, the functions of the arbitrators cease. They have no power afterwards to deal with an application for review of their decision.—Dutto Singh v. Dosad Bahadur, 9 C 575.

High Court's power of revision.—An order under S 521, C P. Code, 1892 (r 15), setting aside an award, made on a reference to arbitration in the course of a suit, on the ground of the arbitrator's misconduct, is not subject to revision by the High Court under S 622, C P. Code, 1892 (S 115).—Chattar Singh v. Lekhray Singh, 5 A 293.

Where an order is made refusing to file an award no appeal lies from it, but the High Court can interfere under S 622, C. P. Code, 1892 (S 115).—Mana Vikrama v. Mallichery, 3 M 68

Where a decree was passed in the terms of an arbitration award without giving notice of its filing to the parties as required by S. 516, C. P. Code, 1892 (r. 18). Held, that it was a good ground for a revision of the decree based upon the award under S 622, C. P. Code, 1892 (S 115).—Chatarbuj Das v. Ganesh Ram, 20 A 474. See also Rangasami v. Muttusami, 1 M 144.

Where a Court passes a decree in terms of an award without giving the parties time to file an appeal, the High Court has power to set aside the decree.—Ravjibhai v. Dahyat, 115, C P Code

Where a Court passes a decree on an award overruling the objections of a party without giving him an opportunity to substantiate them by evidence, there is a revision, but not an appeal, against the decree.—Bhagat Darbari Ram v. Bhukha Ram, 3 L. L. J 487; 20 P. L. R. 1922.

jurisdiction under
Tilak

The question whether a party is interested within the meaning of para. 16 (2) must be decided on the facts of each case and a finding of the trial Court that a person is not a party interested cannot be interfered with in revision (52 B 408 relied on).—Wiran Wali Hira Nand, 12 L 408; 32 P L R 44; 131 I C 348; A I. R 1931 Lab 126.

Binding effect of an arbitration award—An award upon a question referred to arbitrators, on whose part no misconduct or mistake appears, precludes the parties who have submitted to the reference from afterwards contesting in a suit the question so referred and disposed of by the award.—Bhagoti v. Chandan, 11 C. 365 (P. C.). See also Ghellaibhai v. Nandubai, 25 B 238.

A judgment and decree passed in terms of an award under S 522, C P Code, 1892 (r. 16), constitute res judicata.—Vyankatesh v. Sakharam, 21 B. 465. See also Wazzeer Mahlon v. Chuni Singh, 7 C 727.

An award on a private reference made by some of the plaintiffs and the defendants is binding on the rights of the parties to it. The award is not invalid on the ground that all the plaintiffs were not parties to it.—Jadu Nath v. Kailas, 10 C. L. J 41. See Lal Mohan v. Surya Kumar, 11 C. W. N. 1152.

A person who is a stranger to the submission to arbitration and who is not a party to the award, is not under an obligation to abide by the award.—Hira Singh v. Ganga Sahai, 6 A 322 (P. C.) (affirming 2 A 809 (F. B.)).

A decree on an arbitration award, one of the parties to the submission having been a Hindu widow or daughter, is not binding on the reversioners.—Gobind Krishna v. Khunni Lal, 29 A. 487.

"Suit upon award."—Where a decree is passed in terms of an award, the only mode of enforcing the award is by way of executing the decree, and no separate suit will lie to enforce the award.—Sasi Sekharswar v. Lalit Mohan, 52 C. 314; 52 I. A. 79.

Distinction between valuer and arbitrator.—In a partition suit it was arranged between the parties that the defendant, who was the owner of two thirds share, should buy the plaintiff's one-third share at a price to be settled by certain persons named in the petition of compromise. The referees accordingly made their award and the Court gave judgment upon the award. Held, on appeal, that the persons to whom it was referred to settle the price were rather valuers than arbitrators, and the order of reference cannot accordingly be regarded as one under S. 506, C. P. Code, 1892 (r. 1) and no decree on the award of the valuer can be made under S. 522, C. P. Code, 1892 (r. 16)—Chooney Menay v. Ram Kinkur, 28 C. 155; 5 C. W. N. 242 (followed in Macnaghten v. Rameshwar, 30 C. 831).

When the Court acts as arbitrator—In the course of a suit, both the plaintiff and the defendant jointly presented a petition requesting the Court to inspect the site and peruse the documents filed in the suit and agreeing to abide by the decision which the Court might be pleased to pass as the final decision. Held, that the Court acted as an arbitrator by consent of the parties and no appeal lay from its decision—Nidamarthi v. Thammana, 26 M. 76; Sayad Zain v. Kalabhai, 23 D. 757. A decree passed in accordance with such a decision must be regarded as a consent decree, and it comes within the purview of Or. XXIII, r. 3—Chinna v. Venkatasami, 42 M. 625, 628. See also Baikanta v. Sita Nath, 38 C. 421.

ORDER OF REFERENCE ON AGREEMENTS TO REFER.

17. (1) Where any persons agree in writing that any difference between them shall be referred to arbitration, the parties to the agreement, or any of them, may apply to any Court having jurisdiction in the matter to which the agreement relates, that the agreement be filed in Court.

Application to file in Court agreement to refer to arbitration

(2) The application shall be in writing and shall be numbered and registered as a suit between one or more of the parties interested or claiming to be interested as plaintiff or plaintiffs, and the others or other of them as defendants or defendant, if the application has been presented by all the parties, or, if otherwise, between the applicant as plaintiff and the other parties as defendants.

(3) On such application being made, the Court shall direct notice thereof to be given to all the parties to the agreement, other than the applicants, requiring such parties to show cause, within the time specified in the notice, why the agreement should not be filed.

(4) Where no sufficient cause is shown, the Court shall order the agreement to be filed, and shall make an order of reference to the arbitrator appointed in accordance with the provisions of the agreement or, if there is no such provision and the parties cannot agree, the Court may appoint an arbitrator. [S. 523.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This para. corresponds to S. 523, C. P. Code, 1892, with several alterations and additions.

Sub-rule (1), with some additions and alterations, corresponds to para. 1 of the old section, which ran as follows: "When any persons agree in writing that any difference, between them shall be referred to the arbitration of any person named in the agreement or to be appointed by any Court having jurisdiction relates, the parties thereto, or any in Court."

as joined

Sub-rule (2) exactly corresponds to para. 2, and sub-rule (3) exactly corresponds to para. 3 of the old section.

Sub-rule (4) has been substituted for para. 4 of the old section, which ran as follows: "If no sufficient cause be shown, the Court may cause the agreement to be filed, and shall make an order of reference thereon, and may also nominate the arbitrator, when he is not named therein and the parties cannot agree as to the nomination."

The changes introduced by the present rule will clearly appear on a comparison of the provisions of the new rule with that of the old section.

Application of the Para. to Cases governed by the Indian Arbitration Act.—The procedure prescribed by this paragraph does not apply to cases to which the Arbitration Act applies.—See S. 3 of the Indian Arbitration Act (IX of 1899); as for instance an agreement made with a company to refer to arbitration under certain contingencies, to which S. 152 of the Companies Act applies.—Attock Oil Co Ltd. v. Abdul Majid, 118 I C 533: A I R 1929 Lah. 246.

Meaning and scope of this para.—Paragraph 17 and the subsequent paragraphs refer to cases in which persons themselves agree, independently of the Court, to refer the matters in difference between them to arbitration. Where an agreement relates to the division by metes and bounds of revenue-paying land wherein there is also a dispute between the parties as to title, the lands concerned can be validly made the subject-matter of an award and a decree under this para.—Asa Nand v. Ganesha, 11 L. 470: 31 P. L. R. 769: 122 I C 724: 12 L L J 297: A I R. 1930 Lah. 836

The scope of para. 17 is no more than this that where an agreement of reference to arbitration has been entered into by the parties but the arbitrators have not so far functioned the Court has power to enforce the agreement against the parties where the arbitrators are ready and willing to act in terms of the reference. Para. 17 far from implying an ouster of jurisdiction predicates that the arbitrators have the jurisdiction to act on the reference and that the Court should step in and ask them to exercise their powers as arbitrators if they are agreeable to do so.—Sheo Narain v. Bala Rao, 137 I C. 198: 30 A L J 331: A I R 1932 All 348

Where after an application to file the agreement and before its disposal, the arbitrator enters upon the arbitration and actually delivers his award, para. 17 ceases to have any application to the case, and the proper course for the parties to follow in such a case is to take steps under para. 20 to have the award made a rule of the Court. This may be done either by amendment of the previous application or by withdrawing it and filing a fresh application under para. 20.—Parbati v. Durga, 107 I. C. 186: A I R. 1928 Lah. 170.

Agreement to refer future difference to Arbitration.—A general agreement to refer future differences to arbitration comes within this para and may be filed. The para is not confined to cases in which a dispute actually existing at the date of agreement is agreed to be referred to arbitration. But the agreement must name the arbitrator or arbitrators and an agreement which provides for the future appointment or election of arbitrators does not fall within the section. The effect of the last clause of S. 523 C P Code 1882 (r. 17) is to give the parties to such an agreement power to nominate the arbitrator, even when they have agreed that he shall be appointed by the Court. In such cases the Court must appoint their nominee.—Fazulbhoy v. Bombay and Persia Steam Navigation Company Ltd., 70 B. 232 (F B)

Agreement to refer to arbitration matters in dispute in a pending suit.—An agreement between the parties to refer matters in difference in a pending suit to arbitration without the leave of the Court under paras. 1 to 3, is illegal as an invasion of the jurisdiction of the Court, and an award made on such an agreement is a nullity and cannot be treated as an adjustment, because Or XXIII, r. 3 is subject to S. 89.—Amar Chand v. Bantwari, 49 B. 608: 69 I C 808: A I R 1922 Cal 404; Ram Parth v. Durga Prasad, 28 C. W. N. 424: 83 I C. 300: A I R. 1924 Cal 567; Dinkarra v. Yeshwantrao, 51 B. 197: 31 Bom L. R. 1401: 124 I C 119: A I R 1930 Bom 98. Under the old Code it was held by the Calcutta and Punjab Courts that the corresponding S. 523 did not apply to an agreement to refer to arbitration matters in difference in a pending suit.—Tincowry v Fakir Chand, 20 C. 218; 7 C. W. N. 180; Dhan Singh v. Kahu Singh, 115 P. R. 1912. But a contrary view was taken by the Bombay and Allahabad High Courts in Harivalab v. Utamchand, 4 B 1; Sheo Dat v. Sheo Shankar, 27 A. 53. Where a pending suit was, by an agreement between the parties, withdrawn, and after such withdrawal the matter in dispute was referred to arbitration under this para, and an award was made and filed under paras. 20 and 21, it was held that the Court having surrendered its jurisdiction by allowing the suit to be withdrawn, the procedure was quite correct.—Kokil Singh v. Ramasray, 3 P. 449; A I R. 1924 Pat. 458; Lal Chand v. Srs Ram, 12 L. L. J. 24. 31 P. L. R. 445; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 1006; 122 I. C. 237

Revocation of agreement to refer to Arbitration.—See notes under para. 3.

Where a party has been induced by misrepresentation to refer to arbitration he is at liberty to revoke the reference and the agreement to refer cannot be filed in Court—Ganesh Das v. Kesho Das, 50 I. C. 637.

"Any Court having jurisdiction in the matter."—There is no authority for holding that Ss 16 to 20 of C. P. Code are not to be considered in determining which Court had jurisdiction in the matter to which the agreement relates for the purposes of para. 17 of Sch. II.—Nihal Chand v. Jas Ram, 32 P. L. R. 464; 132 I. C. 218; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 673.

Power of Court to remit or set aside award made under this para—In a suit for partition and to take account, where the arbitrators to whom the case was referred under this section omitted to carry out the terms of reference and left undetermined a very important matter, viz., the settlement of the accounts, held, that the Court, instead of confirming the award, should have remitted it under S 523, C P Code, 1882 (r 17), for the consideration of the arbitrators—Sadix Ali v. Imdad Ali, 3 A. 286

In an agreement to submit to arbitration, which was filed in Court under the provisions of S 523, C P Code, 1882 (r 17), it was stipulated that the decision of the arbitrator should be accepted as final, and that no appeal therefrom should be made by either party. Held, that this stipulation did not prevent the Court from setting aside the award on the ground of misconduct on the part of the arbitrator—Ranga v. Sithaya, 6 M. 303

"The agreement shall be in writing."—The paragraph does not apply unless the agreement to refer is in writing.—Tincowry v. Fakir Chand, 30 C. 218.

"Shall be registered and registered as a suit"—When an application is presented as a suit, but that does not become a suit, it is not a suit within the meaning of S 80 of the Code. It has been held by the Calcutta High Court that a proceeding under para. 21 is a suit—Guru Charan v. Uma Charan, 26 C. W. N. 910; 70 I. C. 985. And the Bombay High Court has held that after the registration of the application as a suit, it becomes a suit for the purposes of Or. XXXVIII and the Court has jurisdiction to direct attachment before judgment—Govind v. Venkatesh, 29 Bom. L. R. 342; 101 I. C. 430; A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 259.

Pleader's fee.—According to r. 289 (6) of the Oudh Civil Rules only one-fourth of the fee payable to pleaders in case of suits decided on merits on contest can be taxed—Ram Charan v. Jasoda, 5 Luck. 678; 7 O. W. N. 97; 126 I. C. 508; A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 89

"An order of reference was made by the Court to an arbitrator"—An arbitration which was filed in an order of reference was not an appointment of an umpire, and an umpire. An award was made by the arbitrator.

"Sufficient cause" against the filing of the agreement.—Where the parties had executed a deed agreeing to refer all matters in dispute to the arbitration of three persons, and one of the arbitrators refused to continue to act, and the others had consequently refused to proceed with the reference, the Court refused to order the agreement to be filed in the Court.—Brooke v. Surdyal, 12 B. L. R. App. 13.

Under Ss. 523 and 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (rr 17, 20) parties to a suit as well as persons not parties to a suit may agree to refer matters in dispute between them to arbitration. . . . to have the matters in dispute referred to the arbitration of the arbitrators and to file the agreement in the Court. . . . O. L. J. 131: 401 C. Co.

The Court should not make an order of reference under this para. where the agreement is to refer to several persons specifically named as arbitrators and one of them dies before the application under this para. is made.—Mohantal v. Damodar Das, (1918) Punj. Rec. No. 71, p. 238, Ma Ba U v. Maung Pe Lan, 11 Bur. L. T. 160; 42 I. C. 911; Narayanappa v. Ramchandrappa, 54 M. 469; 129 I. C. 638; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 28. But the Court is competent to make an order of reference if the agreement expressly provides that in case of death of any arbitrator, another arbitrator may be appointed in his place.—Sri Ram v. Sorabji, (1919) Punj. Rec. No. 155, p. 114.

If one party to a submission has been guilty of such laches, (a delay of 3 years in filing the agreement without any sufficient reason) as to entitle the other party to repudiate the submission, the latter will not be deprived of his right to repudiate merely owing to the absence of formal legal notice of revocation (following 52 B 116 and 17 C. 200)—Vishwas v. Bhalchandra, 33 Bom. L. R. 1022; 134 I. C. 733; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 529.

On a reference to arbitration without the intervention of the Court, one of the parties declined to act after the proceedings were begun. Held, that it was competent to the Court to make an order of reference under para. 17, Sch. II, C. P. Code on the application of one of the parties and to appoint a new arbitrator under para. 5 even in the absence of a provision to that effect in the deed of agreement.—Fasal Ilahi v. Prag Narain, 44 A. 523; 20 A. L. J. 327.

During the pendency of the arbitration proceedings on a private reference one of the parties died and the arbitrator thinking that he had no power to bring the representatives of the deceased on the record refused to go on with the arbitration. On an application for filing the agreement referring the matters to arbitration, held, that the Court could not order the arbitrator to carry on the arbitration proceedings.—Ahmad Nur Khan v. Abdur Rahman Khan, 42 A. 191; 18 A. L. J. 76; 54 I. C. 866.

Under the Mahomedan Law, a mother who has not been appointed guardian of the properties of her minor children by the Court is not competent to bind the minors. . . . and Words Act is not competent to bind the minors between the minors and other persons parties. Such an agreement is not for the purpose of the Act and does not amount to an acceptance on their part. . . . filed in Court under Sch. II, para. 17 of the C. P. Code.—Mohsiuddin Ahmed v. K. Ahmed, 47 C. 713; 57 I. C. 945.

An agreement to refer to arbitration does not become void by reason of the resignation of one of the arbitrators and this is not a sufficient reason for refusing to file the agreement in Court, in as much as there was a distinct provision in the agreement that in case of disability, resignation or death of any arbitrator, the party which had elected such arbitrator would be competent to appoint another in such arbitrator's place.—Sriram v. Sorabji, 8 L. L. J. 276.

"Arbitrator appointed in accordance with the provisions of the agreement."—The provision is mandatory. Thus where an agreement provides for a reference to a European merchant, the Court has no power to appoint an Indian merchant: Drayfus & Co. v. Gurditta, 35 P. R. 1911; 9 I. C. 655.

Two persons were named as arbitrators, and the agreement provided that in the event of difference of opinion, the final decision was to be given by K. As one of the named arbitrators refused to act, the Court appointed the umpire K, the sole arbitrator.

held, that the appointment of K as the sole arbitrator was in accordance with para 17 (4) (44 A 523 Dist., 8 A. 61 and 12 A 191 Ref. to).—Vishwas v. Bhalchandra, 134 I. C. 733 : 33 Bom. L. R. 1022 : A. I. R. 1911 Bom 529. If the agreement was to refer the matter in dispute to three arbitrators, the Court could not add a clause that in case of difference the opinion of the majority should prevail.—Ramappa v. Bhatrya, 51 M. L. J. 440 : 97 I. C. 824 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 1183.

Appeal from orders filing or refusing to file an agreement to refer to arbitration.—Under S 101 (1) (d), an appeal lies from an order under this para. filing or refusing to file an agreement to refer to arbitration. It was appealable as a decree under the old Code—Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan, 29 C. 167. See notes under that section of the Code.

18. Where any party to any agreement to refer to arbitration, or any person claiming under him, institutes any suit against any other party to the agreement, or any person claiming under him, in respect of any matter agreed to be referred, any party to such suit may, at the earliest possible opportunity and in all cases where issues are settled at or before such settlement, apply to the Court to stay the suit ; and the Court, if satisfied that there is no sufficient reason why the matter should not be referred in accordance with the agreement to refer to arbitration, and that the applicant was, at the time when the suit was instituted and still remains, ready and willing to do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the arbitration, may make an order staying the suit. [NEW.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope and object of the para—This para. is new and it corresponds to S 19 of the Indian Arbitration Act (IX of 1999). It gives a party who is willing to abide by the agreement, the right to apply for a stay of the suit filed by the other party and has been inserted to meet the cases noted below. Under this para the suit will not be barred, but its proceedings may be stayed by an application at the earliest opportunity.

This para applies to suits pending before the Court of Small Causes. Bombay : 1926 : 11—Madanadas.

Applicability of the para—A suit referred to arbitration but subsequently practical difficulties arose so as to make arbitration impossible. The arbitrator and the Court came to a decision therewith. Held, that para 18 applied. —Rani Sashi, 879.

Where the reference to arbitration was made by the parties after the suit was disposed of by the trial Court and before the appeal was filed, held that the award was immune from the objection that unless proceedings before the arbitrators are stayed under para 18, there might be a clash between the decision of the Court and of the arbitrators. The award is enforceable if the appeal is subsequently withdrawn.—Shiva Kumar v. Prasad, 7 O. W. N. 815 : 128 I. C. 748 : A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 432.

"No sufficient reason"—It is for the plaintiff to show that some sufficient reason exists why the matter should not be referred to arbitration and not for the defendant to show that no such reason exists.—Dinabandhu v. Durgaprasad, 46 C. 1041, Ganesh Das Ishar Das v. Durga, 3 L. L. J. 61 : 60 I. C. 776, Volkart v. Fateh Muhammad, 61 I. C. 322.

Where pending arbitration proceedings one of the three specified arbitrators died and the agreement contained no provision for filling up the vacancy and one of the parties thereupon filed a suit; held, that the Court had no power to stay the suit. The provisions of paras. 4 and 5 cannot be invoked; these provisions can only be applied if they are consistent with the agreement (following 24 M. L. J. 15; 51 M. L. J. 440; 45 B. 1181; distinguishing 12 M. L. A. 112, 33 A. 743 (P. C.) and 27 M. 112; referring to 17 M. 458, 42 I. C. 911, 12 B. L. R. App. 13, 51 I. C. 636, and 42 A. 192; and not following 19 A. L. J. 823 and 44 A. 523).—Narayanappa v Ramchandrappa, 34 M. 469; (1930) M. W. N. 1028; 60 M. L. J. 676; 129 I. C. 638; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 28.

Where parties have deliberately made contracts with an arbitration clause and chosen to select their own forum, there is a prima facie duty upon the Court to respect the agreement. But if there is a likelihood of difficult questions of law arising which would inevitably entail a special case being prepared and referred to Court or which are clearly outside the purview of the arbitration clause or if there be questions which, though within it are so intimately connected with the prime question, a more convenient course would be to try the whole action in Court and a stay may be refused.—Singaran Coal Syndicate v. Balmukund, 58 C. 1107; 35 C. W. N. 514; 53 C. L. J. 321; 134 I. C. 529; A. I. R. 1931 Cal 772. The fact that a small portion of the relief claimed is not within the scope of the arbitration clause is not in itself a sufficient reason for refusing to stay proceeding where the main object of the action is within the clause—Ibid.

"Institutes any suit"—This para. applies only to suits instituted after the agreement to refer to arbitration has been made. The Court has no power to stay the suit under this para where a suit is first filed and then the parties agree to refer the matters to arbitration.—Ramjidas v. House, 35 C. 199; Peruri v. Gullapudi, 34 B. 372.

The institution of a suit has not ipso facto the effect of superseding a previous reference to arbitration dealing with the same subject matter; but if after the institution of the suit, neither party applies for a stay of the hearing of the suit under Sch II, para. 18, C. P. Code, either at the time of settlement of issues or before, the effect of such a failure is to supersede the arbitration for good and any decision which might be arrived at in that suit would be binding on the parties as if no such reference to arbitration had been made prior to the suit.—Zainab v. Budhna, 25 O. C. 63; 68 I. C. 235; Sarat Chandra v. Rajkumar, 69 I. C. 563.

Agreement to refer to arbitration, whether bars a suit.—Where parties to a suit have agreed to refer the matters in dispute between them in such suit to arbitration, such an agreement ousts the jurisdiction of the Court to proceed with the suit, whether it is filed in Court under the provisions of S. 523, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 17) or not.—Shoo Dat v. Shoo Shankar, 27 A. 53 (4 A. 546 and 9 A. 168 followed). But the Court should proceed with the suit after removing the stay where the arbitrators having been found unwilling to act, the plaintiff applied for removal of the stay.—Laxman v. Manjunath, 45 B. 1181; 23 Bom. L. R. 511.

To bar a suit under S. 21 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), it must be shown that the plaintiff had refused to perform the agreement to refer to arbitration before the action is brought; the filing of the plaint is not such a refusal.—Koomud Chunder v. Chunder Kant, 5 O. 498; 5 C. L. R. 284; Crisp v. Adlard, 23 C. 956; and Tahal v. Bisheshwar, 8 A. 57. On this point, see also Salig Ram v. Jhunna Kuar, 4 A. 546; Sheoambar v. Deodat, 9 A. 163; and Adhibas v. Cursandas Nathu, 11 B. 169.

A suit will not lie to enforce an agreement to refer to arbitration even in the case referred to in the first exception to S. 28 of the Contract Act, IX of 1872. But that section does not forbid an action for damages for the breach of such an agreement.—Koegler v. The Coringa Oil Company, 1 C. 42 (on appeal 1 C. 466).

See also the cases noted under para. 22.

Power of Court when agreement to refer dispute to arbitration is set up by one party and denied by the other.—A Court can only take action under para. 18, Sch. II, C. P. Code, when there is a subsisting agreement to refer a dispute to arbitration. It is not necessary that both parties should admit that there is an agreement to refer. It is for the Court to decide whether or not such an agreement had as a matter of fact been made.—Firm Shoo Parshad Radha Kishen v. Indore Malwa United Mills, 62 P. R. 1917; 65 P. W. R. 1917; 89 I. C. 508.

"Apply to the Court to stay the suit."—Where after a reference to arbitration one of the parties brings a suit against the other and the latter deliberately refrains from applying for stay of the suit, he must be deemed to have waived his right to arbitration.—Chimman Lal Posti Mal v. Phul Chand Fateh Chand, 44 A. 292; 20 A. L. J. 123; 65 I. C. 795; Ramnath v. Ramranjan, A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 181.

Appeal.—Under S. 104 (1) (c), an appeal lies from an order staying or refusing to stay a suit when there is an agreement to refer to arbitration. See notes under that section of the Code.

Provisions applicable to proceedings under paragraph 17.
19. The foregoing provisions, so far as they are consistent with any agreement filed under paragraph 17, shall be applicable to all proceedings under the order of reference made by the Court under that paragraph, and to the award and to the decree following thereon. [S. 524.]

Alterations.—This para. corresponds to S. 524, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character.

ARBITRATION WITHOUT THE INTERVENTION OF A COURT.

20. (1) Where any matter has been referred to arbitration without the intervention of a Court, and an award has been made thereon, any person interested in the award may apply to any Court having jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the award that the award be filed in Court.
Filing award in matter referred to arbitration without intervention of Court

(2) The application shall be in writing and shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the applicant as plaintiff and the other parties as defendants.

(3) The Court shall direct notice to be given to the parties to the arbitration, other than the applicant, requiring them to show cause, within a time specified, why the award should not be filed. [S. 525.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This para. corresponds to S. 525, C. P. Code, 1882. No other alteration has been made except that the words "any Court having jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the award" have been substituted for the words "Court of the lowest grade having jurisdiction over the matter to which it relates"

The provisions of the Code, relating to arbitration are not compulsory, but enabling and they provide certain courses of procedure to be followed if the parties desire to adopt those provisions, but it does not enact that no other course shall be pursued. So, where an award is made otherwise than in a suit, the parties need not apply under this rule but may file a suit to enforce it. See the cases noted under r. 21 under the heading "Suit to enforce a private award."

Scope of the Paragraph—This para. and para. 21 refer to cases where the agreement of reference is made and the arbitration itself takes place without the intervention of the Court, and the assistance of the Court is only sought in order to give effect to the award.—Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan, 29 C. 167 : 29 I. A. 51.

Paragraph 20, unlike paras. 1 and 17, does not require that the reference should be in writing, the language of that para. does not require that there should be a written reference. All that is necessary is that the Court must be satisfied that the matter had been referred to arbitration, that an award had been made thereon and that there was no ground or proof which would vitiate the award.—Ram Chandra v. Manohar, 133 I. C. 531 : A. I. R. 1931 All 751. If no writing is required by the term of submission a parole or oral award is valid and binding (26 B. 132 foll.).—Ram Bilash v. Birich Singh, 12 P. L. J. 733.

Where the agreement was under S. 152 of the Companies Act (such as the Assisted Siding Agreement between a Railway Co. and a Coal Co.) the provisions of para. 20 were excluded by S. 3 of the Arbitration Act and under S. 4 of the latter Act, the Court of a Sub-Judge was not "the Court" and it had no jurisdiction to entertain an application (following 118 I. C. 533 and dissenting from 132 I. C. 399).—Ruplal v. Dhansar Coal Co., 136 I. C. 445 : 13 P. L. T. 169.

This para. does not apply to matters referred to arbitration at parties to the reference.—Mansil Motilal v. Gokal Das, 45 B. 245 : 22 Bom. L. R. 1048 ; Chandasappa v. Basingappa, 29 Bom. L. R. 1254 (F.B.) : A. I. R. 1927 Bom 565 ; Kondi v. Chumtal, A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 1. But see Gurdevi v. Gujar Mal, 131 I. C. 126 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 594 (applying 3 L. 296). See notes under Or. XXIII, r. 3.

Where an agreement to refer to arbitration was made after a suit for pre-emption had terminated and before an appeal has been filed ; held, that the suit was not pending during that period and that leave of the Court was not necessary to effect a compromise in pursuance of the agreement.—Shiva Kumar v. Thakur Prasad, 7 O. W. N. 815 : 129 I. C. 748 : A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 432.

There is nothing illegal in two or more persons agreeing to refer future disputes to arbitration in a pending suit.—Ganga Ram v. Ram Kishen, 137 I. C. 807 : A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 459.

This paragraph is no bar to a regular suit to enforce an award.—Under the corresponding S. 525 of the old Code, it was held that a party interested in an award may, at his option, either avail himself of the summary remedy to enforce the award as provided by that section or he may bring a regular suit to enforce the award.—Subbaraya v. Sadasita, 20 M. 490 ; Bhajahari v. Behary Lal, 33 C. 881. A suit can be brought upon an award independently of the summary procedure authorized by this paragraph at any period which the law of limitation of suits permits.—Wazir Ali v. Mulkar, 5 I. C. 597 : 34 P. R. 1910 : 11 P. W. R. 1910.

Where the suit is based on the award itself and not on any agreement by the parties whereby they mutually accepted the award and the question of the acceptance of his award is not in issue, it cannot be said that a party is estopped because of his signature to the award. If both parties to the award signed it after it was delivered it may be that a suit could be filed to enforce the terms of the award on the ground that there was a definite contract by the parties by virtue of their signatures.—Gunn v. Rahman, 7 R. 136 : 117 I. C. 574 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 166.

Persons competent to apply under this para.—The word "parties," as used in S. 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), should not be confined to persons who are actually before arbitrators, but include those who are likely to be affected by the award. If parties, by an agreement, have undertaken between themselves that, in the event of certain things happening, a particular procedure shall be followed, which, under one set of circumstances, may be adopted in invitum, then, for the purposes of this paragraph, they should be regarded as parties to the arbitration.—Jones v. Ledgard, 8 A. 340.

Where a matter has been referred to arbitration, without the intervention of the Court, by parties, one of whom is an agriculturist, and an award has been made thereon, any person interested in the award may, without obtaining the conciliator's certificate, apply for the filing of the award under S. 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), the provisions of which are not superseded by S. 47 of the Dekkan Agriculturist's Relief Act, 1879.—Gangadhar v. Mahadu Santaji, 8 B. 20.

A natural guardian of a minor has power to submit to a private arbitration, provided the submission and the award are for the benefit of the minor.—Roman Kissen v. Hurroji, 19 C. 334. But see Lakshmana v. Chinnathambi, 24 M. 326, where it has been held that submission and award by a minor's guardian without the sanction of the Court under S. 462, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 7), are invalid.

Proceedings taken to file and enforce a private award are of the nature of a suit, and a minor must be represented in such proceedings by a person holding a certificate of administration.—Vasudev Vishnu v. Narayan Jagannath, 9 B. H. C. R. 289.

The power given by Sch. II, para. 20 to any person interested to apply to a Court to have an award filed in Court does not override the general power under Or. XXIII, r. 3 to adjust disputes by a lawful compromise at any time after the institution of a suit.—Chintalapalli v. Venkanna, 76 I. C. 502.

Where the document containing the agreement to refer and the award is not signed by the person claiming under the award or by any other person on his behalf as his guardian he cannot base any claim on the award.—Prem Sagar v. Ram Gopal, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 814

Small Cause Court.—When a matter has been referred to arbitration without the intervention of any Court, a Small Cause Court in which the award is made, may, by such Court, file the award.—Sagatullah, 1 B. L. R. A. C. 12. See also C. R. 54; and Gangappa v. Kapinappa, 5 M. H. C. R. 128. See also Simson v. McMaster, 13 M. 344.

A Sub-judge invested with powers of Small Cause Court, does not on that account become a Judge of the Court. The pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court is not affected. 1882 (r. 20).—Balkrishna v. Lakshman, 3 B. 219.

The jurisdiction of a Court to file an award depends on the reliefs granted by the award. It is not open to a party to confer jurisdiction on a Court by asking for only one relief granted by the award and getting the award filed under para. 20 of Sch. II where the other reliefs granted are beyond the competence of the Court.—Rethamali v. Ramasami, 10 L. W. 57; 51 I. C. 53.

The High Court can interfere in revision with the order of the Small Cause Court, staying the hearing of a petition under Sch. II, para. 20, on the ground of there having been a prior instituted suit and that both the suits related to the same dispute, the order being one which is passed without jurisdiction (114 P. R. 1919 and 6 O. L. J. 96 Rel. on)—Gurbaksh v. Sant Ram, 30 P. L. R. 395; 117 I. C. 94; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 533

Effect of refusal of an application to file an award.—The refusal of an application under para. 20 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code to file an award does not operate as a res judicata in respect of a subsequent suit brought to enforce the award.—Harakh Ram Jani v. Lakshmi Ram Jani, 43 A. 108; 60 I. C. 626. the arbitrators at different times. Held, that such an irregular award should not be enforced under this section.—Nader Ali v. Majoo, 21 W. R. 377.

A Court to which an application is made under this section, to file a private award, has no power to amend the award or remit it for reconsideration, but only possesses the power to file and enforce it or to reject the application.—Mustafa Khan v. Phulja Bibi, Matters in dispute were referred to seven arbitrators without the intervention of a Court. The arbitrators held several sittings extending over some six months and at their last sitting they unanimously came to a decision and informed the parties of it. Subsequently the award was drawn up and signed by four out of the seven arbitrators. Held, that the actual award was an oral award made by all the arbitrators at their last sitting, and the fact that the minority of the arbitrators did not sign the award was not fatal to the award.—Dandekar v. Dandekars, 6 B. 663.

An award made under S. 525, C P Code, 1882 (r. 20), which is partly within, and partly exceeds, the terms of the submission to arbitration, cannot be enforced by summary procedure under S 526 as to such portion as does not exceed those matters.—Mana Vikrama v. Mallichery, 3 M. 68 (followed in Mustafa Khan v. Phulja Bibi, 27 A. 526).

On an application to have the award filed in Court under S 525 C P Code, 1882
(r. 20), the defendant amongst others objected that the agreement of submission was vague and indefinite. The Sub-Judge, overruling the objection, directed the award to be filed and passed a decree upon it. Held, that the objection was well founded inasmuch as the agreement to refer was vague and indefinite, and the award should not be allowed to be enforced under S. 525, C. P. Code 1882 (r. 20).—Bindessuri Pershad v. Jankee Pershad,

When a private award between parties is filed in a Court, the prescribed course is for the Court to give judgment upon it and pass a decree, not to order execution thereof before such decree has been passed.—Sahab Ram v. Kashce Nath, 41 W. R. 298. See also Ishwardas v. Dostibai, 7 B. 316, where it has been held that it is the duty of the Court to proceed to pass judgment according to the award as soon it is ordered to be filed, without waiting for an application that that should be done.

Where the award determined rights of parties not joining in the reference and a decree was passed thereon: held that the decree was null and void and an executing Court can refuse to execute it.—Samson v. Gnanamanikam, 129 I. C. 519; 8 R. 544; A. I. R.
1930 Rang. 337.

Reference to six arbitrators—Absence of one of them at final hearing—Consent of the parties to be bound by the decision of five arbitrators is effective and the award passed by five of them is binding.—Govindram v. Deokabai, 130 I. C. 156; A. I. R. 1931 Nag 66

Where an award is delivered in parts.—If the agreement to refer provides that the matters in dispute may be taken up and dealt with seriatim, and that the award may be delivered bit by bit, each portion decided may be filed as a whole.—*Shoshemukhi v. Court-fee upon an application to file a Private Award—The proper court-fee under S. 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20) is the court-fee payable upon a plaint.—Bijadhar Bhugut v. ..., 171.

An order directing an award to be filed in Court is not an order for the purpose of S. 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20).—Mohan v. Kati Prasad, 33 C. 11. J. 741 and 9 L. 380, it has been held that an order directing an award to be filed in Court is neither a decree nor an order having the force of a decree. An appeal therefore need only be stamped with a court-fee of Rs. 2 under Art. 11, Sch. II of the Court-fees Act. It need not be stamped ad valorem on the value of the appeal.—Ram Autar v. Ram Samugh, 6 Luck. 703; 9 O. W. N. 800.

In proceedings under para. 20 of the Second Schedule to the C. P. Code, an unstamped award may be admitted in evidence and filed in Court after payment of the penalty under the provisions of the Stamp Act; Gowardhan Das v. Keshoram, 66 P. R. 1913; 291 P. L. R. 1913.

Loss of private award—Secondary Evidence as to its contents.—In the absence of the original award, secondary evidence of its contents is admissible. The plaintiff must be satisfied that he has lost the original award.—Reddi v. Mahanandi Reddi, 55 I. C. 845. In the same case after the rejection of an application under this section the plaintiff brought a regular suit to enforce the terms of the award and it was held therein that secondary evidence of the contents of the award was admissible on proof of the loss of the original.—Gopi Reddi v. Mahanandi Reddi, 15 M. 99.

Limitation for an application to file an award—The period of limitation for an application to file a private award is six months.—See Art. 178 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908); Ram Ugrah v. Achraj, 38 A. 85 (91).

Paras. 20, 21.

The date of the award means not the date the award bears, but the date on which it was given to the parties, i.e., the date of publication—Kunji Lal v. Binwari Lal, 43 I. C. 711; 4 P. L. J. 394.

It is clearly the intention of the Legislature that a party to an arbitration should have six months to enforce the award, under this section from the time when he is in a position to enforce it, that is, from the time when the award is delivered to the parties, and not from the date when the award is signed by the arbitrators—Dutto Singh v. Dosad Bahadur, 9 C. 575.

Where is an application for filing made by one of the party respondents in whose name the award has been made, and the application is transposed as applicant and the application had already been made by the other party respondent, the mere transfer did not amount to a fresh application so as to create bar of limitation—Mangal v. Prag Das, 29 A. L. J. 863; 133 I. C. 410; A. I. R. 1931 All. 725.

21. (1) Where the Court is satisfied that the matter has been referred to arbitration and that an award has been made thereon and where no ground such as is mentioned or referred to in paragraph 14 or paragraph 15 is proved, the Court shall order the award to be filed and shall proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award. [S. 526.]

(2) Upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow, and no appeal shall lie from such decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award. [New.]

COMMENTARY

Alterations—Sub-rule (1), with some modification, corresponds to S. 526 of the C. P. Code of 1882, which ran as follows: "If no ground such as is mentioned or referred to in S. 520, or S. 521, be shown against the award, the Court shall order it to be filed, and such award shall then take effect as an award made under the provisions of this chapter."

"Where the Court is satisfied that the matter has been referred to arbitration and that an award has been made thereon"—These words are new.

mentioned in rr. 14 and 15.

In some of the cases it was held that where an objection to the factum or validity of the submission and award is raised, the Court had no jurisdiction to deal with it and must refer the parties to a regular suit. But in some other cases it was held that where objections are raised to the validity of the award, the Court has jurisdiction to deal with them. rr. 14 and 15.

been noted below to understand clearly the object of the amendment.

Sub-rule (2) is new. It has been framed adopting the view of the Judicial Committee as expressed in Ghulam Khan's case (29 C. 167, 6 C. W. N. 226, (P. C.)).

The provisions of Ss. 523 to 526, C. P. Code, 1882, shall not apply to any submission to arbitration to which the provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act for the time being apply.—See S. 3 of the Indian Arbitration Act (IX of 1899)

Grounds of objection under paras 14 and 15—If an award in a matter referred to arbitration without the intervention of the Court determines any matter not referred to arbitration the only course open to the Court under the present rule is to refuse to file the award, even where the portion of the award open to exception can be separated from the rest.—Dinabandhu v. Chintamani, 19 C. W. N. 476; Kunj Lall v. Bonwari Lall, 4 P. L. J. 394, 401-402; Dhanpat Raz v. Kahan Divi, (1914) Punj. Rec. No. 30, p. 108; Allarakhia v. Jhangir, 10 B. H. C. R. 391; Mustafa Khan v. Phulja Bibi, 27 A. 526; Dandekar v. Dandekars, 6 B. 663; Thiruvengadathiengar v. Vaidinatha, 29 M. 303. But in Sayed Khan v. Abdul Gaffoor, 115 I. C. 687; 10 P. L. T. 53 it has been held that such an award is not invalid if the portion of the award dealing with the matter referred is valid and can be enforced and it is separable from the rest of the award. It has also been held that the binding nature of the award on the parties is not affected by the fact that the arbitrators professed to deal with the interest of persons who were not parties to the reference (following 7 P. L. T. 644). See also Dayaram v. Naraindas, 119 I. C. 549; A. I. R. 1929 Sind 200.

Paragraph 21 does not contemplate an application to set aside the award like paras 16 and 19 within ten days of getting notice of filing the award.—Peria Goundan v. Thangammal, 111 I. C. 555; A. I. R. 1928 Mad 371.

Where the agreement was to refer the dispute to an Association and the Secretary arrogating all the powers and functions of the whole body made the award, an application to file the award cannot be granted as the award was not made by the Association.—Narsingh v. Sita Ram, 11 L. L. J. 356; A. I. R. 1909 Lah. 826.

An award of three arbitrators made without final discussion with the fourth arbitrator and in his absence and to which he does not agree is not an award by a majority of four arbitrators. The three arbitrators must be regarded as having been guilty of misconduct in drawing up the final award without consulting the fourth one at all, and the award is consequently vitiated.—Ma Sin v. Ma Pu, 7 R 715; 121 I. C. 801; A. I. R. 1930 Rang 126. But where five arbitrators were appointed under a registered agreement and one being absent, the parties orally agreed to abide by the decision of the remaining four arbitrators; held, that though the subsequent oral agreement between the parties was hit at by S. 92 of the Evidence Act, the defendant himself having agreed to the procedure, it was not a proper case for interference in revision.—Bhim Sen v. Tarachand, 135 I. C. 230; 29 A. L. J. 1087; A. I. R. 1932 All 154. A matter clearly outside the power of the arbitrator would render his award invalid, unless that portion of his award was separable from the rest (Ibid; referring to Amir Begau v. Badrudin Husain, 36 A. 336 (P. C.); 18 C. W. N. 755; 19 C. L. J. 494; 16 Bom. L. R. 413; 27 M. L. J. 181; 23 I. C. 625).

An error in calculation, unless so palpable and gross as to afford strong evidence of misconduct, is no ground for interference by Court, the Court has no power either to correct such errors or to reject an award which contains them (42 A. 277 Ref.).—Alagappa Chettiar v. Chudambaram, 133 I. C. 522; 34 L. W. 507; (1931) M. W. N. 451; A. I. R. 1931 Mad 619. Examination of a party or a witness in the absence of the other party is an irregularity amounting to misconduct and justifies setting aside of the award. It is not necessary to prove prejudice; but such an irregularity can be cured by waiver.—Ibid.

Where parties have consented to an award they cannot be allowed to object that the award is partial or incomplete.—Gita Ram v. Kesho Ram, 32 P. L. R. 754 (12 L. 65 foll.).

An arbitrator has very wide powers and even an error of law made by an arbitrator does not invalidate the award (5 O. W. N. 1001 foll.; 23 A. 363 dist.)—Sartaj Fatima v. Muhomed Jawad, 129 I. C. 322; 7 O. W. N. 1095; A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 6.

Objections to the filing of awards upon any of the grounds mentioned in paras 14 and 15 and the jurisdiction of the Court.—When an application is made to a C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), and objection is made to the award mentioned in Ss. 520 and 521, C. P. Code, 1882 (rr. 20 and 21), the Court to pursue is to dismiss the application and to suit to enforce the award in which all the objections are determined.—Hurronath v. Nistaranji, 10 C. 74; Bhugut v. Menohur Bhugut, 10 C. 11; 13 C. L. R. 11; 13 C. 557; Sree Ram v. Denobundhoo, 7 C. 450; 9 C. 11; Jante Pershad, 16 C. 482; and Hussaini Bibi v. J., 1 A. 150. In these latter cases it has been held (dissenting from the former cases) that in Ss 525 and 526, C. P. Code, 1882 (rr. 20, 21), the terms "to show cause" does not mean argument, but both to view is supported by which it has been held verified written state. 1832 (r. 15) the Court the duty of the Court to determine whether ted by the recent Full (1): 2 C. Kashi Singh*, 28 A 621, and Manilal v. Vanmalidas, 29 B 621, in which the principle laid down in 25 C 757 (T. B) has been followed.

A Private Award is valid and binding though Proceedings under Para. 20 have not been taken to enforce it—An award made by private submission may be valid and binding though no proceedings under S 525, C P. Code, 1882 (r. 20) have been taken to enforce it—Surubhet Narain v. Geuree Pershad, W. R. 269. See also Ramyad Sahoo v. Deolar Sahoo, 9 W. R. 441 and Nursinh v. Putto, 20 W. R. 20

An arbitration award may be valid without being enforced by the Courts, as for instance, where possession under the award is shown; Mohesh Chunder v. Buloram, 6 W. R. 94

"A decree shall follow"—Schedule II of the C P Code is not complete in itself. A decree passed under para 21 (2) of Sch II is a decree in a suit and Or IX, r 13 applies to such a decree—Mahabir Prasad v. Balkishun Das, 62 I C. 927.

Suit to enforce private award—Limitation—The provisions of the Code on arbitration are not compulsory, but enabling, and prescribe certain courses of procedure to be followed if the parties desire to adopt its provisions but this chapter does not enact that no other course shall be pursued. So where an award is made otherwise than in a suit, the parties need not apply under S 525, C P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), but may file a suit to enforce it—Pragdas v. Girhardas, 26 B 76

A suit lies to enforce an award made without the intervention of a Court of justice. The procedure provided by S 525, C P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), is not imperative upon a plaintiff who seeks to enforce an award so made—Palanisappa Chetti v. Rayappa Chetti, 4 M H C. R. 119, and Kota Seetamma v. Kolliparla, 8 M. H C. R. 81 (followed in Subbaraya Chetti v. Sada Siva Chetti, 20 M 490 (15 M. 99 followed))

Where an award cannot be filed and a decree obtained upon it under S. 525, C P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), a party is not precluded from suing upon it—Gopi Reddi v. Mahanandi, 15 M. 99. See also Narasayya v. Ramabadra, 15 M 474, and Jafri Begum v. Syed Ali Reza, 5 C. W. N. 585 (P C)

A suit is maintainable to enforce specific performance of a private award, where it is not possible to assess compensation in money for breach of the particular condition in the award—Brij Mohan v. Shyam Singh, 24 A. 164.

A suit to enforce an award cannot be treated as a suit for specific performance of contract within the meaning of Art. 113 of the Limitation Act 1877, the article applicable being Art 144 of the Act.—Sornavalli Ammal v. Muthayya Sastrigal, 23 M 503 (S. A. 263, and 16 A. 1 referred to). Distinguished in Sheo Narain v. Beni Madho, 12 A 285. See also Bhajahari v. Behary Lal, 33 C. 631 : 4 C. L. J. 162.

Whether matters heard and determined in proceedings under this para. are Res Judicata and cannot be re-opened in subsequent suit.—Matters heard and determined in proceedings under para. 21 of Sch II of the C. P. Code are res judicata and cannot be re-opened in a subsequent suit between the same parties and brought for the purpose of setting aside the award and the decree following upon the judgment pronounced in accordance therewith. A proceeding under para. 21 of Sch II is a suit within the meaning of S. 11 of the C. P. Code.—Guru Charan v. Uma Charan, 26 C. W. N. 940. The Allahabad and Bombay High Courts have held that the refusal of a Court to file a private award on the ground of misconduct of the arbitrators does not operate as res judicata in respect of a suit subsequently brought to enforce the award.—Kunjt Lal v. Durga Prasad, 32 A. 491; Harakh Ram v. Lakshmi Ram, 43 A. 108 : 50 I. C. 646; Raymal v. Maruti, 45 B. 329; 59 I. C. 755; Abdul Aziz v. Chandu, 27 Bom. L. R. 652; 60 I. C. 64. A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 418.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order under this rule filing or refusing to file an award.—See S. 104 Sub-sec. (1), Cl. (f) Shankar Das v. Amir Chand, 7 L. L. J. 91 : 89 I. C. 531; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 321; Jagat Pande v. Sarwan Pande, 47 A. 743 : 89 I. C. 76; A. I. R. 1925 All. 404. But no appeal lies from the order passed in appeal.—Ahmed Din v. Atlas Trading Co. (1919) P. R. No. 66, p. 287. It must be noted however that though an appeal lies from an order made under this rule, no appeal lies from a decree passed on an award except in so far as the decree is, in excess of or not in accordance with the award.—Bhahadur Singh v. Negi Puran Singh, 30 A. 151; Kulsum v. Ali Akbar, 39 A. 401 (411); Munung Tun v. Munung Po, 1 R. 265 : A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 197. In such appeal the appellant is not entitled to reopen the whole case and argue all other questions which were raised before the lower Court.—Bansil Lal v. Gopal Lal, 110 I. C. 298; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 819.

Where an award is filed in Court, the Court should first pass an order that the award be filed under para. 21. He should then have proceeded to pronounce judgment according to the award and a decree should follow the judgment so pronounced. But even though there is no separate order as contemplated by para. 21 that would not prejudice the party affected from filing an appeal against the order which should be deemed to have been passed by the Court.—Krishna Aiyar v. Subbarama, (1932) M. W. N. 234 : 35 L. W. 565; A. I. R. 1912 Mad. 462; 62 M. L. J. 550; 139 I. C. 877.

When an order is made directing an award to be filed, and decree is passed on such award before an appeal is preferred from the order directing the award to be filed, it has been held that the right of appeal from the order is not lost and if the appellate Court set aside the order, the previous decree based on such order is vacated.—Khetra Nath v. Ushabata, 18 C. W. N. 381; Soudamini v. Gopal, 19 C. W. N. 948; Hari v. Lakshmi, 38 A. 390, 397; Nihal Singh v. Khushhal Singh, 38 A. 297; Lachmi Narain v. Sheonath, 42 A. 185; 54 I. C. 443; Badri Nath v. Ram Padarath, 134 I. C. 474; 8 O. W. N. 789; A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 315.

An appeal lies in a case where the reference itself is impugned for want of consent of the parties interested.—Fanindra Nath v. Dwarka Nath, 25 C. W. N. 832. See further notes under S. 104 (i) (f) of the Code.

THE THIRD SCHEDULE.

EXECUTION OF DECREES BY COLLECTORS.

Powers of Collector.

1. Where the execution of a decree has been transferred to the Collector under S. 68, he may—

- (a) proceed as the Court would proceed when the sale of immoveable property is postponed in order to enable the judgment-debtor to raise the amount of the decree, or
- (b) raise the amount of the decree by letting in perpetuity, or for a term, on payment of a premium, or by mortgaging, the whole or any part of the property ordered to be sold; or
- (c) sell the property ordered to be sold or so much thereof as may be necessary. [S. 321.]

COMMENTARY.

This para corresponds to S. 321, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The words "when the sale of immoveable property is postponed in order to enable the judgment debtor to raise the amount of the decree," have been added in Cl. (a) after the word "proceed." The other changes are merely verbal.

Payment by instalments.—A Collector, to whom a decree for sale of mortgaged property has been transferred for execution under S. 68, is limited to one of the three courses specified in this rule, and may not depart from them, much less may he do what the Court itself could not do in such a case—allow payment of the debt to be made by instalments—*Mahadaji v. GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915.

An Act to Consolidate Enactments relating to the Government of India.

(29th July, 1915)

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows ;

PART IX.

THE INDIAN HIGH COURTS.

Constitution.

101. [Ch. Act, no. 2. 19].—(1) The High Courts referred to in this Act are the High Courts of Judicature for the time being established in British India by Letters Patent.

(2) Each High Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and as many other Judges as His Majesty may think fit to appoint : Provided as follows :

(i) the Governor-General in Council may appoint persons to act as additional Judges of any High Court, for such period, not exceeding two years, as may be required ; and the Judges so appointed shall, whilst so acting, have all the powers of a Judge of the High Court appointed by His Majesty under this Act ;

(ii) the maximum number of Judges of a High Court, including the Chief Justice and additional Judges, shall be twenty.

(3) A Judge of a High Court must be—

(a) a barrister of England or Ireland, or a member of the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland, of not less than five years' standing ; or

(b) a member of the Indian Civil Service of not less than ten years' standing, and having for at least three years served as, or exercised the powers of a District Judge ; or

(c) a person having held judicial office, not inferior to that of a subordinate Judge or a Judge of a Small Cause Court, for a period of not less than five years ; or

(d) a person having been a pleader of a High Court for a period of not less than ten years.

(4) Provided that not less than one-third of the Judges of a High Court, including the Chief Justice but excluding additional Judges, must be such Barristers or Advocates as aforesaid, and that not less than one-third must be members of the Indian Civil Service.

(5) The High Court for the North-Western Provinces may be styled the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, and the High Court at Fort William in Bengal is in this Act referred to as the High Court at Calcutta.

102. [Ch. Act, s. 4].—(1) Every Judge of a High Court shall hold Tenure of office of his office during His Majesty's pleasure.
Judges of High Courts.

(2) Any such Judge may resign his office, in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, to the Governor-General in Council, and in other cases to the local Government.

103. [Ch. Act, s. 5].—(1) The Chief Justice of a High Court shall have Precedence of, Judges, rank and precedence before the other Judges of the same court.
Judges of High Courts.

(2) All the other Judges of a High Court shall have rank and precedence according to the seniority of their appointments, unless otherwise provided in their patents.

104. [Ch. Act, s. 6].—(1) The Secretary of State in Council may fix the Salaries, etc., of Judges of High Courts. (where necessary) expenses for equipment and voyage for the Chief Justices and other Judges of the several High Courts, and may alter them, but any such alteration shall not affect the salary of any Judge appointed before the date thereof.

(2) The remuneration fixed for a Judge under this section shall commence on his taking upon himself the execution of his office, and shall be the whole profit or advantage which he shall enjoy from his office during his continuance therein.

(3) If a Judge of a High Court dies during his voyage to India, or within six months after his arrival there, for the purpose of taking upon himself the execution of his office, the Secretary of State shall pay to his legal personal representative, out of the revenues of India, such a sum of money as will, with the amount received by or due to him at the time of his death on account of salary, make up the amount of one year's salary.

(4) If a Judge of a High Court dies while in possession of his office and after the expiration of six months from his arrival in India for the purpose of taking upon himself the execution of his office, the Secretary of State shall pay to his legal personal representative, out of the revenues of India, over and above the sum due to him at the time of his death, a sum equal to six months' salary.

105. [Ch. Act, s. 7].—(1) On the occurrence of a vacancy in the office of Chief Justice of a High Court, and during any absence of such a Chief Justice, the Governor-General in Council in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, and the local Government in other cases, shall appoint Provision for vacancy in the office of Chief Justice or other Judge. one of the other Judges of the same High Court to perform the duties of Chief Justice of the Court, until some person has been appointed by His Majesty to the office of Chief Justice of the Court, and has entered on the discharge of the duties of that office, or until the Chief Justice has returned from his absence, as the case requires.

(2) On the occurrence of a vacancy in the office of any other Judge of a High Court and during any absence of any such Judge, or on the appointment of any such Judge to act as Chief Justice the Governor-General in Council in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, and the local Government in other cases, may appoint a person, with such qualifications as are required in persons to be appointed to the High Court, to act as a Judge of the Court; and the person so appointed may sit and perform the duties of a Judge of the Court until some person has been appointed by His Majesty to the office of Judge of the Court, and has entered on the discharge of the duties of the office or until the absent Judge has returned from his absence, or until the Governor-General in Council or the local Government, as the case may be, sees cause to cancel the appointment of the acting Judge.

Jurisdiction.

106. [Ch. Act, s. 9].—(1) The several High Courts are Courts of record and have such jurisdiction, original and appellate, including admiralty jurisdiction in respect of offences committed on the high seas, and all such powers and authority over or in relation to the administration of justice, including power to appoint clerks and other ministerial officers of the Court, and power to make rules for regulating the Practice of the Court, as are vested in them by Letters Patent, and, subject to the provisions of any such Letters Patent, all such jurisdiction, powers and authority as are vested in those Courts respectively at the commencement of this Act.

(2) [21 Geo. 3, c. 70].—The High Courts have not and may not exercise any original jurisdiction in any matter concerning the revenue, or concerning any act ordered or done in the collection thereof according to the usage and practice of the country or the law for the time being in force.

107. [Ch. Act, s. 15].—Each of the High Courts has superintendence over all courts for the time being subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and may do any of the following things, that is to say,— Powers of High Court with respect to subordinate courts.

- (a) call for returns;
- (b) direct the transfer of any suit or appeal from any such Court to any other Court of equal or superior jurisdiction;
- (c) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such Courts;
- (d) prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such Courts; and
- (e) settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff, attorneys, and all clerks and officers of Courts;

Provided that such rules, forms and tables shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of any Act for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval, in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, of the Governor-General in Council, and in other cases of the local Government.

108. [Ch. Act, ss. 13, 14].—(1) Each High Court may by its own rules provide as it thinks fit for the exercise, by one or more Judges, or by division Courts constituted by two or more Judges of the High Court of the original and appellate jurisdiction vested in the Court.

(2) The Chief Justice of the High Court shall determine what Judge in each case is to sit alone, and what Judges of the Court, whether with or without the Chief Justice, are to constitute the several division Courts.

109. [28 & 29 Viet., c. 15, ss. 3, 4, 6].—(1) The Governor-General in Council may, by order, transfer any territory or place from the jurisdiction of one to the jurisdiction of any other of the High Courts, and authorise any High Court to exercise all or any portion of its jurisdiction in any part of British India not included within the limits for which the High Court was established, and also to exercise any such jurisdiction in respect of Christian subjects of His Majesty resident in any part of India outside British India.

(2) The Governor-General in Council shall transmit to the Secretary of State an authentic copy of every order made under this section.

(3) His Majesty may signify, through the Secretary of State in Council his disallowance of any such order, and such disallowance shall make void and annul the order as from the day on which the Governor-General notifies that he has received intimation of the disallowance, but no act done by any High Court before such notification shall be deemed invalid by reason only of such disallowance.

110. [13 Geo. III, c. 63, ss. 15, 17; 21 Geo. III, c. 70, s. 1; 37 Geo. III, c. 142, s. 11; 39 & 40 Geo. III, c. 79, s. 3; 4 Geo. IV, c. 41, s. 7].—(1) The Governor-General, each Governor, and each of the members of their respective executive councils, shall not—

Exemption from Jurisdiction of High Court.

(a) be subject to the original jurisdiction of any High Court by reason of anything counselled, ordered or done by any of them in his public capacity only; nor

(b) be liable to be arrested or imprisoned in any suit or proceeding in any High Court acting in the exercise of its original jurisdiction; nor

(c) be subject to the original criminal jurisdiction of any High Court in respect of any offence not being treason or felony.

(2) The exemption under this section from liability to arrest and imprisonment shall extend also to the Chief Justices and other Judges of the several High Courts.

111. [21 Geo. III, c. 70, ss. 2, 3, 4].—The order in writing of the Governor-General in Council for any act, shall, in any proceeding, civil or criminal, in any High Court acting in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, be a full justification of the act, except so far as the order extends to any European British subject; but nothing in this section shall exempt the Governor-General, or any member of his executive council, or any person acting under their orders, from any proceedings in respect of any such act before any competent Court in England.

Written order by Governor-General Justification for act in any court in India.

Law to be administered.

112. [21 Geo. III, c. 70, s. 17; 37 Geo. III, c. 142, s. 13].—The High Courts at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, in the exercise of their original jurisdiction in suits against inhabitants of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, as the case may be, shall, in matters of inheritance and succession to lands, rents and goods, and in matters of contract and dealing between party and party, when both parties are subject to the same personal law or custom having the force of law, decide Law to be administered in cases of inheritance and succession.

according to that personal law or custom, and when the parties are subject to different personal laws or customs having the force of law, decide according to the law or custom to which the defendant is subject.

Additional High Courts.

113. His Majesty may, if he sees fit, by Letters Patent, establish a High Court of Judicature in any territory in British India, whether or not included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court and confer on any High Court so established any such jurisdiction, powers and authority as are vested in or may be conferred on any High Court existing at the commencement of this Act; and where a High Court is so established in any area included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court, His Majesty may, by Letters Patent, alter those limits, and make such incidental, consequential and supplemental provisions as may appear to be necessary by reason of the alteration.

Advocate-General

114 [53 Geo. III, c. 155, s. 111; 21 & 22 Vict., c. 106, s. 29].—(1) His Majesty may, by warrant under His Royal Sign Manual, appoint an Advocate-General for each of the presidencies of Bengal, Madras and Bombay.

(2) The Advocate-General for each of those presidencies may take on behalf of His Majesty such proceedings as may be taken by His Majesty's Attorney-General in England.

DESPATCH FROM THE SECRETARY OF STATE

SIR CHARLES WOOD'S DESPATCH ACCOMPANYING THE :FIRST LETTERS PATENT OR CHARTER.

Judical, No. 24

INDIA OFFICE,
London, 14th May, 1862

To

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

MY LORD,

I HEREWITH transmit to you the Letters Patent or Charter 1, under the Royal Sign Manual, for the High Court of Judicature to be established in Bengal in accordance with the provisions of the Act 24 and 25, Victoria, Chapter 104, for establishing High Court of Judicature in India, and request that you will take immediate measure for instituting the Court, the first Judges of which, including those appointed under the 3rd section of the Act, are designated in the second clause of the Charter. Those appointed by the Crown will be severally informed by me of their appointments to the Court.

2. This Charter will accomplish the great object which has so long been contemplated, of substituting for the Supreme and Sudder Courts abolished by the Act of High Court of Judicature, possessing the combined powers and authorities of the abolished Courts and exercising jurisdiction both over the Provinces under the Sudder Court and over the Presidency Town which forms the local jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.

3. Before I review the provisions in detail, it is necessary that I should direct your attention to the general scope and main provisions of the Act in question.

4. It abolishes, in the first place (as soon as the Charter shall issue) the Supreme Court and the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut. It vests in the High Court (by the last provision of section 9) the powers and authorities of those Courts respectively, except so far as the Crown may by such Charter otherwise direct. And (by the first part of the same section) it invests the High Court with such Civil, Criminal, Admiralty, Vice-Admiralty, Testamentary, Intestate and Matrimonial Jurisdiction, and all such powers and authority in relation to the administration of justice in the Presidency, as the same Charter may confer. With respect, therefore, to the fusion of the Supreme and Sudder Courts, it appears obvious that the Act itself speaks, and that to assume and effect the same purpose by affirmative declaration in the Charter would be superfluous. It has been, consequently, deemed unnecessary that the Charter should exhibit on the face of it an explicit statement of the powers and jurisdiction to be possessed by the new Court in consequence of the fusion as would have been the proper course if these powers and jurisdiction had been entirely new. Recourse has been had in some places in lieu of such explicit statement to reference to statutory provisions, and in others, to the Charter of the Supreme Court when the object of clearness appeared to require it. But wherever the Charter does not otherwise specify, the High Court will use the powers and administer the jurisprudence appertaining to those Courts respectively to whose authority it now succeeds.

1. The Letters Patent, dated the 14th May, 1862, forwarded with this despatch were afterwards revoked by further Letters Patent, dated 28th December, 1865, for which see post.

5. But the Charter is intended positively to declare all such Civil, Criminal and other jurisdictions above specified as the Crown thinks proper by this Charter to confer on it supplementary or additional to its main purpose, namely, the fusion of the afore-said Courts.

6. Moreover, the words giving authority to confer on the Court such jurisdiction and such powers and authorities for the administration of justice as the Crown may direct, appear very large and such as, in point of fact, invest the Crown with extensive legislative powers, so far as "the administration of justice," within the meaning of the sections, may require. It has been however, thought best to use this power very sparingly and simply as ancillary to the real purpose of the Act, namely, the establishment of new Courts.

7. Another reason for the form which the present Letters Patent assume, is to be found in the provisions of section 17 of the Act of last Sessions. By that section power is given to the Crown to recall the Letters Patent establishing the Court at any time within three years after its establishment, and to grant other Letters Patent in their stead. This provision was inserted in the Act, mainly with the view of enabling Her Majesty's Government to avail themselves of the advice and assistance of the Judges of the Court in framing the more perfect Charter by which the jurisdiction and authority of the Court is to be permanently fixed. On this point, I request you will put yourselves in communication with the Judges of the Court, and, at any time previous to the expiration of two years from the date of establishment of the Court, furnish me with any suggestions they make, or any amendments they may propose in the Letters Patent now transmitted, and I shall be glad if, in proposing alterations the Judges will put their recommendations as nearly as possible in the form in which they wish them to appear in the future Letters Patent.

8. I proceed to notice, in order, such of the provisions of the Charter as appear to me call for special remark.

9. By clause 6, power is given to the Chief Justice to appoint the officers of the Court, and to fix their salaries subject, however,
Clause 6. in both cases, to the approval and confirmation of the Governor-General in Council. This provision does not refer to the settling of tables of fees, where fees are allowed, which under section 15 of the Act, is required to be done by the Court.

10. The Supreme Court exercise an authority entirely independent of the Government in regard to its ministerial officers. The Government, however, has always considered itself at liberty to receive representations from any of the officers of the Sudder or Subordinate Courts who felt themselves aggrieved by the orders of the Judicial Authorities, and to express its opinion on the propriety or otherwise of the proceedings of the Courts in such cases. It will be expedient for you to take the question into your consideration, and, after communication with the Court, to adopt some rule in regard to it, which, of course, must be uniformly applicable to all the officers of the Court. Constituted as the High Court will be, it will merit all the confidence you can repose in it; but as a question of policy, the extension of the liberty of application to the Government to those who have not hitherto enjoyed it appears to me preferable to taking it away from those who have heretofore been permitted to avail themselves of it, as a mode of obtaining redress against proceedings alleged by the applicants to be unjust and oppressive.

11. In regard to the admission of Advocates, Vakeels, and Attorneys, the recommendations of the Law Commissioners have been followed. Under the existing practice, the advocate pleads, and the Attorney acts, for the suitors of the Supreme Court, and the Vakeel both pleads and acts for the suitors of the Sudder Court, of which Court the Advocate and Attorney of the Supreme Court are ex-officio Vakeels. These terms are employed in the Charter simply to express the functions of these several classes of practitioners. The Advocate and Attorney will respectively plead and act in the High Court and the Vakeel will both plead and act in the High Court as he did in the Sudder Court. Any person may apply to be admitted either as an Advocate, or Vakeel, or Attorney under the rules which the Court is authorized by the Charter to make, and there is nothing in the Charter to prevent the admission of Advocates and Attorneys to be also Vakeels of the High Court, should the Judges consider such a course to be expedient.

12. The provisions in the Act, section 2, clause 4, which declares that Pleaders of the Sudder Court, "who shall have been admitted as Pleaders of the High Court," shall be eligible, under certain conditions, to the Bench of the Court, implies that a discretionary power may be exercised as to the admission of the present Pleaders of the Sudder Court to the Bar of the High Court. This enactment will account to you for the omission from the Charter of any provision appointing all the present practitioners of the Supreme and Sudder Courts to the High Court. I conclude, however, that unless in any special cases there are strong reasons to the contrary, the Court will admit the whole of the practitioners in the abolished Courts at the date of their abolition, to be the first Advocates, Vakeels and Attorneys of the High Court.

13. With reference to the concluding sentence of clause 10, it is to be observed that the Letters Patent contain no provision reserving to the Attorneys of the present Supreme Court the right of pleading after the issue of this Charter in the Insolvent Court, as newly regulated by clause 17. No such provision, however, is necessary, as the Insolvent Court is a separate tribunal not affected by the Act authorising the Letters Patent and will continue a separate Court though, for the future, presided over by a Judge of the High Court. The Attorneys, therefore, will as heretofore, practice in accordance with the rules of the Insolvent Court itself.

14. By the important provisions contained in the clauses of the Charter, 11 to 38 inclusive, effect is given to the 9th section of the Act, respecting the jurisdictions and powers to be exercised by the High Court.

15. The original civil jurisdiction now exercised by the Supreme Court within the limits of the Presidency Town will henceforth be exercised under the Charter, by the High Court, including in that term (Clause 36 of the Charter) a Judge or Division Court of the High Court, appointed or constituted under the provisions of the 13th section of the Act.

16. As it is very desirable that every suit should be instituted in the Court of the district in which the property forming the subject of dispute is situated, or in which the cause of action has its origin, or in which the defendant resides or carries on business; the jurisdiction hitherto exercised by the Supreme Court (on the ground of constructive inhabitancy or otherwise) over persons and property beyond the local limits of the Presidency

Town, but within the limits of the Presidency or Division subject to the authority of the High Court has not been vested in the High Court. The concluding provision of clause 11 provides that the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the Court shall be confined to the local limits of the Presidency Town, with power, however, to the Court, under clause 13, to call for and try any suit instituted in any Court subject to its superintendence, when, for reasons to be recorded, it shall think proper to do so.

17. The terms of clause 12, defining the original jurisdiction of the High Court as to suits, are nearly similar to those employed in section 5 of the Code of Civil procedure (Act VIII of 1859), and are intended to include every description of case over which the Mofussil Courts have jurisdiction. By the 8th section of the 21st George III. C. 70, the Supreme Court is precluded from exercising any jurisdiction in any matter concerning the revenue. Further, a decision* of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, pronounced in April 1856, ruled against the exercise of the Ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in matters matrimonial between others than Christians, and even expressed some hesitation as to whether that Court should administer a remedy in such cases on the Civil side. It is one object of the present Charter to do away with all such restrictions and limitations as far as this can be done without trenching on the proper province of legislation. It has, therefore, been sought to invest the High Court, in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction, with as ample powers in receiving and determining cases of every description, and in applying a remedy to every wrong as are exercised by the Courts not established by Royal Charter, and thus to place the Court of first instance in the Presidency Towns and in the interior of the country in this respect, as nearly as may be, on the same footing.

18. I shall be glad to be furnished with your opinion, after consultation with the Judges of the Courts, as to the concluding portion of clause 12, excluding the jurisdiction of the Court in regard to cases falling within the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court of Calcutta, in which the debt or damage or value of the property sued for does not exceed 100 Rupees. Hitherto, I believe, there has been no tendency to bring into the Supreme Court cases cognizable by the Small Cause Court, but should it appear that under the new system, the time of the High Court is unnecessarily taken up with trying cases which might be instituted in the Small Cause Court, it may become a question for consideration whether the sum, excluding the jurisdiction of the High Court, might not be raised to, say, 300 or 500 Rupees.

19. It has been suggested that the Small Cause Court should be placed on the same footing as a Zillah Court in its subjection to the High Court as a Court of appeal and general superintendence. But I do not consider that it was the purpose of the Act of Parliament of last Session that the Crown, in framing a Charter under it for the High Court, should interfere with the present position and jurisdiction of other and independent Courts. This subject, if desirable, is properly to be attained by legislation. Should you be of opinion that the Small Cause Court ought to be placed in the same relation to the High Court as any other Court subject to its appellate jurisdiction and general control, the measure can be carried into effect by an Act of the Governor-General in Council.

20. As already observed, the effect of clause 12 will be to confine the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court within narrower limits than the Civil jurisdiction exercised by the Supreme Court. By clause 13, however, the High Court is empowered to call for and to try, as a Court of first instance, any suit which the law requires to be instituted before some other tribunal. By the exercise of the power thus conferred on it, the High Court will be enabled to obviate all reasonable ground of complaint, when it shall deem that any hardship or injustice is likely to result from the compulsory institution in a Zillah Court of a suit which, but for the change in the system, might have been instituted in the Supreme Court.

21. The introduction of the words "whether within or without the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William" in this and in several other clauses, may appear to require explanation. The Court about to be established is called in section 2 of the Act, 24 and 25 Victoria, C. 104, a Court "for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William." That title is, of course, preserved in the Charter. By section 8, the Supreme and Sudder Courts are abolished and by section 9 all their jurisdiction, power, and authority, except when otherwise provided, are vested in the High Court. But the Supreme Court has various original jurisdictions, extending over the whole of the Presidency of Fort William, and also over some of the Non-Regulation Provinces under the Government of India, and the Sudder Court has various appellate jurisdictions extending over the Bengal Division of the Presidency, and also over the Province of Assam and others, which are not properly parts of the Presidency. The result is, that the High Court "for the Bengal Division," succeeding to the powers of both the Supreme and the Sudder Courts, has, in several respects, jurisdictions in territories not within the Bengal Division. As this is the result of the Act, it might not have been necessary to notice it in the Charter. But for the sake of clearness, and in order to show distinctly that the Charter is meant to apply to these extra local jurisdictions, as well as to the strictly local jurisdiction within the Bengal Division, it has been deemed advisable to introduce these words.

22. Clauses 14 and 15 give effect to the recommendation of the Law Commissioners, that the High Court shall have all the appellate jurisdiction which is now exercised by the Sudder Dewany Adawlut, and a new appellate jurisdiction in Civil cases, from the Courts of original jurisdiction, constituted by one or more of its own Judges, except that in the case of a decision which has been passed by a majority of the full number of the judges of the Court, the appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council.

23. It will appear, from a subsequent clause on the Letters Patent, that the proceedings in the High Court in civil cases are to be regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure enacted by the Legislature of India, of which Act XXIII of 1861 forms a part. By section 23 of the last mentioned Indian Act, provision has been made for a difference of opinion on the hearing of an appeal. A difficulty, however, may occur when two Judges, constituting a Division Court for the trial of cases in the exercise of original jurisdiction, differ as to the judgment to be given. For such a case, the Code of Civil Procedure, which is adapted to Courts of first instance presided over by single Judges only, contains no provision. To call in a third Judge, and to re-try the case, with a view to a judgment from which there may be an appeal to the High Court under clause 14 would be productive of unnecessary delay and expense to the parties; and I am of opinion that the Court should make provision for such a contingency, by a rule made under the 13th section of the Act of Parliament, providing either that the judgment shall be in accordance with the opinion of the senior of the Judges constituting the Division Court, or that the final judgment shall be entered pro forma, according to such opinion, such judgment being a judgment for the purpose of an appeal against the same, but not for any other purpose.

24. The substantive civil law to be administered by the High Court within the jurisdiction of the Supreme and Sudder Courts, respectively, will, until otherwise provided, continue as at present. This, as I have said, it was no part of the purpose of the Act of Parliament or Charter to effect. And the clauses on which I am now commenting are probably superfluous. But they have been introduced to obviate any apprehension which might have been entertained that in fusing the two Courts together, it was intended to fuse also the law which they have respectively hitherto administered, and thus to make a substantial innovation, not only in the tribunals for administration of the law but of the law itself. I trust, however, that measures may be taken ere long for effecting great improvements in this respect, by enacting for the British possessions in India a body of substantive law, by which all classes shall be governed, and all transactions shall be regulated except in cases to which our Judicatures are required to apply the personal laws of any classes of our Indian subjects.

25. Under clauses 21, 22, and 38, no change will be effected by the Charter in the administration of criminal justice in the Presidency Town or in respect of persons subject to its criminal jurisdiction, residing in the interior of the country. It appears, however, to Her Majesty's Government that some modification of the existing practice, both at the capital and in the provinces, is necessary and on these points I shall address you in a separate despatch.

26. The Sudder Court exercises no original jurisdiction, but by clause 23, original criminal jurisdiction, throughout the territories subject to its authority, has been given to the High Court, the principal object being to enable the Judges to hold trials for offences committed out of the Presidency Town, at which from their importance or for other specific cause, it may be expedient that a Judge or Judges of the High Court should preside.

27. The remaining clauses of the Letter Patent on the subject of the criminal jurisdiction of the High Court do not call for any particular notice. They contain no special provisions respecting the transfer to that Court of the criminal jurisdiction exercised by the Supreme Court over inhabitants of such parts of India as are not comprised within the local limits of the Letters Patent that having been fully provided for by section 10 of the Act under the authority of which the High Court is established.

28. As in the case of the Small Cause Court, you will consult the Judges in regard to the relation in which the High Court is to stand to the Magistrates of Calcutta.

29. Clause 30, respecting the exercise of the jurisdiction by the High Court elsewhere than at its ordinary place of sitting is a very important provision and one which, I have no doubt, if judiciously carried into effect, will materially tend to the greater efficiency of all the judicatories subject to the superintendence and authority of the High Court. Circumstances may frequently arise when the deputation of a Judge or Judges of the High Court would be a measure of the highest expediency. For such cases the clause under consideration will enable the Government to provide by deputing one or more Judges from the High Court, who would avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded them of making a searching inquiry into the manner in which the local Courts were performing their duties.

30. With reference to this clause, it has been considered whether the precedence of section 14 of the Act of Parliament should not be followed and the authority to make the necessary arrangement for exercise of the Court's jurisdiction out of the usual place of sitting vested in the Chief Justice. On the whole, it was thought that acts partaking so much of an administrative character might be more perfectly performed by the Governor-General in Council. But it is scarcely for me to add that Her Majesty's Government entertain full confidence that the Chief Justice will be the authority habitually consulted in the matter.

31. The Supreme Court exercises at present, Admiralty Jurisdiction under its Charter. The Chief Justice has Vice-Admiralty Jurisdiction under the commission of the 19th July, 1822, and all or any of the Judges of the Supreme Court may be appointed Commissioners, under the provisions of 39 and 40, George III, C. 79, section 25, for the trial and adjudication of prize causes and other maritime questions arising in India. By the present Charter, the whole of these jurisdictions and power will be vested in the High Court, and as in the Act above cited, by the expression "other maritime questions" in general, mention is made of all the jurisdictions conferred as above-mentioned in the clauses of the Charter, providing both for the civil and criminal maritime jurisdiction of the High Court.

32. The clauses respecting testamentary and intestate jurisdiction do not call for any remark.

33. Her Majesty's Government are desirous of placing the Christian subjects of the Crown within the Presidency in the same position under the High Court, as to "matters matrimonial" in general as they now are under the Supreme Court, and this they believe to be effected by clause 35 of the Charter. But they consider it expedient that the High Court should possess, in addition, the power of decreeing divorce, which the Supreme Court does not possess, in other words, that the High Court should have the same jurisdiction as the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England, established in virtue of 20 and 21 Vic. C. 85, and in regard to which further provisions were made by 22 and 23 Vic. C. 61, and 23 and 24 Vic. C. 144. The Act of Parliament for establishing the High Court, however, does not purport to give to the Crown the power of importing into the Charter all the provisions of the Divorce Court Act, and some of them the Crown clearly could not so import, such, for instance, as those which prescribe the period of remarriage, or those which exempt from punishment clergymen refusing to re-marry adulterers. All these are, in truth, matters for Indian legislation and I request that you will immediately take the subject into your consideration and introduce into your Council a Bill for conferring upon the High Court the jurisdiction and powers of the Divorce Court in England, one of the provisions of which should be to give an appeal to the Privy Council in those cases in which the Divorce Court Act gives an appeal to the House of Lords.

34. The object of the proviso at the end of clause 35 is to obviate any doubt that may possibly arise as to whether, by vesting the High Court with the powers of the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England, it was intended to take away from the Courts within the divisions of the Presidency not established by Royal Charter any jurisdiction which they might have in matters Matrimonial, as, for instance, in a suit for alimony between Armenians or Native Christians. With any such jurisdiction it is not intended to interfere.

35. Clause 36 refers to the powers of single Judges and Division Courts appointed or constituted under the provisions of the 13th section of the Act. By section 14 of the Act, the power of determining from time to time what Judge in each case shall sit alone, and what Judges shall constitute Division Courts, is placed in the hands of the Chief Justice. It will be observed that the law does not require that a Judge selected from the Bar shall necessarily form a part of every Division Court, and it will be for the Chief Justice to consider whether, in cases exclusively between Natives, it will not be desirable to follow, as far as possible, the course which has already been resolved upon in regard to the cases under appeal to the Sudder Court at the time of its abolition, and to constitute the Division Court of Judges trained in the country, whose knowledge of the Native language will obviate the expense and delay of translating the proceedings.

36. Clause 37 is a very important one, and there is little doubt, will prove a very salutary provision. It has, therefore, been inserted, although the change introduced is somewhat greater and more substantial than is generally aimed at in this Charter. It extends to the High Court the Code of Civil procedure enacted by the Legislature of India for the Court, not established by Royal Charter, and thus accomplishes the object so long contemplated of substituting one simple Code of procedure for the various systems (corresponding to its common law, equity and admiralty jurisdiction) which have been in operation in the Supreme Court since the date of its establishment.

37. In regard to the rules respecting appeals to the Privy Council the object has been to avoid unnecessary innovation where so much of change, with its necessary inconvenience, is unavoidable. The existing rules which regulate these appeals are, therefore, left in force, with one or two additions only, which experience in the Court of the Judicial Committee has found advisable. For instance, clause 40 is introduced, as it had been commonly introduced, of late years in the appeal rules of other dependencies of Great Britain in order to remove all doubts as to the power of the High Court to allow an appeal to the Council from interlocutory judgments.

38. It will, however, be obvious to you that the rules, as now framed, will be liable to the reproach of confusion, and perhaps of uncertainty. They will be compounded of those contained in the Charter and those already in force which will necessitate reference to several documents. You will agree with me that a simple and intelligible Code of Rules, to regulate appeals to the Privy Council from the new High Courts, or rather from the High Courts in general which may be constituted under the Act of Parliament will be of great advantage to the suitors and the public. I should wish, therefore, that one of the first objects of the Judges, as soon as the amount of labour thrown on them by their new position may allow it, might be to prepare suggestions for such a Code of Rules, which might then be reduced into a complete shape by the authority of the Privy Council at Home.

39. In forwarding the Letters Patent to the Judges of the High Court, you are requested to furnish them with a copy of this despatch. I trust that the Letters Patent taken in connection with the Act for establishing the Court, will be found to contain everything requisite for enabling the Court, to proceed at once to the discharge of its important duties. It is possible that omissions may be discovered by the legal authorities in India which may impede the proper action of the Courts, and should the Judges represent to you that such is the case you will take immediate steps for supplying what is wanting by such legislative measures as you may consider most expedient for remedying the defects brought under your consideration.

40. I cannot conclude this despatch without expressing the deep interest felt by Her Majesty's Government in the success of this important measure. The Crown by its Letters Patent has sanctioned the establishment of a tribunal as the Chief Court of Justice in India, which in the trained learning of the Judges selected from the Bar, and in the knowledge of the language, feelings, and habits of the Natives of that country possessed by the other members of the Court, combines the most material elements of success. And Her Majesty's Government look with confidence to the zealous exertions and cordial co-operation of the Judges to place the administration of Justice in India, under the controlling authority of the Court, in such a state of efficiency as will render it in every respect adequate to its ends, and satisfactory to the people and to the Government.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,

(Sd.) C. WOOD.

GEORGE THE FIFTH, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India, To all to whom these Presents shall come, greeting. WHEREAS by an Act of Parliament passed in the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Years of the Reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and called the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, it was amongst other things enacted by section one, that it should be lawful for Her Majesty, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, to erect and establish a High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William; and, by section two, that such High Court should consist of a Chief Justice and as many Judges, not exceeding fifteen, as Her Majesty might, from time to time, think fit to appoint, who should be selected from among persons qualified as in the said Act was declared; and by section eight, that upon the establishment of such High Court as aforesaid the Supreme Court and the Court of Sadar Diwani Adalat and Sadar Nizamat Adalat at Calcutta, in the said Presidency, should be abolished;

and by section nine, that the High Court of Judicature so to be established should have and exercise all such civil, criminal, admiralty, and vice-admiralty, testamentary, intestate and matrimonial jurisdiction, original and appellate, and all such powers and authority for and in relation to the administration of justice in the said Presidency as Her Majesty might by such Letters Patent as aforesaid grant and direct, subject, however, to such directions and limitations, as to the exercise of original civil and criminal jurisdiction beyond the limits of the Presidency town, as might be prescribed, thereby; and that, save as by such Letters Patent might be otherwise directed, and, subject and without prejudice to the legislative powers in relation to the matters aforesaid of the Governor-General of India in Council, the High Court so to be established should have and exercise all jurisdiction, and every power and authority whatsoever in any manner vested in any of the Courts in the same Presidency abolished under the said Act at the time of the abolition of such last-mentioned Courts;

121. Animals attached and committed as aforesaid shall not be released from custody by the pound-keeper except on the written order of the court, or of the attaching officer, or of the officer appointed to conduct the sale; the person receiving the animals, on their being so released, shall sign a receipt for them in the register mentioned in rule 118.

122. For the safe custody of moveable property other than live-stock while under attachment, the attaching officer shall, subject to approval by the court, make such arrangements as may be most convenient and economical.

Provided that, where the amount does not exceed Rs. 5, it may be paid to him by money order on requisition by the Amin, and the presentation of the certificate may be dispensed with.

26. When in consequence of an order of attachment being withdrawn or for some other reason, the person has not been employed or has remained in possession of the property for a shorter time than that for which payment has been made in respect of his services, the fee paid shall be refunded in whole or in part, as the case may be.

A receipt that the same has been paid into the Treasury as rent for the use of the pound, will be recorded on the extract from the pass-book.

29. The cost of preparing attached property for sale, or of conveying it to the place where it is to be kept or sold, shall be payable by the decree-holder to the attaching officer. In the event of the decree-holder failing to provide the necessary funds, the attaching officer shall report his default to the court, and the court may thereupon issue an order for the withdrawal of the attachment and direct by whom the costs of the attachment are to be paid.

30. Nothing in these rules shall be deemed to prevent the court from issuing and serving on the judgment-debtor simultaneously the notices required by Order XXI, rules 22, 66 and 107.

Garnishee orders.

31. The court may, in the case of any debt, due to the judgment-debtor other than a debt secured by a mortgage or a charge or a negotiable instrument, or a debt recoverable only in a revenue court, or any moveable property not in the possession of the judgment-debtor, issue a notice to any person (hereinafter called the garnishee) liable to pay such debt, or to render an account for such moveable property, calling upon him to appear before the court and show cause why he should not pay or deliver into court the debt due from or the property deliverable by him to such judgment-debtor, so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree and the cost of execution.

32. If the garnishee does not forthwith or within such time as the court may allow, pay or deliver into court the amount due from or the property deliverable by him to the judgment-debtor, or so much as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree and the cost of execution, and does not dispute his liability to pay such debt or deliver such moveable property, or if he does appear in answer to the notice, then the court may order the garnishee to comply with the terms of such notice, and on such order execution may be as though such order were a decree against him.

33. If the garnishee disputes his liability the court, instead of making an order, may order that any issue or question necessary for determining his liability be tried as though it were an issue in a suit; and upon the determination of such issue shall pass such order upon the notice as shall be just.

131. Whenever in any proceedings under these rules it is alleged, or appears to the court to be probable that the debt or property attached or sought to be attached belongs to some third person or that any third person has a lien or charge upon, or an interest in it, the court may order such third person to appear and state the nature of his claim, if any, upon such debt or property and prove the same, if necessary.

135. After hearing such third person, and any other person who may subsequently be ordered to appear, or in the case of such third or other person not appearing when ordered, the court may pass such order as is hereinbefore provided or make such other order as it shall think fit, upon such terms in all cases with respect to the lien, charge or interest, if any, of such third or other person as to such court shall seem just and reasonable.

136. Payment or delivery made by the garnishee whether in execution of an order under these rules or otherwise shall be a valid discharge to him as against the judgment-debtor, or any other person ordered to appear as aforesaid, for the amount paid, delivered or realized although such order or the judgment may be set aside or reversed.

137. Debts owing from a firm carrying on business within the jurisdiction of the court may be attached under these rules, although one or more members of such firm may be resident out of the jurisdiction: Provided that any person having the control or management of the partnership business or any member of the firm within the jurisdiction is served with the garnishee order. An appearance by any member pursuant to an order shall be a sufficient appearance by the firm.

138. The costs of any application under these rules and of any proceedings arising therefrom or incidental thereto, or any order made thereon, shall be in the discretion of the court.

139. (1) Where the liability of any garnishee has been tried and determined under these rules, the order shall have the same force and be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise as if it were a decree.

(2) Orders not covered by clause (1) shall be appealable as orders made in execution.

Illustration.—An application for a garnishee order is dismissed either on the ground that the debt is secured by a charge or that there is no prima facie evidence of debt due. This order is appealable as an order in execution.

140. All the rules in this Code relating to service upon either plaintiffs or defendants at the address filed or subsequently altered under Order VII or Order VIII shall apply to all proceedings taken under Order XXI or section 47.

The following form shall be used under the provisions of rule 131 of order XXI:—

(1) Before issuing a warrant for the attachment of moveable property which it will be necessary to place in charge of one or more peons, permanent or temporary, the Court shall satisfy itself that the attaching decree-holder has produced a receipt in Form 15A, Appendix E, from the Bailiff that he has paid in cash as process-fees under rule 17 (1) (c) (ii) (2) of the Process Fees Rules not less than Rs. 10, for each person who the Bailiff considers should be employed.

(2) In sending the warrant for execution to the Bailiff the Court Clerk shall certify at the foot of the warrant that the receipt granted by the Bailiff for the necessary fees has been filed in the record, the Bailiff shall then endorse on the warrant the name of the process-server to whom it is issued for execution. If a temporary peon is employed for the custody of the attached property, the process-server shall state in his report of the attachment the name of temporary peon employed and the date from which his duties commenced.

(3) At the time of granting the receipt in Form 15A, for payments made by the decree-holder as required by sub-rule (1), the Bailiff shall state in the lower portion of the form the date on which the fees paid will be exhausted, warning the decree-holder that the property will not be kept under attachment after that date, unless further fees are paid before that date.

If the further fees required are not paid, the attachment shall cease as soon as the period for which fees have already been paid expires. In such a case the amount paid prior to the cessation of the attachment shall not be allowed to the attaching decree-holder as costs.

(4) The payment of fees under sub-rule (1) shall be made in cash to the Bailiff and the amount shall be at once entered in Bailiff's Register No. II. The Court Clerk shall on receipt of the Bailiff's acknowledgment (Form 15A) file it in the record and make an entry to that effect in the diary.

(5) Temporary peons employed for the custody of attached property shall be remunerated at the rate provided for in rule 15 of the rules regarding process-serving establishments, provided that the total remuneration disbursed shall in no case exceed the amount of the process-fees actually paid under the foregoing sub-rules.

Permanent peons shall be presumed to be remunerated at the same rate as temporary peons but if the services of the former are utilised, the fees paid shall be credited direct into the Treasury to 'Process-Servers' Fees'—'XVI-A, Law and Justice'—'Court-fees realized in cash.'

(6) The remuneration of temporary peons employed to take charge of attached property shall be paid direct by the Bailiff to them on the order of the Judge.

Before passing such order, the Judge must verify the name of the payee from the report of the attachment and must satisfy himself that the amount proposed to be paid does not exceed the amount of the fees deposited with the Bailiff, or, if any payments have already been made in the case, of the unexpended balance of such deposits, and that all amounts previously drawn have been disbursed to the proper persons.

(7) When the order has been signed by the Judge, the money shall be disbursed by the Bailiff at once to the peon or peons concerned, whose acknowledgment of receipt shall be taken in Bailiff's Register II. If, however, the amount has been transferred to Bailiff's Register I, the Bailiff shall draw the amount necessary for payment from the Treasury as if it were a re-payment of deposit and shall then disburse the amount due to the peon or peons concerned, whose acknowledgment of receipt shall be taken in Bailiff's Register I.

(8) When the attachment is brought to a close or has not been effected, if the Judge finds, at the time of calculating the amount paid in and properly chargeable for peons, that the total amount of the fees actually paid under sub-rules (1) and (3) exceeds the total amount that is chargeable for peons including the amount of the last payment, he shall direct that the excess be refunded to the payer.

(9) The Judge shall in all cases in which a refund is to be made, issue to the Bailiff an order, a copy of which shall be placed on the record to make such refund.

If a sufficient portion of the amount paid by the decree-holder to pay such refund is in the hands of the Bailiff that officer shall make the refund in the ordinary way prescribed in his Register II for re-payments. If the amount has been credited into the Treasury, he shall prepare a bill for the amount to be refunded in the prescribed treasury form and shall lay it before the Judge for signature with the record of the case in the same way as a bill for the remuneration of temporary peons. Before signing the refund order, the Judge must satisfy himself that the amount is available for refund by examining Bailiff's Register I and the record. The bill when signed by the Judge will be given to the payee, with instructions to present it for payment at the Treasury or Sub-Treasury.

45B. (7) In addition to the fees payable before a warrant issues for the attachment of moveable property under rule 45A the Bailiff shall require the attaching decree-holder to deposit a sum of money sufficient to cover the cost of attachment other than the pay of peons employed to take charge of it, for such period as the Bailiff may think fit.

Explanation.—The cost in question might be for example, (a) Rent of building in which to store attached furniture, (b) Cost of conveying the attached property from the place of attachment to Court or to a secure place of custody, (c) Cost of feeding and tending live-stock, (d) Cost of proceeding to the place of attachment to sell perishable property.

(2) If the attaching decree-holder fails to comply with the Bailiff's requisition the warrant shall not be issued.

(8) Sums thus deposited shall be entered in the Bailiff's Registers I and II and any re-payments thereof shall be made according to existing orders. A receipt for such sums shall be granted by the Bailiff in Form 15A, Appendix E.

(4) In the receipt given for the sums deposited, the Bailiff shall state the period for which such sums will last, and if the attaching decree-holder does not deposit a further sum before the expiry of such period, the attachment shall cease when the sum deposited is exhausted.

(5) The officer actually attaching the property, shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, give the debtor, or, in his absence, any adult member of his family who may be present, the option of having the attached property kept on his premises or elsewhere, on condition that a suitable place for its safe custody is duly provided. The option so given may be subsequently withdrawn by order of the Court.

Where the attached property consists of cattle these may be employed, so far as is consistent with rule 43, in agricultural operations.

(6) If no such suitable place be provided, or if the Court directs that the property shall be removed, the officer shall remove the property to the Court, unless the property attached is a growing crop, when rule 45 applies. Whenever live-stock is placed at the place it has been attached, the judgment-debtor shall be at liberty to undertake the due feeding and tending of it under the supervision of the attaching officer.

(7) Whenever property is attached, the officer shall forthwith report to the Court and shall with his report forward an accurate list of the property seized.

(8) If the debtor shall give his consent in writing to the sale of property without awaiting the expiry of the term prescribed in rule 68, the officer shall receive the written consent and forward it without delay to the Court for its orders.

(9) When property is removed to the Court it shall be kept by the Bailiff on his own sole responsibility, in such place as may be approved by the Court. If the property cannot, from its nature or bulk, be conveniently kept on the Court premises, or in the personal custody of the Bailiff, he may, subject to the approval of the Court, make such arrangement for its safe custody under his own supervision as may be most convenient and economical.

(10) If there be a cattle-pound maintained by Government or any Local Authority in or near the place where the Court is held, the Bailiff shall be at liberty to place in it such attached live-stock as can be properly there kept, in which case the pound-keeper will be responsible for the property to the Bailiff and shall receive the same rates for accommodation and maintenance thereof as are paid in respect of impounded cattle of the same description.

(11) Whenever property is attached, and any person other than the judgment-debtor shall claim the same, or any part of it the officer shall nevertheless, unless the decree-holder desires to withdraw the attachment of the property, so claimed, remain in possession and shall direct the claimant to prefer his claim to the Court.

(12) If the decree-holder shall withdraw an attachment or if it shall cease under sub-rule (2) or (4), the Bailiff's officer shall inform the debtor or, in his absence, an adult member of his family that the property is at his disposal.

(13) If any portion of the deposit made under sub-rule (1) or (4) remains unexpended it shall be refunded to the decree-holder in the manner prescribed for such refunds in sub-rule (9) of rule 45A. Any difference between the cost of attachment of moveable property (other than the costs referred to in rule 45A) and the sums deposited by the attaching decree-holder shall, unless the difference is due to the fault of the Bailiff, be recovered from the sale proceeds of the attached property, if any, and if there are no sale proceeds, from the attaching decree-holder on the application of the Bailiff. If there is still a deficiency, the amount shall be paid by Government."

63B. Where a debt has been attached under rule 46, and the garnishee does not pay the amount of the debt into Court in accordance with the foregoing rule, the Court, on the application of the decree-holder, may order a notice to issue calling upon the garnishee to appear before the Court and show cause why he should not pay into Court the debt due from him to the judgment-debtor, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree together with the costs of execution. List to be maintained by the Deputy Registrar.

33. The Deputy Registrar will maintain and keep posted up three lists of pending Civil appeals, applications for revision, and miscellaneous applications :—

A. List of all incomplete cases.

B. List of cases ripe for hearing that are to be called on a fixed date.

C. List of cases ripe for hearing that await their turn for hearing.

The Chief Clerk shall be responsible that the lists are properly kept from day to day.

34. No case shall be put on the B or the C list until notices on all respondents have been duly served, and the necessary Translations and Bench copies have been prepared.

35. The B list shall contain all cases ripe for hearing in which any party is not known to be represented by an advocate.

36. When a case has been placed on the B list and the Deputy Registrar before the date fixed for hearing receives intimation that all parties are represented by advocates the case shall forthwith be transferred to the bottom of the C list.

37. Cases in the B list shall be called on the day fixed for hearing and shall either be for disposal on that or immediately subsequent days of sitting or shall be postponed under the orders of the Court to some subsequent fixed date.

38. When a case has once been transferred to the C list, no further date will be fixed for hearing but it will come up for hearing in its turn, as it stands on that list, unless for special reasons it is otherwise ordered, with notice to the parties or their advocates.

39. When a case on the C list is called for hearing, and hearing is for any reason postponed, the case shall remain in its original place in the C list. It will appear in the duty list of the next Court day appropriate to such case, unless the Judge, or Bench, when postponing it directs that it shall not be called again before a specified date.

40. *On every Friday the Deputy Registrar shall issue a list of cases which will be on the lists for disposal during the following week. This list will include cases fixed for admission, miscellaneous applications for disposal and B list cases fixed for hearing on a day in such week. On the last Friday in each month the Deputy Registrar shall issue a list of all cases on the B and C lists.

41. A daily list shall also be issued showing the cases for the day taken from the warning list issued on the Friday of the previous week.

42. At the close of the week, unless the Court has otherwise ordered, the remaining cases of the week's list shall be transferred to the top of the list of cases for hearing for the following week.

43. When a case under the Indian Divorce Act, in which a decree for dissolution or nullity of marriage has been passed is submitted for confirmation, a letter shall invariably be addressed to the District Judge who passed the decree, asking him to inform the parties that this Court will take the decree into consideration at the expiry of six months from the date on which it was pronounced with a view to confirming it or passing such order as may seem fit, that if either party wishes to make any application relating to the decree he or she must do so within the said period of six months, and that if no such application is made the Court will proceed to pass orders in the absence of the parties.

The Diary.

45. The Diary shall be framed so as to show as concisely as possible every stage of and every proceeding taken in the case, and the party or parties present in person or by advocate at every proceeding. Very short proceedings and orders, such as proceedings and orders for the adjournment of a case may be written on the diary for the signature of the judge, but when orders not purely formal have to be made, the Bench Clerk should put up a judgment form with the file when submitting it to the Judge.

The Judgment.

46. Judgments may be written by the Judge himself or be delivered orally. When judgment is given orally a note thereof in writing or in shorthand shall be taken by an officer of the Court, or person authorized by the Judge.

Such note shall be submitted to the Judge for correction and for signature.

Rule 31 of Order XXI shall not apply to the High Court.

*Substituted for the previous rule by Notification No 30 (schedule) dated 22nd June, 1911.

† Rule 44 being an Office rule is not reproduced in this notification. It is reproduced at page 421, High Court Rules and Orders Manual.

Decrees and Formal Orders.

47. Decrees shall be signed by the Deputy Registrar.* The advocates (if any) on both sides shall be required to affix their signatures to the decrees before they are signed by the Deputy Registrar. When any advocate has not signed the decree, the cause of his failing or refusing to sign shall be certified on the decree.

Care must be taken that each decree is in itself clear and intelligible. It should not be necessary to refer to any other documents to ascertain what it really means or implies.

48. When in interlocutory and miscellaneous proceedings an order is made by the Judge after stating his reason therefor, and in any case in which a party may desire it, a formal order shall be drawn up containing the number of case, the names of the parties, the order or result of the order made, the cost incurred and by what parties and in what proportion the costs are to be paid.

49. Every decree and formal order shall bear the date on which the judgment or order was pronounced by the judge; but the date on which the Judge or the Deputy Registrar has actually signed an order or the Deputy Registrar, a decree, shall be noted beneath his signature.

50. When the draft of a decree is ready a notice shall be posted on the Court notice-board that the draft is ready for inspection in the Deputy Registrar's office. If it is not objected to within four days from the date of the notice, a decree in the terms of the draft shall be submitted to the Deputy Registrar for signature.

If the parties do not agree to the form which the decree shall take the case shall be set down upon the daily list on as early a date as may be convenient to speak to the minutes of decree.

51. If a party or an advocate intimates to the Deputy Registrar immediately after an order has been passed by a Judge that he wishes to see the formal order before it is submitted to the Judge for signature, the same procedure as for decrees shall be adopted in respect of the draft formal order.

General.

52. In every appeal and petition, if any Burmese name is not spelled in accordance with the Government system of transliteration, the Deputy Registrar shall cause the spelling to be corrected unless the advocate concerned shows any good reason to the contrary.

If the name was incorrectly spelled in the Lower Court it should nevertheless be correctly spelled in the High Court, the name as previously incorrectly spelled being added in brackets, if necessary, to prevent confusion. The same rule shall be applied as far as practicable to names of natives of India. But any person who writes English has the right to spell his own name in any way he likes, and the spelling of his ordinary signature should be adopted in all documents in Court.

53. No correspondence relating to cases before the Court can be attended to, but any person having business in the Court or its office shall transact the same in person or by a duly authorized agent, or advocate.

* NOTE.—So much of rule 35 of Order XLI as requires the decree to be signed and dated by the Judge or Judges who passed it, does not apply to the High Court of Judicature in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction.

54. The Registrar, Deputy Registrars, Assistant Registrars, the Chief Translator and the Senior Interpreters attached to the High Court for Burmese, Hindustani, Gujarati, Chinese, Tamil and Telugu, are empowered to administer the oath to deponents of affidavits to be filed in the High Court.

The Senior Interpreters shall exercise the power conferred by this rule only within the precincts of the Court.

55. The Superintendent, Appellate Side, shall certify the copies referred to in order XLI, rule 37. [as amended by Notification No. 33 (Schedule) dated 21st August, 1933].

Appeals to the Privy Council.

56. Applications to the Court for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council shall be made within 90 days of the decree or order to be appealed from, subject to the provisions of sections 4, 5 and 12 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908.

57. Petitions for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council shall be presented to the Deputy Registrar, who, if the petition is in order, will issue notice in the form attached on the Respondent to show cause before a Bench consisting of at least two Judges, why the certificate prayed for should not be granted.

58. When a certificate is granted, the Appellant shall within the period prescribed by Order XLV, Rule 7, give security for the costs of the Respondent to the extent of Rs. 4,000. In cases of special magnitude and importance, the Court may require security for a larger sum: provided that security shall not in any case be required for a sum exceeding Rs. 10,000.

59. Security shall ordinarily be furnished by the deposit of cash or Government securities to the amount required, but subject to the provisions of these rules and of the provisos to sub-rule (1) of Rule 7 in Order XLV, it may be furnished in some other form approved by the Court. Cash deposited under this rule shall be paid to the Bailiff of the Court. Government security so deposited shall be made over to the Registrar or the Deputy Registrar. [as amended by Notification No. 33 (Schedule) dated 21st August, 1933.]

60. When cash or Government securities are deposited under Rule 59 a security bond shall be executed in Form A or Form B attached, as the case may be.

61. If any other form of security is tendered, the Appellant shall ordinarily file with the petition for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council a separate application and, if a charge on immoveable property is tendered, shall also annex thereto a draft mortgage bond together with a valuation of the property verified by affidavit. The value of immoveable property shall be at least double the amount of the security required; and in the case of land on which there are buildings which are brought into the valuation of the property, or where a mortgage of building only is tendered, the buildings must be insured. A tender of such security, if made later than the date of filing the petition for leave to appeal, will not be accepted unless the Court is satisfied that the delay in making it was inevitable, and in any case shall not be accepted after the certificate is granted.

62. On tender of security other than cash or Government securities, notice of the tender shall, if possible, be given to the opposite party requiring him to show cause, if he wishes to do so, within the time fixed see Rule 57 above) for granting the certificate, why the security tendered should not be accepted. No adjournment shall be granted to the opposite party to contest the nature of such security.

63. If the security tendered appears to the Court to be unsatisfactory, the Appellant shall be so informed.

64. In every security bond, the Appellant shall bind himself to pay such costs of the opposite party as may be allowed by the Court in the event of the appeal not being prosecuted.

65. Within the period prescribed by Order XLV, Rule 7, the Appellant shall also deposit with the Bailiff of the Court the sum of Rs. 1,000 or such sum as the Deputy Registrar may determine to defray the expenses of printing, translating, transcribing, indexing and transmitting, a copy of the record [as amended by Notification No. 33 (Schedule) dated 21st August, 1933].

66. Where an Appellant, having obtained a certificate for the admission of an appeal fails within the time prescribed to furnish the security or make the deposit required in accordance with Rules 58 and 65, (or apply with due diligence to the Court for an order admitting the Appeal), the Court may, on its own motion or on an application on that behalf made by the Respondent, cancel the certificate for admission of the Appeal, and may give such directions as to the costs of the Appeal and the security entered into by the Appellant as the Court shall think fit, or make such further or other order in the premises as, in the opinion of the Court, the justice of the case requires.

67. When the Court admits the Appeal, it shall always clearly state in its order who are actual parties at the time of admission.

68. On a certificate being granted to appeal to His Majesty in Council, the Deputy Registrar shall immediately call for the transmission of the record and all material papers. The preparation of the Record shall be subject to the supervision of the Court, and the parties may submit any disputed question arising in connection therewith to the decision of the Court, and the Court shall give such directions thereon as the justice of the case may require.

69. The Deputy Registrar shall on payment to him of a fee of Rs 16 prepare an index of the papers which make up the record. This index shall be prepared within three weeks of the date of receipt of the records or of the date of deposit required by Rule 65, whichever is later. As soon as the index is ready, a notice in form attached shall be issued by the Deputy Registrar requiring the Advocates of both parties to attend his office for the purpose of settling the index within the time specified in the notice. If the Advocates fail to attend or to settle the index within the time aforesaid, the matter shall be reported for the orders of the Court without further delay. Any costs incurred on such account shall be borne in manner as the Court direct.

70. The Registrar or the Deputy Registrar as well as the parties and their legal Agents shall endeavour to exclude from the Record all documents (more particularly such as are merely formal) that are not relevant to the subject-matter of the Appeal, and, generally, to reduce the bulk of the Record as far as practicable, taking special care to avoid the duplication of documents and the unnecessary repetition of headings and other merely formal parts of documents; but the documents omitted to be copied or printed shall be enumerated in a manuscript list to be transmitted with the Record.

71. If the parties are agreed as to the papers to be omitted, those papers shall not be transcribed. Where in the course of the preparation of a Record one party objects to the inclusion of the document on the ground that it is unnecessary or irrelevant and the other party nevertheless insists upon its being included, and the Court allows the document to be included, the Records, as printed, shall, with a view to the subsequent adjustment of the costs of and incidental to such document, indicate in the index of papers or otherwise, the fact that and the party by whom, the inclusion of the document was objected to.

72. Where there are two or more Appeals arising out of the same matter and the Court is of opinion that it would be for the convenience of the Lords of the Judicial Committee and all parties concerned that the Appeal should be consolidated, the Court may direct Appeals to be consolidated.

73. An Appellant who has obtained a certificate for the admission of an Appeal may at any time prior to the making of an Order admitting the Appeal withdraw the Appeal on such terms as to cost and otherwise as the Court may direct.

74. An Appellant, whose Appeal has been admitted shall prosecute his Appeal in accordance with the Rules for the time being regulating the general practice and procedure in Appeals to His Majesty in Council.

75. Where an Appellant, whose Appeal has been admitted, desires, prior to the despatch of the Record to England, to withdraw his Appeal, the Court may upon an application in that behalf made by the Appellant, grant him a certificate to the effect that the Appeal has been withdrawn and the Appeal shall thereupon be deemed, as from the date of such certificate, to stand dismissed without express order of His Majesty in Council, and costs of the Appeal and the security entered into by the Appellant shall be dealt with in such manner as the Court may think fit to direct.

76. Where an Appellant whose Appeal has been admitted, fails to show due diligence in taking all necessary steps in connection with the preparation of the Record, the Court may, either on its motion or on the application of the Respondent, call upon the Appellant to show cause why a certificate should not be issued that the Appeal has not been effectually prosecuted by the Appellant, and if the Court sees fit to issue such a certificate, the Appeal shall be deemed as from the date of such certificate, to stand dismissed for non-prosecution without express order of His Majesty in Council, and the costs of the Appeal and the security entered into by the Appellant shall be dealt with in such manner as the Court may think fit to direct.

77. Where at any time between the admission of an Appeal and the despatch of the Record to England the Record becomes defective by reason of the death, or change of status of a party to the Appeal, the Court may notwithstanding the admission of the Appeal, on an application in that behalf made by any person interested, grant a certificate showing who, in the opinion of the Court, is the proper person to be substituted, or entered on the Record in place of, or in addition to, the party who has died, or undergone a change of status, and the name of such person shall thereupon be deemed to be so substituted or entered on the Record as aforesaid without express order of His Majesty in Council. If, in the opinion of the Court, there has been undue delay in making this application, the Court may order the Appellant or the party interested, to take all necessary steps to perfect the Record within such time as the Court may direct, and, if he fails to comply with such order, the Court may call upon him to show cause why a certificate should not be issued that the Appeal has not been effectually prosecuted, and if the Court sees fit to issue such a certificate, the Appeal shall be deemed, as from the date of such certificate, to stand dismissed for non-prosecution without express order of His Majesty in Council and the costs of the Appeal and the security entered into by the Appellant shall be dealt with in such manner as the Court may think fit to direct.

78. Where the Record subsequently to its despatch to England becomes defective by reason of the death, or change of status, of a party to the Appeal the Court may, upon an application in that behalf made by any person interested, cause a certificate to be transmitted to the Registrar of the Privy Council showing who, in the opinion of the Court, is the proper person to be substituted, or entered, on the Record, in place of, or in addition to, the party who has died, or undergone a change of status. If, in the opinion of the Court, there has been undue delay in making this application the Court may order the Appellant or the party interested, to take all necessary steps to perfect the Record within such time as the Court may direct, and, if he fails to comply with such order, the Court shall report the matter to the Registrar of the Privy Council.

79. The supplementary records dealing with revivor of Appeals should be transmitted to England in manuscript and not in print.

Order of arrangement of the papers prefixed by index.

PART II.

20. Index to Part II.

21. Exhibits.

Appendix II.—List of formal and other documents excluded

NOTE.

(1) Index.—The index to Part I should be in chronological order and should be placed at the beginning of the volume. The index to Part II should follow the order of the exhibit mark, and should be placed immediately after the index to Part I.

Records.—Part I should be arranged strictly in chronological order, i.e., in the same order as the index. Part II should be arranged in the most convenient way for the use of the Judicial Committee as the circumstances of the case require. The documents should be printed as far as suitable in chronological order mixing plaintiff's and defendant's documents together when necessary. Each document should show its exhibit mark, and whether it is a plaintiff's or defendant's document (unless this is clear from the exhibit mark) and in all cases documents relating to the same matter, such as (a) a series of correspondences, or (b) proceedings in a suit other than the one under appeal, should be kept together. The order in the record of the documents in Part II will probably be different from the order of the index, and the proper page number of each document should be inserted in the printed index.

The parties will be responsible for arranging the record in proper order for the Judicial Committee, and in difficult cases counsel may be asked to settle it.

(3) Numbering of documents.—The documents in Part I should be numbered consecutively. The documents in Part II should not be numbered, apart from the exhibit mark.

(4) Heading of documents.—Each document should have a heading which should consist of the number or exhibit mark, and the description of the document in the index, without the date.

(5) Marginal note.—Each document should have a marginal note which should be repeated on each page over which the document extends, viz. :—

PART I.

(a) Where the case has been before more than one Court, the short name of the Court should first appear. Where the case has been before only one Court the name of the Court need not appear.

(b) The marginal note of the document should then appear consisting of the number and the description of the document in the index, with the date, except in the case of oral evidence.

(c) In the case of oral evidence 'Plaintiff's evidence' or 'Defendant's evidence' should appear beneath the name of the Court, and then the marginal note consisting of the number in the index and the witness's name, with 'examination,' 'cross-examination' or 're-examination' as the case may be.

PART II.

The word 'Exhibit' should first appear. The marginal note of the exhibit should then appear consisting of the exhibit mark and the description of the document in the index, with the date.

(6) Omission of formal documents, etc.—The parties should agree to the omission of formal and irrelevant documents, but the description of the document may appear (both in the index and in the record), if desired with the words 'Not printed' against it.

A long series of documents, such as accounts, rent-rolls, inventories, etc., should not be printed in full, unless Counsel so advise, but the parties should agree to short extracts being printed as specimens.

Every document should be carefully edited for the printer, avoiding the repetition of unnecessary titles and omitting formal portions.

ORDER LIII.

The following shall be inserted as Order LIII :—

*"Rules for the conduct of Suits in the Rangoon Small Cause Court.

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. These rules may be called the Rangoon Small Cause Court Rules, 1922, and shall form Schedule I to the Rangoon Small Cause Court Act, 1920. They shall come into force simultaneously with the Act and shall apply to all proceedings thereafter to be instituted in the said Court, and as far as may be, to all proceedings transferred thereto under proviso (b) of section 2 (I)

2. All previous rules so far as they are inconsistent with these rules are hereby superseded and the rules heretofore contained in Schedule I to the Act and in Order LV of the Code are hereby annulled, but not so as to affect anything duly done or suffered thereunder.

3. In these rules unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context:—

(1) 'The Act' means the Rangoon Small Cause Court Act.

(2) 'Bailiff' means any Bailiff of the Court.

(3) 'The Code' means so much of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, together with the Schedules and Appendices thereto, as is not expressly or impliedly excluded by the Act or these rules.

(4) 'Prescribed' means prescribed by these or any duly authorized rules or orders or by the Code.

(5) 'Process' includes a summons to a defendant or to a witness, a notice or any other process (not being a warrant) which has to be served through the Court.

4. The procedure to be followed in the Court shall be that laid down in the Code, subject to the provisions of the Act and of these rules.

5. All complaints, written statements, affidavits, petitions and other proceedings presented to the Court shall be in English and written or type-written or printed, fairly and legibly, and in the prescribed form. Provided always that in proceedings to which all the parties are Burmans and in which the relief sought does not exceed Rs. 500, all pleadings, petitions and affidavits may be written, typed or printed in Burmese.

6. Written statements, petitions and affidavits, unless filed in Court or before the Registrar, shall be presented to the Chief Clerk or to such other officer as may be appointed in that behalf in like manner as is hereinafter provided for the presentation of complaints.

The Chief Clerk is empowered to administer oaths to the deponents of affidavits to be filed in Court.

Copies of pleadings, petitions and affidavits must be served on the opposite party not less than 24 hours before the date fixed for hearing.

* Inserted in Schedule I to the Rangoon Small Cause Court Act, 1920, under the powers conferred by section 32 of that Act.

7. Unless the necessary process fees payable on a Plaint or petition are paid within 48 hours from its admission, the suit or petition may be dismissed.

Institution of suits—The Plaint, its Presentation and Admission.

8. Every suit shall be instituted by the presentation of a Plaint.

9. The subject-matter of the Plaint shall be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively and each paragraph shall contain as nearly as may be a single allegation. Where a Burmese or Indian date is given the corresponding English date shall be added. The names, descriptions and places of residence of the parties must be fully set out in the title or the omission to do so must be satisfactorily explained.

10. A Plaint shall be presented to the Chief Clerk of the Court or to such officer as the Chief Judge may from time to time appoint in that behalf. If the Plaint be reasonably legible and be properly stamped, signed and verified and otherwise admissible in accordance with the provisions of the Code and of these rules it shall be received and a receipt shall be granted to the person presenting it. A diary form for the suit shall thereupon be opened by such Chief Clerk or other officer, who shall enter therein the name of the person presenting the Plaint, the date of presentation and the documents (if any) produced or filed with the Plaint. Together with the Plaint shall be filed as many copies thereof as there are Defendants to the suit. And the Chief Clerk or such other officer as aforesaid shall thereupon place the Plaint with the diary form before the Registrar for his written order for the admission of the Plaint and his direction for summons to issue upon payment of the necessary fees.

11. If it appears to the Registrar that the Plaint should for any reason be amended or rejected, the matter shall be placed in the daily cause list on a suitable date before the Registrar for admission and the Registrar shall then deal with the matter in question or (if so desired) place the matter for admission before the Judge to whom such case would ordinarily be assigned.

12. If the person desiring to verify a Plaint is not a party to the suit he shall obtain leave from the Registrar to verify and his application in that behalf shall be supported by affidavit showing his connection with the case and how the allegations made come within his knowledge or belief.

13. An agent desiring to institute a suit shall, at the time of presenting the Plaint, produce his power of attorney for the scrutiny of the Chief Clerk or such other officer as aforesaid who shall examine it and note its production in the diary, and the power of attorney shall be returned with a warning that it must be produced on the day of hearing for inspection.

14. (1) When an original document is produced by the Plaintiff under Order VII, Rule 14, of the Code, the Chief Clerk shall put thereon his initials and a note of the date of presentation.

(2) If a copy of such document is delivered to be filed with the plaint instead of the original, the Chief Clerk shall compare the copy with the original and certify as to its correctness by endorsement.

15. When a Plaint has been admitted it shall be numbered and registered as a suit duly instituted and the Chief Clerk or other officer as aforesaid shall, upon receipt of the proper fees, issue a summons directed to each Defendant.

Summons—its Service—and the Service of Processes generally.

~~16. The summons to the Defendant shall require the Defendant or~~ Defendants to enter appearance before the Registrar upon a date to be therein mentioned.

17. (1) In all suits for sums not exceeding Rs. 50 the summons shall be for final disposal.
- (2) In all suits the value of which exceeds Rs. 1,000 summons shall be for the settlement of issues.
- (3) And in all other suits the Registrar shall determine, at the time of issuing the summons, whether it shall be for the settlement of issues only or for the final disposal of the suit; and the summons shall contain a direction accordingly.
18. (1) In all suits in which summons is for the settlement of issues the Defendant when he enters appearance shall be given an opportunity of filing a written statement in answer to the Plaintiff's claim and the suit shall be assigned to a particular Judge for trial and a date fixed for hearing.
- (2) In all other suits a verbal defence may be recorded unless for any reason the Court considers a written statement desirable in the circumstances.
19. Ordinarily the interval between the date of issue of a summons and the day fixed for the appearance of the Defendant or Defendants shall not be less than—
 - (a) where all the Defendants reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court—
 - (1) in suits the value of which exceeds Rs. 1,000—fourteen days;
 - (2) in all other cases—ten days;
 - (b) where any one Defendant resides in Burma but beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court—twenty-eight days;
 - (c) where any one Defendant resides elsewhere in India—eight weeks.
 - (d) where any one Defendant resides out of India—three months.
20. Ordinarily a Defendant residing within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court shall not be deemed to have had sufficient time to appear and answer unless the process were served on him not less than three clear days before the day fixed for appearance.
21. All processes and warrants, except committal and release warrants, shall be signed, sealed and issued by the Chief Clerk. Committal and release warrants and commissions shall be signed by the Judge who ordered their issue or by the Registrar on his behalf.
22. Processes or warrants for service or execution within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court shall be delivered for service or execution to the Bailiff, who shall endorse thereon the date of receipt by him. If the person to be served is known to the Bailiff, or to any of his staff, the Bailiff shall cause the process to be served forthwith. If the person to be served is not so known the Bailiff shall require the party applying for the process to provide some person to identify the person to be served and shall fix a time when one of the officers will be ready to proceed to effect service.
23. Processes for service in Burma but beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court shall unless otherwise directed be sent by post to a Court at the headquarters of a township in which the person to be served resides. If the process is to be served out of Burma it shall be sent for service as required by section 28 and Order V, Rules 21 to 23 and 25 of the Code, to the Court named by the party at whose instance the process is issued.

24. Unless otherwise ordered a second or subsequent process shall not be issued until the previous one has been returned.

25. Proof of service may be made by affidavit. Such affidavits must state fully all particulars which must necessarily be proved before the summons or process can be held to have been duly served. The Bailiff is empowered to administer the oath to the deponents of such affidavits.

26. No summons or other process shall be served or executed on a Sunday, Christmas Day or Good Friday except by the special leave of the Court.

Appearance.

27. If the Defendants or any of them do not appear and the Court is satisfied that they have been duly served with the summons the suit shall be heard ex parte as regards such Defendants.

28. If the Defendants or any of them do appear and wish to defend the suit, the Registrar shall either direct such Defendants or Defendant to file a written statement before the Judge to whom such case is assigned for trial, allowing such time as may be reasonable for the purpose, or direct that the case be placed before such Judge the following Court day for order.

29. Advocates or pleaders instructed to appear and defend on behalf of any one or more Defendants in a suit may enter appearance on his or their behalf at any time before the date for appearance by formal notice in writing addressed to the Chief Clerk and may at the same time file written statement in answer to the Plaintiff's claim and the case will thereupon be placed for order before the Registrar.

30. (1) A minor can only enter appearance by his guardian ad litem. And the Court shall, upon being satisfied of such incompetence, appoint a proper person to be such guardian upon application made to it either in the name or on behalf of such minor or by the Plaintiff.

(2) (a) If on an application by the Plaintiff, and after due notice to the proposed guardian and to the minor, the proposed guardian is not appointed the Court may appoint one of its officers to act as guardian ad litem.

(b) In such case no notice need issue save to the officer concerned, and upon his signifying to the Court his consent to act as a guardian, the order appointing him shall be made, and he shall thereupon endeavour to get into communication with the minor's natural guardian or relatives with a view to ascertaining what defence should be put in in answer to the Plaintiff's claim.

(c) The Court may at any time direct the Plaintiff or other party having the conduct of the case to pay into Court a sum sufficient to defray such minor's expenses in defending the suit.

(3) The procedure provided for by this rule with regard to minors shall be adopted mutatis mutandis with regard to persons of unsound mind.

31. Subject to the control of the High Court, the Chief Judge may from time to time make such arrangements as he thinks fit for the distribution of the business of the Court among the various Judges thereof. And he may whenever it is necessary or expedient withdraw any suit or proceeding from any Judge and transfer it to himself or to any other Judge for disposal.

32. Upon a written statement being filed or a verbal defence recorded the Judge to whom such case is assigned shall fix a date for trial, unless the matter can be disposed of on the pleadings.

Daily File and Cause Lists.

33. All pending cases shall be entered in the daily file under the respective dates fixed for hearing.

62. The process fees prescribed for the warrant of attachment and for the order of sale shall be annexed to every application for execution by attachment and sale of property.

63. In every application for the attachment of moveable property the approximate value of the property sought to be attached shall be stated according to the best of the applicant's belief.

64. In applications for execution by attachment of moveable property it shall be expressly stated whether the property sought to be attached is in the possession of the judgment-debtor or not, and the place where the property is to be found shall be clearly indicated.

65. A warrant issued under Order XXI, Rule 24. of the Code, shall be returnable within one month from the date thereof.

Sale of Attached Property.

66. As soon as possible after an attachment of moveable property, the Bailiff shall report to the Court the fact of the attachment and shall furnish a list of the articles attached and their approximate value, and shall note if any of them are not liable to attachment or sale.

If any of the articles or things fall within the proviso of Order XXI, Rule 43, of the Code, it shall be so stated in the report and list.

67. The report and the list shall be submitted to the Third Judge who shall pass such order for sale as he may think fit, although the decree-holder may not apply for a sale order. A warrant for sale shall be sent to the Bailiff, who shall forthwith prepare and issue a proclamation.

68. Every proclamation shall be advertised in a local newspaper or advertiser for at least fifteen days (except in the case of property mentioned in the proviso to Order XXI, Rule 43, of the Code), and no proclamation shall issue until the person applying for sale has deposited with the Bailiff an amount sufficient to defray the expense of advertising.

69. Moveable property falling within the proviso to Order XXI, Rule 43, of the Code, shall be sold as soon as may be convenient after it has been attached. Other moveable property shall be sold on the third Saturday after the day on which the proclamation shall have been affixed on the Court-house.

Security to Court.

70. When security is required to be given it shall be taken either in cash or in the form of a bond. Such bond shall be with or without sureties as the Judge may direct, and shall be in favour of the Bailiff of the Court.

71. When sureties are required and persons resident within the jurisdiction of the Court are tendered, the Bailiff shall report whether the principal and sureties possess within the jurisdiction of the Court property of value equal to the amount of the security required.

72. No sureties shall, without the order of the Judge, be accepted unless they make an affidavit or affidavits stating that the property which each of them possesses, or that their properties combined, are equal in value to the amount of the security demanded, over and above, any incumbrance to which such properties may be liable, and, over and above, the amount for which they have previously given security in the Court or in any other Court and for which they are at the time liable as sureties.

73. On the application of the Bailiff summonses may be issued to persons named by him to appear before him or to produce before him documents of title for the purpose of his enquiry into the value of the property of any person tendered as a surety.

Bailiff's Commission on Sales of Attached Property.

74. The Commission to be drawn by the Bailiff on sales of attached property shall be at the rate of 5 per cent.

The fees paid each month shall be drawn and disbursed to the Bailiff at the end of the month under the orders of the Registrar.

Applications generally.

75. All applications arising out of a suit shall bear the number of such suit unless they be applications for execution, for attachment, or arrest before judgment, for removal of attachment, for review of judgment, for sanction to prosecute, or miscellaneous applications which necessitate separate judicial proceedings, or in which the petitioner is not a party to the suit.

76. Every application in writing shall be in the form of a petition, signed by the applicant or his recognised agent, or his pleader, and if the Court requires it to be verified shall be verified in the same manner as a plaint.

77. On receiving an application the Court shall (if necessary) direct notice to issue for service on the Respondent together with a copy of the application, to be supplied by the applicant. The notice shall be served in the same manner as a summons and shall fix a date for the hearing of the application.

Applications to set aside Dismissal Orders or ex parte Decrees.

78. The Court may, at any time after any application to set aside a dismissal order or ex parte decree is presented to the Court, put the parties on such terms as to furnishing costs or for security for the amount of the claim and costs by payment into Court or otherwise as it shall think fit.

PART II.

EJECTMENT AND DISTRESSES.

A.—Recovery of Possession of Immoveable Property.

79. An application under section 17 of the Act shall be in the form of a Plaint in which the applicant shall be the Plaintiff and the occupant the Defendant and the matter shall be treated as a suit. For the purpose of ascertaining the value of the suit the annual rental value of the property in respect of which the claim is made shall be deemed to be the value of such suit, and such annual value shall be stated in the application.

80. When an application has been made under section 17 of the Act, the Court shall by summons call upon the occupant to show cause why he should not be compelled to deliver up the property.

81. The summons shall be served on the occupant in the manner provided by the Code for the service of summons on a Defendant.

82. If the occupant does not appear at the time appointed and show cause to the contrary, the applicant shall, if the Court is satisfied that he is entitled to apply under section 17 of the Act, be entitled to an order addressed to the Bailiff directing him to give possession of the property to the applicant on such a day as the Court thinks fit to name in such order.

83. Any such order shall justify the Bailiff in entering after the hour of eight in the morning and before the hour of six in the afternoon upon the property named therein, with such assistants as he thinks necessary, and giving possession of such property to the applicant, after removing if necessary anything found therein.

84. When the applicant, at the time of applying for any such order as aforesaid, was entitled to the possession of such property, neither he nor any person acting in his behalf shall be deemed, on account of any error, defect or irregularity in the mode of proceeding to obtain possession thereunder, to be a trespasser; but any person aggrieved may institute a suit for the recovery of compensation for any damage which he has sustained by reason of such error, defect or irregularity.

When no such damage is proved, the suit shall be dismissed; and when such damage is proved but the amount of the compensation assessed by the Court does not exceed ten rupees, the Court shall award to the Plaintiff no more costs than compensation, unless the Judge who tries the case certifies that in his opinion full costs should be awarded to the Plaintiff.

B—Distress Warrants

85. Every application for a distress warrant under section 22 of the Act shall be accompanied by an affidavit in the prescribed form and (so long as the Rangoon Rent Act, 1920, remains in force) by a certificate from the Controller certifying the standard rent of the premises in respect of which the application is made.

86. The Court may issue a warrant under its seal and returnable within six days, in the prescribed form addressed to the Bailiff.

The Court may, at its discretion, upon personal examination of the person applying for such warrant, decline to issue the same.

87. Every distress shall be made after sunrise, and before sunset, and not at any other time.

88. The Bailiff directed to make the distress may enter any dwelling-house, the outer door of which may be open, and may break open the door of any room in such dwelling-house and may force open any stable, outhouse or other building for the purpose of seizing property liable to be seized:—

Provided that he shall not enter or break open the door of any room appropriated for the residence of women, which by the usage of the country is considered private.

89. In pursuance of the warrant the Bailiff shall seize the moveable property found in or upon the house or premises mentioned in the warrant and belonging to the person from whom the rent is claimed (hereinafter called the debtor), or such part thereof as may, in the Bailiff's judgment, be sufficient to cover the amount of the said rent, together with the costs of the said distress.

90. The Bailiff may impound or otherwise secure the property so seized in or on the house or premises chargeable with the rent.

91. On seizing any property under Rule 89 the Bailiff shall make an inventory of such property and shall give notice in writing in the prescribed form to the debtor, or to any other person on his behalf in or upon the said house or premises that such property will be sold pursuant to the provisions of the Act. The date on which the sale will be held shall be stated in the notice and shall be not less than seven days after the date of seizure.

The Bailiff shall, as soon as may be, file in the Court copies of the said inventory and notice.

92. The debtor or any other person alleging himself to be the owner of any property seized, or the duly constituted attorney of such debtor or other person, may apply to the Court to discharge or suspend the warrant, or to release a distrained article, and the Court may discharge or suspend such warrant or release such article accordingly, upon such terms as it thinks just, and may in its discretion give reasonable time to the debtor to pay the rent due from him.

Upon any such application, the costs attending it and attending the issue and execution of the warrant shall be in the discretion of the Court, and shall be paid as the Court directs.

93. If any claim is made to, or in respect of, any property seized under these provisions or in respect of the proceeds or value thereof by any person not being the debtor, the Registrar, upon the application of the Bailiff who seized the property, may issue a summons calling before the Court the claimant and the person who obtained the warrant.

And thereupon any suit which may have been brought in the High Court in respect of such claim shall be stayed and the High Court, on proof of the issue of such summons and of the distraint, may order the Plaintiff to pay the costs of all proceedings in such suit after the issue of such summons.

And the Court shall adjudicate upon such claim and make such order between the parties in respect thereof and of the costs of the proceedings as it thinks fit:

and such order shall be enforced as if it were an order made in a suit brought in the Court.

The procedure under this rule shall conform, as far as may be, to the procedure in an ordinary suit in the Court.

94. In any case under Rule 92 or 93 the Judge by whom the case is heard may award such compensation by way of damages to the applicant or claimant (as the case may be) as the Judge thinks fit, and may for that purpose make such enquiry as he thinks necessary; and the order of the Judge awarding or refusing such compensation shall bar any suit for the recovery of compensation for any damage caused by the distress.

* 95. In default of any order to the contrary made by the Court or by the High Court the distrained property shall be sold on the day mentioned in the notice prescribed by rule and the Bailiff shall, on realizing the proceeds, pay the amount thereof into judicial deposit; and such amount shall be applied first in payment of the bailiff's commission and the costs of the said distress and then in satisfaction of the debt; and the surplus, if any, shall be paid to the debtor.

96. No costs of any distress under these provisions shall be taken or demanded except those mentioned in the scale of fees prescribed in Appendix B to this Schedule

The Chief Judge may apply the sum so obtained as costs towards the payment of the contingent charges and Bailiff's remuneration as appears to the said Judge expedient.

97. The Registrar shall keep a book in which all sums received as costs upon distresses made, and all sums paid as remuneration to the Bailiff, and all contingent charges incurred in respect of such distresses, shall be duly entered.

He shall also enter in the said book all sums realized by sale of the property distrained and paid over to landlords under these provisions

98. No distress shall be levied for arrears of rent except under these provisions.

99. The forms prescribed in Appendix B, with such variation as the circumstances may require, shall be used for the purposes therein mentioned.

PART III.

SUMMARY PROCEDURE IN SUITS ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS

100. (1) All suits upon bills of exchange, hundis or promissory notes may, in case the Plaintiff desires to proceed hereunder, be instituted by presenting a plaint in the form prescribed with the original bill of exchange, hundi or promissory note annexed together with as many copies thereof as there are Defendants to the suit. The summons shall be in Form No. (c) in Appendix C and it shall not be necessary to serve a copy of the Plaintiff on the Defendant.

(2) In any case in which the Plaintiff and summons are in such forms, respectively, the Defendant shall not appear or defend the suit unless he obtains leave from the Court as hereinafter provided so to appear and defend and in default of his obtaining such leave or of his appearance and defence in pursuance thereof, the allegations in the Plaintiff shall be deemed to be admitted and the Plaintiff shall be entitled to a decree for any sum not exceeding the sum mentioned in the summons together with interest at the rate specified (if any) to the date of the decree and such sum for costs as may be prescribed in that behalf unless the Plaintiff claims more than such fixed sum, in which case the costs shall be ascertained in the ordinary way, and such decree may be executed forthwith :

Provided always that, unless otherwise ordered by the Court, the summons to the Defendant shall have been served upon him :—

(a) If he resides and is served within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, at least five clear days before the returnable date of the summons.

(b) If he resides and is served without such local limits but in Burma, at least ten clear days before the returnable date of the summons.

(c) If he resides and is served elsewhere in India, at least twenty-one clear days before the returnable date of the summons.

101. (1) The Court shall, upon application by the Defendant, give leave to appear and to defend the suit upon affidavits, which disclose such facts as would make it incumbent on the holder to prove consideration or such other facts as the Court may deem sufficient to support the application.

The said application and affidavit must be filed in the office of the Registrar and copies thereof must be served on the Plaintiff or his pleader not later than three clear days before the day fixed for the Defendant's appearance.

(2) Leave to defend may be given unconditionally or subject to such terms as to payment into Court, giving security, framing or recording issues or otherwise as the Court thinks fit

(3) After decree the Court may under special circumstances set aside the decree, and, if necessary, stay or set aside execution, and may give leave to the Defendant to appear to the summons and to defend the suit, if it seems reasonable to the Court so to do, and on such terms as the Court thinks fit.

102. In any proceeding under this Part the Court may order the bill, hundi or note, on which the suit is founded, to be forthwith deposited with an officer of the Court and may further order that all proceedings shall be stayed until the Plaintiff gives security for the costs thereof

103. The holder of every dishonoured bill of exchange or promissory note shall have the same remedies for the recovery of the expenses incurred in noting the same for non-acceptance or non-payment or otherwise by reason of such dishonour as he has under this Part for the recovery of the amount of such bill or note

104. Save as provided by this Part the procedure in suits hereunder shall be the same as the procedure in suits instituted in the ordinary manner.

PART IV.

MISCELLANEOUS.

105. All acts which may be done by the Court in regard to the appointment or removal of a guardian ad litem under Order XXXII, Rules 4 and 11, of the Code or in regard to the substitution or addition of parties to a suit may be done by the Registrar.

108. Subject to the sanction of the High Court the Court shall frame such forms as it may think necessary for any proceeding before it and may from time to time alter any of such forms.
